When Miss Davidson started teaching school five years ago she "decided to do it in a big way." So she started coaching the boys herself. Several of them have become golden glove finalists and sport group leaders.

And she retains her faith in youth.

"I don't believe there is such a thing as an incorrigibly bad boy," she says.

Women's Club Gives Writing Prize

TORONTO —(CP)— Non-professional Canadian writers have been invited to enter a literary competition for the best essay written about Canada. Sponsored by the Women's Canadian Club of Toronto, a $100 prize is offered in an effort to develop writing talent.

Topic of the essay, which is to be less than 2,000 words, is "Building a United Canada."

Entries are to be judged on the basis of freshness, originality and sincerity of subject matter, and for clarity, vividness and grace of expression.

Mrs. W. J. Gallagher, convenor of the competition committee, announced that the essays must be submitted by Feb. 1, 1950. Only a pseudonym may appear on the essay; the writer's real name is to be enclosed in an envelope together with the essay.

Biography Traces Career Of Former Prime Minister

TORONTO, (CP)— Perhaps it is too soon to write the story of Mackenzie King and the things he did, why he did them and their effect on Canadian history. But H. Reginald Hardy has laid a solid foundation for the thorough-going biography that some day must be written of the "Old Man."

Mr. Hardy's "Mackenzie King of Canada" (Oxford University Press) is the latest of several books that have been written amout the man who for nearly 22 years was prime minister of Canada and who some day from the vantage point of time—say 50 years hence—may be appraised as the greatest Canadian since Sir John A. Macdonald. It is a fine reporting job.

Any biographer of Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, O. M., sets himself a difficult task. Here is no sad Lincoln, no spotlight-loving Franklin D. Roosevelt, no Churchill of ringing phrases and spectacular action. Mr. Hardy labels it simply: "an effort to give a complete chronological story of the life of W. L. Mackenzie King."

From Press Gallery

A veteran newspaper man who from the press gallery of the House of Commons in Ottawa saw Mr. King against a background of parliamentary ups and downs, Mr. Hardy says frankly in the foreword to this, his first book, that he is an admirer. Therefore he praises freely. Yet he has not hesitated to cite the heavy criticism levelled at the former prime minister during a tenure of office unexceeded in Commonwealth history.

The "real" biography of the bachelor prime minister, to many Canadians a lonely figure as he led a nation through the ordeal of history's greatest war, may not be written until Mr. King's private papers and intimate letters are collected and made available to students of history. Mr. King, now 75, is engaged in collecting some of this material for his memoirs, Mr. Hardy asks:

Human Document

"Will King, in writing his memoirs, produce an intimate, human document which will reveal the secret recesses of his mind and heart; or will it be merely a serious, analytical and historical study of his own career as a public servant, political leader and prime minister? King has promised that it will be both.

"There are those who will say that King is emotionally incapable of baring his private life to the world. Will he write about Billy King as well as W. L. Mackenzie King, the statesman?"

It fell to Mr. King's lot to lead the government during the most trying period in Canada's history —the days of the Second World War. Forty years in politics, he had been in power in times of prosperity and in times of depression. He had been in and out of office. Through it all, he commanded the respect of both friend and political foe. Yet few Canadians can say they really know Billy King, the sauve parliamentarian, discerning statesman and the man.

Mr. Hardy is most interesting in his accounts of the many crises

Mrs. Harry Northrop led in a program of Christmas music at the regular meeting of St. Andrew's WA Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors. Mrs. Leslie McLaren, as guest soloist, gave two delightful renditions of Christmas songs and all joined in singing familiar carols. A short essay, "The World Drama of Christmas," by Bishop Renison, was read by Mrs. Jack Richardson. The devotional was taken by Mrs. E. McWilliams who read the "Magnificat." Several girls from the junior choir entertained with songs. A pleasant social half-hour was spent at the close, tea being served by Mrs. Northrop and her group.

100 at Trinity Mothers' Auxiliary Christmas Meeting

Evergreen and tinsel, lighted tapers and sparkling lights royally ushered in the Christmas season for about 100 members of Trinity Baby Band Mother's Auxiliary Wednesday evening. Atmosphere in the Church parlours was permeated with the spirit of good will which goes with this season of the year.

The traditional decorations were charmingly arranged. A Christmas tree, glowing with coloured lights, occupied a place of honour. Its greenness was accented with tinsel-hung branches that graced the walls and piano. A tea table, lovely with a lace cloth, was centred with shining red and silver balls, nestled in a soft spruce bed.

Carol singing opened the proceedings all joining in the familiar hymns. Mrs. N. Elliott and her group had charge of the meeting. Prayer was offered by Mrs. S. Carver, honorary president, and Mrs. K. Baritrop read a Christmas scripture message.

Guest speaker, the Rev. Dr. Jas. Semple, was introduced by Mrs. W. Taylor. He based his address on the symbols of the festive season, holly, mistletoe, decorated trees and candles. "However traditional this may be", he said, "the true significance of Christmas centres around the Christ child in the manger to whom all praise is given."

Dr. Semple was thanked by Mrs. R. Huffman.

A members' choir, directed by Mrs. D. B. Gordon, sang three familiar carols and three Old English, all of which were delightfully rendered. Afterward a cup and saucer was presented to Mrs. Gordon with an expression of appreciation for her leadership.

Mrs. J. T. Stewart entertained with two beautiful piano selections.

President Mrs. W. R. Philp conducted a short business meeting.

Lunch was served by the group in charge.

Mrs. Chas. Elliott New WA President

Speaking on the Advent season, the Rev. Dr. James Semple gave a message to WA members of George St. United Church at their Christmas meeting Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. H. A. Mitchell then favored with two solos, "Advent" and the "Bell Carol." She was accompanied by Mr. Charles Allen.

Appreciation was expressed to the guests by Mrs. W. K. McGee.

Mrs. W. G. Benton's group conducted the devotions.

The slate of officers for 1950 was read by Mrs. W. H. Morton, as follows: honorary president, Mrs. W. K. McGee; past president, Mrs. E. Wand; president, Mrs. Charles Elliott; first vice-president, Mrs. George Munro; second vice-president, Mrs. W. R. Young; secretary, Mrs. Cecil Wasson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. M. Richardson; treasurer, Mrs. A. W. Nelson; press reporter, Mrs. P. C. Sanders.

A short business meeting was conducted with Mrs. E. Wand in the chair.

Bowen-Toms Rites At Knox Church

The marriage took place in Knox United Church on Saturday afternoon of Madeline Mae, daughter of Mr. Frank R. Toms and the late Mrs. Toms of Havelock, and Rodger Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowen of Lakefield. The Rev. H. G. Douglas officiated.

The church was decorated with white and yellow 'mums and fern, and the music played by Mr. Wm. Potter. During signing of the register Mr. Adam Hawley sang "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a gown of white slipper satin, fitted in the bodice, with full skirt and a long train and long sleeves, coming to a point over the wrist. Her fingertip veil fell from a coronet of pearls and beads, and she carried a cascade of red roses and white carnations.

Attendants were Mrs. Garnet Forsyth, Miss Mabel Toms and flower girl, Brenda Lee Cooper. Mrs. Forsyth was in yellow corded taffeta with matching hat and mittens, and carried a heart-shaped muff with corsage of Talisman roses. Miss Toms wore green with matching hat, mittens and heart-shaped muff, with corsage of pink roses. The flower girl wore a pale orchid frock, the skirt trimmed with purple velvet ribbon, with matching ribbon in her hair, and she carried a nosegay of small white and yellow 'mums.

The groomsman was Victor Hope, ushers were Randall Toms, brother of the bride, and Everett Lillie, nephew of the groom.

A reception was held at Club Aragon, where the bride's aunt, Mrs. Fred Toms of Warsaw received wearing a gown of wine faille with matching hat and corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother, who also received wore a figured gown with a navy hat and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride and groom went on a trip to Toronto and points west. For going-away the bride wore a black taffeta dress with net over skirt, cerise accessories, and a grey coat trimmed with Persian lamb.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowen will live at 409 Wolfe St.

Triple Duty Shoes Make Their Debut

KETTERING, Northampton, Eng. —(CP)—Women are now able to keep up more easily with changing shoe styles, thanks to a triple-duty new shoes shown at an exhibition here recently.

The shoe, christened the "Chameleon," has one sole but three different detachable uppers.

The sole has a groove in the edge of the platform into which the wearer can, in less than a minute, fit an upper of any color and various designs. The uppers are to be fashioned in styles ranging from work shoes to evening shoes.

One manufacturer said it is possible that the idea can be applied to children's shoes "so that a succession of slightly widening uppers would fit the child's growing foot."

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Complains Her Man Good Husband But Dull

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 30 years of age, married and have a little girl of 7. My husband is a good husband, a good father, faithful, honest and terribly boring. I am sociable, talkative, love people. We live in a small town where outside interests are few and I feel that looking forward to a lifetime of such silence and deadly monotony is more than I can endure. I am still young and would like to have some life of my own. What do other women do in such cases? Grin and bear it? My husband knows I am unhappy, but can't see what any woman can want outside of a home and a good husband. And I can't see anything worse than two people living together and not speaking the same language. Is there any way out for either one of us, or both?

Dorothy Dix

PEGGY.

ANSWER: One of the things that makes unuhappy marriages so hard to bear is that its miseries are such sordid little affairs. They lack the dignity of tragedy They make none of the appeal to sympathy that broken hearts and wrecked lives do.

Hard To Endure

For we can condone a big sin but how can we endure having our lives made one long yawn? A philanderer or one who drinks too much occasionally may be a thrilling and interesting companion in the intervals between his lapses from grace, but there are no good days for the dullard So, in reality, no husband or wife is called upon to endure a worse martyrdom in marriage than the one who is tied to a life partner who bores him or her to tears.

And worst of it is that these tiresome and uncongenial husbands and wives are so often the very salt of the earth, so far as their virtues go.

What a woman is to do about it when she finds herself in this case, Heaven only knows. If she has no children, perhaps she is justified in saving her own life at the expense of her good, tiresome husband, but when she has a child, as you have, what can she do but grin and bear it and pray God for patience? Psychologists all agree that their parents' divorces inflict all sorts of neuroses on children that wreck their nerves and warp their characters and it would be a cruel thing to make your little girl pay that price for your mistake in selecting a husband.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I believe that the best way to stop divorce would be to appoint a conciliatory board of six members three men and three women not under the age of 60. I venture that after hearing the advice that these grandmothers and grandfathers would give, it would not be necessary to call in a lawyer and many a home would be kept intact.

A. N.

ANSWER: Good idea. Age does not always bring wisdom about everything, but it certainly does in marriage. For in looking back over their own experience the thing that every old man and woman realizes most is how many mountains they made out of mole hills in marriage. How much they worried themselves over suspicions and fears and jealousies that were just so much borrowed trouble.

There is no old man nor old woman who wouldn't tell a disgruntled married couple that divorce isn't a panacea for their disappointment in marriage's not being a fairy tale. It won't give them back their lost illusions nor put them back where they were before marriage, for between them lies a broken home and little children crying for a lost father or mother.

There are mighty few cases in which grandmothers and grandfathers wouldn't tell youn gDarby and Joan to kiss and make up. And a lot of them would do it.

DEAR MISS DIX: After a man marries, which should come first, the wife or the mother?

MARY.

ANSWER: The love a man feels for his mother and that which he feels for his wife are so entirely different that they do not come in conflict, if either the mother or the wife will look at it in a sensible way. As to his duty to his wife or mother, that depends on different circumstances. If the mother is old and sick, and the wife is young and strong, it would be his duty to support his mother rather than his wife, because one could work and the other one could not.

But, generally speaking, a man has a greater obligation to his wife than he has to his mother because her happiness is a responsibility he assumed, and because the welfare of his children depend upon his relationship with their mother.

"I can put it off a while" Says this procrastinator. She wonders why a lot of folk, including salesgirls, hate her.

WATER SHORTAGE MAKES BIG SPLASH — Residents of drought-ridden Roosevelt, N.J., draw their ration of water from an Army truck sent from Fort Monmouth, N.J., after the town's two artesian wells went dry. Water shortage worries many cities in the East. New York faces a three-year drought. Cincinnati, O., Philadelphia, Baltimore, Jersey City, New Brunswick, N.J., and Memphis are among the bigger cities facing drastic water shortages. If water continues to disappear at its present rate, authorities say vast areas of the U.S. might become desert wastelands.

Two Veterans Are Honored After 72 Years Of Service

With a combined 72 years of work behind them William Noftall and Oscar Matchett were honored at a banquet Wednesday night on their retirement from National Grocers Company Limited. About 45 fellow employees were on hand for the banquet sponsored by the Works Council of the company. From the company's head office in Toronto, Secretary-Treasurer and Vice-president T. H. Kinnear and General Sales Manager J. J. Wiley represented the company's executive in honoring the two men.

Mr. Matchett actually retired in June, but both men were honored at the same dinner.

Mr. Noftall has been working in Peterborough and the surrounding district as a salesman since he joined the Thomas Kinnear Company in 1912. When National Grocers bought out the Kinnear company in 1925, Mr. Noftall continued on as salesman.

Mr. Matchett has been working in the grocery business since 1914. He worked first as a salesman and later in the accounting department.

To Return To Newfoundland

Mr. Noftall plans to return to his home in Newfoundland where he was born to live in retirement. Max Kerneghan, a long-time fellow employee presented Mr. Noftall with a console table on behalf of the other workers who were doing him honor. Roy Watson, another employee, presented Mr. Matchett with a memento of the banquet. Last June when Mr. Matchett retired he was presented with a set of chairs.

Mr. Noftall said he had had "lots of fun" working and was looking forward to enjoying himself as fully for a long time yet.

R. S. Magee, manager of the company's Peterborough branch, said, although his association with the two retiring men had been short, he had enjoyed working with them.

Mr. Kinnear said he could remember when Mr. Noftall worked for his father who had established the business and later for Mr. Kinnear himself when he took over the business following his father's death. He said Mr. Noftall had sold more for the old company than any other salesman in any of its four branches.

The program arranged by master of ceremonies Roy Shouldice and other members of the works council committee included a vocal solo by Gordon Apps, a showing of films by the Peterborough Film Council, a piano solo by Mrs. Roy Shouldice, a mouth organ solo by Bill Nelson and a singing session led by Howard Hammell.

13 Guild Members Raise $150 At First Bazaar

A church organization with only 13 regular members and less than a year's experience has proved that enthusiasm and work counts for more than numbers. The Evening Guild of St. Alban's Anglican Church on Wednesday afternoon held a tea and sale of handwork and realized more than $150. from the effort.

All memmbers co-operated with president Mrs. E. A. Adams in making their first appeal for public support a success. All are young married women with families requiring much of their time, but they prepared a quantity of knitted articles, fancywork and aprons for the bazaar and supplied tables with good home baking and candy, as well as preparing the tea refreshments.

Draw tickets on a rug were sold by Mrs. W. F. Potter and the finner of this was Mrs. Simmons, Orpington Rd. A draw on a basket of groceries was looked after by the Afternoon Guild. This was won by Mrs. Farr, of 162 Wilson St.

Fortune telling was a big attraction of the afternoon. The screen that hid Mrs. Albert Borland, dressed as a gypsy, was decorated with appropriate posters to advertise her services.

Several Christmas trees in the room were gay with tinsel and brightly colored balls and quartette serving tables were centred with miniatures of the season's symbols.

Plates arranged by Mrs. J. Piercy were served by Mrs. E. Ebbett, Mrs. Raymond and Mrs. G. Lawrence. The tea cups were filled by those helping in the kitchen, Mrs. A. V. Taylor, Mrs. J. Holt and Mrs. Betty Worrall.

Attending the tables of fancywork and children's and babies' wear were Mrs. J. Martin, Mrs. L. Thibadeau, and Mrs. H. Pierton. The home cooking and candy was sold by Mrs. D. Thomas and Mrs. Chas. Barnes.

Mrs. E. C. Moore assisted president Mrs. Adams to receive at the door. Mrs. G. Spink attended the treasurer's table.

Can Expand Market

LONDON, Dec. 8 —(Reuters)—Sir Graham Cunningham, until recently chairman of the British government dollar exports board, said Wednesday that it would be fairly easy for Britain to expand her market in Canada. "If we were to replace in Canada 15 per cent of the goods at present going from America to that country, it would increase our exports to Canada by 90 per cent."

No Dismissals On Film Board For Being Reds

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 —(CP)—Not one employee has been dismissed from the National Film Board for being a Communist, Reconstruction Minister Winters said Wednesday.

He made the statement during a lengthy Commons debate in which operations of the film board were criticized by the Progressive Conservatives and defended by the Liberals and C.C.F.

G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) asked if anyone has been let out of the film board as a result of the screening being undertaken by the RCMP of the board's employees.

"Sixty-one people have left," Mr. Winters replied. "If the honorable member wants to know if any of them were asked to leave the board because they were Communists the answer is no."

Mr. Fraser said he welcomed the decision to investigate the business operations of the film board. He said he had been advocating the step since 1946.

He contended that the film board is attempting to create a monopoly in Canada on still photography. Not only was it stepping into the business of commercial photography but was doing the work of newspaper photographers.

Mr. Fraser mentioned the names of three men—Pineard, Hughes and Borman—and asked if they were still with the film board. Mr. Winters said they all had resigned at one time or another.

The cost of the Canada Carries On series had been $120,000 in 1948. That was for 12 films. There had been no requests addresed to the board to abandon the series, Mr. Winters told Mr. Fraser.

Mr. Fraser said that the Film Board operates with a low overhead allowing it to process films at lower costs than private film companies.

Mr. Winters said just the opposite is true. The costs were maintained higher in order to discourage people asking the Film Board to do private work.

Threat To Business

Mr. Fraser said he hoped something would be done to eliminate the still department of the board. Last year it had taken 167,854 still pictures. This constituted a threat to the business of commercial photographers.

Alistair Stewart (CCF, Winnipeg North) took a stand in support of the Film Board. He quoted an editorial from the Peterborough Examiner—which publishes in Mr. Fraser's constiutency —lauding the board. Mr. Stewart said the editorial represented his sentiments.

He described the attack on the board as being much like the one made on the CBC by the Association of Canadan Broadcasters.

Mr. Stewart criticized what he described as "lavatory gossip" printed in the Financial Post.

The Toronto business newspaper had been critical of Film Board business operations, and was responsible for bringing to light the fact that the board employees were being screened by the RCMP.

Mr. Stewart said he doesn't think the board is a threat to still photographers. He felt it was a "useful adjunct to government in this country" and had been doing a good job. He objected to it being "hamstrung" by unfair criticism.

Warn Snowy Owl Can't Be Made Pet

MONTREAL, Dec. 8—(CP)—The snowy owl has invaded Eastern Canada, and McGill University scientists seeking information on the bird from the Arctic have warned amateur zoologists not to make a pet of it.

More than 75 of the big birds have been seen in the Montreal district in the last week. Zoologists at McGill's Redpath Museum say the reason for the invasion is apparently a shortage of the owl's chief food supply, the lemming or the Arctic mouse.

They coupled an appeal for information on the bird with a warning on its dangerous tendencies. One blow of its claws can rip a person's face to shreds.

Labor Party Captures By-Election

Experts View Vote As Straw In Wind For 1950 Election

BRADFORD, Yorkshire, England, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Labor party retained the South Bradford seat in the House of Commons, complete returns from Thursday's by-election showed today.

The seat itself is not important but the vote was viewed as a straw in the wind on the Labor party's prospects for the 1950 general election. The result was a sharp disappointment for Winston Churchill's Conservative party.

Today's victory was the 35th time in a row labor successfully defended in elections to fill vacancies, the districts they captured in the 1945 general election.

The official count of the ballots cast Thursday gave:

George Craddock (Labor), 23,335; John L. Windle (Conservative and National Liberal), 19,318, and C. J. Canning (Independent Liberal), 2,882.

Craddock's majority of 1,140 votes over the combined vote of his two opponents compared with the 1945 margin of approximately 2,000 votes by which Craddock's Labor predecessor in the seat, the late M. F. Titterington, defeated two other candidates.

Craddock may spend only a short time in his parliamentary seat. Prime Minister Attlee's cabinet decided Wednesday to recess parliament Dec. 16 until Jan. 24.

With sentiment appearing to favor an early general election, possibly in late February, Attlee could decide to dissolve parliament before the Jan. 24 return date.

The Conservatives had high hopes of ending 1949 with a sizeable victory in what will probably be the last voting for a parliamentary seat before the general election.

Instead they had to be satisfied with only a reduction in the Laborite margin of victory in the district. The result in 1945 was: M. F. Titterington (Labor), 24,394; H. W. Peal (National Liberal), 15,392; C. E. Hindley (Liberal) 6,707.

Craddock's wife, Doris, who had been helping him run his campaign, died Thursday after a short illness, only half an hour before the polls opened.

Flames Level Five Buildings

SHARBOT LAKE, Dec. 9 — (CP)—A flash fire of undetermined origin levelled five buildings and left 11 members of one family homeless late Wednesday night. Damage was estimated at $12,000.

The blaze broke out in the one-storey E. B. Bruell general store. It rapidly spread to a warehouse across the street, despite efforts of firefighters.

Firemen prevented flames from spreading to the Sharbot Lake Hotel, 25 feet from the blaze. Gallons of water were poured on its scorched walls.

Nearly all of the town's 500 inhabitants turned out. A bucket brigade was organized, but it was not needed, as the firemen were able to keep the blaze under control. The firemen laid a line of hose bought only yesterday to flood the open-air skating rink.

Police Capture Pair Mile-a-Minute Chase

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP)—Two youths were arrested at gunpoint Thursday night after they led police a mile-a-minute chase through city streets in a stolen truck under a hail of bullets.

The chase ended when the truck turned into a blind street and crashed into a loading platform.

Morality Officer John Ross sat in the back seat of a taxi, his arm out of the window, and aimed for the truck's tires while the vehicle zig-zagged in and out of lanes in the downtown area.

The chase was almost over before police realized the occupants of the truck were juveniles. Police then withheld their fire. The chase covered five miles.

Three-Way Race

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(CP)—A three-way race for the mayoralty was indicated in nominations today for Toronto's civic election next Jan. 2. Mayor Hiram McCallum was nominated for another term. Also nominated to oppose him were C. H. Mahoney, a former policeman, and Ross Dowson, candidate of the Revolutionary Workers' Party.

US Congressman Goes To Jail Fined $10,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—Representtaive J. Parnell Thomas (Rep. N.J.) today received six to 18 months in jail and a $10,000 fine for cheating the government by "padding" his office pay roll.

Immediately after the sentence was pronounced, Thomas' wife announced:

"I intend to seek the Congressional seat about to be vacated by my husband."

Mrs. Thomas told reporters her husband's resignation is in the mails.

Thomas is 54. His wife is a little younger.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff gave an ear-burning lecture to Thomas along with the jail term and the fine.

He told the little man who seven times was elected to the House as a Republican from New Jersey that he knew he had a good record in the first world war and had done "much good work" in Congress as chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

But, the judge said sternly:

"These can't properly be considered mitigating circumstances."

In fact, he said, as chairman of a Congressional committee, Thomas "had a duty to set an example of upright living."

Thomas took the sentence with no show of emotion.

In Thomas' trial, the government produced testimony that Thomas pocketed more than $8,000 from salary "kickbacks" from fake employees he had put in his office pay roll and on the pay roll of the Un-American Activities Committee.

Baby Adoption System At Stake In Appeal

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP)—Ontario's baby adoption system is said to be at stake in the appeal of an unwed mother for legal custody of a child she gave out for adoption a month arter its birth.

Judgment was reserved in the case, believed to be the first of its kind in Canada, heard before the Ontario Court of Appeals Wednesday.

The 28-year-old mother is appealing from an order of Judge Ian Macdonell who awarded custody to the child's foster parents April 13.

"Our whole system of placing adopted children could be upset by the decisoin of the court," said an officer of the Children's Aid Society. A decision in favor of the mother might mean that any adoption in the future could be similarly upset before foster parents can obtain a formal order after a two-year probationary period.

Plan Subsidy Of 3 Million For Shipping

Grant For Year Only Pending Creation Allied Defence Pool

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 (CP) — A temporary one-year subsidy of $3,000,000 to the Canadian shipping industry pending the creation of a proposed "allied defence shipping pool" was announced to the Commons today by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The Prime Minister told the House the government now has conversations under way—particularly with the United Kingdom—for the establishment of the shipping pool, which the government hoped would assure Canada's shipping needs would be fulfilled in time of war.

He emphasized that the subsidy was for one year only—1950—and was intended to keep the Canadian fleet intact until the proposed pool could be set up.

Under the Prime Minister's plan, Canada would have a remaining Canadian flag deep-sea merchant fleet of only 500,000 deadweight tons—40 ships—compared with the present 1,200,000 and he announced subsidiary measures growing out of the reduction.

Subsidiary Measures

These were:

1. Ship owners who bought war-built vessels from the government under restrictions against their transfer abroad, will have these restrictions relaxed at the discretion of the Minister of Transport. Owners will be able to transfer registry to other countries, while maintaining ownership, to enable them to obtain cargoes not now available because of currency restrictions.

2. Concessions will be given displaced merchant seamen to enable them to come under the government's vocational training plan.

The government's proposal for a shipping pool envisages the transfer of some Canadian ships to the registry of other countries, with these being regarded as part of Canada's contribution to a defence shipping pool in the event of war.

The Prime Minister did not give any details of how pool operations would work out. He indicated the plans are still in the preliminary stage.

The aim would be, he said, to complete peacetime arrangements which would "ensure the prompt, fair and efficient use and allocation of all available shipping in any emergency."

Consul At Tientsin

TOKYO, Dec. 9—(AP)—Consul-General Angus Ward and his Mukden staff reached Tientsin, China, safely Thursday night, United States officials were advised today.

This was the first official message that the Ward party had arrived in the North China city en route home after nearly a year's isolation in Manchuria.

Russians Easily Capture Name Calling Contest

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Dec. 9 (AP)—The Russians easily won the name-calling championship of the 1949 United Nations Assembly despite efforts to shut them up when they got to bandying epithets.

They also introduced some new developments in this field by mixing entomology and etymology—calling people lice, beetles and cockroaches—and keying their campaign to what they call American worship of atomic energy, or bombolatry.

The individual champion name-caller and word-coiner was the Soviet Ukraine's fiery old white-maned Bolshevik, Foreign Minister Dimitri Z. Manuilsky, a Slav with a roaring laugh and a biting tongue.

Assembly Fresident Carlos P. Romulo tried to stop the flow of name calling and succeeded only partly. Once he ruled a speaker who offended would be cut off the amplification - translation system and find himself talking only to himself and a few people nearby.

When that failed to keep the words off the air, Romulo ruled some of them out of the record, but not out of the public prints or out of the ears of radio listeners.

Western language was generally firm, but inoffensive, in description of personalities. Britain's Minister of State, Hector McNeil, a Scot with a sharp tongue and a liking for repartee, once referred to "Sergeant Major Vishinsky and his little platoon" from the small Slavic minority. On another occasion McNeil called the Russian Foreign Minister Mc. Vishinsky, begged his pardon, and made it Professor Vishinsky.

Predict Teacher Shortage High As 8,000 In 10 Years

TORONTO, Dec. 9—(CP)—Estimating that the teacher shortage in Ontario might be as high as 8,000 teachers during the next 10 years, the Ontario Royal Commission on Education has released recommendations for an emergency teacher training program. Mr. Justice J. A. Hope of the Court of Appeal was appointed a Roy Commissioner in March, 1945, to survey the entire field of education, and the report on teacher shortages is the first made by the commission. Mr. Justice Hope said Thursday night the Commission thought it inadvisable to issue partial reports on other prases of education, but that the complete report is being completed as expeditiously as possible.

There was no immediate announcement as to the government's plans regarding the first report, but Education Minister Dana Porter said it would be given "prompt consideration."

Higher Enrolment

The report estimated annual increase in enrolment in elementary schools and consequent additional teachers for the next several years. It listed 13,500 new pupils in 1950-51 with 450 teachers, and said that within the next 10 years "total enrolment in grades one to eight may increase by approximately 250,000. As a consequence approximately 8,000 additional teachers must be trained within these years and, unhappily, we are faced with this problem at a time when 1,100 persons in charge of classrooms in our elementary schools do not possess prescribed teaching certificates."

Relaxation of the academic qualifications was recommended as a means of inducing qualified men and women to enter the teaching profession. The report also urged payment of financial grants, and in the case of married persons a form of family allowances on proof of need.

Family allowances would be available to the teacher in training who has a dependent husband or wife and children.

The report said the teacher training program should start in September next year, open to candidates with the prescribed standing in grades 11 and 12 or to candidates with equivalent academic qualifications who have been successfully employed in other fields.

Plan For Jerusalem Opposed By Canada

NEW YORK, Dec. 9 (CP) — Canada today came out strongly against plans to give Jerusalem an international government and supported a proposal for supervision of the holy places by the United Nations.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton indicated to the UN Assembly that Canada believes a strict internationalization plan would not work and would in fact endanger the protection of the holy places of Jerusalem.

"Our first consideration is effective protection of the holy places," McNaughton said as debate on the future of Jerusalem drew to a stormy close. The explosive question is the last major item on the Assembly agenda.

Judge Wilson To Be Mediator

OTTAWA, Dec. 9—(CP)—Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson of the British Columbia Supreme Court has been named chairman of two Federal Conciliation Boards in the railways company-labor dispute, Labor Minister Mitchell announced today.

The justice will head separate boards that will attempt to settle somewhat similar disputes between the railways and 90,000 international union members and 34,000 members of all-Canadian unions.

Other members of the Board dealing with the case of the international unions are Isaac B. Pitblado, K.C., of Winnipeg, representing the companies, and Alfred J. Wickens, Moose Jaw, Sask., for the 12 unions involved.

In the other case the company-union nominees are, respectively, T. R. Meighen, K.C., and J. A. Coote, both of Montreal.

Mr. Mitchell said he had announced Mr. Justice Wilson as chairman of the Boards in the absence of joint recommendations for a chairman from the other two members of each of the boards.

Chest Funds Get Over 9 Million

OTTAWA, Dec. 9—(CP)—Contributions totalling more than $9,757,300 have poured into the coffers of Canada's Community Chests this year, the Canadian Welfare Council announced today.

The sum is $560,000 above the amount raised in 1948 and six chests still have to report their earnings. Council officials had set an objective of $10,000,000 this year for support of local and national welfare services during 1950.

The Red Feather, an ancient symbol of chivalry dating back to the time of Robin Hood, is the emblem of the annual campaign.

Oshawa led the field of chests whicha topped their quota, raising 115 per cent of an $84,000 objective.

Claxton Busy Man

LONDON, Dec. 9 — (CP). — Defence Minister Claxton of Canada today continued a busy round of engagements in Britain with visits to the Royal Military College at Sandhurst, Berkshire: the Army Staff College at Camberley, Surrey, and the RAF Station at Odiham, Hampshire. Later the minister is due to attend a reception given by the Canadian Joint Staff in London and tonight he is to be the guest of Air Secretary Arthur Henderson at a private dinner.

17 Injured As Arena Stage Falls

Guelph Choir Drops Fifteen Feet, Children Escape

GUELPH, Dec. 9 (CP) — Trapped in "a mass of twisting bodies and arms and legs," as one eye-witness described it, 17 members of a church choir were injured Thursday night when a stage collapsed in the Memorial Gardens Arena.

The Knox Presbyterian church choir of about 45 members was converging on the centre of the wooden stage, about 15 feet square when it collapsed in a series of rending creaks and plunged the singers to the cement-covered aisle 15 feet below.

Ambulances and taxis rushed the injured to General Hospital where four remained for treatment: Lawrence Loman, suffering a fractured pelvis; Joyce Cooper, 20, spinal injuries; Dundas Heron, 56, injured elbow and pelvis and Mrs. Pearl Awry, 55, fractured ribs.

All are reported in "good condition" today.

Seven others were given X-rays: Evelyn Mortley back injuries; Catherine Cleghorne, head cuts and leg abrasions; Mrs. Frank Kristoff, bruiss; Sheila White, back injuries; Ruth Jordan heel fracture; Margaret Allison, ankle injury; and Joan Sanderson, broken heel and sprained ankle.

Another six were shaken up and bruised but released after first aid treatment.

The choir was rehearsing for the Victoria Skating Club's ice show to be held tonight and Saturday. An official said the show will go on as scheduled; "we are thankful it was not worse."

The stage was erected over an arena entrance and was built out from a row of seats. Lawrence Loman, the director, had summoned the choir to the centre of the stage when it collapsed without warning.

Few of the injured were able to give more than a vague account of what happened, so swift was the crash. Ruth Jordan, one of the injured, said "we were converging on the centre of the stage at Mr. Loman's instruction when it happened. I was on the outside and I guess that's what saved me from more serious injuries."

The rehearsal had finished so far as the skating was concerned, and the choir was the last item for the evening. An official said that if the stage had collapsed 30 minutes earlier many children would have been injured.

Police said a plank two by 10 inches wide, held by only two spikes, was the main support of the platform which collapsed.

Clip Medical Racket

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP)—Foreigners no longer will be able to come to Britain just to get free medical treatment under the National Health Act. The House of Commons today passed an amendment to the act empowering Health Minister Aneurin Bevan to charge persons not ordinarily resident here for any use they make of Britain's socialized health scheme.

Cure Not Certain

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—The case of a 10-year-old New York girl who got diabetes from taking the new hormones, cortisone and ACTH, was revealed here today. She was first given cortisone for rheumatoid arthritis. The disease quickly disappeared, but was replaced by diabetes. When the hormone was stopped, diabetes went away, arthritis returned. ACTH was given, and the same thing happened.

Drew Demands Garson Resign Post

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, called today for the resignation of Justice Minister Garson because of "failure to observe the law" in delaying tabling of the McGregor combines report on the flour-milling industry.

Mr. Drew charged that regardless of any personal regards for the Minister "his failure to observe the law disentitles him to continue in office." Confidence in the administration of the Combines Act or any other statute could not be restored while he was Minister of Justice.

The heated controversy erupted again after Mr. Garson raised the subject of combines during discussion of departmental estimates. The report in question was made by F. A. McGregor, resigning combines commissioner, who said 11 flour-milling firms engaged in price-fixing activities. It was tabled Nov. 7.

Prime Minister St. Laurent promptly took issue with Mr. Drew by arguing that "what's done can't be undone." The report had not been tabled within the 15 days after receipt provided by the law. This was not a deliberate omission.

Question of Time

The delay was "entirely a question of time." The report had not been tabled within 15 days after it was received Dec. 29, 1948, because of "pressure of time." Neither the Minister nor the Cabinet had been apprised of it in that time.

Once that deadline was passed, the law did not say that it should be tabled as early as possible. Therefore once the date was passed the law was not operative.

The government had explained the delay. Mr. Garson had explained that the government had felt it could not agree with things in the report.

Mr. Drew's call for Mr. Garson's resignation followed one made some time ago by Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East)

Agree On Changes For Merchant Sailors

OTTAWA, Dec. 9. — (CP).— Transport Minister Chevrier said Thursday in the Commons that he and Veterans Minister Gregg have agreed that some changes should be made in regulations providing for vocational training assistance to merchant seamen of the Second World War.

He said that while he and Mr. Gregg have reached an agreement they have not yet placed their proposals before cabinet. As a result he could not make an announcement at this time.

Plan Billion Dollar Cut In 1950 Marshall Aid Plan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—Western Europe may take a cut of at least $1,000,000,000 in Marshall-Plan aid next year.

This is the minimum slice proposed in economic aid funds by three democratic senators just back from a first-hand look at the American experiment in combating Communism by recovery dollars.

Two of the three—Senators John McClellan (Dem., Ark.) and Burnet Maybank (Dem., S.C.)—will have important appropriations committee votes when the foreign aid program comes to a showdown in the next session of Congress. The other is Senator A. Willis Robertson (Dem., Va.).

The proposed cut of around $1,000,000,000 is $222,000,000 more than the reduction planned by the Economic Co-operation Administration, which handles the aid program. Neil Dalton, ECA's retiring information director, said Thursday that ECA plans to ask for around $3,000,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1. ECA got $3,778,000,000 for the current year.

Dalton said the $3,000,000,000 request is in line with ECA adminstrator Paul G. Hoffman's hope for steady reduction in costs as the program advances.

While they represent only three of the Senate's 96 votes, McClellan, Maybank and Robertson made it plain they intend to be extremely vocal about their idea that foreign aid spending can take a substantial cut.

With the Treasury entering bigger figures in red ink every day, there are signs the trio's suggestions will be well received.

Say Injured Able To Walk Out Of Wreck

4 Passenger Cars Reported Derailed 8 Miles From Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 9 — (CP).— A head-on collision between a Vancouver - Toronto passenger train and a freight train eight miles east of here to-day injured 12 passengers and six railway men, one seriously.

The most severely hurt in the smash between the two Canadian National Railways trains was Arthur (Pat) Herrington of suburban Mimico, engineer on the freight train. Most of the other persons injured suffered from scratches and abrasions, a railway spokesman said.

Taken to hospital with Herrington was Alfred Touden, believed from Toronto, a railway employee. The extent of the men's injuries was not known immediately.

Injured passengers included Nick Elgback of Red Lake, Ont., on his way to Denmark with the ashes of his wife, who died four years ago. Elgback suffered two broken ribs.

Mary Quigley, another passenger, was taken to hospital for examination. Rita Renaud, aged three months, said to have fallen from her mother's knees to the floor of a coach, went to hospital for X-ray examination.

Four of the 15 cars of the crack No. 4 Transcontinental Limited were derailed, as well as seven or eight cars of the Winnipeg-bound freight train, No. 403, made up of 56 loaded cars and two empties. Cause of the collision was not known.

Passengers and injured were transferred to another passenger train and brought to Toronto, the spokesman said.

Abbott Clarifies Rent Situation

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott announced in the Commons today that Saskatchewan "has definitely undertaken to assume responsibility for rent controls as from April 1, 1950.

He added that the Federal government will be prepared to consider a request that it pay the cost of administering provincial rent control in Saskatchewan for a year.

Mr. Abbott tabled correspondence with three other provinces which indicated that:

1. The Federal offer to turn over rent control responsibility to any province is "still receiving study" in New Brunswick.

2. The Nova Scotia position in respect to the offer is unchanged.

3. Quebec is always ready to assume its responsibilities, "but it desires that the Federal government assume its own without delay."

Yugoslavia Sentences 10 People For Spying

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia, Dec. 9, (AP)—Ten white Russians, led by a 64-year-old priest, today were sentenced to prison on charges of spying for the Soviet Union against Premier Tito's regime and aiding the Germans in the Second World War.

The 10, including a former nun were convicted by a Yugoslav tribunal and given prison sentences ranging from three to 20 years.

The priest, grey-bearded Russian Orthodox Father Aleksei Krishko was sentenced to serve 11½ years in prison. The heaviest sentence, 20 years, went to Arson Boremovic, a judge and state prosecutor under the pro-Nazi wartime government in Croatia.

The trial of the White Russians who fled the Red revolution in 1917, only to become Soviet agents after the last war, was seen as Tito's answer to iron curtain trials accusing his regime of trying to supplant Russia's influence over her east European satellites.

Will Strictly Enforce Safety Regulations Aboard Canadian Ships

Chevrier Says Government Plans Prompt Move To Put Safety Measures Into Effect Recommended In Noronic Fire Inquiry

OTTAWA, Dec. 9—(CP)—Safety regulations on Canadian ships will be strictly enforced as a result of the disastrous fire that killed 119 passengers aboard the cruise-ship Noronic in Toronto harbor Sept. 17. Transport Minister Chevrier told the Commons Thursday that prompt government action will be taken to put into effect safety measures recommended in the Noronic fire inquiry. Enforcement of the regulations will go beyond the Great Lakes where the Noronic operated. He told members that the Transport Department has ordered a complete investigation of all ships on the west coast for safety purposes.

Not only has the "complete investigation" been ordered, but the Steamship-Inspection Service has been told to "make sure that all the Steamship-Inspection regulations are enforced."

The minister made the statements during study of the estimates of his department. Earlier members, aiming for prorogation by Saturday, completed debate on the estimates of the post office and external affairs departments.

Discuss Laxity

Mr. Chevier's statement on shipping regulations was prompted by a discussion of the laxity of inspection which preceded the Noronic fire. He disclosed that "no action would be taken by way of dismissal" against the man who inspected the ill-fated ship.

He identified the inspector as W. P. Craig of Toronto.

"In view of the fact that the man is about to retire, and has reached the retiring age (of 65) —in fact I believe he has gone beyond the retiring age—it was decided that no action would be taken by way of dismissal.

It was not yet decided whether legislation will be necessary to put the recommendations of the inquiry commission into effect.

The commission, headed by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada, recommended installation of fire-resisting bulkheads in passenger ships along with automatic fire-alarm or fire-detection equipment in every section of the vessels.

The training of crews for fire-fighting duties, the installation of sprinkler systems and of public address fire - warning systems were among other recommendations.

Asks Severe Action

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said that the laxity on the part of government-inspection officers should be dealt with as severely as had the company and the captain. He was critical of the way safety regulations had been relaxed for the Noronic in the installation of fire-resisting bulkheads.

Mr. Chevrier said regulations requiring fire-resisting bulkheads were passed in 1937. The steamship-inspection board decided it would not be practical to make this regulation retroactive anywhere in the world.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) expressed the hope the department would not take the stand that no new regulations would apply to ships already afloat.

Joseph Noseworthy (CCF — York South) said seamen had told him—and he agreed with them—that as far as inspection of the Noronic was concerned, the inspector might just as well have been hired and paid for by the company.

"The evidence indicates the only thing considered was the convenience of the shipowners," he declared.

Scientists At OAC Protecting Farmers

J. L. McGuire Again Heads Outboard Union

Joseph L. McGuire Thursday night was returned as president of the Independent Outboard Marine Workers' Union for the second straight year. About 100 union members were present for the annual elections.

The only other new member of the executive is John Meehan, former editor of the plant magazine and now vice-president. Charles Meridew, secretary, and G. Reynolds, treasurer, have held their present posts for three years.

Elections for chairman and members of committee will be held at the January meeting. Besides the voting, routine business was transacted. Several amendments to the existing constitution were approved by the membership.

Recently the Independent Outboard Marine Workers' Union signed its 1950 contract with the management. Chief provisions were a five-cent-an-hour increase for piece work, a seven-cent increase in the hourly day rate, and two weeks holiday after three years' employment.

Western oils were in a one-way downward movement. Calgary and Edmonton showed a loss of 20 cents at $7.85 and Anglo-Canadian, Royalite and Pacific Petroleum dipped 10 cents. Okalta recovered part of Thursday's loss.

Base metals moved irregularly downwards on scattered declines. Noranda and Consolidated Smelters eased fractions while Steep Rock backed down six cents at $2.19 from recent gains. United Keno Hill held against the trend, adding 10 cents at $3.80.

A few scattered junior gold producers showed declines ranging up to 10 cents.

Poultry Expert Gives Tips To Producers

"How many chickens should a man have to make a normal living?"

That was the first question put to Norman Schultz of Brantford at the district poultry industry meeting Thursday night in the office of the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Schultz is reputed to know all the answers in the chicken business. This question wanders around in the thoughts of many a man who is only looking over its fence, and wondering what it takes.

"I guess that is one I can't answer," he replied, and then proceeded to discuss it in the manner of suggestion.

'Out in British Columbia you see a lot of people with 700 birds. That's all they do, and expect to make a living. I wish I could. It would involve the least work that I can imagine, about two hours a day. They are usually the first to holler when things don't go right. On the prairies, chickens are just a sideline. In Ontario we appear to be more ambitious than they are in the west.

I'd suggest you ought to have 2,500 hens for a one-man show. How much money would you make? I know one man who has 2,700. His estimate is that he makes $2.90 above feed and labor. I imagine he is an outstanding man. If you take 2,500 hens at nearly $3 each, it works out at a fair wage."

Not One-Man Show

"I don't agree with the idea of a one-man show. This is a 365-days a year business. There is the odd day when you're not feeling so well, and that could set you back. I'd rather have it big enough to employ one or two men. If you have a self-contained plant and sell some chicks, too, with 1,800 to 2,000 birds you should make a fair thing out of it, if you get good production and reasonable prices. I'd rather look ahead to 10,000 hens, and with some help you'll be better off in the long run. One man can look after at least 7,000, and with a little mechanizing you could step that up to 8,000 or 9,000."

"What of the surplus we've been talking about?" G. A. Brethen of Norwood asked.

"In a nation-wide business you'll never notice the difference," Mr. Schultz said. "We've never had enough eggs. There was a fellow at our place the other day, but we didn't have enough volume. He wanted to truck them to New York City."

A second question was: "If you have 7,000 birds, how long would you need help?"

Depends On Variety

With a little note of trade humor, Mr. Schultz said: "If they're Leghorns you could look after them yourself and have days off, but with 7,000 New Hampshires you'd have to go to beat the dickens. We have some Hamps, and it is always the new man that gets them to feed. Those who have been with us some time know them too well. The stupid Reds are under your feet all the time, and won't get out of your way. The Leghorns will. If you have 7,000 chickens to feed, you've got to keep moving. Our fellows work from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m Then the eggs have to be cleaned in the evening, and they have to be marketed. We have a machine washer. It does a nice job and it is the only way to clean brown eggs."

"I started with my father 30 years ago to market eggs. We do our own breeding and we developed a chick and feed business. We learned that fall eggs gave us the best returns. Laying starts around Sept. 1 to the following July. We have that Sept. to Dec. business before the chick season starts. About one-third of our flock are yearlings and two-year-olds."

To another question: "Do you notice any drop in production at this season?" The answer was "No."

Keep Them Well-fed

"If you can keep a bird in good body condition, I don't think she'd ever stop laying, not even to moult. Where there is a decline in laying now, I think it begins with a little slowing up in appetite and the hens lose some body weight because of that. The more you can get them to eat, the better."

"I think the main reason most people don't get eggs in the fall and winter is that they keep the drinking water for their hens too cold. Its temperature should be 45 to 50 degrees. If you can hold the temperature inside the building at that level, the water temperature is automatically at 50 deg. You'll never get production unless you have water consumption."

Mr. Schultz discussed feeds and dry litter of shavings and long straw, especially rye straw. He said he preferred to raise baby chicks on the cement floor, and keep them as far as possible away from older stock.

"When our pullets or hens come off the range, we feed them dry mash and scratch feed, with some fresh green stuff, or leave them part of the day on pasture. About 21st Sept. we start a little artificial lighting in the morning. If birds are losing weight at this season, they need more mash or grain. It doesn't make much difference so long as they eat. Give them more of either, or both. I'd feed more grain to the pullets, and more mash to the hens."

"We like to have our Leghorns about 3¾ to 4 pounds at March 1st. That will produce a five-pound hen in September that will lay well and its eggs will be of good size.

Marketing Problem

Mr. Schultz agreed that the industry's problem today was marketing. "We've got to have a good uniform product, right flavor and color. That's fairly simple. Put them where it is cool and they chill quickly, and when you sell them see that they get to a cool place. A lot of retail stores treat eggs as potatoes and onions. Refrigeration of eggs doesn't enter their heads. Eggs mustn't be frozen, but they should be cool. In summer temperatures of 70 to 80 degrees, eggs go off quality quickly unless they are handled right, and that should be part of our job."

Fred McIndoo of Cavan moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Schultz for coming to Peterborough and imparting his experience and knowledge to the local producers.

The meeting was largely attended. A. G. Douglas said it was a move in the right direction. Coming from several discussions in Toronto he said it was now recognized that if the United States has normal corn and wheat crops in 1950, they will have a grain surplus such as the world has never heard of. With seven per cent more hens today in the US than ever before, he was dubious about export across the border. He recommended more attention to turning out a better product, and a better job of selling.

G. A. Brethen was chairman of the meeting. Questions relating to poultry processing and the hatchery phase of the industry were also discussed.

As a solution to the selling problem, with the prospect of a market reverse in serious reduction of exports to Britain, it was said that the Canadian people could be a great help to the poultry industry by increasing their buying of eggs. The domestic market could be largely increased, and to that end one of the aids, Mr. Brethen said, would be some lowering in the cost of feeds.

Fire Precautions Again Urged On Merchants

A notice asking retail store operators to take fire precautions during the Christmas season has been sent out by the Peterborough Business Men's Association and the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce. Over 200 merchants received the annual notice which is prepared with the help of Fire Chief George Smith.

Chief Smith reported that in December 1947 in Peterborough 74 alarms were turned in but in December 1948 there was a reduction of 26 calls. A further reduction is asked by the Chief this year.

The causes of such fires are listed by the Chief as: inflammable decorations and paper shades around Christmas lights; overloading of electric circuits through the use of extra decorations; boxes and wrappings lying around basements and under counters; dried-out Christmas trees with electric lights left burning; use of naked lights in the demonstration of merchandise; careless smoking.

Chief Smith advised that the following precautions should be observed: Ensure that all electric displays, decorations, and tree lights carry the underwriters seal of approval; keep Christmas trees away from all doors and exits; prevent the crowding of aisles and doorways; make inspections at night and in the morning; when trees dry out, throw them out; toy trains, motors or engines operated away from Christmas trees or other inflammable materials; in case of fire have employees instruct customers to leave the store by walking; detail employees at each doorway nearest their work to open doors at once in event of fire.

Laborer Held In Case Of Carnal Knowledge

A 48-year-old laborer, Frederick Bullock, Chamberlain St., was charged with having carnal knowledge of a nine-year-old girl in police court today.

He was remanded without bail until Wednesday without making any plea or electing trial by a magistrate's court or a higher court. The offence was alleged to have taken place Nov. 18.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw told the court police were continuing investigating the matter.

Nearly 3 Hours Late

He said the passenger train, due in Toronto at 7:10 a.m., was running two hours and 40 minutes late.

The trains met between Oriole and Todmorden in the Don Valley.

An emergency call was made for all available ambulances and doctors in Toronto and suburbs in the vicinity of the crash to go to the scene.

Among the first persons to reach the wreck were Red Cross rescue workers. The Red Cross now is holding a 10-day Disaster Institute here to plan a permanent organization to be sent into action in the event of large-scale disasters anywhere in Canada.

Police said passengers helped the injured out of the train and gave first aid on the railway siding until ambulances and doctors arrived.

Skiing Good On Bethany Hills

Both skiing fronts will see action this week-end as reports indicate good skiing at Bethany and fair at Kempt's Hill. In the Bethany region the base is firm with about five inches of light fast snow on top; while at Kempt's Hill there is a fair base with three inches of new snow. The top of the hill is windswept

Art Long of Kempt's Hill said today that although a few skiers have already been on the slopes, the official opening will be Saturday. The tow will be operating from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Thursday's east wind did not affect the snow on the slopes of the Bethany hill. On Saturday only the small tow will be in operation with both working Sunday. Buses leave the terminal at 10:30 a.m. and return at 5 p.m.

Bush skiing in the Peterborough area is not advised owing to not sufficient snow.

COUNCIL'S VALEDICTORY

The council of 1949 will wind up the business of the year Monday, Dec. 19. These are dormant days at the city hall, although there is a meeting of the board of works and finance committee next Monday night, and other committees are meeting in between times. The 1950 budget will be brought out in good time, probably as usual, along in February, or thereabouts.

Start Scientists Developing Two New Drugs

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 — (CP). — The resources of Canadian scientific research are being mobilized in the international drive to develop two drugs which hold promise for the treatment of a number of diseases, including arthritis.

Health Minister Martin announced in the Comomns Thursday night that Connaught Medical Research Laboratories at the University of Toronto are going to undertake immediately to start production of ACTH in Canada for investigation and clinical research by Canadian scientists.

Last week he announced that limited supplies of the other drug —cortisone—manufactured in the United States will be made available after January 1 by Merck & Company of Montreal for research to be undertaken in Canada.

The sum of $750,000 will be available for the two projects in the first year.

Mr. Martin emphasized that all supplies of ACTH made available in Canada will be allocated "exclusively" for research.

He also stressed that persons suffering from arthritis or other diseases for which ACTH and cortisone are possible remedies should not neglect the treatment they may be taking at present.

No responsible prediction would be made on when either cortisone or ACTH could be available in quantities for treatment purposes.

As yet it is beyond the powers of scientists to produce these drugs in quantity. Efforts are being made to find better sources or less complicated and time consuming production methods.

Jr. PCVS Team To Get Sweaters From Board

That was decided Thursday night at the last 1949 meeting of the Board of Education.

About 20 boys, coached by Alex Londry, will receive the windbreakers as a mark of the Board's recognition. Dr. R. C. Honey and W. E. Bannon will obtain the gifts.

Dr. Honey said he thought the motion a wise one as it taught "team play" something needed in this country and others as well.

"Sports are a worthwhile thing in any collegiate," asserted another member giving his full support to the motion.

Police Free Detroit Suspect In Murder Case

CALGARY, Dec. 9 (CP)—William Lee Wallace today is like the fly that escaped from the spider's web.

A few days ago seemingly inexorable network of evidence supported a charge of murder in the auto-camp slaying of a 24-year-old waitress. Thursday the charge was dropped on the instructions of the Alberta attorney-general because of lack of evidence.

Wallace, 42 year old former Vancouver electrician, was arrested in Detroit Oct. 30. Apprehended for an immigration violation, he confessed to the Aug. 11 murder of pretty Yvonne Levesque in East Calgary.

On his return to Canada he was charged with murder.

At that time Calgary officials had a warrant out for Donald W. Henderson, 33, of Clive, Alta., a mechanical engineer who had shared Miss Levesque's cabin on the night of the killing. He vanished in the midst of the police investigation, and still eludes police.

Wallace and his wife were staying in a nearby cabin. His "confession" stated he had killed the girl in an attempt to rob Henderson.

The confession which police say they suspected almost from the start, was repudiated by Wallace in his preliminary hearing here. He also said he retracted it in Detroit.

"MUGS" HIS CUSTOMERS—Taking a tip from the old-fashioned barber shop with its shelf of personal shaving mugs, Chicago restaurant operator Norman Massing keeps a supply of "personalized coffee cups" for his regular customers. Each cup bears the name or nickname of one of the regulars. Massing is seen serving a personal cup to office worker Rose Marie Nutini.

Street Lighting Program In Four Parts

Maybe the council and the Utilities Commission will some day manage to raise the candlepower of the lights on the semicircular rim of Little Lake at Crescent St.

For the present the Utilities Commission is gradually carrying out the street lighting program that was adopted a few years ago. The job is divided into four sections: down town streets; radial streets from the centre area; the main arteries, Aylmer, Water, Park, etc. and finally the residential sections.

'We must have 15 or 20 types of street lamps and their fixtures that have come into use during the last 25 years," R. L. Dobbin, Utilities manager, said today. "We are greatly reducing the number of types, and getting at uniformity. Some of the suitable lamps now on such streets as Aylmer and Park will be fixed up for the residential sections. We are moving from the centre of the city out to the boundaries, although many lights have already been set up in housing sections in the outer parts of the city."

Mr. Dobbin said that the men were doing this work one category at a time.

Death Car Driver Given Three Months

LINDSAY, Dec. 9. — Mark Crowley of Lindsay, convicted of dangerous driving in Judge McGibbon's county court yesterday, was sentenced to three months in jail and fined $200. Col. R. I. Moore, counsel for the accused, has entered an appeal.

The charge was sequel to an accident at No. 46 Highway and Victoria Rd. The Crowley car entered the intersection and was struck by a car driven by J. Fellows Adams, of Toronto, who was instantly killed when his car overturned.

Crowley, his wife, Margaret, his uncle, David Crowley of Lindsay, and his cousin, Mary Crowley of Detroit, were hospitalized for several weeks following the accident. The four swore that Crowley had been driving carefully and stopped at the intersection. The judge held that, according to evidence of other witnesses, Crowley did not stop.

Judge Doubles Term Magistrate Too Easy

LINDSAY, Dec. 9.—An appeal against a seven-day sentence for drunk driving backfired in County Court Thursday when Judge J. A. McGibbon doubled sentence on Lloyd Craig of Bobcaygeon.

In upholding the sentence of the magistrate and increasing the jail sentence to 14 days, Judge McGibbon said:

"Magistrates are altogether too lenient. These drivers should be put off the highways. When the police arrived to investigate the case, they found the man's truck off the road, sunk in muck, and the truck up against a small tree. The officer had to cut away part of the tree to open the cab door. He had to assist the accused out. He was hopelessly drunk. The man in the seat beside him was in a stupor, his head resting on the accused's lap.

"The rights of other people on the highways should be respected and not endangered in this manner," the court said.

Two Cars Collide At Townsend, Stewart

Two cars collided Thursday night at the corner of Townsend and Stewart Sts. doing some damage to both cars.

A car driven by William J. Bloom, 875 Water St., driving south on Stewart St. met in collision with a car operated by Donald Moorby, 65 McDonnel St., making a left turn from Townsend St. to go north on Stewart St.

The front bumper on the Bloom car was broken and the left front fender of the Moorby car was dented and the radiator damaged. Constable A. G. Edmison who investigated with Constable Grant Gillespie said the road was slippery.

Decline In Delinquency?

In all the uproar which has been going on about juvenile delinquency it is good to hear the quiet but authoritative voice of the Ontario Bureau of Statistics saying that juvenile crime is the lowest it has been in 27 years. Nor is this a sudden decrease; it has been going on since 1942. The Bureau bases its findings on the number of convictions registered by the Juvenile Courts. Although the Bureau deals chiefly with Ontario figures it says that the drop in juvenile crime is general everywhere in Canada.

The Juvenile Courts, of course, deal only with offenders who are under the age of sixteen. Boys and girls between sixteen and twenty are a different matter, and although we have no statistics on the subject we may judge from the news reports that bad behaviour in that section of the population is high, and may be increasing. It is a difficult time of life. Nature has made these boys and girls mature sexually, but our economic system does not allow them to be self-supporting in most cases, and our social system regards them as children. The conflict between their physical desires and their social status often has bad results.

* * *

Psychological approaches to their problem sometimes help to clarify it, but rarely give any clue to a solution. Providing work for boys and girls between sixteen and twenty is not easy. They are not good workers, as a rule, and many of them are only available for part-time employment. They are sometimes dreamy, sometimes aggressive, sometimes ready to accept responsibility and at other times incapable of doing so. To most employers, they are nuisances.

* * *

We do not pretend to know what can be done for them, or about them. In most cases they are helped through this difficult period by their parents and teachers, they cause no trouble, and they are often attractive and useful people; the world would be poorer without their enthusiasm, their rebelliousness and their charm. But in some cases they become small-time crooks, corner boys, louts, bullies, amateur prostitutes and undesirable riffraff; at best these are nuisances and at worst they are a menace to society. They are reminiscent, in their way, of those gangs of young people who were not the least of the terrors of Paris during the French Revolution.

* * *

The statement of the Bureau that juvenile crime is at a low ebb, however, affords some hope. If boys and girls are not criminals under sixteen, it may be hoped that they will not fall into criminal ways when they have passed that age. As the more peaceful group of children pass into later adolescence we may watch for a decrease in youthful gangsterism.

Torontonians The Good Taxpayers

Recently we brought out in these columns a few income-tax figures, and a Toronto person picked them up, not, it would seem from his letter printed today, very brightly. He says "On the basis of the information given, it would look as though the residents of Quebec City and Montreal were more generous in their tax payments, than this city of Toronto". His deduction astonishes us. What we said was that Swift Current, Saskatchewan, paid the highest average income tax (in 1947) and that Toronto was next. We further noted that Quebec City taxpayers had the highest average income, that Montrealers came sixth Torontonians eighth.

For our correspondent's information we may repeat that Montreal taxpayers, 333,125 of them, paid an average income tax in that year 1947 of $327 each; 359,119 Montreal taxpayers paid an average of $321, and 35,021 Quebec people paid an average of $300. In the gross Toronto paid more than Montreal or Quebec. ($115,348,000, $109,058,000, $10,522,000 respectively). Toronto is a much larger city than Quebec. It is smaller than Montreal, but we might point out that (a) Average wage rates are lower in Montreal than in Toronto and therefore a larger proportion of the population would pay little or no income tax (b) Families are larger in Montreal than in Toronto and therefore there would be more taxpayers with more deductions for children (c) According to the 1941 census there were 285,000 children in Montreal under the age of fifteen; in Toronto there were only 184,584. Even Quebec City with a total population in 1941 of only 150,757, had 42,462 children under fifteen. These children are not, ordinarily, taxpayers.

We do not doubt that the Toronto correspondent is justified in his pride of Torontonians as generous taxpayers; on the other hand, we are not convinced that Montreal and Quebec City are much cleverer than Toronto in hiding their money away in old socks where the Income Tax-gatherers cannot find it.

Tit For Tat On Air Routes

A fuss about Canadian-American air route privileges is stirring Montreal, Ottawa, and even Moose Jaw. Canada has made numerous concessions to American firms, and allowed them rights over Canadian territory, in expectation that the American Government would be likewise liberal. Some business groups in New York and Washington have managed to persuade the U.S. government to stall. Canadians are rightly feeling rather hot about it, and the Minister of Transport has taken a firm stand. Unless the U.S.A. has a change of heart, Colonial Air Lines, which operates scheduled flights between Montreal and New York, will lose its charter.

We were glad to hear the firm tone with which Mr. Chevrier answered a question put to him in Parliament last October by Mr. Ross Thatcher, (C.C.F., Moose Jaw): "Colonial Air Lines Inc. has no agreement with the Canadian authorities to carry on air service between Montreal and New York." The Minister went on to explain that it was presently operating on a sort of gentleman's agreement, which could be terminated at any moment.

It now seems that if the U.S.A. will not take a gentlemanly attitude to various air matters under dispute, Canada will consider the gentleman's agreement null and void. Canada has lush air line routes, bases and possibilities within its own territories. It can afford to talk turkey to the U.S.A. It is good that it is doing so. Even Mr. Thatcher of Moose Jaw approves.

Ship With Nelson

H.M.S. Implacable has at long last been sunk to the depths, and there remains now only one ship which fought at Trafalgar in 1805, Nelson's Victory. The Implacable, towed last month to its "funeral" was not a Nelson ship; in fact, the Victory and the Implacable had exchanges shots at Trafalgar. The Implacable was a French ship, as had been the Temeraire, captured at Nelson's Battle of the Nile and made into a British ship in time to be under Nelson's command at his last battle. The Implacable was not captured until after Trafalgar, but for many years thereafter was an active unit of the Royal Navy. The Temeraire has been immortalized by Turner's painting of her as she was being towed to her funeral at sea; this painting was first exhibited as long ago as 1839. The Victory has been preserved as a relic of Nelson. But the Implacable has had no Turner and no Nelson to preserve her. She is now gone, a splendid memory of great naval days.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It isn't the bulls and bears that confuse the stock market. It is those wrong steers.

A New Brunswick hunter killed two deer with one shot. That will teach deer to stand around gossiping.

A boy of ten in Minnesota has learned to play the violin while practising in a remote forest. This boy has the right idea.

A department store Santa Claus in Pittsburgh was discharged because he wore a sad expression. We never knew that anyone could see Santa's expression.

Teeth are more than a personal problem, says an editorial in a contemporary. Yes, looking at some of those false sets apparently made from hoop-iron and bathtub enamel, we fully agree.

A women's prison in England has made a new concession to the inmates, and there will now be a mirror in every cell. Thus the bad girls will be locked up with their bitter reflections.

A news report says that at a recent ball at Buckingham Palace King George asked the orchestra to play "True to You in My Fashion" from Kiss Me, Kate, and Queen Elizabeth asked for "Baby, It's cold Outside". But let the tut-tutters recall that Queen Victoria—no mean musician—once requested a pianist to play a popular piece of the day called "Such A-Gittin' Upstairs".

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

ALPHA: I see that Turk Broda is reducing—the Maple Leaf hockey player I mean. I also see that a Toronto nutritionist (apparently in charge of the Broda diet) says that the best diet is in the pamphlet "Canada's Food Rules". Where can I get that? How much does it cost?

ANSWER: Most doctors advise not to go on a reducing diet without medical advice and supervision. The Dominion Government's Department of National Health and Welfare issues the pamphlet "Canada's Food Rules". Other leaflets on food which it puts out are "Menu Patterns Based on Canada's Food Rules" and "Healthful Food Rules". These are obtainable from the King's Printer, Ottawa. There is a small charge, I believe. (Cheques or money orders should be made out to The Receiver General of Canada). A simpler way to get them is to ask the Peterborough Department of Health (City Buildings, Simcoe Street) for them. From that source you may even get them for nothing. The Dominion Government issues a large number of pamphlets and useful booklets very cheaply. A complete catalogue is at the Library, or can be got from the King's Printer, Ottawa, for 25 cents.

CHARLES FOTHERGILL, who sponsored Adam Scott, millwright and first white settler in Peterborough, came of a well-known English family, was born in 1782, married in England in 1811, came to this part of Canada not long afterwards. His first wife died at York in 1822. He was married again in 1825, to Eliza Richardson of Whitby, who died in 1892, surviving her husband by fifty-two years. There is considerable information about Charles Fothergill in an article by James L. Bailey Jr. (who is in charge of the Zoology Branch of the Royal Ontario Museum), published in the Canadian Historical Review vol. xxv, December 1944.

Charles Fothergill was an author as well as man of affairs, hatcher of plans, M.L.A. and King's Printer (see this column of the three preceding Fridays). About 1931 sixteen holograph manuscripts by Fothergill were discovered, six written in Canada, ten in England. Several books of his were published in England; for instance, in 1803, a two-volume work entitled "The Wanderer; or a Collection of Original Tales and Essays Founded upon Fact". He was a skilled, ardent naturalist. Fothergill had many descendants, and Mrs. Katherine Shepherd of Lindsay is a granddaughter.

Among the publications which he launched and edited in Toronto were the Palladium of British America, and Upper Canada Mercantile Advertiser, in which appeared poems by Susannah Moodie. He published William Lyon Mackenzie's own account of the rebellion of 1837.

One Samuel Thompson has left a note that: "Early in the year 1839 I obtained an engagement as Manager of the Palladium, a newspaper issued by C. Fothergill. The printing office, situated at the corner of York and Boulton Streets, was very small, and I found it a mass of little better than pi, with an old hand-press of the Columbia pattern.... Mr. Fothergill was a man of talent, a scholar and a gentleman, but so entirely given up to the study of natural history and the practice of taxidermy that his newspaper received but scant attention and his personal appearance and the cleanliness of his surroundings still less. His family sometimes suffered from the want of common necessaries, while the money which should have fed them went to pay for some rare bird or strange fish.... This could not last long. The Palladium died a natural death, and I had to seek elsewhere for employment".

I promised last week to mention Fothergill's relations with the rebel Mackenzie. I shall do so next week, and thus close these sketchy notes on this interesting man.

DEAR ALPHA: How many banks are there in Canada?

ANSWER: Apart from the Bank of Canada and the Industrial Development Bank, there are eleven chartered banks. The ones which have no branches in this district are: Banque Canadienne Nationale, which operates chiefly in Quebec; the Provincial Bank of Canada, incorporated 1900 in Montreal, with a paid up capital of $4,000,000; Barclays Bank (Canada) with a paid up capital of $1,500,000, head office in Montreal, and The Home Bank of Canada, head offices in Toronto, which has no branches anywhere. It suspended payment August 7th, 1923, and went into liquidation. What is left of the Home Bank is administered by permanent Liquidators in Toronto. It was the most notable and last bank failure in Canada. The strength of the Canadian banks and the strictness of the government regulations applying to them prevented all from floundering in the financial storms of 1929-30.

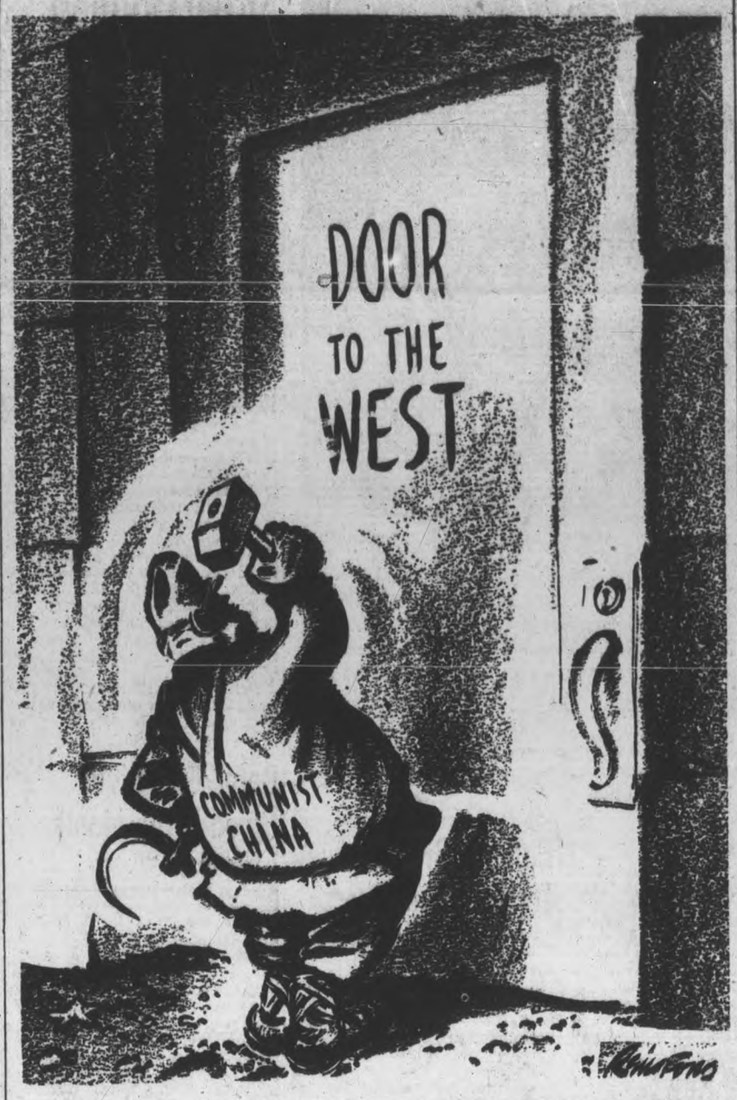
SIR: This fuss about the negroes in Dresden, Ontario, prompts me to ask where they came from? Did people in Ontario ever own slaves?



ANSWER: Many of them are descendants of American slaves who ran away from their southern masters into the northern states, where they were sent by one of the "underground" routes into the safety of Canada. Dresden was a receiving end of one of the principal escaped slave routes. Uncle Tom, of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is buried there.

Slavery was outlawed in Ontario in 1793. This was the first record of legislation against bondage in a British possession. The last slave transaction in Canada occurred on 25th of August, 1797 at Montreal, when Emanuel Allen, a 33-year-old negro was sold at public auction for $180. Slave trading was abolished throughout British countries in 1807; slavery itself in 1833 by the first Reformed Parliament. Slaves were not freed in the U.S.A. until 1863.

FOR THE RECORD: Civic elections were held last Monday, the first in December, and the following persons were elected: To the Council—Alderman Hugh F. Waddell, Colonel John A. Dewart, Alderman T. Douglas Miller, Ernest C. Braund, Alderman P. J. Anglesey. Other candidates were Harry Yudin, Fred Tuggey, Norman Graham, L. M. Brooks. To the Board of Education — Dr. Russell Morgan, Mrs. Paige Rowell, G. Wilson Craw (a present and senior member); Stanley R. Adamson, Murray Irwin. Unsuccessful candidates were Arthur Pitchford, and A. E. Borland, present members of the Board. Mayor Swanston is returned by acclamation for a second term. Mr. Gordon Matthews was given acclamation to the Utilities Commission, his thirtieth continuous year as a Commissioner. The present (1949) Council is expected to hold its last meeting a week from Monday. It is the 100th Council Peterborough has had in its history.

"IT'S ONLY ME FROM OVER THE SEA...."

The Sad, Sad Plight of Quebec Farmers

(THE CALGARY HERALD)

ONLY 540 farmers in the province of Quebec paid income tax last year. Their combined income, according to the returns they filed with the Department of National Revenue, was $1,201,000, or about $2,000 apiece, on which they paid $79,000 tax.

There are, of course, many more than 540 farmers with land in Quebec; the rest of them, presumably, did not earn enough to put them into the tax-paying bracket. On the other hand, no fewer than 7,280 farmers in Manitoba paid $1,597,000 in income tax; and here in Alberta, 13,985 farmers paid $4,087,000.

Now this in indeed a distressing state of affairs. Here in Alberta, we are accustomed to think of a man who is too poor to be bothered by the tax-collector as a very poor man indeed—practically starving, you might say. And, from the income tax figures, it seems that all the thousands of farmers in Quebec are in that condition—save the 540 mentioned above.

Obviously, this is a matter for drastic and immediate action. Something must be done to prevent the Quebec farming industry from going under. In 1947, the cash income of Quebec farms was $295,824,000, while in Manitoba is was only $185,000,000. Despite this, things are so bad in Quebec that only 540 of the farmers there were able to contribute a little something to the federal treasury.

Quebec raises more field crops than Manitoba, and from a smaller acreage. She produces more milk and milk-products than all the three prairie provinces put together. Yet the cash returns from these colossal enterprises, so vital to the prosperity of our country, are so meagre that no more than 540 of the men who operate them earn enough to warrant the tax-collector's attention, and then only to the tune of a measly $79,000 altogether. The rest, apparently, are not even getting by.

Quebec land, to be sure, is worth plenty—an average of $61 an acre for farm land against $27 in Manitoba and only $25 in Alberta. But French-Canadian farmers, poor fellows, can grub no more than the barest living—if that—from their relatively fertile soil.

They have managed to invest more capital in farming than all the farmers of Alberta, and nearly twice as much as the farmers of Manitoba. But all their efforts is fruitless, for by the evidence of the tax records they are getting no returns worth speaking of.

We must do something. Let us have an immediate and exhaustive survey to see what is wrong with farming in Quebec. And let the survey be conducted by the efficient and knowledgeable gentlemen who staff the income tax divisions in Alberta. We are sure Alberta farmers will be content to let these officials go East for a period—providing they are replaced by their counterparts presently charged with collecting income tax in Quebec.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside me: I girded thee, though thou hast not known me....I have made the earth, and created man upon it: I even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and all their host have I commanded....

For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens: God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord, and there is none else. (Isa. 45: 5, 12, 18.)

Sing unto the Lord, bless his name; shew forth his salvation from day to day. Declare his glory among the heathen, his wonders among all people....Honour and majesty are before him: strength and beauty are in his sanctuary.

Give unto the Lord, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the Lord glory and strength.

Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name. (Ps. 96: 2, 3, 6-8.)

Letters To The Editor

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

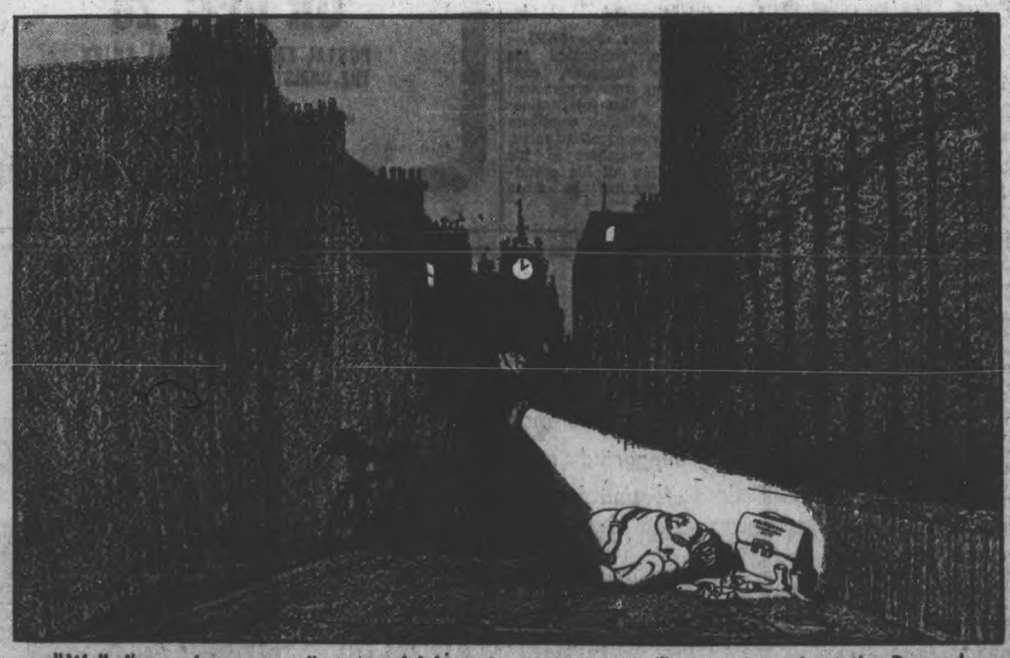
Sir: Took the cross-cut saw into the city to be sharpened the other day. Two bucks he charged me. Time was when one could get that done for a quarter and not so very long ago either. Then during war it came up to fifty cents and then seventy-five. But then there was plenty to do that even at that price—or to oblige a neighbour, now there is no one. They are too old, or gone to the great Beyond. The young that are left are too interested in sport or a movie—recreation—it is the age of emancipation—but let us have a care that the next, is not one of emaciation.

Of course the screech of saw sharpening is not quite the same as violin practice. To the listener though one may be as bad as the other—but the fact is—and educationists should make note of it—that it is as important.

OLD SAWYER.

TORONTO VS. QUEBEC TAXPAYER

Sir: In the Toronto Telegram, dated Dec. 3rd, an article published originally by you was quoted regarding Income Tax Payments.



On the basis of the information given, it would look as though the residents of Quebec City and Montreal were more generous in their tax payments, than this city of Toronto.

The writer believes that to make a correct presentation of the facts, the total amount of income taxes from each city should be stated, and on what basis per capita, for I am sure that the figures shown on this basis, would show Toronto in a much better light.

As the writer makes many trips to Quebec province, the writer has had ample evidence that Federal laws are not so seriously considered in Quebec, but were designed for the rest of Canada, as was the case with gasoline rationing, which was a farce in Quebec, but was rigidly enforced in this province, particularly so in Toronto.

Yours very truly,
CURIOUS.

Teacher Named To PCVS Staff

Three appointments were confirmed Thursday night by the Board of Education, including one to fill the vacancy on the PCVS staff left by the resignation of John Londerville.

Robert Camm, M.A., from Smiths Falls will replace him. Mr. Camm is a specialist in history and has both public and secondary school experience.

On November 28 Mr. Londerville submitted his resignation to join the staff of the Hamilton Normal School on January 1.

Melville Burns has been hired as full-time assistant caretaker at PCVS. He had previously been employed on a temporary basis and his work was found satisfactory enough to make the position full time.

The third confirmation was the appointment of Mrs. C. E. Johnston as pianist for the girls' physical training classes at PCVS.

An amendment was made to the new salary schedule so a specialist if required by the board will be recognized even though most of his teaching time is not spent on that subject.

Originally the requirement for specialist recognition read, "Where the teacher is devoting 60 per cent or more of his teaching time to the specialty." As amended it reads, "Where the Board requires a specialist's certificate for the position in question."

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, said the amendment was to cover future teaching developments. The Board might like to hire a specialist two years or so before there was an opportunity to set up a specialty in that subject.

Dr. R. C. Honey, chairman of the Salary Committee, said, "It gives the Board a free hand without going against the principles of the schedule."

The Recreation Commission will be permitted to put an outdoor rink on the land recently purchased by the Board from CGE. The rink will be dismantled before building begins on the school site.

City Council will be requested to issue debentures amounting to $140,000 for the construction of an annex to Prince of Wales School.

Auxiliary Holds Candle Service

HASTINGS, Dec. 9.—(ENS). — The Christmas meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of Trinity United church, was held in the home of Mrs. Clifford Scriver on Wednesday and was attended by 18 members.

Our faith in Jesus Christ was the worship theme, with Mrs. Clifford Scriver as leader. Mrs. Ellery Smullin lead in prayer and carols were sung by the members, after each candle was lit. Mrs. Walter Peck lit the first candle for "our faith in Jesus Christ, the Incarnate Son of God," followed by "Harkt the Herald Angels Sing."

Mrs. Ellery Smullin lit the second candle for "Our faith in Jesus Christ, the Redeemer of God's Love," followed by a chorus, "Love Came Down at Christmas," by Mrs. S. Fisher, Mrs. A. Thompson, Mrs. Clifford Scriver, Mrs. J. M. Baker, Barbara Scriver and Mrs. E. Hess.

Mrs. F. Crate lit the third candle for "Our Faith in Jesus Christ the Saviour of the World," followed by "Silent Night." Mrs. Clifford Scriver lit the fourth candle for "Our Faith in Jesus Chrst, the Risen Lord," followed by a duet by Mrs. A. Thompson and Mrs. E. Hess.

The president, Mrs. J. M. Baker, presided for the business period.

The minutes of the last meeting and correspondence was read by the secretary, Mrs. A. Thompson. The treasurer, Mrs. F. Crate, gave her report. Mrs. Walter Dodd gave a paper on stewardship.

Ask Christmas Gifts

It was moved by Mrs. R. Burnham and Mrs. E. Hess that the Auxiliary have a White Gift basket on Christmas Sunday, the foodstuff or money received to be used to send monthly parcels overseas. Mrs. E. Hess and Mrs. A. Orr are to decorate the basket and Mrs. R. Glass and Mrs. Cecil Oliver to look after the children who will bring the gifts forward.

Mrs. L. W. Humphries gave a report on the Missionary Monthly and asked for new subscribers. Mrs. Alton Thompson, the cradle roll superintendent, is to send Christmas cards to the members of the cradle roll.

Mrs. Baker reminded the members about the Christmas bazaar to be held in the Sunday school hall on Saturday, Dec. 10

Mrs. R. Burnham invited the members to her home for the next meeting on Jan 18, when the officers will be installed. Mrs. A. Thompson, Mrs. W. Thomas, Mrs. J. G. Thompson and Mrs H. Youngs form the program committee.

Conversion To 60 Cycles Well Begun; Finished 1960

Frequency standardization at 60 cycles in Ontario, the largest project of its kind in the world, will be completed by 1960, if present schedules hold, said W. R. Harmer of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario. Mr. Harmer, the consumer service engineer with the frequency conversion division, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada in the Public Library auditorium.

The speaker cited many advantages offered by 60-cycle standardization: the flickerless light, lower cost of new equipment, wider selectivity range of types and makes, of style and design, complete inter-connection of all 60-cycle areas in Ontario, a standard frequency throughout the province which will facilitate the interchange of frequency sensitive equipment, elimination of local power shortages, and the ability to support any surplus electrical power to adjacent parts of the United States or neighboring provinces.

"Affected by the change are upwards of 800,000 consumers in the present 25-cycle area in the Niagara system. This system extends from Niagara Falls to Goderich, Toronto to Windsor, an area of some 12,000 square miles now served from generating plants along the Niagara, developments on the Gatineau in the Ottawa River watershed, and from Beauharnois on the St. Lawrence."

Great Expansion

From a dozen municipalities supplied with power by Hydro in 1910, Mr. Harmer said the system has expanded until today it embraces 900, of which 178 are in the 25-cycle area. During that time power output has risen from 100,000 h.p. in 1910 to over -,792,-922 h.p. generated and distributed at the end of September, 1949, not including 1,029,530 h.p. purchased as of that date.

Mr. Harmer said the expenditures to November 31st for conversion plants and materials totalled $12,000,000, of which one-half is stored in Hydro warehouses awaiting allocation to centres of operation. Purchases include 512 vehicles, 110,160 general purpose electric motors, 59,580 clocks, phonographs and special motors, 762 mobile units, 211,271 appliances and parts including refrigerators, refrigerator sealed units, and washing machine parts. During the next five yers he expects the purchases of new plants and stock to average $7,200,000 a year.

To house the bulk materials and handle conversion salvage five warehouses, a total area of 241,-120 feet, are under construction at Islington Service Centre. Three are in service with the others scheduled for early 1950.

Multi-Million Dollar Job

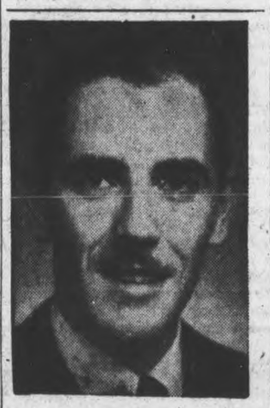
"Since frequency conversion affects all classes of consumer apparatus and appliances," said Mr. Harmer," the quantity and gross involved is impressive. Besides the estimated gross cost of $58,-256,500 allocated for conversion of hydro and municipal systems, some $132,700,000 will be spent on the conversion of consumer equipment of all types and sizes.".

In motors alone, he explained, the conversion will involve some 1,800,000 units ranging in size from electrical giants of thousands of horsepower rating to fractional ratings. Besides, he said, there are some 550,000 washing machines, 300,000 refrigerators, 400,000 clocks and 100,000 furnace blowers to be dealt with. Added to these are door chimes, hair dryers, x-ray equipment, elevators, telephone centrals, street railways, and others. The installation and adjustment of all this equipment is being handled by the Hydro's Frequency Conversion Contractors.

By October 1949, twelve months after starting the project, the first group of consumers had their electrical equipment changed to 60-cycle in East York and Scarborough townships. By October 31 a total of 4,000 consumers had been changed over and an additional 45,000 inventoried.

1950-51 Schedules

In 1950 the areas to be converted include Scarborough, East York, North Yonge, Sarnia, Cartwright, Strathroy, Sarnia Township, Exeter and Lucan Districts. In 1951 operation will extend to Kipling, the 66 and two-thirds-cycle areas, the districts of Seaforth, St. Mary's, Stratford, Palmerston, East London, and London. Further changeover operations will include Windsor in 1952. Other areas will be converted until completed in 1960.



Folowing his address Mr. Harmer showed slides of the activity which has taken place since the conversion program was started. A question period followed the showing of the slides.

Stanlee Beats Goon Henry In Main Pro Grapple Bout

Steve Stanlee gained a popular decision over Jim (Goon) Henry in the main pro wrestling bout at the Brock Arena last night before a good-sized crowd. He won it in two straight falls, the second coming in 15 minutes when Referee Bert Maxwell disqualified the Goon for using the hidden rope trick—trying to choke the popular blond with a piece of cord Henry secreted in his trunks. Previous to that, Stanlee was easily holding his own in hot going against a rough opponent.

The first fall went to Steve in 19 minutes when he pinned his 260-pound opponent (Stanlee going 230) with flying headlocks and slams. They had a hard tussle up to then with the big Coon early starting to rough it up and smear the Golden Boy plenty. The fans were down on Henry and hooted as the referee missed a lot, with Steve's blond locks taking many a tug from Henry.

They used elbow smashes quite a bit and the odd fist or eye casp, plus knees, with Jim starting it and his shorter but husky opponent ready to fight right back. The fall was popular.

Morgan Wins

Toar Morgan, 224-pound scrapper, who lives in Lindsay now, earned the semi-final in 14 minutes over 215-pound Johnny Barend a newcomer here. It was okay with the fans, though the baby-faced Johnny might have had the fans' support, too, but for some early rough stuff, especially on the breaks. Morgan won it with a series of head twists and slams, after taking a beating with choke holds and other illegal tactics from his tough opponent. Both were fast and in good trim to serve some fast mat work while it lasted. They mixed briefly after the bell when Toar did not know he had won the bout.

Goes To Draw

Bill Stack, at 228, and Al Korman, two pounds less, went to a no-decision draw in the prelim, the affair winding up in 24 minutes with both counted out of the ring, as they slugged away in the crowd by the ringside. The bout opened fast and clean but Korman soon complained that Stack was greased the way he slipped out of holds. Al started to rough it up, being shorter than Stack but more ring-wise. However, Bill came right back to hold his own till near the end when he took quite a beating on the mat from Korman, using many illegal grips and applying pressure by aid of the ropes. They kept at it fast and finally got through the hemp and mixed outside as the fans scrambled for safety, cheering for big Bill. They were counted out then.

Cleveland Barons Get Oshawa Gens' Goalie

CLEVELAND, Dec. 9 (AP) — Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League announced Thursday night the acquisition of R. G. Shropshire, an 18-year-old goalie now with Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Rights to Shropshire came from Toronto Maple Leafs, as part of the deal which recently sent goalie Al Rollins to the Leafs. The Barons also have added to their farm system Hal Tarala, a 22-year-old defenceman from Kansas City.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

An outstanding hockey attraction is on tap tonight at 8.30 in Civic Arena when Belleville Diesels clash with the local Legion crew in a senior "B" fixture. Diesels edged Legionnaires 6-5 in Bella Villa last Monday, and the Ellis outfit swears vengeance this eve. Belleville are on top of the heap at present, but a win here tonight for Legion would put the locals out in front by a point. It's a tough, tough grouping this semester as both local squads are finding, and it adds up to some sizzling scraps for Peterborough hockey followers. Both sides expect to be at full strength for this tussle and it shapes up as a humdinger.

* * * * * *

St. Kitts scribe quotes some prices on hockey equipment, showing how expensive it is to dress a puckist. Each pro has two pairs of boots and skates at $51.50 a copy, with gloves running $30, shin pads $15, elbow pads $7.50, shoulder $18, pants $17.50, sweater and sox $15 and two sets of garters, suspenders and underwear at $8, to make a total of $162.50. Goal toggery runs to $250. Cheapest stick in the States is $2.50 and each pro club uses about 750 sticks a season. He also wonders what became of a patented aluminum-lamination stick invented with the airhole perforated blade. Probably pigeon-holed as unfair to hockey stick makers.

Cagers On Two Fronts

Basketball on two fronts here this week-end, girls and men's games. A lasses' twin bill, opening at 8.15, tonight in the YW gym, Black's vs. CGE, and Normals vs. junior Nurses. A male doubleheader tomorrow eve at the Collegiate gym, a prelim at 7.15 having TCS playing PCVS seniors in an exhibition, followed by New York Black Barons against the intermediate "A" Marines in what should be a nifty hoop exhibition. The Mariners this season are coached jointly by Doug McPherson and Joe Stewart, the latter also playing. The PCI-ers, of course, are piloted again by Bev Goulding.

Steve Stanlee beat Goon Henry two straight falls last eve in the main pro mat bout at the Brock before a goodly gallery, Referee Bert Maxwell taking a dim view of the Goon's idea of stringing Steve along. Tried to throttle him with a piece of cord. The blond bombshell was a popular winner against a big, rough opponent, a real mat villain. Toar Morgan took the semi-final in fairly fast time over Johnny Barend, a guy with a baby face, a strong man's physique and a rough disposition. Head twists and slams settled his hash. Prelim saw tall Bill Stack and crusty Al Korman both counted out as they slugged it out in the crowd whilst the customers gave them plenty of room. A lot of action served up throughout.

Sportsmen At Dinner

Present and former stars of the diamond, gridiron, lacrosse box, soccer pitch and rink were on hand last p.m. at the Kinsmen Club sport night at the Kawartha Club. Prexy Harley Weir and his brother Kin made them welcome, and many a yarn of bygone contests were swapped. Two former NHL aces, Dave Kerr and Dit Clapper, were at the head table along with Mayor Max Swanston—one-time star COBL catcher—and other figures of athletic renown. Must have been 75 present to underline the value of athletics in community life. Coach Alex Londry and his junior PCI-ers came in for congrats on again winning the COSSA grid crown. And a plug was put in for lights at Riverside next season.

* * * * * *

Dit Clapper, as main speaker, emphasized the need for action on construction of the Memorial Community Centre. He praised the men responsible for Civic Arena and the installing of artificial ice, but stated that it wasn't sufficient for the youth of the city. Outdoor rinks help take up the slack, but then for only part of the winter, and Civic Arena management has a tough job allotting ice time for every local organization requiring it. Dit pointed out the value of sports facilities in making better and healthier citizens and in keeping boys too occupied in athletics to get into trouble. It is a fact that few athletes' names appear on the police blotter.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

When a ball player can finish third in league batting and second in outfield defensive play, it would be a moderately safe assumption to say he is pretty good. But when a gent of 35 compiles these feats—well, it's downright astounding.

Coaker Triplett, Buffalo's ageless veteran, did just that last season in the International Baseball League. He batted .328, fielded .991, and in nine more days he'll be 36.

Tripletts' antics must have been an inspiration to his teammates. They won their first pennant since 1936, fielded the loop's best defensive unit, and finished second in team batting.

However, despite their leading .971 fielding mark and .270 batting figure, the Bisons were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs.

Boxing promoters Doug Fairbanks and Wes Ramey said at Grand Rapids, Mich., Thursday they have wired Ezzard Charles a $75,000 guarantee to defend his heavyweight boxing title against Joey Maxim of Cleveland in a bout "somewhere in Michigan."

Fairbanks said that Jack Kearns, Maxim's manager, is enthusiastic about the proposed title go which probably would be scheduled next summer, if Charles accepts.

The touring Hull Volants on Thursday night at London wound up a 20-game exhibition tour of Europe and the British Isles by dropping a 7-1 decision to Wembley Combines.

It was only the fourth defeat for the Quebec club, which has won 12 and tied two, in addition to playing two intersquad games in The Hague. Altogether Hull notched 88 goals against 53 by the European and British opposition.

Bob Hamilton, veteran professional from Landover, Md., took the lead in Miami's $10,000 open golf tournament Thursday with a blistering six under par 64.

Hamilton holed a 12-foot putt on the 18th green for a birdie three in the dark. He carded a four under par 31 on the front nine and came back in 33. It was so dark when the round was completed that scores were figured by the light of matches.

The 1950 Kentucky Derby again will carry a $100,000 added purse. it was announced at Louisville, Ky.

Churchill Downs directors, meeting Thursday with their new president, Bill Corum, decided against falling in line with a trend of purse reductions across the country. The directors said the Derby will be held May 6, the traditional first Saturday in May, subject to the approval of the Kentucky Racing Commission.

Toronto Whips Hawks 4-1 Takes Over Second Place

By HARRY ECCLES,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Whether Conn Smythe's well-played calorie contest was aimed at winning hockey games or just plain publicity, it's paying off.

Smythe's Toronto Maple Leafs whipped Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 Thursday night, their third victory since the team's recent slump which saw Leafs gaining only one point in seven starts and Smythe blasting overweight players.

Even Smythe must be surprised at the way the central object of his reducing orders, burly Turk Broda from Brandon, Man., has come through.

The Turk has been keeping out goal-hungry forwards with less difficulty than he had shedding seven pounds to get under Smythe's weight limit of 190 pounds. He's given up only two goals in three games—a 2-0 shut-out of New York Rangers, a 2-1 victory over Detroit and now this masterful showing against Chicago.

In Second Place

Thursday night's victory before 11,566 fans at Chicago shoved Toronto into sole possession of second place. Montreal Canadiens previously tied with Leafs, were held to a 2-2 deadlock by the Boston Bruins at Montreal. Detroit Wings, idle Thursday night, still wing along alone at the top with an 11 point margin over Toronto.

Bus Mortson scored the first Toronto goal in the first period and Roy Conacher tied it up. Vic Lynn scored two in the middle frame and big Harry Watson scored the last in the finale. Broda had 26 saves as the Hawks outshot the Leafs, who had 19 shots on Frankie Brimsek.

A crowd of 13,576 at Montreal Forum waited 40 minutes past regular time before the trainweary Bruins started their tussle with Canadiens. Boston got both their goals in the first period Woody Dumart and Johnny Peirson doing the honors. Canadiens got one back when Floyd Curry scored, and they didn't get the tying counter until Maurice Richard scored halfway through the last period.

36 Players Hit By Decision Keep Bonus Rule

BALTIMORE, Dec. 9 (AP) — The failure of the minor leagues to wipe out the bonus rule affects 36 bonus players on major league rosters representing a total outlay of some $800,000.

Added to this sizeable bundle are 185 bonus-tagged minor league players to increase the total expenditure to well above the $1,000,000 mark. It is small wonder then the "stuck" major league club owners went all out to ditch baseball's most controversial law.

Leading the fight for repeal was Bob Carpenter, president of the Philadelphia Phils, who own more bonus players than any other club.

The staunchest supporters of the rule and therefore Carpenter's most bitter rivals, were Warren Giles, president of Cincinnati Reds; Fred Saigh, owner of St. Louis Cardinals and Bill Dewitt, head of St. Louis Browns.

Needing 45 assenting votes of the 59 leagues polled, or three-fourths, the proposal to repeal the bonus rule got only 32 "yes" votes to 26 "not" votes with one league abstaining. As a result, it is here to stay—at least for another year.

The bonus rule was adopted originally to stop big payments to promising players for their signatures on their first contracts in organized baseball.

It clamps tight restrictions on players who are paid more than a set scale for signing contracts.

Such a bonus player cannot be farmed out unless nobody claims him for the waiver price, which varies from $10,000 in the majors to $100 in Class-D leagues. He is subject to unrestricted draft by clubs of higher classification as long as he stays in thee minors.

Louis Finds Retirement A Growing Problem

DETROIT, Dec. 9 (AP) — Joe Louis, a terror of the prize ring for 14 years, is finding his retirement a problem.

The former heavyweight champion's exhibition tour evidently has run away from him.

He says—emphatically — he's not interested in a comeback, but the "big money" proposals again are being waved at him.

The management of Lee Roma, who withdrew from a scheduled exhibition go with the Brown Bomber here next Wednesday, offers $35,000 for a "real fight."

And Jake Mintz, co-manager of the National Boxing Association champion, Ezzard Charles, wants a match next summer between his man and Louis. He sees a "million dollar gate."

BATHING CUTIES—Montreal modelovely Gloria Cameron wearing sleek silhouetted swim suit of today while Thelma Palmer chuckles merrily as she models the 1917 version of bathing apparel, skirted bloomers and all.

Panthers Lead Basketeers In 'Y' League

Gord Burns' Panthers are riding atop the standing of the YMCA basketball house league as the second and last part of the schedule is in sight. The Leopards, coached by Doug MacPherson, are close behind in second place; with the Wolverines, captained by Al Stewart, and the Lions, captained by Joe Stewart, third and fourth.

Due to the games in the Collegiate Saturday night the two games scheduled for the house league will be moved to next Wednesday to provide a triple-header. The Lions will play the Wildcats with the Panthers meeting the Leopards, and the Tigers meeting the Wolverines.

Playdowns will start December 17 with the first and fourth, the second and third teams playing off in sudden-death games. The final game for the championship will be played December 21.

Bob Moran Heads Argonaut Club

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP)—The famed Argonaut Rowing Club has a new president today, 40-year-old Bob Moran, who will take over immediately direction of the club's rowing and football destinies.

Moran was elected by acclamation at the 78th annual meeting Thursday night to succeed Tom Allison, 19 years president of Argos and for 35 years an oarsman, rowing coach and football director for the double blue. Allison is honorary president and next year will become president of the Canadian Rugby Union.

A former Argo oarsman, Moran is a member of the Club's football committee and he said Thursday night that Argos would have a contending team in the Eastern Big Four next season.

Coach Teddy Morris and Manager Earl Selkirk both spoke of the failure of Argos to win a title in last season's rugby battles. Morris said "a few of the boys preferred to have money instead of their pride" but reversed himself right after and said "these boys paid off in three straight titles and perhaps a slump was inevitable."

Cobourg Election Excitement Dies

COBOURG, Dec. 9 (ENS). — Cobourg's political meeting of Monday night, which was expected to put pep into the municipal election campaign, has apparently had the opposite effect. The fireworks which were expected at the meeting turned out to be mere squibs.

Harry Fisher, opponent of Joe Smith for Mayor, and W. E. Cooper, who is opposing Roy Dodge for Reeve, were the only ones to attack the 1949 administration, most of the speakers contenting hemselves wih he usual expressions of willingness o serve the public.

Roy Dodge, Reeve in 1949, delivered a fiery address in support of the 1949 municipal administration, but otherwise the meeting aws one of good humor and tolerance.

The election discussions during the days that followed Cobourg's first public meeting in almost 10 years, have now simmered until the interest in the election is at comparatively low ebb.

Those who claim to be able to sense the pulse of the public, say that the voters either have had their minds made up for some time or else the people are not particularly worried how the voting turns out.

"People appear to be taking the sewage disposal costs and the new assessment in their stride, and are not over-excited about it," said one old-timer who has been calling them right for many years.

Mean Thieves

ENFIELD, England, Dec. 9 — (AP). — Two men and a woman broke into an Enfield poor house yesterday and robbed an aged woman inmate of heirlooms and £50 (155). Miss Florence Knight 82, said she had saved the money over 20 years to pay for her funeral.

War Reporter Suing Pegler

NEW YORK, Dec. 9 —(CP)— Quentine Reynolds, war correspondent and magazine writer, has begun a $500,000 libel suit against columnist Westbrook Pegler, Louis Nizer, a lawyer, said Wednesday night.

Pegler recently devoted a column to Reynolds and the late Heywood Broun, founder of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO).

Nizer said King Features Syndicate, Incorporated, and Hearst Consolidated Publications, Incorporated, are being made defendants with Pegler.

Pegler, who long has been an outspoken critic of what he calls "racketeering" in labor unions, could not be reached for comment on the libel action, the second one pending against him.

Drew Pearson, columnist and broadcaster, Wednesday sought to increase his libel actions against Pegler and others from $500,000 to $1,200,000. Pearson also is suing King Features and Hearst Consolidated Publications.

Support Oliver

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP) — A resolution, expressing every confidence in Farquhar Oliver as their House leader, was passed Thursday at a caucus of the Liberal members of the Ontario Legislature. The members were unanimous in asking Mr. Oliver, who resigned as Provincial party leader some months ago, to carry on as House leader.

Francis Magee Dies

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP) — Francis Albert Magee, 79, who during the days of the '98 gold rush organized a Methodist church at Dominion Creek, Yukon, died at his home here Thursday. Born near Ottawa Mr. Magee in his later years was a prominent lay member of the United Church Training School. He organized the first Methodist Church at New Liskeard.

BLAZE BATTLE—Crowds line the streets in downtown Binghamton, NY, watching firefighters battle a blaze in an old building. It took four hours to bring the fire under control. Thirty families were made homeless and three firemen were injured.

End Wildcat Strike

OAKRIDGE, Tenn., Dec. 9 — (AP)Construction workers employed on multi-million-dollar atomic plant projects here Thursday ended a four-day wildcat strike. An Atomic Energy Commission announcement signalled the end of the first walkout in the history of this young atomic city. Some 3,000 workers were involved.

Hint Reprisals On Poll Tax

TORONTO, Dec. 9 —(CP)—A hint of "reprisals" from Toronto's suburban municipalities followed quickly Thursday on the heels of a report Mayor Hiram McCallum was considering the imposition of a poll tax or head tax on non-residents who earn their living in the city.

Unruffled by the furore which the report created in the suburbs, Mayor McCallum said such a plan "has never got beyond the idea stage." He said he got the idea sitting in his barber's chair.

"My brother lives in suburban Swansea," he said. "I told him... there was no reason why he and others should use all our facilities without so much as paying a cent for them. He said he agreed."

The mayor said surrounding municipalities must share increasing costs as partners or the residents of their municipalities must pay their individual share in some manner.

The reaction of the municipalities was that they would counter such a proposal with a poll tax of their own on all city residents who work in their industries.

To Rebuild Block

BROCKVILLE, Dec. 9 (CP)— Owner William Comstock plans to rebuild a section of the Halliday block, gutted by a $1,000.000 fire Nov. 26. He said "if the price is satisfactory and I can obtain proper tenants, I shall rebuild a modern, completely fire proof two-storey building with basement."

United Nations Demand Hands Off China

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(CP) — The United Nations Assembly Thursday called on all countries to allow the Chinese people to work out their own destiny without interference.

A second Assembly resolution, growing out of China's charges that Russia is helping the Chinese Communists, kept the issue alive by sending it to the year-round Little Assembly of the United Nations.

T. F. Tsiang, top Chinese Nationalist delegate, told reporters following the vote that the Nationalists will continue to fight inside China, on Formosa and Hainan Islands. He said he will enlarge on his charges against Russia in the 59-member Little Assembly, probably next month.

The Nationalist delegate did not press for a vote on his own resolution for condemnation of Russia and of general recognition of the Chinese Communists, but indicated that he hopes Little Assembly action will work against recognition of the Communists.

Notify Peiping Gov't About Diplomats

OTTAWA, Dec. 9—(CP)—Canada's "concern" in respect of Chinese Communist treatment of diplomatic officials has been brought to the attention of the authorities of the Peiping regime, External Affairs Minister Pearson said Tuesday.

The Minister issued the text of his reply to a note Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, sent to Mr. Pearson and the Foreign Ministers of about 30 other governments asking them to protest Chinese Communist arrest of Angus Ward, U. S. Consul, and his staff and their imprisonment in Mukden.

Mr. Pearson's reply was delayed because of his absence in New York when the Acheson note was received and meanwhile Mr. Ward and his staff were released.

He applied two weeks ago.

Trio Sent To Jail In Extortion Case

CORNWALL, Dec. 9 —(CP)—Three Kingston men were convicted of a robbery charge by a General Session Jury and were sentenced Wesdnesday night to jail terms ranging from one year to 30 days.

George Smyth, 24, was sentenced to one year in reformatory, while John Graham, 22, and Russell Parker, 23, each drew 30-day terms.

The three were tried on robbery and extortion arising out of an incident in a Montreal hotel room last January. Bernard Hart of Farrans Point said the men demanded $2,000 from him, and after threatening him with a revolver and blackjack he paid $825 in order to not become involved in a divorce action between Smyth and his wife Marjorie Smyth.

Publish Secrets Of King's Stamp Collection

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, Dec. 9 —(CP)—The King, one of the world's keenest stamp collectors, is to reveal secrets of his remarkable collection, valued at between £500,000 ($1,550,000) and £1,000,000.

A book of colored reproductions of his finest stamps now is being prepared. To be published late in 1950 or early in 1951, it will contain more than 400 pages and show more than 200,000 stamps. The plates will be in exact color.

There will not, however, be any reproduction of a single current stamp. There are strict laws preventing stamps in use from being printed as exact copies.

Whenever the King gets a few moments to spare, one of his favorite haunts is the green-walled stamp room at Buckingham Palace, where the world-famous collection was started by his father, King George V.

Craze Get Him

Officials say when the King first took it over he was not particularly interested. Then gradually he became a keen philatelist His recent illness gave him the opportunity to spend more time with the 350 red and blue Morocco-Bound volumes which are in the keeping of Sir John Wilson, keeper of the King's philatelic collection.

All the stamps are those of the Commonwealth. There are about 750,000 of them—yet the collection is not complete. There are gaps which the King is eager to fill.

Among the rarest stamps in the collection is the post office pair of Mauritius, a penny orange and two penny blue—the only perfect specimens in the world. Now worth about £10,000 the mounting has underneath some Arabic numerals, the late King George's private code for the price he paid —£1,400.

UE WINS NEW CONTRACTS

You have been told that unless the UE is affiliated with either CIO or CCL it has no bargaining strength. You have also been told that the UE is an "outlaw union" that is unable to make gains for its members through signing new contracts. Yet here is a partial record of contracts recently signed by UE in Canada:

In Hamilton, UE Local 504, representing 4,500 Westinghouse workers has just concluded new contract negotiations that won.

7½ to 12c an hour.
Hours reduced from 42½ to 40 with the same take-home pay.
2c general wage increase
1c night shift bonus
Improved seniority and union security
Other contract improvements.

Here's How Westinghouse Rates Now Compare with GE

WESTINGHOUSE		GE	WESTINGHOUSE IS --
Overall plant average -	$1.39	$1.13	26c MORE THAN GE
Average male rate - -	1.45	1.17	28c MORE THAN GE
Average female rate - -	1.26	95.2c	31c MORE THAN GE

Other Outstanding UE Contract Gains

UE Local 512, Toronto:
New contract with 8c an hour wage increase in Willard and Exide.

UE Local 520, Hamilton:
New Contract with 9c package that includes a general wage increase of 6c an hour at Brown-Boggs.

UE Local 523, Welland:
New contract with 6c to 9c wage increase. This brings minimum labor rate at Page Hershey to $1.17 an hour.

UE Local 522, Kingston:
New contract at Gould Battery with a .7½c to .13½c wage increase. Overtime rates apply for all hours worked in excess of 40 per week.

UE Local 523, Welland:
New contract at Electro-Metallurgical with a .7c general wage increase that brings minimum hiring rate to $1.22 an hour. The 40 hour week has been written into the contract.

UE Local 527, Peterborough:
New contract at Raybestos with a 4c an hour wage increase, plus a hopitalization plan.

UE Local 522, Kingston:
New contract at Canadian Locomotive with a 14c an hour wage increase and a reduction in hours from 44 to 40.

UE is also in negotiations and conciliation in many other plants in Ontario and Quebec.

These Gains Were Made Without CIO and CCL

Neither CIO nor CCL has ever assisted in negotiating or signing a UE Contract. In fact, neither CIO nor CCL negotiate or sign contracts for any of their major affiliates.

All UE Contracts, including those reported here, are won entirely by the UNITED strength of our UE membership.

Our Union was an independent Union in Canada for three years before the CCL was formed. Our Union and our District officers helped to form and to build the CIO and the CCL.

Neither the CCL nor the CIO have ever organized as much as one worker into our Union. In fact, with the hundreds of thousands of dollars that our Union and others have given to CIO and CCL to organize the unorganized, there are still 1 million UNORGANIZED workers in Canada and 34 million in the U.S.A.

Unity Wins

Our Union is living proof that it is the UNITY of working people that brings economic advancement. Do CIO or CCL work to build Unity within their own ranks?

Both CIO and CCL have continually brought into the labor movement partisan political issues to cause confusion and DISUNITY.

In Canada the CCL has ceased to carry on active, progressive campaigns on wage increases, organization, labor legislation and price and rent control.

At the last CCL Convention rank and file delegates demanded that the CCL take constructive action on these vital issues that affect the welfare of working people. Their demands, which reflected the genuine sentiments of all rank and file members of CCL affiliates, were met with cheap insults, red-baiting and rejection by CCL officials.

Instead of accepting criticism as it is given, in good faith, both CIO and CCL have suspended and expelled major international unions who disagreed with their policies. The right of free speech no longer exists in CIO or CCL. Democracy is being driven from CIO and CCL by a ruinous "conform or get out" policy.

Is that the way to build the united strength of organized labor?

GE CAN ALSO PAY

Canadian General Electric has increased its dividends this year by $4 per share. Total CGE payment per share is $12 this year as compared to $8 last year.

This represents a total increase in dividend payments of $700,000—ENOUGH MONEY TO GIVE AN INCREASE IN WAGES OF ABOUT 5c PER HOUR TO ALL GE PRODUCTION EMPLOYEES.

CGE HAS MADE OVER 13 MILLION DOLLARS IN PROFITS IN THE PAST FOUR YEARS.

Yet CGE stalled for six months in negotiations and before the Conciliation Board and pleaded "poverty" whenever the question of wages was discussed.

CGE is now inventing more excuses for delay by claiming it is "confused" about who represents its employees.

CGE states in a letter to its employees on Dec. 5th, that the "Company will continue to observe the agreement it has with Local 524 UE . . ."

Yet CGE is guilty of four major contract violations in the past two weeks.

In the same letter to its employees CGE also states, "We shall conduct ourselves in the best way we know how to be absolutely neutral in what is an employee matter."

Yet CGE gives time off and leave of absence to men who have publicly declared that they are building a union other than the one with which CGE has a collective bargaining agreement.

We Call Upon Our Fellow Citizens

Our repeated representations to CGE to abide by our Contract and to cease giving aid and comfort to another union have been either ignored or evaded.

We now call upon our fellow citizens of Peterborough to join with us in demanding that CGE respect our lawful contract rights.

We call upon our fellow citizens to join with us in demanding that CGE get down to business on our new contract so that Peterborough can enjoy the same economic benefits that our Union is bringing to dozens of other Communities.

State of Emergency

TRENTON, N.J., Dec. 9 (AP)—A state of emergency was declared in metropolitan New Jersey by Governor Driscoll Thursday after he received reports that water supplies will last only 60 days. At the same time, reserves in New York City's enormous but drying reservoirs dropped below the 30-per-cent level for a low of 34.7—despite a week of pleading for public self-restraint.

Organized Labor Agrees Withhold Higher Claims

By H. L. JONES

LONDON, Dec. 9— (CP) — Organized labor will enter 1950 wearing the same old austerity suit.

It has been told to cut its cloth to a familiar pattern—no more money without more work.

For the second straight year, Britain's 8,000,000 organized workers were advised by their leaders to restrain wage claims for another 12 months — until January, 1951. The policy directive came from the Trades Union Congress, representing 187 affiliated unions. It left a few loopholes, but not many.

That was the highlight of a labor year which was one of the busiest for Labor Minister George Isaacs. There was a 26-day strike at the London docks which blew up over the unloading of two Canadian ships and cost the country an estimated £5,000,000. There was trouble on the railways and the pitheads.

But all the disputes were wildcat strikes staged against the advice of responsible union leaders. Britain has not had a major union-backed strike since before the war.

Support Government

At its annual convention T.U.C. re-endorsed the government's wages policy. Only union against it were Communist-dominated bodies. Then came devaluation, a new government austerity program and the need for reconsideration.

The T.U.C. general council met for several weeks to study these latest developments that were generally expected to shoot up the cost of living. Finally it came out with another endorsation.

In the strongest language it has used on wages policy, the mother union body said "even greater" restraint on new wage claims was necessary. The alternative was deflation and unemployment.

It conceded that the case of the lowest-paid workers may have to be considered. Workers whose wages were tied to the cost of living should also be considered if the index went up more than six points. And more productivity should be adequately rewarded.

Beyond that the T.U.C. made its endorsation of the government pretty air tight.

"Restraint" Policy

Government leaders lauded the decision. Prime Minister Attlee said the "restraint" policy did not constitute a wage freeze. He made it clear, in the face of some almost contrary statements by other government spokesmen, that the door remained wide open for increased earnings through improved productivity and greater efficiency.

There was more and more talk of incentive schemes in industry to obtain the higher output Britain needs for her export drive.

It appeared the policy would soon be tested. The 3,000,000-member Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions decided to continue claims for a flat £1 weekly increase, but leaders said they were not bucking the T.U.C. They argued the increase could well come out of increased profits of industry without injuring the country.

During the year the National Union of Railwaymen was twice turned down by labor tribunals on wage claims. Finally they sought a £5 weekly minimum and planned to go ahead with that claim even after the T.U.C. directive. Leaders argued that N. U. R. workers were making less than £5 weekly, against a national average of about £7.

Summer Trains Slow

It was during the N.U.R.'s protracted wage negotiations that railway troubles began in the summer. There was an outbreak of "go slow" strikes at various depots which disrupted north-south traffic.

Troubles at the mines involved pitwinders who man the elevators and who sought more money, but it didn't last long. Not so simple was the London dock strike, the second major disruption of the port in six months.

It began in June when the National Dock Labor Board directed dock workers to unload two Canadian ships, the Beaverbrae and the Argomont. Dockers refused because these vessels had been declared "black" in the world strike by the Canadian Seamen's Union which had also tied up vessels at Liverpool and Bristol.

The London tieup lasted 26 days. A state of emergency was declared by the government and 11,000 troops moved in to unload food ships.

During the dispute, Lord Ammon, chairman of the Dock Labor Board, criticized the government's handling of the strike. He was dismissed by Prime Minister Attlee from his post as chief government whip in the Lords but retained the N.D.L.B. chairmanship.

Even after the strike ended, Lord Ammon warned that it could happen again. He said Communists were out to disrupt wherever they could.

As the year ended the Communists were solidly lined up against the wage restraint policy of the T.U.C. Harry Pollitt, who is secretary of the party and a member of the House of Commons, summed up future Communist policy with the slogans: "Wage advances now," "Save the five-day week," and "Fight for full employment."

But no one seemed to be paying much attention.

How To Play Canasta

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

This article gives a few pointers on Canasta. Canasta is like an obstacle race. To reach the finish line, you must get past certain fixed hurdles on the course; to win, you must make better time than your competitors. You are likely to fall by the wayside if you fail to keep watch on both the obstacles and the competitors.

The fixed hurdles are:

(a) Making the initial meld;
(b) Getting the pack;
(c) Completing one or more Canastas;
(d) Getting rid of the last card.

Sometimes — with an assist from Dame Fortune—you can hurdle two or three of these barriers in one jump. You may get the pack in making your initial meld; you may go out with a concealed hand, encompassing (a), (c), and (d) at once.

Naturally, your chances of winning the race, or making a big profit, are greatly increased by any such telescoping of the course. But, most of the time, you have to take the hurdles one by one. You have to be prepared to deal separately with the special difficulties thrown up around each by the rules of the game.

At the same time, you want to outdistance another partnership, or other players. To some extent you can enhance the difficulties for them. It is as though— to keep up the analogy—you were allowed to push boulders in their path. But in so doing you slow yourself up too, and on net you may turn out to be the loser.

Getting the pack. All experience goes to show that the paramount object it TO GET THE PACK.

This statement may sound strange. Legally, to go out you have to make an initial meld, complete at least one Canasta, and get rid of your last card — the only hurdle you can skip is getting the pack. Yet this is the one you most want to conquer.

The reason is not far to seek. If you never get the pack, your chances of making Canasta and going out are slight, and the chance that your opponents will roll up a huge score against you is extreme.

Tomorrow: Pointers on "getting the pack."

Medical Association Asks Compulsory Dues

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—The American Medical Association Thursday ordered compulsory $3,050,000 annual dues for its membership, part of it to make war on so-called "socialized medicine" proposals.

How much of the $25-a-head levy will be allocated for this purpose will depend on "how the battle develops," said Dr. Louis Bauer, of New York, chairman of the AMA's board of trustees.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Boxing's best!

When champion and challenger met for the century's most skillfull exhibition!

The Canadian Amateur Boxing Championships were held this year in Port Arthur, Ont., to determine the boxers who would represent Canada at the British Empire Games in New Zealand next February.

Toronto's old Adelaide Street rink blazed with light. Fresh sawdust littered the smooth floor. A crowd of sports mingled round the ring while the Lieutenant Governor and his party watched from their box. It was a February night in 1885 . . . and the century's biggest event in Canadian boxing. The world-famous Champion of England, Charlie Mitchell, was to meet John F. Scholes, the local challenger.

In the opening rounds, Scholes smashed Mitchell with a surprise barrage of punches. Wary, Mitchell backed off. The haze of cigar smoke thickened as the rounds went on. Suddenly Mitchell came off the ropes with a hard blow. Scholes went down, only for a moment . . . but the fight had been decided. Mitchell won the bout . . . 35-26.

Good sportsmanship has won many world friends for Canada . . . just as the spirit of working together has made us one of the world's great nations. These two—sportsmanship and enterprise—keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada—unlimited.

If You Keep Your Tree Safe Your Christmas Will Be Merry

By GAILE DUGAS

Did you know that it takes an average Christmas tree only two minutes to go up in smoke once a fire catches hold of its festive trappings? That doesn't allow much time for rescue by the fire department.

Keep your tree safe your Christmas merry by observing the following rules laid down by experts.

Settle if possible for the safest tree; a live one with packed roots and all in a bucket of earth. Keep dirt moistened. The tree that cannot be "planted" in earth can be kept as safe from upsets if it's securely anchored in a sturdy pailful of rocks. What the small tree (safer than a large one, experts say) lacks in size, it can make up for in festive trimmings.

Until you're ready to set up your tree, keep it out of doors. When you bring it in, set it up in the coolest part of the house with the radiator nearest it turned off.

Use non-inflammable aluminum foil—not cotton or paper—to conceal container in which tree is "planted." Use non-inflammable trimmings on the tree.

Don't use lighted candles. (This may seem an unnecessary precaution in this day of electric lights, but lighted candles contribute to tragic fires every year.)

Check the wiring for the tree to see that it's not frayed, is in perfect condition. The switch for turning off and on electric lights should be at some distance from the tree. Don't plug or unplug lights beneath the tree.

Don't leave tree lights on when it isn't necessary and especially when the family is away from home. From time to time, check over the tree and see if needles near the lights are turning brown. If they have, move the lights.

Watch the calendar. New Year's is the day for the tree to go down. If you, should extend the time, don't leave the lights on the tree for more than a half hour at a time.

Students At Funeral Of Ralph Richards

MILLBROOK, Dec. 9 (ENS)—Funeral service for Ralph Raymond Richards, 20, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Richards, was conducted by Rev. T. G. Husser, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, on Wednesday at the G. T. MacPherson Funeral Parlor.

Besides his parents, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Milton Jemison (Laureen) of Port Hope, Yvonne of Peterborough, and Marlene at home.

He had lived all his life in Millbrook except for one and a half years spent at the Dental College of the University of Toronto. As well as winning academic awards he had been prominent in athletics, a member of the lacrosse and hockey teams, and had held the rank of lieutenant second in command in the Cadet Corps. He was a member of St. Andrew's United Church where he sang in the choir.

Pall-bearers had all been classmates either in the local school or at the University. They were Fraser Carr and Edward Hewitt, students at Peterborough Normal School, Bruce Ingham, Jr., OAC, Guelph, Lyle McMahon, Beaverton, Donald McQuade and Donald Shearer, University of Toronto.

Many floral tributes attested to the esteem in which Ralph was held by the community.

Those acting as flower-bearers were Dorothy Hutchison, Margaret Guthrie, Betty North, Betty Adams, Betty Forsyth, Margaret Dawson, Frances Handley, Karl Adams, and George Ingham.

Among those who were present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Milton Jewison of Port Hope, Miss Yvonne Richards, Mrs. Leo Charlebois and Gary of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Richards of Tillsonburg, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Campbell, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalby of Toronto.

Finns Undismayed By Russia Scorn Own Red Rebels

By MARIE DAERR
NEA Special Correspondent

HELSINKI, Finland—(NEA)—Put Finland down in your book as a little country endowed with a big ration of optimism.

You need only a brief time in Helsinki to become convinced that this plucky democracy knows there are turbulent seas ahead. It also knows it will ride them, because it's been through worse storms before.

Seated uncomfortably close to the Russian bear, Finland points proudly to the fact that today the Communists and left wing Socialists hold only 38 seats of the country's 200-member legislature and that Finland's "little man" has built up an excellent resistance to Red propaganda. And, in Finland, the Reds do a lot of shouting.

"The political situation has improved much in the past year," an influential Finn told me during an American Overseas Airlines reporting tour of Scandinavia. "It will improve more in the near future."

The Finns remind American reporters that a few months ago the Federation of Finnish Trade Unions expelled four big Communists - dominated unions for continuing to strike in defiance of the federation's back-to-work ultimatum.

"Today, only two of those unions are still officially out of the federation," I was told. "The other two promised to be good and were re-instated."

Right now, the Finns are busy tackling the problem of their economy. High wages have raised production costs to an unhealthy level.

"Prices aren't too bad for the manual laborer, whose wages have sky-rocketed since 1939," a Finn told me. "They're not so good for the white collar worker, whose salary has increased only about half as much as the laborer's."

At present, government people agree, the Finnish landlord is taking an economic beating from rent control.

Because Finland has a housing shortage, the size of a Helsinki family determines how large an apartment that family may occupy. The general rule is one room per person. Two small children count as one person.

"Do the Finnish people resent the reparations which have dominated their economy?" I asked

"Because we have worked hard, we are over the hump of that situation," I was told. "By 1952, everything will be paid off. As for resenting the reparations — why, you might as well resent the rain on a stormy day."

A Finn who sat next to me at luncheon helped himself to a generous portion of veal and buttered a slice of bread.

"I returned to Finland recently after a stay in England," he said. "I feel sorry for the English. Their food situation is so much worse than ours. We have plenty of everything."

In Finland, only sugar and coffee are rationed. It is also possible to buy more expensive unrationed coffee.

"It is sad to see the English stand in line for their pathetically small Sunday joint," continued the Finn. "We have plenty of meat here. We must eat a lot of it, to keep warm during our cold, dark winter."

Helsinki residents do much of their food shopping in open-air markets, well stocked with fish, poultry, fruits and vegetables. Rich and poor patronize the markets, where prices are a little lower than in stores.

Finnish women are proud of their place in the employment scene. You see them in the barber shops, shaving their male customers. They are attendants in the famous Finnish steam baths, giving both men and women rubdowns.

They are conductors, farmers and textile workers. They operate linotype machines in newspaper plants and carry loads of tile on construction jobs. The fact that many of them are housewives and mothers doesn't seem to make any difference.

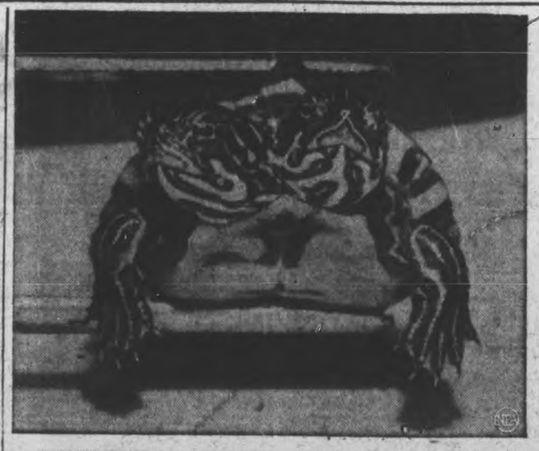
U.S. Investors Told Canada Good Market



HOLLYWOOD BEACH, Fla., Dec. 9—(AP)—American investors were told Thursday of "the opportunities in Canada for profitable employment of capital in large amounts."

The Investment Bankers Association of America, in annual convention here, heard a report by its committee on Canadian securities. This marked the first time the bankers had named a special committee to study the investment situation in Canada. The IBA is the United States counterpart of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada.

Stating that there is "convincing evidence that frontier development is still a characteristic of Canadian life," the committee cited as particular examples of investment opportunity the oil and gas discoveries in the prairie provinces, the Quebec-Labrador iron fields and the discovery of itanium-bearing ore in northeastern Quebec.

"Expert opinion contends," the committee reported, "that there will be very large additional discoveries of oil in western Canada, as no less than 475,000 square miles are classified as prospective oil territory, a third the size of the prospective oil territory in the United States.

"If this opinion is well founded, the Canadian oil industry will require huge amounts of new capital. It has been estimated that expansion of Canadian production to a capacity of around 400,000 barrels would require capital expenditures of around $1,000,000,000 might be raised in equal parts from operations and from capital market."

Senate Ready To Call Halt; Up To Commons

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 —(CP)—The Senate is ready to call a halt to the first session of Canada's 21st parliament. It's all up to the Commons.

The Upper Chamber Thursday cleared the order paper and is ready for prorogation, possibly Saturday.

It now awaits passage by the Commons of departmental estimates totalling more than $2,000,000,000, brought down last spring by Finance Minister Abbott. These will come to the Senate as "the supply bill" and passage is a matter of routine.

The Commons, considering the estimates for each department, still has six departments to scrutinize. Once this study is finished, the Senate will receive the final bill of the session.

Then the Upper Chamber will hear royal assent on the various bills which already have been passed, and senators and members of parliament will go home for Christmas as parliament hill closes up shop.

Last measures on the Senate order paper included a bill to gather under one statute all legislation affecting the three armed services. This, said Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, will not go any farther this session. Introduced in the Senate, it will have to be reintroduced next year—either in the Senate or Commons—and go through the legislative mill again.

Little Change In Cattle Prices

TORONTO, Dec. 9 — (CP). — Cattle prices were steady to 50 cents higher on heifers and cows at the close of trading on the Toronto Livestock Market this week the Dominion Marketing Service reported today.

Lambs were strong to 50 cents higher on better quality. Hogs were strong to 50 cents higher. Calves and sheep were unchanged.

Cattle receipts totalled 7,200 head. Carry-over from last week was 300 cattle and it was anticipated that a few hundred plain cattle would be unsold at close of this week's activities.

Academy President Flays Modern Art

LONDON, Dec. 9 — (AP). — Sir Alfred Munnings retired Thursday as president of the Royal Academy—but not before he fired a final broadside at modern art.

He set off a controversy last April when he damned—literally—modern art in a broadside speech to an Academy banquet.

Thursday the 71-year-old painter used these terms in referring to modern art: Twaddle, cloak for incapacity, parade of nonsense, fantastic foolish fashions, and depraved form of art.

His successor is 70-year-old Sir Gerald Kelly.

Sir Gerald said modern art has in it "some good, some bad and some indifferent—and some of it danged bad."

3 Noronic Casualties Recovering In Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 9 (CP)—Almost three months after they escaped from the blazing lake steamer Noronic, the last three victims of the fire are recovering from their injuries in Toronto hospitals. Three persons are missing and 116 persons have been listed as dead.

Reported "doing well" in hospital Thursday are Robert Adamson of Lorain, O.; George Harshman of Cincinnati, and Kathleen Morrison of Grosse Point, Mich.

Hundreds of others have been released from hospital after treatments for burns suffered when the Canada steamship lines passenger vessel was gutted by fire at her pier in Toronto Sept. 17.

Senate Has Approved Ban On Crime Comics

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 —(CP)— By the stroke of a pen, Viscount Alexander, Governor - General, this week will do the last thing needed to ban crime comic in Canada.

Royal assent is the only step that remains before the comics are cleared off the newsstands under penalties imposed in a new measure sponsored jointly by Parliament's government and opposition.

The last parliamentary hurdle was cleared Wednesday when the bill got through the Senate after a stiff fight following unanimous approval by the Commons.

VOL. XCIX. No. 135 FRIDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1949

City Policemen To Work 44-Hour Week

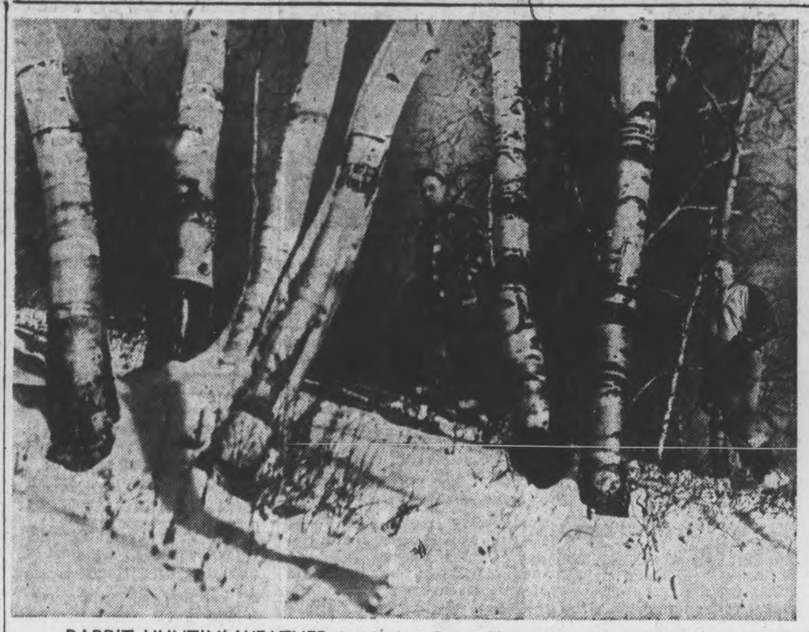
City policemen will go on a 44-hour week beginning June 1, following a ruling of the Police Commission Thursday. The decision was reached after the members of the Commission, chairman Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, Mayor Max J. Swanston and Judge S. L. Smoke, considered a request of the police force's Negotiations committee presented to the Commission a month ago.

The commission also okayed the policemen's request for service pay of 10 cents a day for every five years service with a maximum of 50 cents. In 1950 this service pay will amount to $949.50 and will increase successive years for a few years until a normal levelling off has been reached.

Incentive For Men

This service pay may act as an incentive for the men, Mayor Swanston commented. Acting as secretary for the commission, City Clerk E. A. Outram reported service pay was the general rule in large centres.

Another request of the negotiation committee was that after 10 years on the force a member be given three weeks holidays. In answer to that, Judge Smoke said that the police force would be included in the general program being worked out for all civic employees which will probably give them three weeks holidays after 15 years employment.



It was decided two more men would be required on the force for the shift schedule worked out by Chief Constable John Thompson and his men based on the 44-hour work week.

Try With Some Force

The Chief told the commission he could work out the new schedule with the number of men now on the force, but agreed the addition of two men would make for much more efficient policing of the city.

It is our responsibility to see that the city is properly policed, Judge Smoke commented.

It is not yet known if these proposals of the police commission will be acceptable to the policemen's negotiating committee.

Slept Two Weeks In Railway Depot Now Bed In Jail

A three months jail sentence was handed out to Francis O'Keefe, 26, of 182½ Hunter St., who pleaded guilty to being drunk early this morning, his third offence under the Liquor Control Act within a year, in police court today before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC.

O'Keefe also pleaded guilty to a charge of lodging in a railway station for about two weeks with which he had been charged Dec. 4. He failed to appear in answer to the charge when it was first brought into court.

Magistrate Philp fined him on this count $10 and costs or 10 days, the 10 days to run concurrently with his three months sentence.

Another Station Lodge

James Heffernan, 887 Water St., pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy and was fined $10 and costs or 10 days. He also had been sleeping in a railway station for some time.

Fire Investigators Pleased With Cleanliness of City

Peterborough has been getting a thorough inspection during the past two weeks although only a small percentage of the population has been aware of it. Fire investigators of the Canadian Underwriters Association, the official rating association of all tariff insurance companies in Canada which takes in about 200 companies, have been at work throughout the city.

The investigators were concerned entirely with fire hazards and fire protection of the commercial buildings in Peterborough, not private residences. By the time they finish Tuesday, they will have visited the entire business section and all the stores throughout the city as well as churches, schools, motor transport depots, garages and service stations.

Done 16 Years Ago

The last time such a survey was made here was 16 years ago. They profess to be unable to say whether rates generally in the city will go up or down because the rates are determined by their Toronto head office. But they did say they had been pleasantly surprised in their inspection of Peterborough. It was "a remarkably clean city", Frank S. Jones, head of the investigating team said.

Mr. Jones said cleanliess of the city as far as fire hazards were concerned was a great credit, not only to the citizens, but to the local fire department and its inspectors.

Often, Mr. Jones said, the back areas in downtown districts are cluttered with ramshackle leantos which are tinder boxes that might explode into a raging fire at any moment. Such structures are almost entirely lacking in Peterborough.

As much as possible they try to avoid increasing insurance rates. Most of the changes made in buildings which would lower rates are usually reported as soon as they are incorporated. As a result there is a tendency to find mostly features of building which might increase rates.

For instance, additions of different heating units might mean a higher rate. Oil heating stoves and oil furnaces which have fallen below the standard installations might fall into this category. New interior finishes using materials which are more inflammable than others could raise insurance rates.

On the whole, Mr. Jones and his staff reported that they found the people of Peterborough very co-operative and friendly. However, there was one notable exception.

One lady seeing one of the inspectors carrying on his investigations at the rear of some buildings, became alarmed and phoned the police to report what she thought was a prowler. The policeman who came out to see what was going on had quite a chase before he located the unsuspecting investigator.

Girl's Condition Said 'Just Fair'

"Just fair" is the condition of Miss Yvonne Hudson, 17, of 309 Bethune St., taken to Civic Hospital late Wednesday night with concussion.

She was one of seven occupants of a panel truck that crashed into a hydro pole and the cement retaining wall at the Filtration Plant, outside the city limits on Highway 28. The truck was wrecked.

All seven were taken to hospital for medical attention. Miss Hudson was most seriously injured suffering not only concussion but cut hands and wrists.

"Her condition has not improved," hospital authorities said today.

Also still in hospital is William Roberts, 22, of 692 Stewart St., with head lacerations, but his condition has improved considerably.

Miss Gwen Warington, 19, of Port Hope received a back injury, and her brother John Warrington, 17, mouth injuries. Both have been discharged from the hospital.

Others that received cuts and bruises and were allowed to go home after medical treatment were Joseph Devlin, 27, of 21 Cricket Place; Miss Mary Dowdall of 295 King St., and Joseph Basciano, 22 of 317 Parkhill Rd.

The truck coming toward Peterborough from Lakefield shortly before 11 p.m. Wednesday skidded on the highway, hit the pole and the cement wall and fell over on its left side in the ditch.

TB Association Offers X-Ray To All Mothers

X-rays for all women during pregnancy will be introduced by the Peterborough Tuberculosis Association January 1, as the result of a decision reached by the association Thursday.

This is but another reason for all the citizens of Peterborough to buy TB Christmas seals. Last year about 1,000 babies were born. If all the mothers had been X-rayed, the cost would have been $2,500.

At present the provincial government will pay for one prenatal examination of a pregnant woman, but this examination does not include X-ray.

For All Hospitalized

Eventually, all patients, on entry into a hospital will be given an X-ray, as a matter of course. This is made possible by the federal grant to provincial governments from which miniature X-ray machines are provided to hospitals over a certain size. Both Peterborough hospitals qualify for this, but so far only St. Joseph's Hospital has one.

However, this would not be of any help in the care of pregnant women. Medical Officer of Health Dr. R. A. Kelly said it was desirable that a pregnant woman be X-rayed as soon as possible.

Active TB for a pregnant woman can become very serious, Dr. Kelly said. When a pregnant woman is found to have TB then she is given extra care and is required to take more rest and her diet is affected. On the whole the pregnancy period can be a good deal easier for the infected woman if she receives this special care, the doctor stated.

All doctors in the city are being advised of the new service this month. If they and the mothers want to take advantage of it, they will simply give the name of the woman to the Health Office which will make an appointment at one of the hospitals during the clinics held twice a month.

DAVID T. DIPLOCK, manager of Peterborough branch of the Sun Life Assurance Company 14 years, retires after 45 years' service with the company. He was guest of honor at a retirement luncheon Thursday.

Sun Life Staff Honors David Diplock

David T. Diplock, who is retiring after 14 years as manager of the Peterborough office of the Sun Life Assurance Company, was presented with a leather travelling bag by the company's Peterborough staff, at a luncheon held in his honor Thursday at the Empress Hotel. Mr. Diplock has served the company since 1905 and tribute to his work during that long period was paid by company representatives from the head office in Montreal and from Toronto.

Introduce New Manager

In addition to marking the retirement of Mr. Diplock, the luncheon was the occasion for introducing the new Peterborough manager, Kenneth Dalrymple, and Mrs. Dalrymple, who come to this city from Toronto.

Walter Attridge, of Montreal, supervisor of Canadian Agencies, was chairman. J. A. McAllister, assistant general manager and director of agencies, spoke of Mr. Diplock's career with the company and described, at the same time, the growth and development of the company during those years.

When Mr. Diplock started as a clerk at the head office in 1905, the company had handled less than two million dollars of business since it had been founded 35 years earlier. Business for 1949 alone was expected to reach the 360 million dollar mark.

Mr. Diplock's first move from head office was to Western Canada and then he returned to Montreal in 1912 to spend the next 15 years. From 1912 to 1927 he put three and a half million dollars of business on the company's books. Then Mr. Diplock became manager of the Sherbrooke branch and came to Peterborough in 1935.

Mr. McAllister was followed by J. F Hinchey, Belleville representative, who presented the travelling bag to Mr. Diplock on behalf of the Peterborough division and Miss Doreen Dugan, of the Peterborough office, presented a bouquet of red roses to Mrs. Diplock.

Mr. and Mrs. Diplock both spoke of a number of friendships they had made since their arrival in the city in 1935. Plans for the immediate future were uncertain.

Small Fire Said Suspicious At Closed Tombstone Firm

A special investigator from the Fire Marshal's Department, Toronto, is being called into the city to investigate a $200 fire that broke out early today at the York Memorial Co., 893 Monaghan Rd. The blaze is believed to have begun beside a compressor, used as a power supply for the chipping of stone. Monuments and stone memorial tablets are manufactured there in warm weather.

"Suspicious circumstances" was the curt comment today of Fire Chief George Smith in describing the outbreak.

Just how the fire began is not known. And the main suspicious circumstance is that the monument works, a one-man business operated by Hector Marinacci of Toronto, has been deserted for the past two weeks.

Plant Closed

Mr. Marinacci ceases work at the Peterborough plant about the beginning of October and does not return until spring once more ushers in the warm weather. Cold makes the stone too brittle for chipping, and the job is thus seasonal.

Isadore Gordon, who lives next door at 895 Monaghan Rd., looks over the premises periodically to ensure that everything is in order. Last time he unlocked the premises was some two weeks ago. Nobody else has permission to enter.

If nobody is working there and nobody but Mr. Gordon allowed entry, how did the fire start? That is the question Chief Smith is trying to answer. And he considers the origin of the blaze of such a questionable nature that he has called in the special investigator.

Glow Noticed

While making his 5 a.m. rounds at the Peterborough Lumber Co. today, Sidney Luther, the watchman, noticed a glow coming from the rear of the York Memorial Co. which is situated across the road, on the west side of Monaghan Rd.

He immediately called the fire department.

By the time a pumper truck and ladder truck had arrived flames had eaten through one place on the roof of the one-storey building. The fire which began beside the compressor travelled up the south wall between two joists and broke through one part of the tarpaper roof. The flames also

"We Live In British Empire"

Fair Play Even For Dogs, Hoodlums, Not Pups, Did It

Dogs are not going to be blamed for the misdeeds of the hoodlum element in the comunity if one staunch member of the Peterborough Humane Society has her way.

Early Wednesday morning rows of garbage cans and ash buckets on Rubidge St.—set out the night before by residents to be emptied in the morning—were overturned and the contents spilled on lawns and sidewalks.

And on Simcoe St. a number of cans containing comic books, old books and papers were emptied and the paper material strewn about the street.

Anticipating that innocent canines would be blamed for these depredations, the Humane Society member phoned the Examiner to report that it was young hoodlums returning from a dance that pushed over the ashes and garbage on Rubidge St. And irresponsible children needing less than kind attention from their parents that made the mess on Simcoe St.

'Fair play for all—and that means dogs too," said the lady vehemently. "After all we do live in the British Empire."

Regular meeting of District 7, WMS of George St. United Church was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. V. Boorman, Hunter St., with Mrs. R. Reynolds presiding. Miss E. Brown read the scripture and Mrs. E. Ingall read the Christmas story.

The following were appointed to the 1950 executive:

A duet, "I hear the bells on Christmas day" was rendered by Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Brown. Mrs. Boorman closed the meeting with prayer, after which Mrs. Powell assisted the hostess to serve refreshments.

Mrs. F. Dorrell Honoured

The annual meeting and election of officers for the Afternoon Guild of St. George's Anglican Church on Thursday afternoon was followed by a jolly Christmas party. All officers were re-elected and will again give president Mrs. F. Dorrell their co-operation. During the party an electric clock was presented to Mrs. Dorrell in recognition of her unceasing interest and work for the Guild. She is in charge of the club card collecting in which members make house to house calls for remittances on cards which allow people to purchase goods with a year to pay. Considerable sewing is done in her home and general work with all members is outstanding. Credit for the party goes to Mrs. A. Green convener. Tables were decorated in keeping with the season and the plates were dainty with colorful salad and other good things. After the meal Santa Claus distributed gifts to each member. Mrs. E. Huxley and honorary members Mrs. E. Rew and Mrs. L. Warren who were unable to be present were remembered. The Rev. E. C. Moore closed the afternoon with a prayer, and Christmas wishes were exchanged.

Fairview WA Holds Tea In City With Good Success

For the first time the Woman's Association of Fairview United Church on Thursday afternoon held an afternoon tea and bazaar in the Green Room of the YWCA. Previously they had raised money for their work through sales at the market.

This new venture proved so successful both socially and financially that it is possible they will make it an annual event. Their friends in the city appreciate the opportunity to obtain fresh farm produce and canned goods. They also like to take advantage of the choice baked goods that women who do not live too close to the bake shops find easy to make.

Mrs. Carmen Bell, general convener of the tea had arranged a charming Christmas setting for the tea. Large baskets of evergreen branches were tied with big red bows and decked with red streamers and Christmas tablecloths were on the bazaar tables.

The tea table was lighted with red tapers and the centrepiece was an effective arrangement of poinsetias and silver with symbols of the Christmas season, set on an oyster linen embroidered cloth. Mrs. Wilbert Rosborough and Mrs. Albert Armstrong poured tea, assisted by Mrs. R. Harrison and Mrs. Fred Bell.

Mrs. E. Coburn had charge of the table and was assisted in serving by Mrs. N. Trude, Mrs. L. Allen, Mrs. B. Smook, Mrs A. Bulmer, Mrs. H. Sharpe. Mrs. Fred Brown and Mrs. Arthur Maynard replenished the plates.

Guests were received at the door by the president Mrs. Dave Wilson and Mrs. Carmen Bell, assisted by Mrs. Wesley Bell, vice-president. The tickets were taken by Mrs. A. Poast.

Three quilts offered for sale were in the attractive patterns, Tulip, Dresden Plate and Crazy Patchwork. Other fancy handwork included luncheon cloths, aprons, pillowcases and novelties which were sold by Mrs. W. Heard and Miss M. Milburn.

The farm produce table was in charge of Mrs. S. Boyce and Mrs. E. Mahood, and the home baking and candy was sold by Mrs. R. Fowler and Mrs. C. Heard.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Home Foundation Stone Of Our Modern Society

DEAR MISS DIX: In sociology we are studying the home with its developments and difficulties. Our class would appreciate very much if you would contribute your personal definition of home.

COLLEGE GIRLS.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: Home is the foundation stone on which organized society rests and upon whether that is sound or rotten depends whether we shall build our civilization to new heights or whether it shall crumble into dust. For the home is the secret inner place in which the characters of children are formed and the ideas of men and women fixed, and from it they go forth to carry sweetness to life or to spread darkness and evil.

If our country has been a progressive country, it is because it has been a country of homes, a country in which the poor man could have his bit of land and his own house above whose lintels glowed the star of hope. For out of these humble doors have come the Lincolns and the Edisons and the Fords and the inventors and the merchants and the bankers who have made these United States rich and great and given them a place in the sun.

Young Couples' Struggles

And there are no more beautiful romances than those of the young couples who marry on a shoestring and set up their first home in a shabby room with half a dozen sticks of furniture but who work and struggle and strive and plan and dream together until they achieve their ambition.

To make a real home requires the co-operation of both the husband and the wife. No woman alone can do it, though she has roast beef for dinner every day and a tidy on every chair, nor can any man do it alone, though he has a cat for a pet and period furniture. It takes a man and woman working together, planning together, giving the best of themselves as an offering to the gods of the hearth.

But when they do that, great is their reward. They have built a temple of peace for their souls, a safe harbor to which they can flee from the storms and stress of life. They have given their children a sanctuary in which to grow up into the kind of men and women who are a blessing to the world. Fortunate indeed, are those who have a happy home, for they have the best gift that Fate can give them.

DEAR MISS DIX: It is the woman who pays in marriage. What do men give up when they get married? If they used to go bowling once a week, they still go; if they played golf, they still play; if they had a certain amount of spending money, they still have that same amount. But if the wife used to play bridge once a week before she married she doesn't do it, for before long she has junior to take care of; if she wants to go to a show she can't, because she hasn't the money. It is the woman who has to do all of the adjusting, who has to do the giving in and the forgiving. Why don't men realize they ought to go fifty-fifty with their wives in marriage?

A WIFE.

ANSWER: Assuredly marriage is no picnic for wives, but neither is it all cakes and ale for husbands. Of course, motherhood is a more strenuous job than fatherhood, but don't you believe that the poor, young married man doesn't have to lay his sacrifices on the altar of marriage. He who was once carefree has to punch the home time clock. He whose pockets once jingled with silver has to count his pennies when he has a family to support. He who once was the glass of fashion now wears his clothes until they are threadbare.

Of course, both men and women have to make sacrifices in marriage. But the point to bear in mind is that it is worth all it costs. Love and husband and wife and children are like everything else in life that is worth having. They have to be paid for. Compare your lot with the lonely, loveless, childless men and women you know and you won't begrudge the price you pay for your happiness.

DEAR MISS DIX: They say a great many of the letters you print asking advice are written by yourself. Is this true?

HOPE.

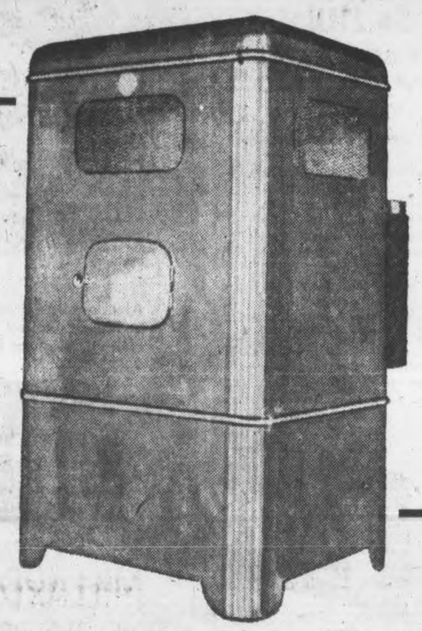
ANSWER: I assure you, Hope, that every letter that appears in this column is written by a bona-fide correspondent. Not one of them is written by me. So that's that.

SPRING'S YOUNG LOOK—Carrying out fashion's youthful theme are above frocks forming part of 1950 Spring-Summer collection by Canadian designers. At left, pretty Eton collared dress in houndstooth rayon fabric has brown wool jacket and bow; (centre) three-piece ensemble combines print and wool, the red coat accented by removable navy and white print sole; (right) exclusive 'dazzle" shantung crepe buttoned-down-front dress with intricately shaped pockets, all stressing young, slender silhouette.

"What's Right?"

Your children are having trouble with some of the neighbors' children.

WRONG WAY: Stop speaking to the parents of the children your children are having trouble with.



RIGHT WAY: Refuse to carry on a children's squabble, realizing that the children will probably be friends again in a few days—but if the parents have trouble it may never be straightened out.

Bare-topped Evening Gowns Promise To Be Real Favorites

By EPSIE KINARD

NEW YORK —(NEA)— Ready to float out on the dance floor at first blast from the orchestra is fashion's newest pet: the bare-topped evening dress.

Making an equal show of snowy shoulders and shapely ankles are romantic bouffant dresses of taffeta, satin brocade, tulle, and net.

Layer-on-layer of rhinestone-studded white net makes one gown with which a girl needs only a twinkling wand to look the part of a wish-granting fairy. The snug bodice of this Dache-designed gown is extravagantly sashed with black velvet ribbons which stream to the hemline of the ankle-length skirt.

The skirt of another tulle-layered gown plays a strip-tease act. Over a camisole top sheath of navy blue taffeta, designer Toni Owens piles three removable net skits of three different colors — madonna blue, dusty pink and fuchsia—which can be peeled off, thinned out or piled up for effects.

The season's shortest evening dress—made mid-calf length by Adele Simpson — yields its claim to soup-and-fish formality on no other count. Red silk satin brocade fashions the full skirt and halter-strapped bodice which is softened by folds of frabric draped provocatively over the bosom.

Only One Person In Four Gives Teeth Adequate Care

By KAY REX

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 — (CP) — Junior may stamp his feet at the thought of a trip to the dentist, nevertheless mother should see that he gets there at least once every six months. In this way, she will save herself—and junior a lot of trouble, and money, later on.

Health and welfare department officials say that three out of four Canadians receive no regular dental care; 99 out of 100 suffer from dental disease sooner or later.

In a booklet, "For Smiles That Last," the department's dental health division notes that a child's teeth start to form months before he is born.

By the time he is 2½, all 20 of his "baby" teeth usually have appeared. When he is three it is time to take him to the dentist.

The booklet warns that tooth decay attacks teeth early, possibly as soon as they appear. Acids, formed by germs feeding on food particles containing sugar, cause tooth decay.

At the age of five, half the children of Canada have tooth decay.

At the age of twelve, more than nine out of 10 have it.

At the age of sixteen, the average child already has lost two permanent teeth this way.

Diet Big Factor

Tooth decay can be reduced by eating the right foods. The health experts say that milk, fruit, vegetables, whole-grain cereals, meat, cheese and eggs, help form sound teeth.

Sweet, sticky foods invite acid-forming germs, and do not contribute to good nutrition.

Children should be given milk instead of soft drinks; peanut butter sandwiches instead of candy bars; crackers and cheese instead of gum; fruit instead of cake.

Sound, healthy teeth need constant attention. They should be brushed within 10 minutes after eating. If brushing is not possible the child should be taught to rinse his mouth with water.

The booklet notes that sodium fluoride cuts down tooth decay in children when properly applied by the dentist, and recommends it for children at ages 3, 7, 10 and 13 years.

Frequent visits to the dentist also are important—at least once every six months. Health officials say that cavities always grow — they never heal. Early and regular treatment saves time, money and teeth.

Mrs. Cuthbertson New President Norwood YWA

NORWOOD, Dec. 8—(ENS)—Mrs. Wilson Small was hostess on Thursday at her home to the YWA of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The election of officers was held with Mrs. R. D. Duncanson in the chair. Those elected are as follows: President, Mrs. Cecil Cuthbertson; vice-president, Mrs. Harry Morgan; recording secretary, Mrs. Stan McMullen; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wilfred Bongard;; treasurer, Mrs. J. Rogers; Glad Tidings secretary, Mrs. C. Davey; welcome and welfare secretary, Mrs. A. Bongard; pianist, Mrs. Lottie Burtt; supply secretary, Mrs. Earl Spencer.

After the business session Mrs. Duncanson conducted a carol contest. Mrs. Small served a lunch.

Mrs. Stan McMillen had prepared a Christmas program. After singing "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. Mrs. Keith Ross read the scripture lesson and Mrs. McMillen gave two Christmas readings, "Why the Chimes Rang" and the "German Legend of the First Christmas Tree."

Mrs. Rod Webb also presented a reading, "A Preacher's Gift to His Sunday School," telling how the author, Philip Brooks, a bishop of Massachusetts, who wrote "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and also the origin of the melody to which the hymn is sung. A prayer, led by Mrs. C. Davey, followed the hymn. Mrs. Wm. Golloher gave two readings, "Christmas Games" and "The Fir Tree."

Mrs. Russell Jennings read "Christmas Blossom," and Mrs. Gordon Rothwell told the Legend of the Poinsettia.

The topic "What Christmas Means to Everyone" was presented by Miss Isabel MacMillan. Mrs. Small served a lunch.

WHAT PRICE CONSUMERS' GOODS?—To buy a quart of milk, the average New York workman pays 20 cents that it took him 8 minutes to earn. The average London workman pays only 12 cents, but it took him 20 minutes to earn the money. The newschart above, based on a recent survey by the National Industrial Conference Board, gives comparative costs of a number of basic items to workers in New York and London. Top figure in small boxes indicates cost of article; lower figures indicate number of hours and minutes purchaser works to earn that amount.

Germans Develop Cancer Drug

FRANKFURT, Dec. 9 —(AP)—Successes in treatment of cancer with a new German drug were reported Thursday by European research specialists and doctors. The drug is described as still being in the experimental stage.

In more than 100 out of 200 cases of advanced cancer, the drug was reported either to have brought to a standstill the growth of cancer or to have positively decreased the infection.

The new development was reported by H. Siebold, spokesman for a meeting of 60 German, Swiss, Austrian and Netherlands cancer research specialists and doctors said to have helped in the first experiments. The specialists are meeting at Bad Kreuznach, in the French zone.

Seibold said the drug, bearing the simple name "toximal," was developed in 1942 by Dr. Wilhelm Von Brehmer, 67, head of a cancer research institute at Bad Kreuznach. It has not been made available on the open market and is still being tested in experiments, he added.

Spectacular Oil Fire

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 9—(AP)—A gasoline explosion injured at least four men and set off a spectacular oil fire at the multi-million-dollar West Tulsa refinery of the Texas Company Thursday night. Early reports of four deaths and a missing man were discounted by plant superintendent Ed Reynolds.

Economic Unions Butt For Jokes

LONDON, Dec. 9—(CP)—Two Conservative members treated whimsically in their editorial columns today the new word forms describing Europe's projected economic unions.

"Fritalux," "Unican," and the latest—"Fritascan"—were deftly ribbed by the Daily Telegraph and the Daily Express.

"Fritascan," said the Express, "is the climax of the European fun fair whose comic troupes, Fritalux and Uniscan, unite to devour Britain.

"This is a favorite with European audiences."

The Express, however, rams home its fear that Britain's pursuit of paths that might lead to European economic integration—over-all objective of the United States European Recovery Plan—loosens her ties with Canada.

In fact, the newspaper combined under a double-column headline, "Nearer Uniscan — further from Canada" — news stories reporting Britain's overtures to Scandinavia and the protest made in Ottawa by Canada's Agriculture Minister Gardiner that the British government is trying to drive Canadian food off the British market.

Finds Business Of Humanity Big Business

There's an odd business in Canada. It has no regular stand. It operates intermittently, here and there, with volunteers. But it makes millions of dollars and costs hardly anything to run.

It might be called the business of humanity.

It is doing one of its major jobs right now in Toronto—the job of getting money to make little people well.

It is raising some $4,000,000 to add to the $8,000,000 subscribed in 1945 for the Hospital for Sick Children, a 1,559-room, modern medical centre already well on its way to completion on University Avenue.

This one is, of course, particularly Toronto's show, with a general appeal to Ontario, but its experience may be worth investigation by other Canadian communities which face a similar task.

A spokesman for the campaign says it is probably unique as a low-cost operation

The $8,000,000, in 1945 was raised with a campaign expenditure of about $40,000; and the present $4,000,000 probably will run around $20,000 in expense. Thus the costs are only about ½ of 1 per cent of the money the public subscribes. Based on many other campaigns, 2½ per cent would be an excellent showing, while some campaigns cost up to 5, 6 or 10 per cent.

The cost is low, said the spokesman, because:

"It is an easy subject to sell to the public—a hospital for children; and so it is easy to get people to work for nothing. It is easy, too, because, even more than in 1945, the press relations people are getting things done which could hardly be done otherwise. We are getting free printing, free paper, free art, for posters and pamphlets; and free space in the newspapers."

The spokesman himself has given about six months of his time in two campaigns and, he added, "I am only one."

"I wouldn't do this work for any sort of money; but I'll do it free; there's a deep pleasure when you get in and find out what it is for."

The biggest single item of campaign expense is postage stamps. Even at one cent, the 300,000 letters sent out initially would cost $3,000, and many of them carried higher postage than that. Then there is the mailing of receipts for subscriptions and various express charges.

Israel Officials Fear UN Plan Means War

MONTREAL, Dec. 9 —(CP)—Avrham Harman, Israel's consul-general here, Thursday issued a statement from his government declaring that the proposed United Nations' plan for internationalization of Jerusalem would plunge the U.N. into "a sterile conflict with the peoples whose rights it denies."

The plan is scheduled to be presented by a U.N. committee to the general assembly.

The Israel statement said the scheme "for a complete internationalization of Jerusalem...ignores experience and reality."

Expect Voting To Be Close in Australian Elections

By ANTONY WHITLOCK

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 9—(CP)—A £50 ($123.50) fine can be imposed on anyone convicted to betting on Australia's general election Saturday. But it's not the threat of being fined that is restricting wagering in this election in which Labor seeks to continue in office.

Never before have so few forecasts been made on the result of an Australian election. All party supporters are agreed that voting is likely to be close.

Favoring the return of the Labor Government under Prime Minister Ben Chifley are general prosperity, high wages and full employment. No need be without a job in Australia today. Nearly 100,000 jobs are waiting to be filled. For this, Labor takes credit and asks to be judged on its record.

The Liberal-country party joint opposition is staking its chances on "it's time for a change," "throw out the Socialists" and "let's get back to the free enterprise that made Australia." Another vote-winning plank is its promise to end gas rationing by importing more non-dollar gasoline.

Public opinion polls say Labor may be beaten. But many persons thought Labor would be beaten in the 1946 election after five years of difficult wartime administration, but Chifley brought his party back to power comfortably.

Labor has a hostile press. One major exception is the Melbourne Argus, which after long years of conservation has been given a new look by the London Daily Mirror interests who now have a controlling hand.

The southeastern states of Australia have the bulk of the population and return most of the members of the House of Representatives. In the new house of 123 members, New South Wales will have 47 and Victoria 33. Western Australia will have only eight and Tasmania five.

The 60 members of the enlarged senate will by the constitution be equally divided among the six states. Each Senator sits for six years and half the House retires every election. With the increase this election and retirements, there are 42 to be elected, seven from each state.

As usual, the Australian Communist party is nominating a number of Lower House and Senate candidates. Its leading senate candidate for New Wales, however, will not now be on the voting papers. He was Laurence Louis Sharkey, general secretary of the party, now serving a three-year penitentiary term for sedition. None of the Communists are expected to get a seat.

Movie Column

Film Making In Australia Rugged Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 9 (AP) — Rugged is the word or film making in Australia.

This testimony comes from John O'Malley, a tall Australian who has just arrived here to seek his fortune. O'Malley is one of the performers in the film, "The Rugged O'Riordans," which was months in the making, most of it in the plains of Queensland.

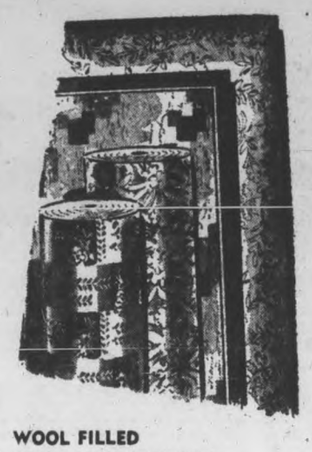
"But it wasn't as bad as it sounds," he added. "I was out in the bush, which I like, and on a horse, which I like. They flew in movie twice a week and we had no particular worries. The only bother was wearing a beard for a year and a half."

Australian films cost anywhere from $14,000 to $200,000, which was the tab on "O'Riordans." Most of the pictures are made on location, since the largest studio has but one stage. That accounts for the lengthy shooting schedules.

Low Production

Australia produces only about two films a year, O'Malley said, so there are no actors who perform in pictures alone. Nor do they confine themselves to the stage.

"The big thing is radio," he declared, "but most actors take part in all mediums." He added that television has not progressed beyond the experimental stage.



Other comments: Australians are good movie fans, but quite critical. Big United States favorites are Bob Hope, Alan Ladd, Humphrey Bogart, American films are generally favored, but the best British films draw good business. The down-under public is pretty well fed up with the brightly-colored fluffy musicals coming from here.

O'Malley was originally a newspaper man in his native Sydney. He jests about having "sunk lowe. to become an actor" in 1938. He served in the army during the war and was part of a group isolated in Timor during the Japanese occupation. He spent 14 months dodging Ja[illegible] he island.

O'Malley was about to leave for Britain a few weeks ago when his application to enter this country on the quota was accepted. Should he find fame in the United States, he will join a group of successful countrymen, including Judith Anderson, Alan Marshall, Cecil Kellaway and Ann Richards.

Give Five Tips For Cutting Of Fuel Costs

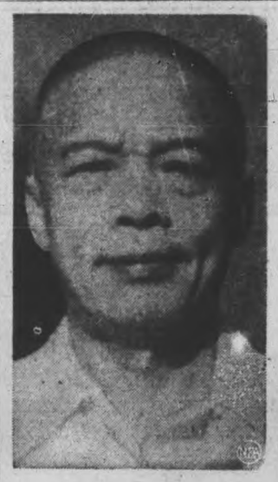
Savings in fuel cost and increased efficiency and heating comfort can be effected by home owners, this Winter, with a few simple heating tips, according to Dr. Raymond C. Johnson, director of Anthracite Institute Research Laboratories.

The five practical steps he advises are:

First, check that your heating plant is in good operationg condition. If not, call in your dealer or heating contractor. Minor repairs made now will save dollars in increased heating efficiency all Winter.

Second, drafts are about the most important part of your plant for day-to-day heating efficiency They control the speed of the heating plants, which must conform to outside weather conditions and the problems of heating the particular house. Too much draft means overheating—discomfort and waste of fuel. Too little, means chilly rooms — discomfort and inefficient utilization of fuel. An even, steady fire is the most economical. This is done best by automatic, thermostatic control — or by manual regulation which avoids sudden starts and stops of draft.

Third, in all weather, maintain a deep fuel bed for highest efficiency. Fresh coal should be piled to the level of the firing door. This makes for hot firebed when drafts are opened in bitter spells. In mild weather, leaving more ash on the grates prevents the rapid burning characteristic of a shallow firebed.



Fourth, shake grates gently and only until first red glow shows in the ashpit. In milder weather or in banking, shaking should be limited to making room for needed coal.

Fifth, put up storm doors and windows and check all other insulation—heating losses amounting to as much as a ton of anthracite can be saved this way.

Children Die In Fire

WATERLOO, Que., Dec. 9 — (CP)—Two young children were burned to death today when fire destroyed a country home four miles from this eastern township town. The children were Rosaire, 4, and Marie Rose, 5, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Lacroix. The parents were away from home at the time and police, to whom the accident was reported, said they were unable to determine now the fire started.

LEFT: Marked for expulsion by Reds is French Bishop Dominique Desperben, watching Hainanese women daw water from well behind his mission.

With Communist troops mopping up the mainland of China, only two strongholds remain in the hands of Nationalist troops headed once again by Chiang Kai-shek. They are the islands of Formosa and Hainan. Pictures from Hainan, above, were taken as last Nationalist armies in the south poured into adjacent Liuchon Peninsula, apparently concentrating there for evacuation to Hainan for a last-ditch stand.

Opening New Homes In Southend Causes Crowding At Grove School

With the completion of new houses in the southend of the city Peterborough's Public School problem is becoming more dificult to handle Superintendent Wightman reported to the Board of Education on Thursday night. At the beginning of November the 4-room Grove school had an attendance of 102 and by the end of the month it had increased to 125. This was largely due to the completion of some of the houses being erected by Central Mortgage. "Sixty-two houses have been completed, 26 more are expected to be finished by January 1 and in all 146 will probably be occupied sometime in March", Mr. Wightman reported

"The effect of the increased enrolment has been felt in the junior grade which grades 1 and 2. Any further increases will necessitate the setting up of a new class for which accommodation can be found in the basement. Of the new pupils about one-half are transfers from other city schools, the others are newcomers to the city" the board was told. During the month the attendance report showed that 22 pupils left the city while 24 were new arrivals in the city. The total anrolment was reported as 3,988 while a year ago it was 3,811. The average attendance was 94.22 percent with King Edward school heading the list with 96.21.

In the public school 22 teachers were absent during the month principally for illness for a total of 105 days while at the PCVS 13 teachers were absent for 21½ days.

"During the month two inspectors from the department of Education visited the PCVS. The administration and organization of the school was rated as excellent. The inspectors objected strongly, however, to the overcrowded condition in grade IX and felt that arrangements should be made to prevent such a condition during the coming year. The need for improvement in some parts of the building was discussed. These details will be brought before the board at a later time. The inspectors also stated that they had checked over examination results and found them above the average. They particularly noted the layout of the motor mechanics department as the best they had seen," Mr. Wightman reported.

Consul At Tientsin

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—The State Department received advices today indicating that Angus Ward and the American consulate group from Mukden may now be at the North China port of Tientsin. A message from the United States Consul General at Tientsin said the group's special train had passed Tangsan.

Work On Memorial Centre Urged At Kinsmen Dinner

Early action on construction of the Memorial Community Centre was urged by Dit Clapper last evening when he spoke to the Kinsmen Club on the occasion of their annual Sports Night at the Kawartha Club. Mr. Clapper said the Civic Arena was a real accomplishment but it was not enough insofar as supplying time for winter sports for the youth and the many athletic organizations of the city was concerned.

"Athletics are most important to the youngsters in a city this size," the speaker pointed out, "and clubs like the Kinsmen recognize this and do something about it. But we must have facilities to keep boys active in sports and off the streets and out of trouble. We should also have floodlights for baseball in Riverside Park, as it will prove a cheap investment in the long run."

Nearly $10,000

Mr Clapper reminded the 75 members and guests present that the city would have received $10,000 from the Toronto Maple Leafs toward lights in Riverside if minor pro ball had come here two years ago under the late Pete Campbell's plans. But the city was unable to obtain a franchise for pro ball at that time, so local baseball had to limp along without benefit of lights. The speaker touched briefly on several sports and extended congratulations to the PCVS Junior COSSA champions. He was introduced by Dr. Mark Crough and thanked by Emmett Sheehy.

Harley Weir, president of the club, introduced the guests, who represented most of the organized sports in Peterborough. Mayor Max Swanston spoke briefly, stating that the City Council was quite aware of the value of athletics and appreciated the good advertising brought to the city by winning teams.

Alex Londry, coach of PCVS Juniors, told the gathering that he felt more proud of the character of his champion football players than he did of their playing ability.

Christmas Party

Dealing shortly in business affairs of the club, Al Wilson was appointed Kinsmen representative here on the Kawartha Conservation Board. It was also decided to hold a Christmas Tree party for members' children on December 22, and a committee was appointed.

More Rural Service

OTTAWA, Dec. 9 (CP)—More rural mail service was advocated in the Commons Thursday by Percy Black (PC-Cumberland). Mr. Black urged that conditions for the setting up of rural mail delivery routes be modified so few persons in a given area would be needed to qualify for delivery. Postmaster General Rinfret promised consideration would be given.

DOXSEE—In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Helen Doxsee, who passed away Dec. 9th, 1947.
A wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better God never made,
A wonderful worker, loyal and true,
One in a million, that, mother was you.
Just in your judgment, always right
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends and all you knew
A wonderful mother, that, mother was you.
—Ever remembered by daughter Marlene.

DOXSEE—In loving memory of my dear daughter, Helen Ferguson, who passed away Dec. 9th, 1947.
You left me wonderful memories,
Often silent tears,
But you will always be with me
As I journey through the years.
You are always in my mind, dear Helen,
No matter what I do,
All the time within my heart
There is a thought of you.
Never for a moment
Are you very far away,
Absent, yet near you seem,
And dearer every day.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Mother.

DUNFORD—In loving memory of our dear grandma, Mrs. Joseph Dunsford, died Dec. 9, 1944.
Beautiful memories are all we have left,
Of one we loved and shall never forget,
A loving smile and happy face,
A broken link we can never replace.
Although the years be many or few
Will all be memories dear grandma of you.
—Never to be forgotten by grandchildren Art, Garnet, Roxie, Downer.

PARK—In memory of Mrs. Albert Park, who died December 3rd, 1944.
If you knew the grief that lies
Within my heart since the day you died,
But it was God's will you were called away
So I silently go and tend the grave
Of the dearest daughter God ever made,
But some day soon, we'll meet again
And your smile will guide my way.
—Lovingly remembered by Mum and family (Mrs. M. Sandback).

Burly Woodsman Held For Murder

LIVERPOOL, N.S., Dec. 9 (CP) —Fred James Cunningham, 45, burly, bearded woodsman from Milton near this Nova Scotia town, today faced a charge of murder in connection with the death Tuesday nght of Charles Martin, 71.

Cunningham told a coroner's jury Thursday night he had been "chasing after" 40-year-old Mrs. Martin "a little." He said Martin had accused him of "fooling around with Sweetlips."

The charge of murder was laid shortly after the jury declared the five-foot-tall, 100-pound Martin had died as a result of a blow behind the ear from a rock.

Mrs. Martin, a heavy-set woman with long, unruly hair, testified at the inquest that Cunningham had come to the Martin home shortly after upper Tuesday night.

Her husband had remarked, "I believe, Freddie, you've got some whisky in you."

She said Cunningham had asked Martin to visit a sick neighbor. About half an hour later, Cuninngham had returned to the house and told her, "Your man wants you to come as quick as you can."

Mrs. Martin said she went back of her house to the roadbed of an old railroad track, followed a path a few hundred feet until she came to where "Charlie was lying on the ground in a pool of blood."

Small Fire

burst through one section of the wall near the lower part of the roof.

As there was no sheeting on the inside of the building and no attic the flames spread rapidly but foremen found them comparatively easy to get at and extinguish. The blaze was out in about half an hour.

The wall that suffered the bulk of the $200 damage faces St. Peter's Cemetery.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Holstein Sales Reflect Continuance of Active Market
—New England Pasture Program of 1949 Reviewed —Busy Week of Farm Meetings Ahead—Ontario Federation Convention In January.

U. S. demand for Ontario dairy cattle continues active across the province. A large part of the business is for Holsteins. Peel county reports this week: "Cows are moving freely to the United States at very satisfactory prices".

Frontenac: "It is surprising the number of cattle being exported to the U.S. from this county."

Northumberland: "There is a considerable demand for dairy cows at prices ranging from $125 to $225 for useful grade Holsteins."

Middlesex: "Cattle prices are holding firm, with best finished beef cattle bringing strong prices, and dairy cattle meeting lively demand from local and U. S. buyers.

Sales of dairy cattle, mostly Holsteins, in the Peterborough district have amounted to something between 30 and 50 during the last three weeks.

Five recent Holstein sales disposed of 221 head at an average of $345, and total of $77,296. Some of the details were:

Glanworth Holstein sale — 53 head, $18,524; average $350; top female $585 for a five year cow. Mill Valley Farms, Romeo, Mich., took 15 head for $6,235; three at $500 each, and three others at more than $400.

Then there was the Oakville sale: 46 head, $17,430; average $378; top female $650; and a five year son of Marksman, "Bird Haven R. A. Pat" brought $700.

At the Campbell Bros. dispersal sale, the Holstein herd sire, Eaton Hall Victor Jewel, sold for $1,000 to the Hamilton district Cattle Breeders Association for artificial breeding.

PASTURE PRACTICE IN NEW ENGLAND

Pasture practice in the New England states is indicated in a review of the N. E. Green Pastures program of 1949 written by Ford Prince of the agronomy department of the University of New Hampshire. Some of his comments may be of interest to farmers of this district.

It began in 1947 with 87 farmers enrolled in New Hampshire, and has spread throughout New England with 1,800 men entering in 1948 and 2,700 in 1949. Many other states are taking up the idea.

The three top pasture programs in each of the six N.E. States were selected by Mr. Prince for comparative results and evidence of trends. Incidentally the summer of 1949 is remembered for its severe drought.

"Figures show that these farmers bought 815 tons of fertilizer during the year. This averages 600 pounds for each acre unit on the farms. This means that the new pattern for fertilizing forage crops is now at around 600 pounds an acre. Where it will go in the future can only be conjectured, and will undoubtedly depend on economic factors."

Mr. Prince discusses fertilizer ratios in some detail and arrives at the average of 5-10-10 or 8-16-15, and on that basis he calculates that the amount of plant food elements including manures, applied on those 18 farms was: nitrogen 134,000 pounds; phosphoric acid, 282,000 pounds; potash, 275,000 pounds.

"The fundamental reason for the dependence of these farmers on fertilizers high in phosphorus and potash is disclosed by their cropping systems. Ladino clover stood out as their major pasture clover, with alfalfa a prominent crop on 10 of the 18 farms. All these men were growing ladino. Three out of four acres on these top farms were in legumes or legume mixtures, and, of course, legumes are heavy users of potash and phosphorous (as well as lime).

"In the extremely dry conditions this was not a good ladino clover year. Alfalfa has shown up to much better advantage, as has brome grass over timothy. I have been accused of being partial to ladino, and I still believe it can be depended upon in our grassland dairy farming rotations in the average season, for 1949 was far from that.

"Apparently these 18 men feel the same way, since their acreage now growing ladino was just over one acre per animal unit.

"Sometimes one has to overemphasize a point to get it across. That may be what we have done with ladino. Its wide soil and climatic adaptations are sufficient to recommend it universally in this area. But, just because it is adapted so widely in no reason why farmers should not produce alfalfa on land that is suited to it."

In the three hottest months last summer there were less than five inches of effective rainfall. Some of the 18 farmers with available supplies of water had put in irrigation system utilizing sprinklers.

"One place where the methods of these 18 top men can be criticized is in the lack of providing emergency crops for the hotter and drier part of the year. Only seven had seeded any Sudan grass or millet for August feed, and they planted only 31 acres. Ten of these 31 acres were on a farm in the northern part of New Hampshire where rainfall was distributed well enough and the owner did not need emergency feed.

"At the moment there is more interest in growing wheat or rye for late fall or early spring pasture than in these midsummer insurance crops. Seven of the farmers had 82 acres of rye or wheat for spring feed, and several were planning for late fall feed from one of the small grain crops. Grazing of oats when used as a nurse crop is fairly common practice"

Mr. Prince said that in pasture management there was more clipping to keep pastures vegetative than in 1948. More fencing was done for smaller acres pastured at a time and less waste of feed. More emphasis is being placed on water and shade. Several of the top farmers have loafing pastures adjacent to their small rotated pastures, with water and shade in the loafing area so cows will come out of the lush ladino areas and drink and rest.

More men are spacing their fertilizer applications to better advantage, thereby producing their feed when it is most needed. All but three of the 18 topdressed some of their land after the first crop was cut or pastured. The amount of land so treated was 30 per cent of the total acreage on all the farms

+ + +

WHAT! NO RUTABAGAS!

Frank C. Paterson is not likely to make a campaign out of growing cabbages in Peterborough county, but he suggested the other day that the table turnip was worth considering because the local soil was "well suited to it."

The turnip crop in Ontario was about 25 to 30 per cent of normal this year. Aphids and the record drought took a heavy toll of cabbage crops. Most of the harvest is likely to vanish in the Yuletime dinners.

"We had no turnips for export this year," Mr. Paterson said. "I understand we have had to draw on New Brunswick recently, and some were even sold recently to OAC. My own opinion is that it would be better to grow turnips rather than potatoes in Peterborough. Let the Manvers and Cavan farmers grow potatoes."

Mr. Paterson said that if any local farmers were interested in this crop he had copies of a practical new bulletin on table turnips issued in September by the Ontario Agricultural College.

Incidentally, if you expect to have turnips to go along occasionally with roast beef for February dinners, it might be well to lay in a few while they are still in the store bins.

LUNCHEON TECHNIQUE

Peterborough farmers have learned the luncheon technique of the city service clubs. Their luncheon Tuesday, with city folks as their guests, began promptly on time and ended shortly after 1.30 p.m. In between it moved along with the friendly informality and easy going despatch of service club affairs. Comment of some of the Federation men was that they proved to themselves that is could be done, when they laid down a noon hour schedule. Concensus of the rural hosts complimented Will Dawson, president, on having done a good job.

Meetings of farmers are usually during the fall and winter months when the pressure of their own work schedules has lifted. An agenda is usually loosely listed, there is no urgency of speeding discussions, and an accommodating chairman often permits discursive topics.

But on the whole, the rural tendency has been in the direction of holding to the subject, winnowing out the chaff of irrelevant talk, getting things done in good order. Even Alex Huston and Reeve Mel Johnston will become speed chairman if this keeps on.

+ + +

MORE LOCAL MEETINGS

Here are some more meetings for next week, announced by secretaries with emphasis on attendance by members in strength to fill all the chairs in the office of the Department of Agriculture. . .

Monday Dec. 12 at 8 p.m.—annual of the Peterborough Plowmen's Association.

Wednesday Dec. 14—at 8 p.m.—Concentrated Milk Producers Association.

Thursday Dec. 15, at 8 p.m. — joint meeting of the hog and cream producers for the appointment of convention and Federation delegates and other buiness.

Friday Dec. 16 — at 10 a.m. — Peterborough Cheese Producers

The regulars will all be there, as usual, and they are inviting the pleasant surprise by the attendance of the other members who rarely meet their own executives at these annual sessions.

Last Province Deserts To Red Cause

40,000 Chiang Troops In Kunming Double Cross Govt.

HONG KONG, Dec. 10 (AP)—Nationalist China today lost its last remaining province in South China.

Yunnan, bordering Indo-China and Burma, was reported to have gone over completely to the Communists after 40,000 Nationalist troops in Kunming, the capital, deserted this morning.

That leaves the Nationalists with only a narrow fringe along the South China coast, plus a small area of Szechwan and Sikang provinces.

Their government already has fled Chengtu, capital of Szechwan, and set up headquarters at Taipeh, Formosa. It considered Sichang, capital of Sikang, so precarious that original plans to move the capital there were abandoned.

The newspaper Kung Sheung Man Po said the Communists had launched a drive into the Luichow Peninsula opposite Hainan Island. Nationalist Gen. Pai Chung-hsi has concentrated a considerable number of troops on the Peninsula for evacuation to Hainan.

News of Kunming's defection—a political doublecross for Chiang Kai-shek—came almost simultaneously from two sources, the United States Consul-General in Kunming, and a Pacific Overseas Air Service transport which was seized at Kunming airport, but Eleven other planes also were seized at Kunming airport, but some later were permitted to leave.

Gen. Lung Yun, a former Yunnan governor and once friend—but now bitter opponent—of Chiang Kai-shek was credited with the Yunnan coup. He is expected to reassume the governorship.

Can't Abolish Means Test Martin Says

Contributory Plan Must Be Introduced Before Other Dropped

OTTAWA, Dec. 10—(CP)—Health Minister Martin says the means test cannot be abolished without a contributory system of old-age pensions.

During a three-hour health debate in the Commons Friday he said it would cost $785,000,000 to put the pension at $50, lower the age and remove the means test.

That figure compared with present annual expenditures of $100,000,000 on old-age pensions.

"Our means test in this country is the most liberal test to be found in any part of the world," he said. "I am not saying our situation is perfect, but until uch time as we have a contributory system of old-age pensios I say it is irresponsible to talk about the elimination of the means test.

Mr. Martin said the principle of contribution in respect to old-age pensions is "receiving our fullest attention."

May Consider New Plan

There has been speculation that the Dominion-Provincial conference called by Prime Minister St. Laurent for next fall will consider once again the question of a national social security program.

On this count, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, expressed regret that the conference will not take place for almost a year.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) took issue with Mr. Martin's statements.

"It seems to me," he said, "that what we are getting now is the use of that phrase 'contributory plan' as an excuse for doing nothing."

Mr. Knowles and Howard Green (PC, Vancouver-Quadra) urged lifting of the ceiling on outside income a pensioner may earn before having his pension reduced.

Mr. Mergin said 75 per cent of the pensioners receive the full benefit of the $10-a-month increase in pensions provided for at the last session. Only 10 per cent received no benefit.

Pensions up to $40 a month now are paid to needy persons of 70 years and over.

During discussion of pensions, Mr. Martin indicated that family allowances are being paid to 4,000,000 children. Since family allowances began in 1945 $1,100,000,000 had been paid out.

Plan Financial Support

Health insurance was discussed at length and Mr. Martin outlined the position when he said:

"The federal government stands ready when satisfactory understandings are reached for co-operation with the provinces to give financial support to provin-

Panic At Dance

SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 10—(CP)—Panic broke out at a dance in the Navy League centre building here late Friday when a fire was discovered in the office. No one was reported injured, however. Some 125 persons, mostly young people, were in the hall when several girls passing the building noticed smoke. Screams of "fire" threw the crowd into a temporary panic. The blaze was extinguished quickly.

Keays Requests Garson Re-open OPP Dismissal

OTTAWA, Dec. 10—(CP)—J. E. Keays claimed Friday that a Royal commission which recommended his dismissal from the Ontario Provincial Police was unlawfully constituted and appealed to Justice Minister Garson to reopen his case.

Keays was dismissed from the OPP after the Royal commission reported there was no foundation for the allegations of fraud, perjury and maladministration of justice that he levelled at nine police and Crown officials.

The commission, headed by Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay of the Supreme Court of Ontario, sat for more than five weeks last winter at Belleville, where Keays was stationed in the police force when he made the allegations.

In a lengthy letter to Mr. Garson, the 44-year-old ex-constable said he had not yet been officially informed of his dismissal nor of the commission's report.

Commission Unlawful

He asked Mr. Garson to "move for certiorari" and declare the commission was "unlawfully constituted."

(Certiorari is a writ issued by a higher court ordering a lower court to produce certain documents.)

Members of Mr. Garson's staff said the minister had not yet received the letter.

The letter said the provincial police statutes lay down regulations by which the conduct of officers should be investigated.

It added: "As police reports are issued by a special statute, it is abundantly clear that this tribunal was unlawfully constituted, as substantiated by express statutory enactment under the Public Inquiries Act, and by the same token, as the lieutenant-governor-in-council has no authority to issue this Royal commission under the provisions of this statute, the Crown, I submit, is in contempt."

Coalition Conceded Win By Laborites With At Least 62 Seats

Trend Against Present Government Reported In Early Returns; Election Fought On Socialization

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP)—The Australian News and Information Bureau in London said today the Labor government has conceded defeat in the Australian election. The Bureau said Radio Australia, short-wave broadcasting service which is run by the Government information department, announced that the opposition Liberal and Country parties had won at least 62 seats and possibly 68 of the 123 at stake. "I think we have won it," said R. G. Menzies, leader of the Liberal party, which combined with the smaller Country party to fight Prime Minister Chifley's Labor regime. Eric Harrison, his deputy leader, said: "The Labor party has been defeated. The victory is a great personal tribute to the leadership of Mr. Menzies."

In the first hour of counting after the polls closed at 8 p.m. (5 a.m. EST) a trend against Labor appeared to be developing. It increased in strength and shortly before midnight Radio Australia said the Liberal-Country party group was leading in 66 of the 123 constituencies.

In the last election three years ago only 75 seats were at stake. Labor won 43 of them.

May Want Labor Back

Commenting on today's vote, the vice-president of the Australian Trades Labor Council, C. Anderson, said "the people will soon realize the tragic mistake they have made. They will be glad to return to Labor when the next appeal to the people is made."

He accused the Liberal party of "an unprecedented campaign of misrepresentation" in the election campaign and said "the Labor party has done well in the circumstance."

Menzies, 54, prime minister for 1939-41, was successful in his riding of Kooyong, Victoria. He made his campaign a straight attack on the government's "socialization" policies.

Chifley, 64, a veteran trade union leader, went to the country on his government's record.

Experienced observers said they thought the House of Representatives probably would wind up with 54 Labor members and at least 59 Coalition—42 Liberal and 17 Country party.

Canadian Fleet Of Cargo Ships To Be Smaller

OTTAWA, Dec. 10—(CP)—A sharply-reduced Canadian deep-sea shipping fleet is in prospect for 1950, and by the end of this year the Canadian flag may be hauled down from most vessels of the Merchant Marine.

New government marine policy, looking to a proposed allied "defence shipping pool" to meet security requirements, left the depressed high-seas industry with a government-subsidized lease on life for one year on a cut-down basis.

Informed officials said that if the government's announced policy of granting a subsidy for one year only is adhered to, only an amazing upset in international economics could bring about survival of a Canadian-flag fleet of any proportions in deep sea trade.

Losing Out

At a competitive disadvantage because of the relatively-high cost of operating Canadian vessels and because of the shortage of dollars for shipping, the Canadian owners have been losing out on cargo business steadily since last Spring.

The officials said they could see no prospect of the situation changing enough in the next year to let a Canadian fleet meet competition, as Mr. St. Laurent said it must at the end of the year's temporary subsidy.

This subsidy amounts to $3,000,000, and the Prime Minister said it would be used to help about 40 ships of a deadweight tonnage between 500,000 and 600,000 tons, in the hope that by the end of 1950 they could get their costs low enough to operate competitively.

Jeweler Killed 5 Others In Hospital

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 10 (CP)—Wesley Woods, 29, St. Thomas jeweller, was killed and five others are in hospital here following an accident early today on No. 3 Highway two miles east of here.

Woods was returning in a small British car with five others, from a party. The car was driven off a side road onto the main highway in front of large transport truck. The car was badly damaged, and the truck overturned with its contents spilling over the highway.

In hospital are: Albert Woods, 31, with concussion; Louis Gloin, 32, of St. Thomas, owner of car, fractured shoulder; Rose Marie Alvaro, left arm fractured and probable internal injuries; and Marguerite Alvaro, badly lacerated face.

Alleged Nazi Collaborators Cause Uproar In Commons

OTTAWA, Dec. 10—(CP)—Government action in allowing five alleged Nazi collaborators from France to remain in Canada after they had entered illegally was alternately condemned and defended in the Commons Friday. Alistair Stewart (CCF — Winnipeg North) charged that "these men had no right to come to this country, they entered illegally and have been kept here illegally." He was supported by A. L. Smith (PC—Calgary West) in a demand that the government make public reasons for allowing the men to remain in Canada after it was found they had entered the country after the war on false passports.

Resources Minister Gibson, responsible for immigration matters said he could not give the House confidential reports on the men. They had been screened and the government decided on the basis of information supplied that they should be allowed to remain.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, backing up his colleague, said he accepted responsibility with other members of the Cabinet for allowing the five Frenchmen to remain in Canada.

Follow British Practice

He added:

"I hope that all the decisions were made on exactly the same basis as British practice has made its decisions over the years, namely, that you do not send a man back to sure death at the end of a war because of political differences that may have existed in the country from which he came."

Mr. Stewart said he believed he had proof that the five men and another against whom deportation proceedings are pending were collaborators of the Nazis.

Guerrillas Need Money And Man

CHENGTU, China, Dec. 10 — (AP)—Chinese Nationalist leaders said today they are short in manpower, money and material for their announced guerrilla campaign against the Communists.

(A Communist dispatch received in Hong Kong said Red spearheads were only six miles from Chengtu.)

Gen. Ku Chu-qng, 57, chief-of-staff and newly - appointed Nationalist Southwest China commander, said that at the outset of 1947 government forces outnumbered the Reds 4 to 1.

But today, he said, the Nationalists are outnumbered 3 to 1.

Ku estimated the Red armies at 4,802,000 men. He gave the Nationalist total as less than 2,590,000."

Ku declared 90 per cent of Gen. Hu Tsung-nan's 350,000-man Nationalist army managed to withdraw from Shersi Kansu, Western Hupeh and Northern Szechwan provinces. He said Hu now commands the largest single intact Nationalist force on the mainland.

Chokes To Death On Food Bits

NORTH BAY, Dec. 10 (CP)—A North Bay boy choked to death when food particles lodged in his windpipe and bronchial tubes during an operation July 7, an inquest jury decided late Friday. The jury found that the death of Darryl Orfankos, 6, was accidental and attached no blame to anyone.

At the urging of Dr. Smirle Lawson, Ontario's chief coroner, who presided at the inquiry, the jury attached to its verdict a recommendation that "in future, anaesthetic should be administered by a qualified medical practitioner . . . and further, that the apparent practice of the administration of anaesthetic by unqualified persons be discontinued."

However, Dr. Lawson emphasized that the verdict was not intended as criticism of the medical student who acted as anaesthetist during the operation on the Orfankos boy. The student gave "a good anaesthetic," Dr. Lawson said.

Sudden Violent Storm Kills 600 In Korea

SEOUL, Korea, Dec. 10 (AP)—A violent, sudden storm ripped through the Korean coast cuttlefish fleet last Sunday, causing a heavy loss of lives and boats.

Estimates of fatalities ran as high as 600. The Marine Bureau of the Korean Commerce Department said, however, official reports were incompleted. The first word of the tragedy was reported only to-day.

Red Cross Finds Classes Jinxed

TORONTO, Dec. 10—Toronto Red Ccoss workers are crossing their fingers from now on whenever they attend disaster study institutes at Red Cross National Headquarters here.

In September, workers out on a "disaster rehearsal" suddenly found themselves confronted with the real thing when the cruise ship Noronic burned at her dock with a heavy loss of life.

Friday, attending another disaster study session, they hastily abandoned their notebooks to rush to the Don Valley and tend to the needs of victims of a crash between a CNR transcontinental train and a freight train.

The Red Cross team of nurses, first-aid workers and welfare workers were first on the scene, arriving with two ambulances and other equipment.

They checked the train for injured, administered first aid and saw that those suspected of serious injury got to hospital.

Then, when passengers who remained aboard the undamaged cars finally reached Union Station, the Red Cros was on hand again, this time with coffee, food and other help. Wires were also arranged to next of kin of passengers.

Free Taxicab Service UpsChurchAttendance

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 10 — (AP).— Attendance at the Stuart Street Christian Church services on Sunday nights has increased since inauguration of free taxicab service. The plan to give free cab service to persons desiring to attend the services was started two weeks ago. The attendance has increased by 50 each Sunday, said Rev. Donald Finley. Mr. Finley said the money spent on taxicab fares about equals the increase in offerings.

Fight $50,000 Blaze

TORONTO Dec. 10 (CP)—Fire Chief Peter Heed Friday night estimated damage at $50,000 in a fire that swept through a 300-foot wooden shed occupied by seven transport companies late Friday on Lisgar Street, in Toronto's west end.

More than 30 transport workers escaped the building as explosions from small fuel oil tanks fed the flames. Shipments of soap, hardware and canned goods were lost with a number of trucks. The fire is believed to have started from overheated oil stove pipes.

The flames spread to the roof of the York Knitting Mills Toronto hosiery plant, causing $5,000 damage there.

Have Tough Job With Jerusalem

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (CP). — The United Nations today faces the job of giving Jerusalem international government over the opposition of Israel and Hashemite Jordan who divide control of the Holy City under a military armistice.

The UN Assembly Friday night voted 38 to 14, with seven countries abstaining, to put Jerusalem and surrounding districts including Bethlehem under international government administered by the United Nations

Britain, the United States and Canada were among those opposing the plan sponsored by Australia, Russia, Lebanon, and El Salvador.

The opposition said the proposal is unworkable, likely to endanger the holy places, and probably costly—up to $40,000,000 annually

Pay Freight On Potatoes

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (CP)—The Ontario government will help pay freight costs on seed potatoes grown in northern Ontario for shipment to other sections of the province, Agriculture Minister Kennedy announced today.

The plan is intended to encourage production of seed potatoes in northern sections and to assist potato growers elsewhere to use only the best seed.

The department will pay 50 per cent of car lot rate on either foundation, foundation-A or other speficied grade of seed potatoes shipped from north of North Bay to any other Ontario point where seed potatoes are needed.

Purchasers of the northern seed potatoes will receive payment when they present a receipt for a paid freight bill and a copy of the invoice to indicate the trade of the potato seed.

Estonian Refugees Settling With Scots In Nova Scotia

MARSHDALE, N.S., Dec. 10—(CP)—In this northern Nova Scotia town where Scots came more than a century ago, the MacNeils, MacKenzies and MacDonalds have some new neighbors. They are the Ratniks, Soosars and Murus.

Eighty-five Estonians, the flotsam of war, are starting a new life in this little community 10 miles from the busy steel town of New Glasgow.

But it isn't as if they were starting from scratch. When the first group of 37 arrived more than a month ago at Hopewell, the whistle stop nearest here, the station platform was crowded.

The descendants of rugged Scots who pioneered this area were there to meet a new kind of pioneer—one who instead of attacking the forest and swamp must tackle a new language, new customs, a new way of life.

The natives drove the strangers to their new home on an abandoned farm and threw them a big feed. From all over Pictou county came gifts of clothing, home utensils and furnishings, food, building material and toys.

Harry Sutherland, publisher of the New Glasgow Evening News, and the Rev. Donald MacKay, minister of the Hopewell Presbyterian Church, took the lead in organized aid.

The refugees, who fled before the Russians from Estonia in 1940, created their own jobs—even before they arrived. Whiling away the long months in Displaced Persons' camps, they learned new skills. Now they are starting a handicrafts industry.

The community here was the idea of one man, David Wilson, who formerly worked with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Five Youths Guilty Of Obstructing Police

SARNIA, Dec. 10((CP)—All five persons arrested in connection with a brawl in downtown Sarnia Nov. 20 were found guilty Friday on charges of assaulting or obstructing police and were remanded to Monday for sentence.

A crowd of about 200 took part in the fight which started when police attempted to arrest Archie McDonald for affray with an unidentified youth. Inspector S. C. Pratt suffered a knife wound and several constables were hurt.

Archie McDonald was found guilty of assaulting Constable Douglas Janes. Harold MacDonald, 17, was found guilty of assaulting and obstructing Constable Thomas Laidler. Robert Nelson 18, was convicted of obstructing constable Ernest Duffield; Robert Smithers, 21, convicted of assaulting Inspector Pratt; and Lorne Brooks, arrested a week after the affray, was convicted of obstructing the Inspector.

Buy 80 Million Lbs. Cheese If Price Right Britain Says

OTTAWA, Dec. 10 (CP)—Great cheese-lovers, those miners and factory workers of England.

They and their countrymen are willing to buy 80,000,000 pounds of cheese next year, it is learned. But the price has to be "right."

This virtual mountain of cheese compares with the 50,000,000 pounds Canada shipped to the United Kingdom this year.

Short of dollars, the UK is understood to have told Canada that if the price per pound can be reduced from 30 cents to about 23 or 24 cents, the UK will be prepared to go the limit.

Cheese, it is learned, is receiving top priority in Anglo-Canadian food negotiations. The result of those negotiations likely will be made public by Agriculture Minister Gardiner next week.

So far only two products — cheese and bacon—appear to be entering into the negotiations. No mention is made of eggs, or salmon or even the fruit pulp that the UK bought from Canada last year.

The UK is believed to have told Canada that only about $40,000,000 will be available for bacon and cheese purchases next year.

She wants the price of cheese brought more in line with those of southern Dominions—Australia and New Zealand—where she can buy cheese for about 18 and 20 cents a pound.

It appeared likely, too, that the UK would be willing to purchase about 60,000,000 pounds of Canadian bacon in 1950 again on the basis that the price be reduced—from $36 a hundredweight to about $33 or $32.

However, Canadian government officials have given no encouragement to the requests for price reduction, it was learned.

Police Hold Boy 13 Wounding CNR Man

STOUFFVILLE, Dec. 10 (CP) —Police said today they are holding a 13-year-old boy who fired two shots at a Canadian National Railways locomotive Friday night and wounded the fireman.

Fireman Alvin Johnston of Lindsay was hit in the elbow as he was sitting in the cab of the engine which was standing in the Stouffville yards.

Police said the boy had apparently fired the shots from the window of his home 500 yards away.

Johnston was taken to hospital at Lindsay where the bullet was removed.

Dr. W. W. Baker Heads Board At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 10 — (ENS)—Dr. W. W. Baker was named chairman of the Board of Directors of the Community Centre at an organization meeting in the counucil chambers Friday night. Howard Wilson was elected vice-chairman; Franklin Linton, secretary; and Carl Maier, treasurer.

Fred Rutherford outlined the necessary steps that had to be taken to comply with the rules and regulations of the department. A plan of the rink, a statement of expenditures and a copy of the by-law had to be placed before the government authorities.

Howard Wilson and David Ness were appointed to prepare a plan of the rink. Carl Maier was delegated to obtain a copy of the by-law and Howard Wilson was named to petition the Public Utilities Commission for free light.

Carl Maier advocated a report from a qualified person regarding the structural condition of the rink. He said that he had heard rumors that the building was unsafe.

Fred Rutherford assured the Board that George Lashley, inspector of community centres, had gone over the Arena and was satisfied with its condition.

C. Rutherford Heads Colborne Legion

COBOURG, Dec. 10 (ENS) — Charles Rutherford, VC, of Colborne was elected president of Colborne Branch 187 of the Canadian Legion at the annual meeting last night. The officers were installed by Brighton Legion. The other officers are: Harold Kernaghan, first vice-president; I. Post, second vice-president; Dan Dudley, secretary and Bill Troop, treasurer.

Attacked By Rot

MONTREAL, Dec. 10 (CP). — City health authorities will investigate sanitary conditions in a building where a baby Thursday nght was attacked by a rat, it was learned Friday night. The rat attacked 11-months-old Rose Marie Colosino, while she lay sleeping in her family's home. The large, brown rat was found crawling over the child's bloody face. Rose Marie's older brother seized a poker and beat it to death.

Fall Coffee Prices Said Gone Forever

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP) —American housewives are likely to wait a long time for any general return of coffee prices to September levels.

The reason for this was outlined for Congress Friday by a United States diplomatic official: Brazilian reserves have virtually disappeared and unfavorable growing conditions have wrecked any changes for a bumper crop next year.

"I don't think Brazil ever again will be as big a coffee producer as she was," Robert BE. Elwood, second secretary of the U.S. embassy at Rio De Janerio, told a Senate agriculture sub-committee investigating high coffee prices.

Crown Attorney A. Burbidge conducted the Crown's case at the court hearing Dec. 6. Defence counsel was James Matone of Toronto.

Sweet was originally charged with manslaughter.

5. Dr. Michel Seignuer an inspector general in the Waffen SS, sentenced to death.

The sixth alleged collaborator was Count Jacques de Bernonville, charged with having identified allied officers dropped into France and with the deaths of many Frenchmen. He was tentenced to death.

To Reconsider Case

The government ordered De Bernonville's deportation, but he had the order quashed through Habeas Corpus proceedings. A new board of inquiry is being established and the case will be reconsidered as soon as counsel is ready to proceed.

Mr. Gibson said he would not admit that the Frenchmen were convicted of crimes. They were tried in absentia and had no chance to defend themselves.

"Although judgments may have been rendered against them, that does not prove that those men were guilty of crime or of the charges which had been laid against them."

In the debate on the collaborators, Mr. Stewart said that seven Jews who had entered Canada under false passports after the war had been deported.

He asked what "circumstances prompted the government to permit these men to stay here, knowing they had deported seven Jewish people for exactly the same reason."

Queries Distinction

"What was the distinction between the seven Jews and these collaborators?"

Mr. Stewart asked how the Frenchmen could be screened since they had entered the country under false names and false passports.

Mr. Gibson replied:

"The fact that a person had a false passport does not conclusively prove that he is not a desirable person to enter this country. For example, we have had people escape from other countries and come here and landed without any passport at all.

"They have had to be examined and screened to find out what their background was. If they were approved, they were allowed to stay. If they were not approved they were, of course, deported."

Mr. Gibson said the government went over its confidential files and decided that it would be justified in admitting certain ones and not admitting the others."

Says Air Power Canada's Big Contribution

LONDON, Dec. 10—(CP)— Defence Minister Brooke Claxton indicated today he believes Canada can make her most effective contribution to North Atlantic defence through air power.

He told a press conference that the best information available indicates that Canada's emphasis on an air force is greater than that of any other Allied vountry in relation to total expenditure on defence.

The Paris meeting of North Atlantic defence ministers had confirmed his impression that this emphasis is the best course for a country of Canada's geographical position.

Claxton said that France and the United Kingdom spend about 30 per cent of their defence funds on their respective air forces. The United States spent 34 per cent and Canada 42.6 per cent.

Stock Markets Move Briskly In Narrow Range

By The Canadian Press.

Security prices turned activeiy in a narrow price range this week.

Busines was the best in about two months, but markets failed to make much headway in their current bull market.

Generally, a firmer tone prevailed with prices finishing slightly ahead.

Observers say that price movements will probably be narrow for the remainder of the year as investors clear the decks for a fresh start in 1950.

Trading was brisk in New York during the five days. The market Monday climbed to the highest average price level in 13 months in its fifth successive session of advance.

Price movements continued in their narrow rut yesterday. The Associated Press 60-stock average closed the week at 69.4, a gain of 0 3 from the previous Friday.

Reflect Movements

Canadian markets reflected Wall Street movements. Base metal stocks were the outstanding features in Toronto. The Exchange's base meal index showed an increase of 3.57 over the week. Liquors were strong as the industrial board gained .38.

Many smaller gold prospects held the trading spotlight following news of development plans and drill results. Queenston Gold Mines and Roybar Uranium and Gold Mines were active.

However, senior and junior producers showed weakness as the gold index declined 1.52.

Canadian Drama Leaves Critics Divided

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (CP)— A study in insanity which is at times chilling, at times tense and at times a bit on the dull side is Alexander Knox's play, "The Closing Door."

The psychological melodrama by the Canadian-born playwright and actor, newly installed at the Empire Theatre, has its moments of horror and violence. It starts promisingly by delineating the quirks of an insane husband and works up towards an apparently-arresting climax. There is a case of mistaken identity when the insane man tries to kill a brother against whom he has long nursed a smouldering resentment. But the action tends to drag towards the end and the final curtain is a bit contrived.

Knox, who was born at Strathroy, Ont., and educated in London, Ont., himself plays the part of the insane Vail Trahern and his wife, Doris Nolan, is cast as his baffled but patient wife in the play.

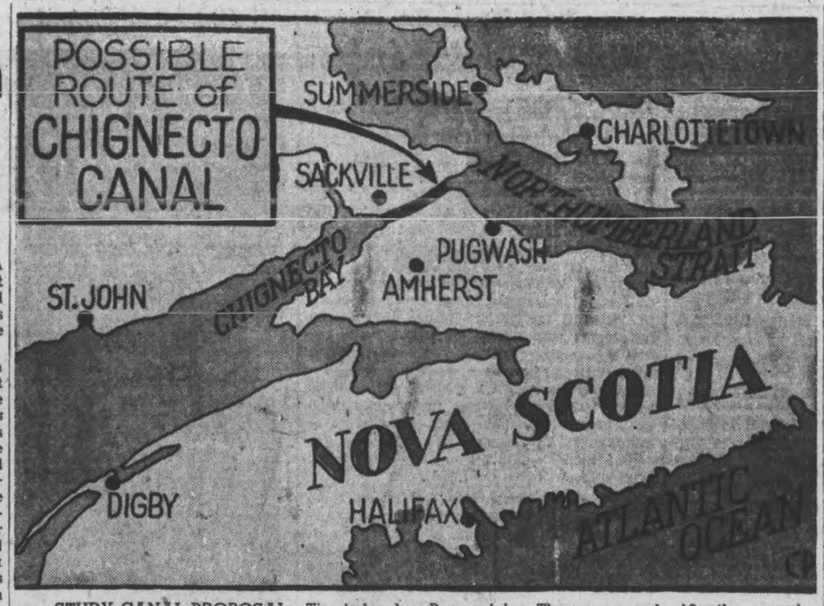
Critics Divided

The Ontario actor portrays his role, in the words of Ward Morehouse of the New York Sun, "with great deliberation and a certain fascination."

The New York critics were somewhat divided on the merits of his drama. Howard Barnes of the Herald Tribune rated it "a piece of arresting and sustained grand guignol." But Brooks and Atkinson of the New York Times said part of the play "sounds as if it had been jotted down on the back of cold envelopes."

Richard Watts of the New York Post dismissed it as "a confused and depressing affair" although he found it started out promisingly.

Frothily Funny



"Clutterbuck," a subtle comedy full of belly laughs, bowed in at the Biltmore Theatre this week after three years in London. The hilarious piece by Benn W. Levy, a Labor member of the British House of Commons, is just what Broadway needed — a frothy comedy that doesn't try to be funny by hitting you over the head with slapstick.

The play deals with two couples on a cruise who discuss their premarital loves — all involving a third couple aboard the ship, the Clutterbucks—quick demise—

"Metropole," William Walden's amusing play about a slick New York magazine — obviously the New Yorker, deserved a better fate than to close after two showings. But producer Max Gordon decided to yank it out after reading a set of rather indifferent reviews.

Germans Ready To Give Army

KOENIGSWINTER, Germany, Dec. 10 — (AP). — The press chief of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic Party Friday night quoted the Chancellor as having said German military forces should be included in any future European army.

The press chief, Dr. Wilhelm Wegener, said Adenauer made the statement at a closed meeting of party leaders.

Adenauer was quoted as saying the Western Allies should ponder which is more dangerous: German contingents in a European army or the Communist danger from the East.

Adenauer was said to have declared Monday that fundamentally he is against a rearmament of Germany in any form because of her need to use all her power for reconstruction, but that Germany would be willing to contribute to a European army if the Allies wished it.

Say Some Progress Being Made On Niagara Falls Power Talks

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(CP) —Canadian sources reported "good" progress Friday in exploratory talks with United States officials on the question of increasing diversion of water from Niagara Falls with a view to boosting power output there.

A Canadian delegation including Ontario and Federal government officers has been meeting a U.S. group in a series of closed meetings at the state department here. The talks which began Thursday, will end today.

A Canadian spokesman said the negotiations are preliminary and no statement can be made at this time.

The negotiators are exploring the possibility of drafting a new treaty to govern diversion of water from the Niagara River. Present withdrawals are regulated by a 1909 treaty.

One purpose of a new treaty would be to provide more efficient use of the waters for power development.

The Canadian delegation is headed by W. D. Matthews, Canadian minister in Washington, and includes Robert Saunders, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, and Ontario's Labor Minister, Charles Daley, chairman of the Niagara Parks Commission.

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 10 — (AP)—The proposed St. Lawrence Seaway project is another step towards national socialism, a New England industrialist said Friday night.

Frank P. Philbrick of Brattleboro, Vt., spoke before the main State Chamber of Commerce. He is chairman of the New England conference in opposition to the St. Lawrence project.

"When private industry is compelled to compete with a government-subsidized project, such as the proposed St. Lawrence seaway," said Philbrick, "we are advancing on the road to political or government control."

Instead of being of inestimable value to the northeast or the country as a whole, he said, the project would "prove to be a distinct detriment."

"Government control of our power companies,' he said, "will lead to the same control of our railroads, insurance companies, banks and eventually all types of industry and all of our people."

Ignorance Of The Law

One of the commonest legal maxims is Ignorantia legis excusat neminem, which is roughly translated "Ignorance of the law is no excuse". We think that this rule ought to apply to those who make the laws as well as those who run foul of the law. Yet when the Minister of Finance, Mr. Douglas Abbott, was asked to explain the workings of a bill dealing with depreciation allowances under the Income Tax Act this week, in the House of Commons, he said that he could not do so. He suggested, however, "that people don't get too alarmed until they find out what it means to them".

* * *

This is no language for a Minister of the Crown. How can Parliament be asked to pass a Bill which the responsible Minister cannot explain? Probably the Bill was drawn up by one of Mr. Abbott's able assistants—those clever gentlemen who have already made the Income Tax an obstacle race for anyone whose business is even slightly complex. If Mr. Abbott cannot explain it to the Commons, who is going to explain it to small businessmen and farmers, who will be affected by it?

* * *

Their ignorance of the law will not save them. According to the Income Tax Act the Treasury Board can demand further payment from anyone who seems to be avoiding or reducing his tax beyond proper limits. But if there are quirks in the tax system which are so complex that the Minister does not understand, or will not explain them, even the most honest man may find himself in trouble.

* * *

It is wrong that taxes which apply generally should be so complex that a taxpayer of common intelligence cannot understand them. Our Income Tax system is cruelly complicated, and taxpayers who do not want or cannot afford expert advice in making up their returns are quite likely to find themselves in unforseen and expensive trouble. Such complication adds a new and painful twist to the milking which taxpayers now have to endure. If a tax regulation is too complicated for Mr. Abbott it is too complicated to go on the statute books.

Death In Ontario

Although a hundred per cent. of the people of Ontario continue to die, more are born, fewer die at birth and more die ripe in years. These encouraging facts are brought out in the Registrar-General's report for 1947, recently published.

In 1922, a quarter century ago, 71,430 babies were born in Ontario, a rate of 24 for each thousand people. In 1947 the rate had increased to 26 and 108,853 children were born. The lowest birth rate since 1922 was in 1937 when only 16.9 children were born for each thousand people in the province. In 1922 as many as 3,115 children were born dead—a rate of 43.6 for each thousand live births; in 1947 there were only 2,176 still births; a surprising decrease in the rate, to 20 for each thousand live births. Of every thousand people in the province in 1922, 11.4 died. Twenty-five years later only 9.9 out of every thousand died

Indicative of better pre-natal care and improved, extended medical care is the great decrease in the number of still-births, and in infant mortality. In the five years 1926-30 an average of 74 children out of every thousand born died before they reached their first birthday. This rate has steadily declined, until in 1947 it was less than half—36. The provincial decrease in infant mortality is reflected in Peterborough. During the period 1926-30, an average of 67 children died under one year of age out of every thousand born. By 1947 this rate had decreased to 34, which was rather an exceptional year for Peterborough, since the rate in 1946 had been 24. Incidentally 1,064 children were born in Peterborough in 1947, and only 28 of them were illegitimate.

Corresponding with the decrease in infant mortality is a drop in maternal mortality. In 1947 only 1.2 mothers died out of every thousand giving birth. The rate in 1937 in Ontario was 5.2. The reduction is more apparent in younger than in older mothers.

The ten chief causes of death in Ontario in 1947 and the rates for every hundred thousand of the population were: diseases of the heart 328.0; all forms of cancer, 136.8; intracranial lesions of vascular origin (strokes) 106.3; accidental or violent deaths 75.6; pneumonia, bronchitis and influenza, 49.2; diseases peculiar to the first year of life, 48.6; nephritis (kidney disease) 39.1; tuberculosis (all forms) 24.8; diabetes mellitus 23.3; diseases of the arteries 23.3. This listing shows a remarkable increase in the last twenty years in the number of deaths from heart conditions, cancer and strokes of various kinds, and a decrease in deaths due to pneumonia and influenza, tuberculosis and diseases of the arteries. (The variation in the listings during the last twenty years is due in part to reclassification and more accurate statements of the causes of death.)

Violent or accidental death rates highest in every age group from 1 to 39. From 5 to 29 years tuberculosis is the second chief cause of death and fourth in the 30 to 39 year group. Pneumonia bronchitis and influenza are important killers in the younger age groups. Cancer is not a main cause of death until the late '30's. In general, diseases of the heart and arteries, cancer and intracranial lesions of vascular origin are the primary causes of death of persons over fifty years of age.

Thus runs Ontario's official tally of its death-dealers.

No More Political Bosses?

"Tammany Hall" stood for an entire era of U.S. civic management by political machines controlled by "bosses". The era seems to have ended. Tammany Hall and its Jimmie Walkers, which for most of this half-century controlled New York city, lost power before the recent war. Its complete disintegration as a New York force was signalled by the election to Congress this autumn of young Franklin Roosevelt. He won his seat against the massed opposition of the old machine. Other machines have similarly run down.

Pendergast of Kansas City once ruled much of Missouri with baronial ruthlessness. He lost his grip on Kansas when he was brought to heel for defying Federal laws, and sent to prison. The Kelley-Nash notorious combine in Chicago, which flourished in the days of prohibition and gangsters, was completely smashed when both Republicans and Democrats joined forces to clean house, and despite the opposition of the Chicago Tribune to him, Adlai Stevenson this year became Governor of Illinois.

Hague of New Jersey, who once rebutted accusations that his regime was breaking the law by saying "I am the law", lost his power earlier this year. His son, whom he had appointed mayor without anybody's by-your-leave, was defeated for re-election by a reform candidate opposed to Hague.

The last and perhaps most interesting of the bosses was James M. Curley. He can safely be referred to in the past tense, for after a long rule by corruption, threats and maladministration, he has been ousted. We print on this week-end's feature page an analysis of Curley's career by a penetrating English observer Francis Williams. His thesis is that Curley and all his kind are done for, because the U.S.A. has matured politically and its citizens are alive to the danger of indifference to local administration. No longer will oratory and graft be acceptable substitutes for good government.

Bradford's Faithful Voters

There has been much wishful-thinking by Mr. Churchill, Colonel Blimps, Wall Streeters and other North Americans devoted to free enterprise, who have been predicting a Labour defeat in the 1950 General Elections. That is indicated by the Attlee Government's retaining its Bradford, Yorkshire seat. It was the thirty-fifth consecutive success in by-elections. In the entire period since it took office in 1945, Labour has not lost a single seat. Has there ever been a more consistent political demonstration of voters' continuing confidence?

Politicians well know that by-elections are not sure indications of the temper of the people at General Elections. The Attlee Government has no reason to be complacent about its by-election victories. Most of them have been fought in relatively safe Labour seats, and lately the Labour candidates' majorities have been decreased, as at Bradford. Nevertheless, Labour won the Bradford seat by a clear majority over both other candidates. Most of the people of Britain are either urban or agricultural workers. Labour welfare legislation has particularly benefited both. They will not easily be dissuaded from abandoning their benefactor.

It will be interesting to see what the Liberals will do at General Elections. In the Bradford by-election, the Liberal vote was split between a Conservative-National Liberal candidate, and an Independent Liberal. Across the country the Liberals have been rallying their forces in preparation for next year. There is little likelihood that they will throw in their lot then with the Conservatives. Their appeal is still strong. They could attract many votes now reluctantly given to Labour

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To Amyas Pilgarlic, Esq.
Dear Pil:

I suppose that even you, buried in your academic boneyard, heard something of the uproar caused by the visit of the Sadler's Wells Ballet to Canada. There was its Snob Appeal, for one thing, and people who used to declare that nobody who was not a Russian or at least a Bulgarian could even lift her feet off the ground (much less dance) have come round to thinking that this is the best ballet company in the world. The there were people who wante tickets because they were hard to get, and for no other reason. Then there were the people who genuinely like ballet—an increasingly numerous class in Canada. Every performance of the Sadler's Wells Company could have been sold out twice over.

By a stroke of entirely undeserved good luck I obtained admission to two of their performances, and found them all that their most enthusiastic trumpeters had avouched. As for Miss Margot Fonteyn I have no words to describe her beauty, grace and accomplishment. Beauty is not a thing of flesh and bone, happening by chance: it is, in addition, a creation—an illusion. Those puritan divines who used to hold forth on the worthlessness of beauty did not know what they were talking about; a really beautiful woman is one of God's masterworks—and a bit of a masterwork of her own, as well.

One question about ballet I address to you as a scholar, and a professional unveiler of mysteries. Why do male dancers shave their armpits, but leave their chests hairy? Is the wool of the oxter in some arcane sense less aesthetically pleasing than the wool of the bosom? Perpend, Pilgarlic, and reply.

Yours impatiently,
SAM.

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

Can you tell me whether the British Law Society has yet settled the question of Princess Margaret's claim to the throne? I saw in the papers some days ago a statement of opinion from that body that she had just as good a right to be Queen as Princess Elizabeth.

Now Mr. Marchbanks, I am no revolutionary, but I am a Younger Child. I am, in fact the second daughter of my parents (though an orphan since my 45th year). I know what it is to play Second Fiddle to an older sister. Therefore my sympathies are powerfully with Princess Margaret.

Can we not, you and I, form a Princess Margaret Succession Society, composed of Younger Children, and devoted to the cause of putting Princess Margaret upon the throne, just to show that Younger Children have Rights?

Yours enthusiastically,
MINERVA HAWSER.

To Miss Minerva Hawser
Dear Miss Hawser:

A splendid idea! Let us set to work at once. You shall be President of the Society and I shall be the Power Behind The Throne—your sleeping partner (in a limited sense, of course, my dear madam). I suggest that you write to the Princess at once, and tell her what you mean to do.

When you write that letter, perhaps you will ask the Princess a question to which I have long desired an answer. What does the Royal Family do with all the junk which it is given? Every time a royal personage goes anywhere he or she is sure to be loaded down with an illuminated address, a stuffed moose, a silver casket made in the shape of a town hall and a quantity of other similar ill-assorted merchandise. None of this stuff is saleable; none of it can be given away to lesser royalties at Christmas; what happens to it?

I have been told that there are great catacombs under every royal residence, crammed with these embarrassing objects. I have been told, also, that a Navy battleship takes each year's accumulation into the North Sea, each December 31st, and dumps it. But I want first-hand information. So ask the Princess, will you?

Yours,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS.

To Raymond Cataplasm, F.R.C.P.
Dear Dr. Cataplasm:

At lunch yesterday I was talking to a man who proposed that we play a novel game which would, I am sure, interest you as a medical man. It is quite simple: all it demands is that it be played during a meal. Each player is permitted to suggest a dish to the other players: the one who most thoroughly disgusts the others is deemed to have won the game. The man who was teaching me this game suggested, for instance, sardines with chocolate sauce, sprinkled with hundreds and thousands. I suggested that this dish be followed with a jelly of cold mutton gravy, mixed with Coca Cola. He agreed to this, and added that we might finish our meal with cups of coffee and tea mixed. But as I was once actually served this beverage in a hospital, through some error in the kitchen, I was not disgusted.

I think this game could be popularized, and it might take the place of Canasta. I suggest that it be named Nausea.

Your perennial patient,
S. MARCHBANKS.

To Ghenghis Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Cousin Ghenghis:

Your suggestion of a Big Family Christmas is undoubtedly an interesting one, and even attractive, in a superficial way. But I think your notion that we all take our presents to one place, and have a Family Tree, demands reconsideration. The exchange of presents among members of families is a beautiful thing; that is to say, the thought which inspires it is beautiful. But I do not think that such beautiful customs should be overstrained — by which I mean that we should not open the lovely presents we give each other in public. Sometimes when I open a gift from a relative I am so overcome that I need to be quite alone for half an hour. To open some gifts, with the donor breathing down the back of one's neck is a great strain, and the statistics of insurance companies show that it is a great shortener of life. Consider, for instance the case of the tie which you gave to Uncle Hamish in 1946: when I received it, as good as new, in 1948, I knew that it had been a Christmas gift to Fairchild in 1947, and that he had handed it on as a birthday remembrance to Uncle Fortunatus in the same year. The receipt of this tie, hallowed as it was by family association, was not a thing which I could have endured in public. My vision dimmed, and I passed fully five minutes in silent prayer. And when you get it back from me on Dec. 25th, I do not want you to be embarrassed by my presence. Your gratitude might be more than I could bear.

So I beg you to think again, my dear cousin.

Your kinsman,
S. MARCHBANKS.

To Miss Nancy Frisgig
Charming Nancy:

It is kind of you to suggest that I join you in Florida for Christmas—kind, but imperceptive. I am a creature of the northern wastes, and while I cannot claim to enjoy winter, I cannot say that I am happy without it. So pray excuse me, and on the Great Day go into some sunny plantation and pluck a lemon in remembrance of —

Your admiring,
SAM.

Letter To The Editor

TIME TO CONSIDER ANNIVERSARY

Sir: Now that the 1950 Council has been elected, it would seem an appropriate moment to raise the question of how Peterborough plans to celebrate the 100th anniversary of its incorpation as a town in January, 1850.

An historical study group within the University Women's Club has been formed recently and is now engaged in some research on the early days in the Peterborough district covering the period from the first settlement to 1850. We feel sure that there is a good deal of interest in this important anniversary, as well as in the history of the community in general, which has been greatly stimulated by Alpha's column. It would seem an ideal time to acquaint newcomers to Peterborough with a more complete picture of those early days and the town's distinctive character.

We find a close parallel in the civic problems confronting the 1950 council with those described by Dr. Poole when the first council took office in 1850. "....the new council appear to have lost no time in inaugurating steps for the improvement of the town. In the spring of that year, a premium of one hundred dollars was offered for 'the best approved plans, specifications and estimates for a new town hall and market house; and also for plans, etc., of an uniform series of buildings to occupy three sides of the market square.' Those offered by Mr. Thomas, architect, of Toronto, were accepted, though not without a protest as to alleged unfairness on the part of the council, by Mr. Kivas Tully. In accordance with these, the corner stone of the present town hall and market house, was laid in September, 1851, with imposing ceremony, music and much rejoicing ....The importance of the occasion was such, that it was arranged that an ox should be roasted whole, wherewith to entertain "all and singular" who might choose to accept the hospitality of the town. This part of the programme was literally carried out, but, unfortunately, while revolving upon the spit, the body of the ox was carried away, either piecemeal or entire, by persons whose guilt was never verified."

May we hope that the City Fathers of 1950 will lose no time in inaugurating a similar celebration of Peterborough's 100th birthday.

Yours truly,
LOCAL HISTORY GROUP OF UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

When the poor and needy seek water, and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst, I the Lord will hear them, I the God of Israel will not forsake them. I will open rivers in high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys: I will make the wilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water. I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the shittah tree, and the myrtle, and the oil tree; I will set in the desert the fir tree, and the pine, and the box tree together; that they may see, and know, and consider, and understand together, that the hand of the Lord hath done this, and the Holy One of Israel hath created it. (Isa. 41: 17-20.)

Then Jesus called his disciples unto him, and said, I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days, and have nothing to eat: I will not send them away fasting, lest they faint in the way. And his disciples say unto him, Whence should we have so much bread in the wilderness, as to fill so great a multitude?

And Jesus saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven, and a few little fishes. And he commanded the mulitude to sit down on the ground. And he took the seven loaves and the fishes, and gave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets full. (Matt. 15: 32-37.)

Little Journey Of 1898

On a crisp November morning in 1898, J. W. Packard drove out of Cleveland in one of those "new-fangled, horseless buggies", bound for his home in Warren, Ohio, 53 miles away.

In the first 20 miles he was "out and under" at least a half dozen times. In the next mile a tire blew out. He repaired the damage only to have the thing blow out in his face again in a splurge of "puncture-proof" glue and feathers.

During the rest of the day the drive chain broke, the radiator sprang a leak, and on several hills Mr. Packard leaped out to brace the wheels with bricks when the engine stalled and the brakes failed.

At one time the steering wheel spun around, knocking Mr. Packard into the dust. Late that night he arrived in Warren behind a tugging team of plow horses.

Mr. Packard wrote immediately to the manufacturer of the contraption suggesting improvements. The reply was sharp: "If you're so smart why don't you build one yourself?"

Mr. Packard did.

A BRITISH OPINION

"Christmas is not like it was when I was young—we had real tin hats, parties down the shelter, lovely boxes of anti-gas ointment to put on the soles of Auntie Aggie's shoes . . ."

London Express Service

Last September I sat on a rock at Sioux Narrows in the Lake of the Woods country with director George MacLean and Clint Melville of the Department of Travel and Publicity. We were in the heart of the high-powered tourist industry district. From where we sat, lodges of all descriptions nestled in deep bays and along wooded shorelines. My companions knew each and every one of them intimately. It was their business. George said, in a general way, "It will be the happy day when all this is put under rigid inspection. We have been working on such legislation for years. There are excellent, good, fair and downright poor establishments." We read with interest that George's dream has taken a practical turn. The Ontario Government has recently decided that all places offering five or more rooms as accommodation for tourists shall be inspected and licensed. This is good news. And it is hoped that it will be the forerunner of inspection which will eventually reach the one and two-room overnight type of tourist lodging where citizens have jumped on the tourist bandwagon to rape, not reap, the travelling public with high rates, poor beds and dirty linen. It seems likely that this is the Government's ultimate goal, for, in starting with establishments of five rooms or more, such operators are in the large group of good resorts that are run properly. It is the overnight class that give any district a bad reputation and generally damage the entire industry.

The Department of Lands and Forest's publication "Sylva" has won an Award of Merit in a competition sponsored by the Provincial Paper Company. Twenty-five leading direct mail publications were examined in Canada. "Sylva" was judged outstanding in typography, layout, quality of printing and attractiveness of material content. I heartily approve of the sponsor's choice and examine my growing stack of back numbers for informative reading. It's a source of delight to outdoor-minded people and inspiration to writers on such subjects.

Bright Gleams For Public Trees

It is the custom in many large cities, chiefly in the United States, to erect mammoth evergreen trees in public places and deck them with colored lights for all to admire. It is a nice gesture, one that Peterborough fathers might revive in the city. Confederation Park would make a splendid setting for this sort of thing. The suggestion is perhaps too late for this year for it would take considerable work and some expense to do the job well.

Recent publication of architects' drawings of the new City Hall building give us an inkling of the shape of things to come. It could add a great dash of dignity to our claim of being the Gateway to the Kawarthas if some arrangement could be made, during summer months, to house the Chamber of Commerce tourist bureau. In the first place the plans show ample parking space. If tourists could enter the main doorway, across the terazzo floor showing a map of the district, and reach an office handily, they would be impressed. Would the edifice lose any dignity by becoming well-known to tourists from across the Line? We think it would be a subtle bit of city selling.

Belugas And Northern Greasy Joe's

Belugas bring back memories to me nine years old. Belugas are white whales that roam the Hudson Bay in countless thousands. I used to watch them through clouds of blackflies on a still August evening when schools of them fed on the incoming tide at the mouth of the Churchill River. I can still hear the "thuck, thwuck" of these mystery mammals as they surfaced every few minutes to "blow." I can see the greasy column of smoke from an Eskimo camp across on the north shore where the natives reduced blubber over open fires for themselves and their dogs. I can still smell that smell, too, when the wind was in the wrong direction. And now the Federal Department of Fisheries want to probe the mystery of their wanderings and hope to find a method of tagging them. They are still hoping for a practical solution. There is a processing plant in Churchill that reduces Belugas to commercial fats, oils and fishmeal for fur ranchers. We men of the thinning hairline department, may have been using Beluga Balm on our pates for some time past, and didn't suspect it. Let Beluga Balm for Bald Pates bring back manly beauty, say we all.

And So Christmas Trees Appear

Do you wonder where such quantities of Christmas trees come from as each Yuletide rolls around? Individual land owners and farmers supply the market to recognized dealers, for the most part. Trees are being taken from the County forests in Durham, Northumberland and Victoria as part of the thinning process of young plantations. Unfortunately there are Christmas tree vandals among us who go out for a Sunday drive and hack down anything they might fancy, even taking a mature tree for the sake of a well-shaped top. Surely, they could find the right thing with a little earnest searching. Christmas is no time for abandon where forest conservation is concerned.

James Curley Bossed Boston 40 Years Despite Graft, Jail Terms; Here's Why

By FRANCIS WILLIAMS

(Ed. Note: James M. Curley, political boss of Boston, who was in and out of prison for more than forty years, was defeated as Mayor of Boston in last month's civic elections in that city, to his own surprise, and the gratification of most of the citizens of Boston. He was the last of the political bosses. This sketch by one of the best English correspondents now in the U.S.A., reveals how and why he held his power so long.)

As the "last of the barons" retires to the political shades, it is interesting and I think not without importance to an understanding America both of yesterday and of today, to take a look at his career and his methods. They are not likely to be repeated in the American scene.

Curley was born of poor Irish immigrant parents: to be Irish is indeed still a practical necessity for success in the political life of Boston where ,to the surprise of those who think of it as being populated almost entirely by descendents of the Pilgrim Fathers, seventy five per cent of the population is Irish. He was born, moreover at a time—which lasted into the days of his maturity—when Irish immigrants were regarded as a lower race by the Proper Bostonians, and when it was usual to see notices of vacancies in factories preceded by the curt warning "no Irish need apply".

He got into politics as a boy just in his teens, when he supplemented his meagre earnings from selling papers by running errands for ward politicians. He taught himself to read, he became an orator whose silver tongue could sway thousands and, even more to the point, he learned all the ins and outs of machine politics in a place and an era where the art consisted of binding an illiterate electorate to you by seeing that these who voted right got the rewards they expected.

In 1904 Curley went to prison for a short time for practising his art to a somewhat extreme degree by impersonating at a civil service examination a faithful ward organiser who had been promised the job of mail carrier but unfortunately could not read. That prison sentence did him no harm politically. It demonstrated to his clients that he was a man of his word. Nor did later bouts with the law affect him. Indeed, when a mere matter of two years ago, in 1947, he was sent to prison for using the mails to defraud, not only did a grateful local administration make sure that he suffered no financial loss by voting payment of his salary as mayor while he was in prison, but when he came out he was greeted at the City Hall by a concourse of appreciative citizens headed by a band. Such was his power over the political life of Boston.

Like that of all the political bosses, Curley's success depended upon two things—the existence of a largely illiterate immigrant population which could be persuaded or bullied into voting exactly as the ward bosses told it to do on instructions from headquarters, and the refusal of most of the educated people in the community to sully themselves with that kind of politics. It is because both these conditions are passing that the day of the political boss is now at last ending.

Success also depended on ability to produce the results promised. Curley, like all the other great political bosses, was a reformer of a kind—at a time when most of those who should have been ready to offer both reform and good government preferred not to interest themselves in local affairs. Like most of his fellows in the political machines he followed throughout his political career the philosophy of Robin Hood. He believed in robbing the rich to give to the poor and it seems probable that on the whole he personally made less money out of it than most.

Here is an example of how when the City Treasury was low in funds, and the banks had refused a loan, he got the money for building a children's recreation ground he had set his mind upon. He rang up the president of a local bank from the mayor's office. Very politely he reminded him that there was a water main with floodgates under the bank building. "Unless the money I need is at the City Hall by three o'clock," he said, "those floodgates will be opened by the city engineers and your vaults will be flooded." He got the money.

Another time, when a bank loan had been refused, he was more subtle but no less effective. Then he simply informed the bank that unless he got the money as a loan secured on uncollected taxes, six hundred city employees would be lined up outside the bank at nine o'clock next morning with cheques for salary payments and every city contractor with an account at the bank would be instructed to see that their employees were similarly lined up "That will make a line well over a mile long," he remarked pleasantly, "and if that doesn't start a run on your bank I dont know Boston." Again he got his loan.

It may seem strange that by such methods and others even less orthodox, a man could, for more than forty years, dominate the political life of a great American

Here's A Man Not Toying With Trains He Runs Vast (Model) Network As Hobby

By DON GRANT

Who says that electric trains are only for the sport of youngsters? Well, perhaps many fathers will admit that they get a kick out of Junior's Christmas toot-toot. Peterborough has one man of middle years who would scoff at the idea of miniature trains being an especial preserve of youngsters He has not only a room-full of electric trains and tracks, but such an intricate arrangement of them that it takes an expert to operate them adequately. This man is George Benton, 534 Harvey St., a real expert on small tracks and trains.

Down in his basement there is a small room completely given over to trains, tracks, water-towers, telephone poles, switches; in fact, it is like Peterborough's C.P.R. station, the C.N.R. station the tracks to Toronto and the yards of the Union Station all rolled into one big miniature. It is a railwayman's panorama of hill and vale, tunnels and bridges, level crossings and busy commerce. No kid stuff, this!

Mr. Benton began his hobby two years ago when an American friend told him about the elaborate model train arangements in the United States, where enthusiasts have expanded their hobby so much that they need whole houses to accomodate the miles of track.

This fired George Benton's imagination and whetted his engineering appetite. He bought an electric train in January 1948 which had a Lionel engine, three cars, a caboose and 110 feet of track. The raised platform for the landscape and the railway had to be built before any of the track could be laid. This followed the shape of the small room.

Here the first problem had to be met, how to lay the track in order to leave room for other lines yet to come. Finally the first track system was nailed firmly to the wooden platform. All the electric wires from the control boxes to the track had to be woven carefully under the platform to prevent any short circuits

With suggestion and designs from model electric railway books at the Public Library the miniature countryside and town grew out of plaster paris, tin, and wood

Water towers and other buildings typical of the average railroad station were either bought or made by George Benton and Russell Stark out of copper. Mr Stark had caught the fever of the hobby along with Mrs. Benton who helped with the tunnel which lies in the corner of the room. The tuunel forms a hill on the landscape with trees and shrubs as country road with toy cars on it.

Once the landscape was beginning to look like a Canadian country scene another train was added to the collection, this also a Lionel electric train. This gave George an electric passenger train and a freight train. Sidings were added to the first track directly beside the minature station and the control box.

But as in every other hobby, something new and different appeared which George wished to add to his crowded room an electric train made entirely by himself. These models are obtainable in the ways that model aeroplanes can be bought, and are also made out of balsa wood.

Considerable skill is required to make one of the coaches or engines of the gauge model. They come in a kit with glue, parts, paint and a small engine. The model is then built according to the specificiations of the plans. To his great satisfaction, Mr. Benton has now a small train completed and a track on an upper level on which it runs. It is also operated from the control box. The scale of this homemade model is one-eighth inch per foot.

Now simply by sitting on a stool by the control box George can be an engineer on three trains. A flick of a switch may send the slick passenger train or the two trains clicking along the hundreds of feet of track. With the same switch he can stop, start, make the train go backwards or forwards. The cars can be uncoupled from the engine simply by pressing another button, Whistles blow, lights go on and the switches on the tracks all work from buttons on the control box.

This hobby is an all-weather sport for trainman Benton. In the winter the room is kept warm by the furnance; in the summer the basement is quite cool allowing George to make changes and additions in comfort.

Mr. Benton wishes that several other eletric train enthusiasts would help form a model train club in Peterborough on the pattern of American clubs. Difficulties could be tracked down easily and ideas pooled.

A word of advice might be passed on to children who are expecting Santa Claus to bring them an electric train for Christmas. Watch out that father doesn't take up the electric train hobby!

Oh Dear I Missed My Stop! Bus Driver—Buzz, Buzz, Buzz

By ROBERT HATTON

What could be simpler than pulling the cord on a bus to tell the driver you want off at the next corner?

Easy enough—you merely reach up, grasp the cord with one or fingers and pull downwards. That is the theory. In practice people find it a good deal more complicated than that.

One of the problems people find most difficult to solve is when to pull the cord. Middle-aged ladies, their faces straining with anxiety reach up from a half-sitting crouch, poised to ring the bell a block and a half before their stop.

Problem is When to Pull The Cord

Just as the bus is passing the street before their stop they yank the bell. What is the driver going to do? Is he to think the bell-ringer has made a last second desperation lunge at the cord wanting to get off at the street the bus is just crossing? Or is the cord-puller merely anticipating by three-quarters of a block.

Children, anxious to beat their companions to ringing the bell or buzzing the buzzer, fool many a bus driver. More than one has skidded his bus to a stop to find the astonished children want out at the next corner.

Then too, there are those who are deep in philosophical discussions with friends and are completely oblivious to their surrounding in general and their bus stop in particular. These fall into three general groups.

The first consists of serious young students. One of these, a girl, was recently overheard saying, "Yeah, he's awful cute! He smiled at me in the chemistry lab today!"

In the second group are older women. One of their discussions might be along these lines: "The trouble with her is she won't take good advice. Now, I told her that she should take a nice short club and every time he puts his thumb in his mouth, rap him across the nose with it."

In the final group discussion is likely to turn on, "What pub will I see you in?"

In any case these preoccupied people usually are told by a helpful fellow-passenger, "You missed your stop."

But by far the largest number

That Was My Stop!

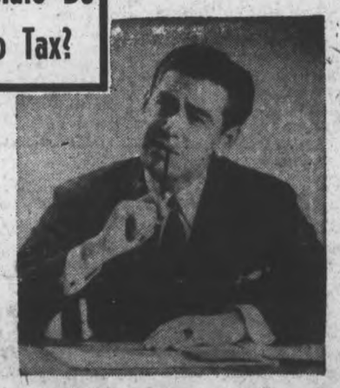
of bus-stop-missers are women shoppers. They see their stop coming. They ring the bell in plenty of time. Then they begin to collect their belongings, — shopping bags, parcels, handkerchiefs, gloves, children's mittens and children. This accomplished, they find the bus has stopped, the rear door opened and closed and the bus has started off again. Follows a volley of frantic yanks at cord and the shopper finally escapes—at the next stop.

The manner in which people pull the cord is a matter for serious study as well. To some, the cord is a malevolent python waiting to seize the unwary who comes too close. Therefore, the only way to deal with it, is to attack it suddenly before it becomes suspicious, and jerk the life out of it.

For others, the whole process is an experiment. The experimenter pulls the cord once and listens. From the back of the bus near the roaring engine, he hears nothing. He pulls again. He pulls again—and again. By this time the bus has stopped and someone is pushing him out the door. His experiments never show him the the bell or buzzer is about six inches from the left ear of the bus driver.

Another sort of bell ringer believes he can best attract the driver's attention by buzzing the buzzer steadily for a minute or so. He was a frustrated bus rider when the new buses arrived last spring with bells which rang once per yank.

Of course there are a few, to whom alighting at the right stop each day presents no problem Without even thinking they reach for the cord at the right moment, and balancing easily walk to the rear door as the bus sways to a stop and quickly descend to the street.



But to the rest, buses are great leering dragons commanded by maniacal sadists conspiring together to try to prevent cringing citizens from reaching the safety of their homes. If their destination weren't so far, and it weren't so cold, and they weren't so tired and it weren't so late, they would walk.

Legion Outplays Belleville To Take Over First Place

The local Legionnaires trimmed the Diesels-Electrics of Belleville 12-4 here last night to take over top spot from the Quinte squad in their OHA senior "B" grouping by one point. A good-sized crowd saw a fast, clean fray with Legion having a 3-2 edge the first frame and salting it away with a 6-2 margin in the second to have a 9-4 edge opening the third chukker, when they tallied thrice without a return.

Chum Fryia led the local attack with five goals, while Bill Crowley had two and an assist. Hill helped on three, and Stewart and Greenlaw were in on a pair each. Montgomery, Mortimer and Coombs each hit the hemp once. Vern Goyer stood out for the visitors, scoring a pair and aiding on another. Williams helped on two while Barrett got a goal and an assist, Day scoring their other one.

Were Outplayed

The Diesels were minus two good forwards in McDonald and Leo Goyer, but they found the smaller rink quite a bit different to the surface in Belleville. They were outplayed all the way. Legionnaires played their old hustling style—for the first time this season—which brought them the title last year, hurrying and hungry-looking all the way. While none of the goals were soft, one was a fluke in the initial inning when Vern Goyer's corner pass-out glanced in off Godfrey's skate.

Both goalies went well in a fast open fray, generally clean. The home defence had an edge on the visitors, but Goyer was good throughout, going either way. The line of Fryia, Hill, Coombs played some fine hockey, but there was little to choose between the Legion lines. Barrett, Williams, and Day proved the best trio for the Belleville bunch. A few fights threatened but the players held their heads and stuck to speedy and interesting hockey before a good-sized crowd..

Kingston Gains Close One Over The Petes

KINGSTON, Dec. 10—Kingston Nylons got away to an auspicious start in the OHA Senior "B" group race last night when they defeated the Peterborough Petes by 5 to 3 before a sparse attendance of 749 paid customers in the Harty arena. The visitors, showing no ill effects of the loss sustained on home ice at the hands of the surprising Gananoque intermediates, again provided the unexpected when they held the locals even at 3 to 3 during the first two periods, but they wilted under the heavy fire in the final session and Nylons ran in two goals to settle the issue. With both teams wearing almost similar colored uniforms during the first 40 minutes, confusion prevailed. But Nylons changed to blue sweaters for the final dash, stole Peterborough's famous colors as place tie with Gananoque and win vaulted Nylons into a third it were, and sped to victory. The dropped the winless Petes into the cellar.

While the teams exhibited neither midseason nor championship form, they did maintain a fast pace throughout and presented no glaring weaknesses though Ray Harding was below form. In direct contrast Glynn Udall, long a nemesis to the Petes, was in brilliant fettle and his amazing stops prevented the Petes registering an upset victory.

Veterans Shine

The Catlin-Partis-Gerow line was tops in effectiveness and accounted for three goals, with Catlin getting two of them and Gerow the other. Catlin was also the top point-getter for the night with a total of three while Eddie Plumb, a defenceman, got a goal and an assist to match Creighton, the visitors' pace-setter on the attack.

Only four minor penalties were inflicted by the referees, Ken McNaught of Belleville and George Patterson, and Nylons got them all with Plumb serving two and Harrison and Doug Patterson the others.

Plumb, on a pass from Jack McKeown, opened the scoring at 5.10 mark of the first period and at 10.20 Catlin struck the second blow on an assault set up by the tricky Ken Partis. At that stage the Petes appeared to be a doomed machine but Murray Fife, fastest man on the ice, rallied them in the nick of time. Fife didn't figure in the points summary but throughout the battle he was the visitors' most conspicuous performer.

It was 16.30 when Legrow, on a pass from McMaster, broke the ice for the Petes and two minutes and 10 seconds later West forced a deadlock with Creighton and penalty to Plumb for interferrence was served with the Petes Garvey figuring in the attack. A failing to capitalize on the break.

Went Ahead

Joey Catlin, aided by Patterson, shot the locals ahead at 7.25 of the middle session but Creighton, on a pass from Garvey, got that one back at 16.30 after Nylons had weathered rough seas while Harrison and Paterson were serving sentences. For almost half a minute Nylons had only four men opposing six but the Petes were unable to get properly organized on the attack.

Two minutes after the final session began the 'Three Musketeers' Partis, Catlin, and Gerow, collaborated in manufacturing the winning goal. Gerow was the marksman and his well-placed shot was delivered when he was only a few feet away from the net. Six minutes later Plumb rushed from his defence position and relayed the rubber to Harrison who whipped in a fast shot that had Harding beaten all the way. Plumb also served the lone penalty of the round but without benefit to the team from the Liftlock city.

The teams:

Peterborough—Goal, Harding; defence, Leonard and Horton; centre, West; wings, Garvey and Creighton; alternates, Coughlin, Fife, Collins, Jopling, Conlin, McMaster, Mortimer and Legrow.

Nylons—Goal, Udall; defence, Murphy and Patterson; centre, Partis; wings, Catlin and Gerow; alternates, Ohlke, Armstrong, Joyce, Harrison, McKeown, Hawkins Plumb and Graves.

Referees—Ken McNaught and George Patterson.

First Period

Nylons—Plumb (McKeown)	5.10
Nylons—Catlin (Partis)	10.20
Petes—Legrow (McMaster)	16.30
Petes—West (Creighton, Garvey)	16.40

Second Period

Nylons—Catlin (Patterson)	7.25
Petes—Creighton (Garvey)	16.30
Penalties—Harrison, Patterson.

Third Period

Nylons—Gerow (Partis, Catlin)	2.00
Nylons—Harrison (Plumb)	8.00
Penalty—Plumb.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Dear Santa—How's the old boy these days? Busy as a mosquito in a nudist colony, no doubt. Thought we'd better get this letter off right away since the mail will be slowing up as Christmas approaches and you're located at least six campfires north of the Haliburton rink, where frostbite pierced our flannels more than once. Some of our requests last Christmas came through okay, S.C., though you muffed a number, too. But none of us is perfect—ha, ha. In sports, we did appreciate getting artificial ice, and that southpaw, and the good competition in all sports. Also the titles which came here. You flunked on the Riverside lights, but this is another year. Got the used car all right, but would now like some slightly used tires.

* * * * * *

And, Mr. Claus, if you could get a little action on the Memorial Centre, a lot of folks here would be happy. Some goodwill-toward-man stuff might be dropped into the dressing rooms of Petes and Legion ere hockey games. Panthers could use a guy something like Filchock, too. Anyway, do what you can, old chap, about some of these things, and keep us supplied with lots of athletic competition — but not on Sundays, yet, puh-leeze. Just a few odds and ends of personal gifts for us, San, and let it go at that. Thanks muchly. Yours, CJP. Oh, yes, a PS: Couple sets of heavy underwear for hockey, some overshoes, mitts, earlaps, sweater or two and heavy scarves. Let's see now....

A Few Other Things

Oh, yes, a flash for hot coffee, with some cartons of cigarettes. And that should do it. One other thing, a tire pump and some patches. Nothing much else, unless you happen to have some good books for week-end reading and, of course, a pair of slippers to go with them. Cigarette lighter isn't working too well—it's hard on the flints. A catcher's pad would come in handy, too, when boxing with the young lad. Getting low on sox and ties, come to think of it. Couple of shirts (collar 16) needed, also. Fishing tackle for the summer, as well. New deck of rummy cards, too, as the wife knows every one from the back. Anything else useful to a man that you might be able to spare, S.C.—we'll leave that to you. Thanks again, and we trust you have a Merry Christmas, CJP.

Following the PCVS junior grid championship dinner tonight, a couple of keen cage exhibitions will go in the Collegiate gym. At 7.15, Trinity College boys tangle with the PCVS seniors, and this one is followed by New York Black Barons and Outboard Marines' intermediate "A" team. Mariners will likely include Joe and Al Stewart, Chum Gillespie, Gord Burns, Ed Nicholls, Nipper Payne, Bill Dadson, Bill Moorhead, Hugh Dibben, Vic Griffin and one or two more. The Barons are a classy basketball crew, and hoop fans will see some fine action in this twin bill.

Diesels And Petes

While it is doubtful if we'll have a report on the Petes' puck fray of last eve in Kingston in time to catch the last part of this column, we can comment on it again. Meantime, let us mention the next OHA senior "B" struggle at Civic Arena, the one at 8.30 Monday night. Belleville Diesels tangle with the Petes in this one, and it may be recalled that Diesels edged out the Petes by one goal a while ago on Quinte ice, after the Petes appeared to have the joust in the well-known gunny sack. Coach Ed Foley, Manager Red Creighton, Capt. Murray Fife and the rest still sizzle when they think of it—and they promise to derail the Diesels in the local plant. Ought to be another nifty hockey tussle before a full house.

* * * * * *

Legionnaires looked like the hungry team of last winter that fought through to an OHA title—that's the way they appeared last night here in trouncing Belleville Diesels 12-4. Hustled all the way, battling for loose pucks and checking back hard. Whole squad clicked well, and they didn't draw too many penalties in a pretty clean contest. It was speedy and the loop leaders (up to last night, but Legion are now) showed flashes. They found the smaller ice surface a handicap, but they found a scrappy Legion team a bigger one. Chum Fryia won the shirt given by I. Black for an outstanding performance, but they were all working more like the champs of last winter. A good game and a goodly gallery.

Hither And Yawn

Black's yanked out a 23-17 verdict over CGE as Normals nosed out Nurses Jrs. 21-20 in fine femmes' cage frays last eve.... Petes' ball dinner is tonight at six in the Empress, while the PCVS juniors' grid affair goes at six this p.m. in the Collegiate.... Brintons won 4-1 from Keene and Westclox took Ventilating 5-2 in Industrial Loop hockey; games on Dec. 15: Nashua vs. CGE and Quakers vs. De Laval .... PMHA frays tonight: Optimists vs. Trojan bantams at five, and St. Peter's vs. Keene midgets; Monday, it's SPS bantams vs. Trojans, and Marine midgets vs. Keene.... Local Oddfellows are in an OHA junior "B" group with Kingston Barons, Kingston Vics, Belleville, Oshawa and Lindsay, according to the latest word, just received.... Gananoque is listed as an intermediate "A" club in a senior "B" setup. Kingston Nylons beat the Petes 5-3 on home ice last night, the Nylons having had quite a few city loop contests and being in better shape.... We think both locla clubs will beat Belleville and Kingston regularly ere season's end.... That does it.

Blacks-Normals Gain Wins In Girls' Loop

Black's defeated CGE 23-17 and Normals edged out a 21-20 win over Nurses Juniors in two lively Girls Basketball League fixtures in the YWCA gym last evening. Plenty of keen action and close competition was seen in both ends of the hoop doubleheader. The girls play again next Friday and then have a layoff till after the first of the year.

CGE had a good margin on play in the first half of the opening struggle to lead 14-7 at the intermission. Black's came back with good basketball the last half to outscore Electric 16-3. Play was rough in spots in this hot tussle. Ruth Hewitt and Ruth Beard were outstanding for the winners, while Betty Stuart, M. Hodson and M. Batley turned in a fine effort for the losers. All the players fought hard on both sides. Rosie McInroy did some good checking for the winners. Teams:

Black's: A. Hichling, M. Beggs, C. Ferguson, R. Naylor, R. Beard 10, R. McInroy, L. Derry, M. Laing 1, M. Knox, D. McNeely, R. Hewitt 12.

CGE: T. Stewart, M. Batley 3, M. Hodson 4, B. Stewart 10, D. Schell, B. Luther.

Officials, Ed Nichols and Jean Vass.

Second Game

The nightcap of the doubleheader was a thriller, with the Nurses Juniors playing heads-up all the way and passing the ball well to give their good opponents a real battle to the last whistle. They outscored Normals 10-6 in the first half but were beaten by a 15-10 drive by the Normals in the last half, being just edged at the end of the fine fray. Standouts for the winners were Amy Curtis in particular, with M. Kerr, L. Cullis and S. McEwen also prominent. Shirley Langton, Ruth Green, Pat Martyn and Viv Latondresse showed up well for the other side. Teams:

Normals: M. Coombs 2, J. Calway, S. Burgess, L. Cullis 4, G. Clarke, A. Curtis 12, M. Kerr 3, M. Waterman, S. McEwen.

Nurses Jrs.: V. Latondresse 2, B. Sutton 2, P. Martyn 2, R. Green 4, B. Gambley, S. Brooks, P. Boadway 2, J. Brown 2, H. McElroy, M. Dugan, S. Langdon 6.

Officials—H. Smith and E. Nichols.

PMHA Schedule

Marlies Crush Mercurys As Flyers Bow To Windsor

By The Canadian Press.

Scotty Mair, leading scorer in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, added six points to his total last night with four goals and two assists while pacing Toronto Marlboros to a 9-1 win over Owen Sound Mercurys.

The victory was Marlboros ninth in a row and increased their first place lead over Kitchener-Waterloo to 16 points.

In two junior games last night, Windsor Spitfires kept up their torrid pace and also registered their ninth win in a row by besting Barrie Flyers 5-4. Toronto Marlboros retained their three point first place lead over the Spitfires by knocking down St. Catharines Teepees 5-3.

At Toronto, Mair opened the scoring after 43 seconds of the opening stanza. Johnny McCormack and Red Johnson added tallies to give the Dukes a 3-0 first period advantage.

Still Dangerous

The old veteran, Flash Hollett, showed he still had some wind in his sails by popping in Toronto's fourth goal, the only score of the middle frame.

The avalanche was finished in the final frame, Mair clicking for three while McCormack notched his second and Howie Lee counted a single.

Windsor led Barrie Flyers 2-1 at the end of the first period and 4-3 at the start of the final frame, The high-scoring line of Reibel, Stankiewicz and Skov notched three of the Spitfire total, each member of the line clicking for a single. Other markers were counted by Erwin Grosse and Jack Bailey.

Gerry Toppazzini was the big gun for Barrie, counting twice. Stan Long and Enso Zanatta potted the remaining two.

St. Catharines took an early lead over Marlboros in their game Obie O'Brien punching in a single at 22 of the first frame. Ron Hurst evened it up 14 minutes later and Larry Egan gave Toronto kids a one-goal lead with less than a minute remaining.

Get Only Goals

The Teepees took over in the second session and counted the only two goals of the period. Norm Corcoran knotted the count at two apiece 44 seconds after the opening whistle and Con Switzer put Teepees one up at 18:21.

The Toronto power was not to be denied in the closing stanza. George Armstrong started it off before the five minute mark and followed it up with his second seven minutes later. Murray Grenke ended the scoring near the end of the period and Toronto went off the ice with a hard earned two points.

OHA Investigates Spitfires, May Be Penalty

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association, turning down a plan that would take seven recent victories from the second-place Windsor Spitfires in the OHA juniorA race, will ask the border club to show cause why it should not be penalized for using two illegal imports.

The executive of the OHA, meeting in a six-hour session last night, claims the Spits used illegal players in a 10-game period beginning Nov. 9 and ending up last week, chalking up seven wins

President J. J. (Tiny) McFadyen termed the situation the "worst mess the OHA has been into in a number of years," and agreed with a motion that the club "show cause why a penalty should not be imposed for using an unauthorized number of imports."

The Windsor club will be asked to appear before the executive Saturday afternoon, Dec. 17.

First Time For Action

According to the executive, it is the first time the OHA has instituted an investigation of this type without first receiving a protest. First word that anything was amiss came from Windsor itself, the executive said.

It claims that four branch-to-branch imports—players coming from a league other than the OHA—participated in 10 games with the Spits. According to regulations, only two such imports are legal.

One member suggested all 10 games be stricken from the record and later a motion was put that the seven games Windsor won be struck from the scoring record These were to be made up in the third round of the schedule—starting early next year—when corresponding games were to count four points.

Given Hearing

The plan was to go into effect unless the Spits could satisfy an OHA sub-committee no penalty was warranted.

Then, deciding Windsor should first be given a hearing, the motion was turned down and the executive called for the Dec. 17 meeting.

The players were identified only as Josse, Turner, Gross and Hall. An early season line-up contains the names of an Eddie Josse, Robert Turner, Erwin Gross and Glen Hall. The OHA said Hall and Gross had signed junior A contracts, Josse and Turner junior B forms.

"Then after a month, the junior B players were slid up to the Spitfires," one member said. "I don't recall the OHA ever taking action without first receiving a complaint—but this situation can't be overlooked."

Irvin Worries Worst Of NHL

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

All coaches have worries, but coach Dick Irvin, of the Montreal Canadiens, has more than any other National Hockey League mentor at this stage.

The Canadiens' defensive strength has been reduced to four men by injuries to Hay Laycoe and Glen Harmon, and the Habitants have a tough weekend double against Chicago Black Hawks coming up.

The way the league standing is now any one of five teams can join the league-leading Detroit Red Wings in strategic position for next spring's playoffs. Detroit is alone on top with an 11-point margin over Toronto, but there are only four points between Toronto and the sixth-place team.

Montreal is riding in third place, a point below Toronto, with Chicago, Boston and New York all tied for fourth spot three points behind Canadiens.

No one would dare to predict at this stage which two teams will fail to make the playoffs, but the fact remains that losses now will loom large later on.

And the Canadiens have lost three and tied one in their last four starts. The tie with Boston in their last outing proved costly. Laycoe suffered a broken bone in the left wrist and will be out for a month. Harmon got a twisted knee and just possibly will be back in action next Wednesday.

Criticize Delay In Indian Act

OTTAWA, Dec. 10 (CP)—The government was sharply criticized Friday night for the delay in bringing in the revised Indian Act.

D. S. Harkness (PC-Calgary East) said the government has been "negligent" in its promise to introduce the new act which will revise the framework of Indian legislation in Canada.

John Charlton (PC-Brant) asked when the Act would be brought in. Resources Minister Gibson said it would be introduced at the next session of parliament.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said he hoped it would provide a charter under which Indians would take their proper place in Canadian life. It was a "shame" it had not been introduced before.

SINGAPORE, Dec. 10 (AP) — Duncan C. Stewart, 45, British governor of Sarawak, died here today from stab wounds inflicted by a Malay youth last Saturday at Sibu, Sarawak, the Singapore general hospital announced. Eleven natives have been arrested in connection with the stabbing.

Michael Carrington, of London, 15 year old ice prodigy, Friday survived a spill to become the youngest skater ever to win the British figure skating championship at London.

Carrington topped a three entry field in the free skating competition, as he had done in the school figures, to score 884.3 out of a possible 1,050 points. He led his nearest rival, R. G. Park of Melbourne, Australia, by 48.4 points.

Park also fell on the skate-scarred ice of Empress Hall. Both Carrington and Park recovered quickly from their spills to continue their programs.

Peannette Altwegg of Liverpool retained her women's title, with Barbara Wyatt of Brighton second in th efield of 10.

Bob Hamilton, Landover, Md., holed a tough, 33 foot putt on the 18th green Friday for a five under par 65 and a 36 hole total of 129 to lead the second round of Miami's $10,000 open golf tournament.

He now is 11 under par at the halfway mark of the 72 hole tournament being played over the 6,130 yard Miami Springs golf course.

Tommy Bolt of Houston, Texas, playing his first tournament since 1946, was only two strokes off Hamilton with a 3 hole total of 131. Bolt, 26, carded a 33-32-65 to couple with his 67 for the opening round.

University of Toronto Blues trounced University of Montreal Carabins 12-7 Friday night at Toronto to draw into a first place tie with Carabins in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League.

Before a near capacity crowd of 3,200 in Varsity Arena, the Blues avenged their defeat at the hands of Montreal last week.

Sparked by Norm Fox, Pete Vernon and Cec Turcott, Toronto clicked once in the opening frame six times in the second stanza and five times in the closing session.

At San Francisco the track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States Friday night accepted as an American record the time of 1:24 set by the 880 yard relay team of the University of Southern California last May 20 at Compton, Calif.

Recognition as a world record will be sought from the International Federation. The AAU is holding its 61st annual convention.

Mel Patton, world's fastest sprinter, ran the anchor lap.

Winston Churchill, Conservative opposition leader in the Commons has been elected a member of the Thoroughbred Breeder Association, it was announced Friday at London. Churchill took up racing as a hobby less than a year ago and now owns a broo mare, an unraced juvenile filly and the three year old colt Colonist II which won three out of six races this summer.

At Owensboro, Ky., three members of the Sebree, Ky., high school basketball team were killed Friday night in a head-on collision between an automobile and gasoline truck. Three other players were injured. Police listed the dead as Donald Pinkston, 16, driver of the car; James Johnson, 14, and Charles Smith, 15, all of the Sebree community.

Plan To Publish Papers Jointly

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 10 (CP) —In a front page announcement Friday the Victoria Daily Times said that the two Victoria daily newspapers will be published in a jointly-owned plant.

The announcement said:

Victoria Times have completed plans to publish the two newspapers in a jointly owned plant."

The Times is an evening paper "The Daily Colonist and the and the Colonist a morning paper.

The announcement, made by H. T. Matson, publisher of the Colonist, and Max Bell, owner of the Times, said both papers will retain their separate identities and policies.

It is estimated that the building will be ready for occupancy next autumn.

The announcement said the joint plant is the result of the high cost of newspaper production.

Snatches Payroll

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (CP) — A pasty-faced youth lurking in a mid-town lane Friday snatched a paper bag containing $703 from Mrs. Bertha Fronstein. The money was the weekly payroll of the Colonial Upholstery Company which Mrs. Fronstein, company cashier, had just obtained from the bank. The man, about 20, escaped on foot.

Dismiss Appeals

VANCOUVER, Dec. 10 (CP)— Appeals of Walter Prestyko, 33 and William John Worobec, 37, convicted jointly of murder were unanimously dismissed Friday by the British Columbia court of appeal. The two men are to be hanged Jan. 6 for the murder of Michael Geluch, retired railway worker found slain with his wife June 12 in their South Vancouver bungalow.

Abandon Dragging

SEVEN SISTERS, Man., Dec 10 (CP) — Dragging operations were abandoned Friday for three persons believed drowned while on a hunting trip at Dorothy Lake, 15 miles east of here. Bad weather and ice conditions forced the decision. Missing since Nov. 23 are: William Olekson, 40, of the Winnipeg suburb of East Kildonan, Mrs. Dorothy Caskey, 41, of Winnipeg and Astor Schultz, 61, of Seven Sisters.

Villemain Evens His Score With Lamotta

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP) — Rapid Robert Villemain officially has evened his score with Jake Lamotta. Now the scrappy little Frenchman wants the middleweight champion to put his title on the line. He may get his wish.

Black haired Robert, a five foot 6½ inch bundle of perpetual motion, poured it on the Bronx bull Friday night to win a unanimous 10 round decision in Madison Square Garden. It was a big victory for Villemain, a 3 to 1 underdog in the betting.

That squared accounts for the 25-year-old Parisian who licked Jake in the Garden last March but lost the decision. The verdict, one of the rankest in years, resulted in the suspension of the two officials who voted for Lamotta.

"I want Lamotta to fight me for the championship now," said the smiling Villemain after his victory. "I won the last time, too, but this time I get the decision. I am very happy to win. I will bring back the championship for my country and Marcel Cerdan."

If Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, has his way, Villemain will get the next shot at Lamotta.

Before the fight, Eagan told the gladiators:

"This isn't a championship fight. Whether there will be a return bout for the title depends on the outcome of this fight."

And there's no doubt that Eagan feels that a Frenchman should get the first chance because of Cerdan.

Red Cross Gets Go-Ahead Signal

OTTAWA, Dec. 10 (CP)—The Commons, waiving its rules, on Friday night gave quick passage to a bill authorizing the Canadian Red Cross Society to expand activities.

The bill, sponsored by A. A. MacNaughton (L-Mount Royal) was given second reading—approval in principle—and then adopted after praise was heaped on the work of the Red Cross.

The bill, will remove limitation on the value of the real estate the society is entitled to hold. Mr. MacNaughton said the present limit now is $100,000 and the actual real estate held by the society is valued at $150,000.

The section will also allow an increase of from 40 to 60 in the membership of the governing body, and an increase of from seven to 18 in the membership of the executive.

Drinking Restricted

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (CP) — All places serving liquor or beer must close from 6 p.m. Dec. 24 until 12 noon Dec. 27, the Ontario Liquor Licence Board announced Friday. Lounge and public house premises must be cleared of patrons by 6:30 p.m. Regular hours of sale will be in force on New Year's eve. In municipalities holding elections on Monday, Jan. 2, no spirits, beer or wine may be sold until 12 noon, Jan. 3, the board said.

Racehorse Men Divided On Rule

TORONTO, Dec. 10 (CP) — A survey of racehorse owners, trainers and breeders showed mixed opinions today on the action of the Ontario Jockey Club in reinstating an old rule of the classic King's Plate, that entries must be trained only in Canada. The historic plate has always been limited to Canadian-breds, and for many years was restricted to Ontario-breds, but of late years many owners, have conditioned their horses in the south during the winter.

The change permitting horses to train south of the border was made five years ago, and was rescinded at the OJC annual meeting this week. In the past five years four of the plate winners have had winter training on southern tracks — Uttermost in 1945, Kingarvie in 1946, Moldy in 1947, and Epic in 1949. Jim Fair's Last Mark, the 1948 plate champion, was trained throughout in Ontario.

Arthur Brent, the veteran trainer of Sam McLaughlin's Oshawa Parkwood Stables who saddled Moldy and Kingarvie, was somewhat neutral. He thought it would be nice to restore the old tradition of breeding and training the plate entry entirely in Canada but he admitted southern winter training gives a horse a big advantage.

Bert Alexandra, trainer for E. P. Taylor, pointed to the short time available for training each spring before the plate is run and said "you ruin horses trying to condition them in so short a time and under adverse conditions."

JOURNEY'S END—The wreckage of a DC-3 in which nine persons were killed, lies amid the hills near Vallejo, Calif., where it crashed. Israel Learned That God Is To Be Found Everywhere

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Somewhere when I was a youngster I read the story of an aetheist who in that mistaken zeal which makes a sort of religion out of atheism had set up a sign in his home. "God is Nowhere," in letters of equal size but when he asked his little daughter to read it she read it "God is Now Here."

God was there and He is everywhere. Jesus said to the woman of Samaria that the hour was coming when men should worship the Father neither in the temple at Jerusalem nor in the mountain of Samaria: that God is a spirit and that they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth.

That Spirit is as ever present and universal as are light and radio waves in the physical world That men should hear the voice of God and commune with Him is much greater and more sublime but not more wonderful than the hearing of voices on the radio The laws and realities of the spiritual world are as much a part of man's heritage through the Creator, as are the physical laws and wonders of His universe.

But men of religion even in Israel, did not always so know God, and apprehend Him. To those of lesser faith and vision He seemed the God of Israel, but not the God of the whole world and with such limited and localized conceptions of God and worship it was easy for the people to fall into that idolatry which was an ever-present peril and curse.

But what hope and faith were there for a people in exile cast away from their homeland and their holy city and temple? The prophet Jeremiah saw his people in that disastrous situation the great mass of them carried off into exile by the Babylonian conquerors though he himself was in the remnant that found refuge in Egypt.

He reminded them that though they had forsaken God. God had not forsaken them. He was still their God. ready to make with them a new covenant (Jeremiah 31:31-34). He forseaw their restoration to their homeland, but he encouraged them meanwhile to lead normal lives in the place of their exile (Chapter 29:5-7).

As a matter of fact that period of the exile in Babylon became a glorious epoch in the religion of Israel. Out of it came great prophecies. like that of Ezekiel, and the later chapters of the Book of Isaiah with their vision not only of a restored Israel but of a transformed and glorified Israel apprehendi : the largeness and fullness of God's mercy with the conception of a Savior who should be a light unto the Gentiles and the glory of Israel.

The greatness of that progress into faith in a God of mercy and justice everywhere present the God of the whole world can hardly be overestimated. Israel through exile and suffering achieved what she had failed to accomplish in days of prosperity

It was out of this Israel recreated through suffering and sacrifice, that the Messiah came. And that leads us to the Christmas story.

Gospel As Told By St. Luke A Book Of Great Beauty

By REV. E. R. JAMES

The Lord Said Unto Me: Eat This Book Ezex. 3; 1.

You have read reviews of a book? It helps you to know what you are buying. The review that follows will help you to read the book with better understanding Renan, a famous writer, says that this book is the most beautiful book ever writen. It is written in beautiful Greek to attract the thoughtful Greek. Its word pictures are most attractive. St Luke was a highly trained man and a gentile. He never mentions his own name. We get this information from St. Paul, who calls him the good physician. The book has been bitterly criticised Yet it has with stood this intense examination and is looked upon as very trustworthy.

St. Luke tells us he writes what eye witnesses have told him Scholars tell us that St. Luke includes about two thirds of St. Mark's Gospel. Yet more than half the book is peculiar to St. Luke. He gives many more details of Our Lord's last journey to Jerusalem. St. Mark gives us 52 verses; St. Matthew expands to 64; while St. Luke devotes more than 408 verses; more than a third of the whole Gospel.

Who were the eye witnesses? It is very probable that he knew St. Matthew, and is certain he knew St. Mark. He knows St. Mark's home in Jerusalem; he knows the name of the maid Rhoda. The most beautiful thought in reading this book is that he must have had much information from the Virgin Mother. He tells us the story of Zacharias; the Annunciation; the presentation of The Bible in Jerusalem; the Boy's first visit to the Holy City. It is very probable that he received all this information during St. Paul's imprisonment at Caesarea.

This book has made the greatest impression upon Christian thought by the parables preserved here. Twenty-three such parables What a loss to the Christian Church if it did not have the good Samaritan, The rich fool, Dives and Lazarus, the pharisee and the publican; the Prodigal son! There are also lovely stories of home life and the gentle treatment of women.

St. Luke also tells us of the Master's comforting words to the weeping women as He went on His way to the Cross; His prayer for the Roman soldiers and His long talk after his resurrection with the two plain men on the way to Emmaus.

Note the humility of the Gospel writers not to mention themselves. They had learnt the Master's lesson.

I DID EAT THE BOOK AND IT WAS IN MY MOUTH AS HONEY FOR SWEETNESS.

Rev. Michael Scott Pleaded For Africa Before UN's Bar

Ed. Note: The Rev. Michael Scott last weekend obtained permission—against the opposition of South Africa—to address the UN Trusteeship Committee on South West Africa.

By A Special Correspondent In London

Fifteen years ago, when barely 23, the Rev. Guthrie Michael Scott resigned his fashionable parish call in the London West End. This act marked the beginning of a long and lonely crusade through India and Africa, which has now brought him before the bar of the United Nations as the pleader and spokesman of the Hereros of South West Africa, whose future is under discussion.

Once of those Hereros were one of the proudest and most powerful of nations in Africa. German Imperialism left them decimated and mustering barely 30,000 souls after the First World War. But they are still waiting for justice. Their leaders are in exile and the South African Government refused them passports to plead their own cause at Lake Success.

Faced by this deprivation of human rights they immediately turned to the Ambassador-at-Large for all oppressed people—a reputation which Michae Scott has won for himself through a host of courageous action on behalf of helpless and inarticulate members of the South African community.

Was Not Prevented

When the South African Government tried to prevent Michael Scott from leaving with his petitions on behalf of the Hereros, he made his way across several African borders before reaching London, only to find that his U.S. visa had not been granted. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Henry Wallace successfuly intervened on his behalf.

Ever since he turned his back on wealth and privilege Michael Scott, who is himself the son of a West England clergyman, has been creating awkward situations for others and making trouble for himself. He has often found himself at variance with his more placid colleagues in the Church. "Christianity," he says, "can only justify itself if it follows the precepts of the Great Teacher and if Christians will live and work among those whose need for succour and guidance is greatest."

Crusading Spirit

This passionate crusading spirit was kindled when he worked in a South African Leper Colony for a year, after his studies at Cambridge University had been interrupted by ill-health. His subsequent experiences among the poor of the London East End and the hungry millions of India—where he contrasted the magnificence of the Palace of the Bishop of Bombay, to whom he had been appointed as Senior Chaplain, with the surrounding poverty—served to kindle this burning desire to live among and work for the under-privileged.

At the outbreak of war he joined the RAF as an "AC Plonk" (fighter air crew) but ill-health forced him out and he returned to South Africa in 1943. Those were troublous times and he bobbed up and down the waves like a stormy petrel.

Because of his participation in the Indian Passive Resistance Movement he was gaoled for three months. His prison experience produced a 30,000-word report for

Extra Power From CGE Eases Curbs

The people of Peterborough can thank the Canadian General Electric Company for some of the easing in Hydro restrictions at the Christmas season, the Peterborough Utilities Commission announced today.

The company is running two large diesel engine generators and steam turbines to help out in this emergency. This power is sold to the city and has helped avoid blackout and power curbs such as have been experienced in Northern and Western Ontario.

A partial lifting of store window lighting restrictions has been announced by the Ontario Hydro Commission. This will be effective from December 15 to December 24 inclusive, as an aid to Christmas trade.

Additional power resources will become available to the Commission at the close of the navigation season on the Great Lakes. During the night hours and on Saturdays this extra power will ease restrictions from 7 p.m. to midnight. On Saturdays December 17 and 24, the ban will be lifted entirely. The Peterborough Commission stresses that this does not mean that the power supply is unlimited and consumers are asked to co-operate.

ABSOLVES MURDER SUSPECT—George Salisbury, 36, flew to Calgary from Yellowknife, N.W.T., to absolve William Lee Wallace of suspicion in the beer-bottle slaying of a pretty, 24-year-old waitress, Yvonne Levesque. Salisbury, above, told the police he was with Wallace in the Calgary auto camp where the girl was beaten to death and that Wallace could not have been responsible. Wallace, said by Detroit police to have "confessed" the crime after his arrest in that city, was freed of a murder charge.

Board Set Up In Attempt To End Dispute

A Conciliation Board has been set up under the chairmanship of Judge W. S. Lane of Picton in an attempt to end the dispute between Peterborough Lock Mfg Co. employees (Local 527 US) and the Company.

Union members are asking for a 40-hour week with no reduction in take-home pay; a substantial wage increase, improved vacation plan and improved job security.

At the moment the starting rate for men is 93 cents an hour while women receive 28 cents.

The other two members of the Conciliation Board are E. Macaulay Dillon, KC, Toronto, company nominee and drummond Wren, Toronto, union representative.

Just when the Board will hold its hearing has not yet been decided.

About 180 union members will be affected by any change in the continuing contract. The anniversary date was September 30.

V. S. Milburn Warns Against Lobbyists

WALKERTON, Dec. 10—"If we don't assert ourselves and play our part in this new form of government that I predict for the future of this country, then there is nothing left for us but peasantry" V. S. Milburn of Peterborough told members of the Bruce County Federation of Agriculture here.

Mr. Milburn, secretary-manager of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said it was his opinion that the present system of government was scheduled to bow out to a country organized more and more on the basis of lobbying groups.

Kingsley Brown, editor of the newspaper, Rural Co-Operator, said: "It is not a matter of thinking that the lobbying groups are good or bad, they are here to stay as part of the machinery of government.

"We are seeing today a very definite movement toward a new type of representation on our governments and it is necessary for farmers to unite in organizing an organization that is strong enough to support them."

Band And Choir Of PCVS Delight Hearers

The PCVS choir and cornet band presented the results of three months' work before a fair audience Friday night in their first concert this term. From the applause received each number the results were fully appreciated.

Both the band and the choir were first introduced to the school three years ago, the former under the direction of Albert Croasdale and the latter under M. J. Curtis, music teacher.

More than 100 students took part in the program. The choir has grown from the first year of 20 girls to nearly 80 with 65 taking part in Friday night's concert. Thirty boys and girls are under the direction of the baton of Mr. Croasdale.

Group Of Carols

Christmas carols highlighted the concert as the choir and band combined to present a medley arranged especially for the concert by Mr. Croasdale. It included such favorites as, It Came Upon a Midnight Clear, O Come All Ye Faithful, The First Nowell and Hark the Herald Angels Sing.

Two other numbers, I Passed By Your Window, by May H. Brahe, and A Perfect Day, by Carrie Jacobs Bond, products of the combined band and choir, delighted the audience.

Miss Lorna Stewart, a Grade XII pupil and contralto soloist with the choir, thrilled the patrons singing four selections, Bois Epais by Lully, Sing Me to Sleep by Greene, Deep River arranged by H. T. Burleigh, and For You Alone by H. E. Geehl.

Duo-piano selections were played by Mary McBride and Mildred Hayward. These girls were heard in Londonderry Air, The Dance of the Honey Bees, Scented Showers and Christmas Fantasy.

Of all the selections by the choir, The Lord's Prayer, by Albert H. Malotte and Echoes from Strauss, a medley of waltzes, were the favorites of the audience. The girls also sang Ezekiel Saw the Wheel, a spiritual, Kentucky Babe, by Geibel, and Louisiana Hayride, arranged by William Stickle.

The band opened the concert with three light numbers, The Caissons Go Rolling Along, by E. L. Grubber, Blumengefluster (The Whispering of the Flowers), by Franz Von Blon, and the American Patrol, by F. W. Meacham. The latter number appealed to the crowd as the band went throuh it like veteran musicians. In the second portion the selection were from Arthur Sullivan's H.M.S. Pinafore, and were lauded by the audience. They also played The Wee MacGregor by H. G. Amers, and Sizilietta by Franz Von Blon.

The general feeling after the concert was the choir and band deserved a larger number in the audience.

Police Car Damaged At Busy Intersection

A car driven by a city police constable, Donald S. Mackay, met in collision with a car driven by Gerald Collins, Port Hope, in an accident at George St. and Parkhill Rd. Friday afternoon.

Constable Mackay reported he was driving north on George St. He said when he had nearly crossed the Parkhill Rd. intersection, Collins driving west on Parkhill Rd. failed to stop at George St.

The policeman said he accelerated his car to try to avoid a collision but the right rear fender and the front bumper of the Collins car hit. No damage was done to the Collins car, but the right rear fender of the Mackay car was crushed and torn and the rear bumper broken off.

Faces Two Charges

A Douro farmer, Thomas McMahon, 33, RR 9, Peterborough, was charged with drunken driving and driving a car without adequate brakes, in police court today before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC.

The two charges were adjourned until Monday. McMahon was arrested at King and Aylmer streets by Constables Grant Gillespie and John Morrow.

Struck By Car Arm Fractured

Thomas Cheverill, 72, of 358 Downie St., was hit by a car driven by a neighbour and thrown nine feet fracturing his right arm. The accident happened at the corner at King and Rubidge Sts. Friday evening.

He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where officials reported today he had a fairly comfortable night but X-ray reports were not available.

Driver of the car, Joseph Moher, 368 Downie St., told investigating constables John Morrow and Grant Gillespie, he was driving about 20 miles an hour south on Rubidge St. At King St. he saw Mr. Cheverill walking from the southeast to the southwest corner.

Marks on the road indicated he had put on his brakes but skidded. The point of contact on the car was the right side of the front bumper and right headlight. Mr Cheverill was taken into the house of Charles H. Hotston, 299 King St., until Dr. Herbert N. Young arrived and had the man taken to St. Joseph's.

Three of a group of boys playing hockey on the southeast corner saw the accident: Douglas Livinston, 13, 144 Rubidge St.; Robert Hollingsworth, 11, 228 Rubidge St. and John Delaire, 10, 200 King St. Another witness was Robert Reynolds, 299 King St.

Constable Morrow reported the road was icy covered with snow

Family Christmas Dinner Less Expensive This Year

A tour round the food stores in Peterborough in search of Christmas fare is one of the most heartening experiences housewives have had for many years. Supplies are back to normal, back to pre-war years, and coupled with this happy situation is the downward trend in prices. Let no one imagine that prices are back to the 1939 level, for the cost of food today is still high, but the upward trend appears to have halted and in comparison with prices last year, Christmas cheer is more within the range of the average purse.

3,500 CGE Children To See Santa Claus

The largest Christmas party planned yet, for the children of parents who are employed at the Canadian General Electric, will be held in the PCVS auditorium a week from today, Dec. 17. It is expected that 3,500 children will attend.

Members of the Social and Athletic Club are responsible for planning and, in order that each child may enjoy himself fully, both the stage show and receiving of gifts, been divided into five separate "shows." The first one which will probably cater to the youngest age groups, will start at 9:30 a.m. Members hope that parents will arrange to have each child go through the "receiving" department unaccompanied to avoid any slowing-up of the long scheduled day.

Parents will receive party tickets at work early next week which children will present upon entering the auditorium.

Vatican Honors Native Son

A son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. MacKenzie, 571 Weller St., Rev. Roderick A. F. MacKenzie, S. J., recently became in Rome the first Canadian ever to be admitted to the ranks of the 50 or so biblical scholars throughout the world entitled to be called Doctors of Sacred Scripture.

'Bishop Gerald Berry attended the final examination of Father MacKenzie, which was held in public in the Great Hall of the Pontifical Biblical Institute, in the presence of Cardinal Guiseppe Pizzardo, Prefect of the Congregation of Seminaries and Universities, and such outstand-biblical authorities as Fathers Bea and Vacari.'

This distinction which has been attained by a former Peterborough boy is reported in a recent issue of the The Ensign.

"It was remarked that Father MacKenzie in the exposition and defence of his thesis "Forms of Israelite Law", showed exceptional acumen, sound sense and a thorough knowledge of Oriental languages. He is returning to Toronto to teach Sacred Scripture in the Jesuit Seminary."

Educated in Peterborough, Father MacKenzie entered the Society of Jesus at Guelph in 1928 He spent two years in classical studies at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and he completed the theological studies and was ordained priest in 1940. Before proceeding to Rome for the doctorate, Father MacKenzie obtained an M. A. degree in Oriental Languages at the University of Toronto.

Can Always Beat The Firemen

Christmas Trees Often Cause Tragedy

Fire Chief George Smith is no spoilsport, but as soon as he sees the first few carloads of Christmas trees pulling into town he gets a melancholy feeling.

For although the Christmas tree is a symbol of the happiest season in the year it also has often caused tragedy.

"Very few people realize that ordinary Christmas tree is one of the most inflammable objects known, filled with pitch and resin it is very difficult to extinguish. Tests have shown that the average size tree takes less than two minutes to burn up. It can start a roaring fire before the arrival of the Fire Department."

Here are some hints froms Chief Smith to ensure a safe and happy Christmas in your home:

1. Choose a small tree instead of a large one (while equally attractive it is far less hazardous).

2. Do not set it up until a few days before Christmas. Keep it outside until ready to decorate.

3. Place in coolest part of the house (if necessary shut off radiator closest to the tree).

4. Do not use cotton or paper decorations on or around the tree.

5. Electric trains should not be placed around the base of the tree.

6. Use only electric lights — never candles—and inspect all wiring of decoration lights before using them.

7. Use only approved type electric lights bulbs and decorative shades (some plastic Christmas tree shades will ignite after bulbs have been alight for some time.

8. Provide a switch some distance from the tree for turning on and off lights; do not plug or unplug lights from beneath.

9. Do not leave lights burning when nobody is in the house.

10. Inspect tree from time to time and see whether any of the needles near the lights have started to turn brown; if so change the location of the lights.

11. Take it down as soon as needles begin to fall. If it is desired to keep it up for a few days longer do not burn lights more than half an hour at a time.

12. Keep decorations near the ceiling; do not place them near chairs where ashes from cigarettes may ignite them.

13. Make sure all decorative paper is fire resistant.

14. If lights are desired in windows, keep curtains and other flammable material pulled back at least six inches from lights.

15. After opening presents, remove all wrapping and packing material and dispose of it.

Just a final reminder—in 1942 flames from a kitchen ignited combustible decorations in St John's, Nfld. and 99 people died.

Have a good time, says Chief Smith in his Christmas greeting But have a safe one, too.

POST CERTIFICATION NOTICE

The Ontario Labor Relations Board has acknowledged the application for certification of the IUE-CIO at the Peterborough CGE plant, and a notice to that effect has been posted. Next step will be a hearing on behalf of the IUE by the OLRB. The Board will then decide what further action is necessary. At the moment Local 524 UE is the legal bargaining agency.

Union Charges Dismissal Unjust

An Arbitration Board Friday afternoon heard a grievance filed by Local UE against the CGE Peterborough works.

Judge E. W. Cross of Oxford is chairman of the Board. Drummond Wren, general-sec'y of the Workers' Educational Association in Toronto is the union nominee. and W. H. Dickie, personnel manager of the John Inglis Co., Toronto, the company representatives on the Board.

The dispute arises out of the dismissal of an employee in the Wire Department last April. Management claims he was improperly booking time and the union contends the dismissal was unjust.

E. B. Brown of the CGE head office, Toronto, presented the case for the Company, and Phil Knibbs, UE district representative for the Union. The hearing was in the Empress Hotel.

House Damaged Overheated Stove Blamed

Fire that began in the kitchen of the home of Mrs. C. B. Chamberlain, 215 Braidwood Ave., Friday night was not extinguished until it had charred the kitchen walls and three rooms of the apartment above.

Damage is set at about $700.

An overheated stove is blamed for starting the blaze.

Most of the damage is to the building owned by William Tinker of Burnham St. There was some loss due to heavy smoke but the furniture and contents were saved. Firemen covered the furniture with tarpaulins and used a booster line instead of a large hose so there was little water damage.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Chamberlain who heard the crackling of the flames for some time but she was unaware of the cause of the sound. While on her way to the cellar she smelled smoke and then noticed the blaze.

She immediately turned in the alarm but by that time the flames had a good hold. When firemen arrived heavy smoke was pouring from the upper room of the house.

Stove Close To Wall

Mrs. Chamberlain's stove is set close to the kitchen wall and it is believed that it became overheated causing fire to break out in the wall.

The flames travelled up the wall between the joists and mushroomed out between the ceiling of the ground floor and the floor of the upstairs apartment. They spread underneath the flooring and burned up to the attic. Firemen were able to prevent them from reaching the roof.

In the upstair apartment of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ellis the fire damaged the walls of a bedroom, kitchen and hallway.

Much of the damage was caused by the fact firemen had to cut open the walls to deal with the flames.

Seniors of Civil Service Like Sphinxes In House

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Dec. 10 —(CP)— A small company of senior Civil servants are among the unhonored, unsung, and almost entirely unheard pillars of the Canadian democracy.

They are the experts who, in a voluble, irrepressible Commons, must sit in impassive and rigid neutrality, unable to say a word out loud while amateurs discuss topics of which they are masters.

They sit in front of a cabinet minister desk, one or two or sometimes three of them, flanked by the fat brief cases and files and documents to help the minister answer the questions that flood at him from all corners of the chamber.

For years, it has been accepted practice that each minister should have the succor and assistance his senior aides can give him in explaining the estimates of his department.

Tiny Tables

They sit at a tiny table directly in front of him. Their faces possess an Arctic discipline. When a question is asked, they look at the minister or at their documents or at the table. If the minister wants something, he whispers to them. They whisper back.

If a member makes a whopping assault or error or accusation, they show no sign. If their names are mentioned directly or by inference, they show no sign. If there is a gush of humor that rocks the House, they ignore it.

Trigger-tongued D. Leo Dolan, head of the government tourist bureau, sat with bowed head this week as his name ran in eulogy through the House. He gave no sign he heard.

Last week it was Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, Deputy Minister of the Mines Department. A couple of members made wise about his pie-making abilities. His face flushed, but that was the lone treachery of his emotions.

But, outside the House, they can let themselves go. One of the veterans confessed this week he sometimes has to smother a chuckle. Particularly when his minister, seeing a political foe arise, mutters "now what does this son of a ——: want" and then, rising politely, says "in answer to my honorable friend, the answer is. . ."

HOUSE NO. 1022—In the plans shown there are seven fine rooms, ample for the family of four or five. One of the noteworthy points about this plan is the unusually large living room, which measures 23 feet by 13 feet. French doors open directly onto a broad terrace at the rear of the house. Using this plan the kitchen is placed at the back, overlooking both the rear and side gardens. This room is completely modern in layout. Upstairs the three bedrooms are nicely placed for light and air, and each is approximately the same size and shape. Closet space is ample. Provision should be made for linens, however. While there is no direct access across from garage to house, a door at the back of the garage permits use of the kitchen route to and from the car, particularly in bad weather when keeping the floors clean is a problem. The exterior of this house has a good deal of charm. Its setting among the trees gives it an air all its own. Notice the big picture window in the living room which takes full advantage of view. From this window one can look out on the pageant of the seasons. For further information write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Navy Husband Tells Wife How Run House

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 10 (AP)—Men, have you ever felt like telling your wife that her housekeeping is sloppy and mismanaged?

That common urge is the basis for a new film, which perhaps should rank among the "brave" films Hollywood is making. The picture is "The Skipper Surprised His Wife," in which Navy Officer Robert Walker takes over a household after wife (Joan Leslie) breaks her leg.

The navy man hangs a sign in the kitchen: "there is a place for everything and everything has its place." On each cupboard and drawer is a sign telling its contents: "chow locker," "China locker," etc.

Clear the Decks

Every minute of the day is regimented, from the time the two sons are awakened with a loudspeaker announcing, "man the brooms, men!" Life is so carefully scheduled that one boy moans, "how do you get out of this man's Navy?"

Highlight of the films is when Walker addresses a meeting of navy wives:

"Housework need not be a burden; it is just inefficiency that makes it so.

"Most of you who complain about your work are soap opera addicts, fence hanger-overs, salesmen encouragers, book-of-the-month clubbers or just plain lazy.

"Women who greet their husbands looking weary or unattractive just don't have the intelligence, integrity or gumption to work out a schedule and stick to it."

Painful Ending

The speech ends in a riot, during which Walker is hit over the head with a microphone.

Note: In case my wife reads this, the foregoing were the opinions of Walker and his movie writer and do not necessarily reflect those of this reporter.

Kitchen Equipment Needs Careful Thought In Plans

Time and effort saving kitchens don't just happen. Unless careful thought is given to planning, kitchen equipment, no matter how fine or costly, does not make an efficient kitchen.

No other room in the house requires so careful a study of the needs of the family as the kitchen. It must be planned to provide for efficient placement of equipment for food storage, dish and pan storage, dish-washing, broom storage, food preparation, cooking and sometimes laundry work.

Three Work Centres

A kitchen embodies three main areas of activity: Receiving and storing food, cleaning and dishwashing, and cooking and serving.

The first or storage centre includes a refrigerator, storage space for supplies not requiring cold storage, and a nearby counter on which food may be prepared as it is taken from storage.

The second area, for cleaning and dishwashing, locates the sink between convenient counters with cabinet above holding necessary supplies.

The cooking and serving centre contains the range and counter or table logically situated close to the dining-room door.

Three Basic Plans

Two outside walls are usually desirable for the kitchen in order that natural lighting and cross-ventilation may be provided. It is usually best if equipment, counters and storage cabinets are arranged along the walls in a nearly continuous line unbroken by doors, low windows or lines of traffic.

L or U shaped kitchens with two or three walls for equipment makes it possible to arrange the work areas free from interference and leaves one end or one corner of the room for traffic, doorways or other activities outside food preparation. In some plans it may be necessary to put the equipment against opposite walls in two parallel rows..... but regardless of size or equipment, almost any kitchen will fit into one of the basic plans.

One important point to watch in planning the kitchen is to provide direct passage between the kitchen and rear porch, basement stairs and dining area.

The sink is the central unit in a well-arranged kitchen. Work counters should be grouped on each side with storage above and below the counter. Range and refrigerator should be located at or near the ends of the line of cabinets and equipment.

Although measurements will vary, usual wall-space allowances for kitchen equipment are as follows: Sink, 20 to 42 inches; length of each counter, 27 to 36 inches; gas or electric range, 24 to 42 inches. Commercial base cabinets are 36 inches high. If building cabinets to your own specifications they may vary from 32 to 36 inches from floor to top of work counter. Pull-out boards are a great convenience in providing work space at other levels.

Clearance of 16 to 18 inches should be allowed between wall cabinets and counter tops. Reachable wall cabinets should extend only to the top level of doors and windows, usually about 6 feet 8 inches above the floor. Space above may be enclosed or fitted with doors to provide space for items seldom used.

At least 4 feet of space should be allowed in front of all equipment. Sink cabinets and counters extend 24 inches out from the wall... ranges and refrigerators from 28 to 30 inches.

King's Nephew Forced Sell Most Of Estate

LEEDS, Yorkshire, England, Dec. 10 — (AP) — The King's nephew, the Earl of Harewood, disclosed plans Friday to sell most of his 24,000-acre family estate to meet taxes.

The vast land holding eight miles north of Leeds, has hundreds of tenant houses and farming plots.

The 26-year-old Earl, whose title dates back to 1796, said he hopes many of his tenants will be able to buy the homes and land they now occupy.

"I had hoped to preserve the estate as left me by my father in its entirety. But the burden of death duties (inheritance taxes) is so heavy that I am left with no alternative."

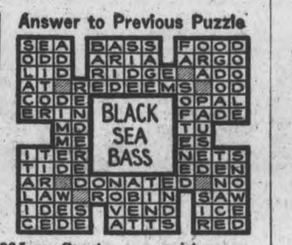
Curtail Dancing New Year's Eve

New Year's Eve in Peterborough isn't going to suffer greatly because New Year's Day is on a Sunday. Celebrants who are accustomed to welcoming the New Year with a dance will be affected but the night-spots are planning to have other entertainment.

All the regular dancing haunts will be having their usual New Year's programs but the dancing will be cut off at midnight.

Only in the cases of dances being staged by private clubs will the New Year be brought in by dancing. Here the regulations which prevent dancing in commercial night club do not apply. As in the commercial dancing places most of the private clubs are having either turkey dinners or some other type of refreshments.



Only one manager was hestitant in giving his New Year's activities saying" I don't know yet what we'll do". He added that while plans are not yet fully completed some post-midnight entertainment would be presented at his establishment.

Confederation Greatest Success Of Closing Year

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Dec. 10—(CP)— An 85-year-old dream of a Canada stretching from the eastern shores of Newfoundland to the western tip of British Columbia came true in 1949.

Newfoundland formally became Canada's 10th province on March 31, thus fulfilling a vision of the Canadian and Newfoundland statesmen who gathered in Quebec in 1864 to lay the foundation of confederation.

The union, marked by special ceremonies in Ottawa and St John's came after almost two years of negotiations. The terms of union finally agreed upon were signed in Ottawa Dec. 11, 1948 Later they were passed by the Commons and the Senate and given royal assent last Feb. 18 They were approved by the United Kingdom's parliament shortly before union.

The island, where responsible government was snowed under by financial difficulties during the depression of the 1930s, established its own provincial government That government replaced a six-man commission of government appointed by the United Kingdom in 1934 to pull the island out of its financial morass.

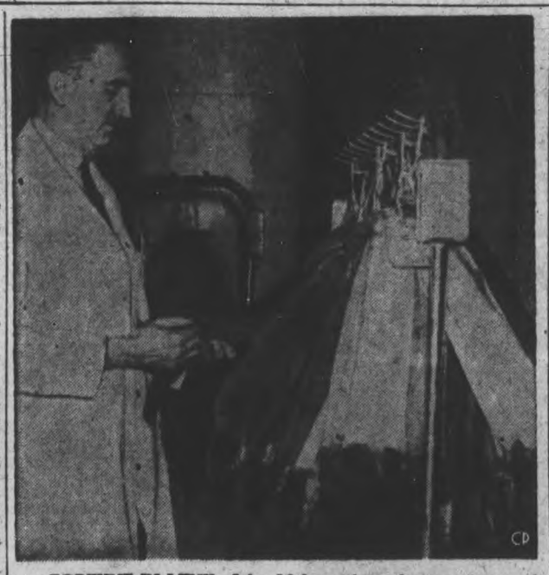
In the Cabinet

The new province and its 320,000 people were given immediate representation in the federal cabinet. F. Gordon Bradley, a 61-year-old lawyer from St. John's who played an active part in bringing about union, was appointed secretary of state.

His appointment was announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent in a radio speech during ceremonies marking the formal entry of the new province into confederation. In that speech of welcome, Mr. St. Laurent said:

Equal Partner

"Newfoundland today enters confederation as a full and equal partner with the older provinces It is my hope and belief that in the future the advantages of the union will be increasingly recognized by the great majority of the people of Newfoundland and of all Canada. . .



"In welcoming you as partners in the Canadian nation, we of the rest of Canada, feel you are joining a good country—a country of which you will come to be as proud as we are. Canada is a country with a distinctive character and distinctive qualities."

The governor-general, Viscount Alexander, extended his greetings and read a message from the King.

Speaking for Newfoundland, Mr. Bradley said:

"We begin life as one people in an atmosphere of unity. We are all Canadians now. Now, as never before, can it be said of this land that her bounds extend from sea to sea. From the eastern shores of the new province of Newfoundland to the coast of British Columbia let us go forward together with faith in the principles and traditions which we hold in common."

With the completion of union, Canada withdrew her diplomat mission from the island. C. J. Burchell, who served there as Canadian high commissioner while the terms of union were being negotiatied, was appointed a member of the Privy Council.

Family Christmas

There is a reduction of 10 cents in the price of turkeys, which are now selling at 65 cents a pound and chickens are down from 60 and 65 cents a pound last year to 65 cents. For those who enjoy goose, the outlook is not too bright, however, because it is expected to be in short supply. Geese have been scarcer every year recently, and Pterborough merchants are expecting only a few for Christmas.

Although there are plenty of turkeys, the difficulty is to be able to suply the majority of families with birds weighing between 12 and 15 pounds. That is the most popular size but there is always a number of larger ones weighing from 15 pounds up to 30.

There should be no scramble this year for the trimmings, for cranberries are far more plentiful than a year ago and the price is down by nearly 50 per cent.

Vegetables are remaining at a more or less standard price, except for those imported from the States, which have been affected by the devaluation of the Canadian dollar in relation to the U.S. currency.

Plum puddings are still a costly item, selling around 65 cents a pound, but for those who make them at home, there is an appreciable saving.

All the ingredients for fruit cake are readily available this year, including nuts, which were none too plentiful last Christmas. There are now many varieties and they are selling at a lower price.

Candies have shown no great reduction, although some brands have come down a few cents during the year.

Few ready made Christmas cakes have been sold in the Peterborough stores yet, although they have been on display some time. A great many women have already made them at home and the others appear to be waiting until a little nearer the big day.

Ingredients Cost Less

The basic ingredients for cake are down this year. Lard is selling at 19 cents a pound instead of 23 and shortening is only 29 and 30 instead of 39.

Oranges, which receive the widest sale among the fruits at Christmas time are plentiful and selling a few cents cheaper than in recent years. And there are many varieties of apples, all in plentiful supply.

There is no appreciable reduction in prices as far as Christmas gifts are concerned although a greater variety is making shipping easier than it has been for 10 years. At some of the luxury clothing counters prices appear to be a little higher than last year, but that is because more of the higher class of articles are available than before.

The articles sold last year are selling at the same price now, but there are a great many higher quality scarves gloves and accessories than there have been in recent years and they are selling at correspondingly higher prices.

House slippers are one of the most popular Christmas gifts and this year there is no change. Last Christmas some of the shoe stores had no slippers left by Christmas Eve and it looks as though there is going to be a repetition.

"Romeo" slippers for men appear to be a popular buy with the women, and moccasins, some with wedges, are the most popular buy in slippers to give to women.

Hopes that devaluation of the British pound sterling would result in lower priced woollen garments and leather articles have not been fulfilled. For a while there was a slight reduction but it was not maintained and British made sweaters, scarves and gloves are priced much the same as last year.

Nor is there the great reduction in the price of English china as many had expected.

Recommend Addition PCVS Teaching Staff

Two recommendations to the Board of Education made by the Supervision Committee have been approved.

The first is that a piano be purchased for Grove School next year, and the cost be included in the 1950 estimates.

An addition to the PCVS staff was also approved. Two reasons were advanced by the Chairman, Dr. H. G. Carleton: to give an opportunity for more individual teaching; and to make sure there was a larger supply of teachers.

"I only wish the teacher could be obtained in January rather than September," said Dr. Carleton. "I have no doubt this will be beneficial to the Collegiate."

city and one with an international reputation as a centre of culture. It may seem even stranger that his reign should end only a few days ago.

But these were the methods of all the political bosses. They succeeded because only now is American democracy fully waking up to the fact that in domestic. as well as world affairs, good government is only possible if everyone is prepared to interest themselves in it. The fact that that has at last been learned and that one by one the political bosses have been thrown out is one of the most significant signs of American's growing political maturity.

Holstein Club's Sales During 1949 Averaged $326

Although the Holstein year of 1949 began with breeder misgivings about the market for salable stock, it recovered much of activity in the the spring and is moving through December with considerably renewed confidence

That was the general note of the annual meeting of the Peterborough breeders here thursday boroough breeders here Tursday John Tamblyn of Orono, salesman for the county association, recalled that he had sold for the members 110 head for a total of $35,930 and an average of $326,40 with $700 as the top price this year.

In a review of his work for the last five years, Mr. Tamblyn said that in 1945 he sold 110 head for $23,000; in 1946 there were 84 head for $20,000 and an average of $247; sales in 1947 reached 102 head for $28,107 and an average of $275; in 1948 he sold 54 head for $18,974, an average of $351 The Club average indicated some recession, but it was regarded as comparing favorably with the fall prices throughout the province.

In the last four months, Mr Tambly said, sales in the four counties in which he is working amounted to $48,000 for an average of $358.

Elect Directors

Joseph T. Tully president, was chairman of the meeting, with Stanley wood secretary-treasurer. Attandance was large, only a few of the members missing the meeting.

Dircetors elected for 1950 are Henry Sharpe, Stewart Nelson Vern Campbell, Earl Fife, Everett Elmhurst, Ed. Bulmer, Joseph Coughlin, Ernest Fife, Alan Davis and Walter Thorne.

A proposal for a three-county field day here was left to the incoming board who are also to decide on the location of the county Black and White Day. It has been held for some years at Lakefield fair, but there has been some suggestion that it might be transferred to Peterborough Exhibition.

Roy Ormiston, fieldman, said the Holstein championships here in October brought out 182 head for 210 entries, "the best show we've ever held. "I was at three of the four regional championship shows. Our morning attendance was bigger than any of the two others; our catalogues were better than any of them, even the Royal and the C.N.E. These shows are great educational events, and here in Peterborough the quality is steadily improving."

Mr. Ormiston thanked the Peterborough association for its sustained interest and help, and various business around the city for their assistance.

Mr. Tamblyn was re-appointed salesman, "in the same capacity as before."

How to Read a Pedigree

The speaker of the meeting was John Powell of Brantford, from the office of the Canadian Holstein - Friesian Association. He gave a detailed and objective explanation of extended pedigrees, using for illustration names of fictitious animals which were conceived in the office for the purpose of this lesson is how to read a Holstein pedigree.

Mr. Powell's talk was too closely attached to the sample pedigrees for adequate reporting. One of the things he said was that the first generation represented by the animal that is being pedigreed.

Its sire and dam are the second generation, its grandparents are the third; and the fourth generation comprises eight ancestors.

Tracing the pedigree of a cow "Shirley Rag Apple Posch," which never existed except in the imagination that went into this preparation of record, Mr. Powell said that it carried to the 12th generation, which meant a total of 2,694 ancestors.

One of the sample pedigrees recommended by Mr. Powell stopped at the fourth generation, but included a wide variety of information for the owning and also the buying breeder.

"An extended pedigree is the only way to secure the information on an anima that is necessary to determine its breeding value," Mr. Powell said. "It is a method of furnishing in a clear and orderly manner the ancestry of any given animal, also information on type, production records, show records, etc., of those ancestors."

The thanks of the association was expressed to Mr. Powell by C. E. Moore who said the progress of the Holstein Association in all its aspects was remarkable.

Mary was portrayed by Marilyn Logan, Joseph was Patsy Barry and Mildred Sutherland appeared as the angel. Florence Crowder, Georgina Chalmers, Autumn Dubay and Patsy Harding took the part of shepherds, and Wanda Grills, Florence Searles and Ruth Hendren were wise men. Oddfellows and Rebekahs To Use Proceeds of Ball For Public Welfare Work

Two organizations Oddfellows' and Rebekahs', working together on one project in aid of all people who may be victims of cancer, polio, tuberculosis, or need relief from distress staged their first public event to raise money for this purpose on Friday evening. Their ball at the Club Aragon attracted a crowd of 400 dancers and provided for them a thoroughly pleasing evening.

The affair was very well-organized and managed under the direction of Art Winslow, chairman of the ways and means committee, and assistants. Some valuable prizes donated by local merchants were given to the spot dance winners. A cash donation of $50. was handed to the committee at the opening of the dance by Mr. Jack Wineburg and this will go to the welfare fund.

The ladies' door prize was a silver tea service and the lucky winner is Miss Bernice Hillier. Her escort Mr. Bill Walton received a certificate which will enable him to get a made-to-measure suit worth $55.

Mince Pie, Plum Pudding Christmas Essentials

Flaky mince pie and steaming plum pudding belong to Christmas as much as mistletoe and holly. In fact, they were associated with the Yule season for hundreds of years before sprigs of greenery fell into favor as holiday symbols.

The granddaddy of mince pies, dated 650 and described in a recipe from the Vatican library, was made of "buttes of wild boar smyted to peces, boiledt, hewed small, munched dates, cloves, masse, rassings, safroons, salt, powdar of guinger put there-to, laboured long to gendure well, putt in rond coffyns hardened in the fire."

Such pies, the recipe states, were "worth their weight in diaman and guarded by knights in doble-row for feare of thiffes."

Today, mince meat is usually made three or four weeks before Christmas. So those who have their heart set on an aromatic mouthful of mince pie should take notice immediately. One of the most favored mince meat recipes in Canada is as follows:

Canadian Christmas Mince Meat

Core, but don't peel, 3 lbs. of apples, chop finely in a chopper. Wash 2 lbs. each currants and seedless raisins in a collander under running water. Drain and place them with chopped apples in a stone crock or enamelled container. Add one lb. finely ground suet, free of membranes, one lb. chopped mixed citron, orange and lemon peel, one cup chopped assorted nut meats, one lb. blanched chopped almonds, 2 teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon freshly ground peppercorns, one tablespoon each ground nutmeg, cloves and cinnamon, 2 cups dark brown sugar, one cup sherry and one-half cup each orange and lemon juice. Stir mixture until well blended. Keep covered and stir well every day. When mince meat is ready for use, add sherry to taste.

What would Christmas be without a plum pudding? Here is a recipe for delicious

Christmas Plum Pudding

Combine one-half cup fine stale spongecake crumbs with 1 cup hot milk. Let mixture stand for 20 minutes. Beat 4 whole eggs with 2 tablespoons each brown sugar, granulated sugar and rum Add this to the milk-crumb mixture, alternating with one-half lb ground beef kidney suet. Mix together three-quarter cup bread flour, one scant teaspoon salt, one teaspoon ground nutmeg, one-half teaspoon each ground mace, cloves and cinnamon and sift these ingredients once.

Into a large mixing bowl, place three-quarter cup each seedles raisins, chopped figs and candied chopped cherries, one-half cup each dried dates, almonds and pecans, all chopped, one-half cup seeded raisins, one-quarter cup each finely chopped walnuts, candied orange peel, plain lemon peel and citron, and 2 tablespoons each finely chopped candied apricots and candied pineapple. Sift over these ingredients in the flour-spice mixture, tossing well to flour the fruits and nut meats. Combine this with the cake crumb and suet mixture, stirring well, and moiste with a cup of dry white wine.

Turn mixture into a generously buttered mold, tie over the mold a cheese-cloth and cover tightly to seal. Steam for 3½ to 3¾ hours in constantly boiling water, adding more boiling water as necessary. Remove mold from the water and cool. Pack pudding into hot, sterilized jars and store in a cool, dark, dry place to allow pudding to ripen and mellow. When ready to serve, steam again for an hour Unmold pudding, pour over it 3 tablespoons rum or brandy, which burns better if first warmed and set aflame.

Fresh Pear, Celery, Nut Salad

Three ripe pears, lemon juice, 2 (3-ounce) packages of cream cheese, mayonnaise, few grains of salt, half-cup cream, whipped, 2 cups diced celery, half-cup of chopped nuts, iceberg lettuce

Peel, half and core pears. Sprinkle with lemon juice to prevent darkening. Blend just enough mayonnaise into cheese to make it smooth and fluffy. Add salt to taste. Fold into whipped cream. Add celery. Arrange pears on lettuce cups. Top with cheese mixture and garnish with nuts.

Looking for a main dish that's easy and uses plentiful foods? Here it is:

Sausage Sweet Potato Pie

One and one-half cups (three-quarters pound) sausage meat, one tablespoon rich prepared mustard, 2 cups cooked mashed sweet potatoes, 2 tablespoons of sausage drippings, half-teaspoon salt, 2 cups tart applesauce, fresh or canned (No. 2 can). Mix the sausage meat and the rich prepared mustard. Fry until meat separates into cook particles. Whip the sweet potatoes with the sausage drippings and the salt.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Mother Good Indication Sort of Wife Girl Will Be

A young man who is about to be married asks me if I will give him a few tips about how to make his marriage a success. He says that when a girl is about to set sail on the stormy sea of matrimony everybody loads her down with advice, but that no one ever throws a hint by way of a life preserver to the bridegroom, although he is in just as much need of a chart and compass as the bride is.

Dorothy Dix

This is well. It is a helpful sign to find out that a man expects to go fifty-fifty with his wife on making a happy home and keeping her glad that she married him, instead of wondering why she did.

Now my first piece of advice to any bridegroom is to pick out his mother-in-law first. Don't look at the girl. Look at her mother, and listen to her mother talk, and observe how mother treats her husband, because ninety-nine times out of a hundred that will give you a close-up of what her daughter is going to be at 45 and how she will treat you if you marry her.

Study Habits

Next, make an intensive study of the bundle of inherited traits and habits and contradictions and nerves and temper that you are tying up with. Most men never really get acquainted with their wives. A husband can live with his wife for 40 years without ever discovering why she does certain things and reacts in a certain way to certain other things.

Furthermore, in your investigation in feminine psychology I would urge you to pay attention to these three peculiarities of the sex:

First. That women never shed their sweet tooth, no matter how old they get. At 90 they still crave to be fed on love talk and to be treated as if they were brides Hence, if you want to keep your wife happy, never cease courting her. Give her plenty of hot air and she will not ask for anything else.

Second. Never forget that women put more stress on words than on deeds. A man may work himself to death to lap his wife in luxury, but she will doubt his love and consider herself a poor abused creature if he never mentions the state of his affections to her. But if he will tell her every day how he loves her, she will take in boarders to support him and thank God on her knees for having given her a pearl among husbands.

Third. Remember that women put an inordinate value on little things. You may beat a woman. You may starve her. You may neglect her. And she will still be happy if you will only take her out on an occasional party and remember anniversaries and send her now and then a bunch of flowers.

Be Diplomatic

Use diplomacy in handling your wife. Don't batter yourself to pieces against the stone wall of her peculiarities. Step around them. Dont antagonize her. Placate her. Sugar catches more feminine flies than vinegar does

If you want your wife to be economical, don't knock her extravagance. Praise her thrift. If you want her to be a good housekeeper, don't criticize her bad cooking. Laud her pies and she will break her neck to come up to your good opinion of her.

Don't get married under the hallucination that two can live as cheaply as one, to say nothing of a possible three or four or five or six. Don't expect your wife to be a miracle-worker and run a house on air. Realize that matrimony is an expensive luxury and the upkeep of a baby costs as much as to run an automobile. Then when the bills come in you won't have heart failure or row with your wife over them.

Finally, keep on selling yourself to your wife. You study ways of pleasing your employers or your customers and making yourself solid with them. Use the same tactics in dealing with your wife Just remember that getting married is the biggest business deal you will ever get into, and put as much intelligence and energy and patience into making a go of it as you would in any enterprise out of which you expected to make a million.

And, if you do, you will make a success of it.

How to Play Canasta

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority
Written for NEA Service

The chance of making a Canasta is obviously better if you have 20 cards than if you have 11. Paradoxically, your chance of getting rid of all your cards is also greater The more different sets you can meld, the greater the chance that you will be able to get rid of your last few cards by laying off.

The effect here is double-acting. In drawing from the stock, the abstract chance is better to get one of, say, five ranks, than one of two ranks. At the same time, your five different melds limit the opponents' safe discards more than do two melds.

The more melds you have, of course, the more points you score. But a word of warning: do not exaggerate the importance of this reason for wanting to take the pack. If you are a 500 Rummy player, you will perhaps have an impulse to meld everything in sight. But in Canasta, the point values of the melds (usually under 300) weigh relatively little against the big scores — the Canasta bonus (300 or 500), the net gain by going out before the opponents have made a Canasta or before they have melded at all.

Sometimes, as we shall see, the chance of hooking a big score is better served by not melding. The loss in points that you might have melded (usually under 50) is then trifling.

When we say that the paramount object is to get the pack, we mean, of course, a big pack. A pack of, say, 10 or more cards is usually worth taking at some sacrifice, and when the pack grows to 20 or more, the side that gets it will almost surely have a decisive advantage.

But do not scorn the pack merely because it is small. There is often tactical advantage in taking only a few cards; this is most likely to happen (a) when the pack is taken for the first time, to make an initial meld, and (b) when you have only a few cards left and nothing better to do than take cards to lay off and so build toward Canastas.

The first pack is often the biggest, and in any case taking it is likely to give you a lasting "edge." To make an initial meld, you have to deplete your hand and therefore weaken its scoring prospects; if you can replenish it by taking the pack at the same time, this disadvantage disappears.

That Tired Feeling Mental Says Expert

EDINBURGH (CP). — That tired feeling of which many Britons complain nowadays is due, not to under-feeding, but to the "monotony and frustration of post war life," says Dr. A. P. Meiklejohn of Edinburgh University.

"The lack of free choice in diet certainly contributes to this monotony," he said, although Britons generally were "better fed than their forbears."

"The average British diet during the war years contained adequate amounts of the better-known vitamins and other nutrients. Since then the national diet has not altered in any important aspect, except that more fruit is now available."

For that reason, he said, the tired feeling was probably mental more than physical.

DEFIANT — Former Bulgarian Vice-Premier Traicho Kostov, on trial for treason and spying with ten others in Sofia, created a sensation by pleading not guilty. Kostov's plea was a defiance of the usual Communist purge trial pattern. But his co-defendants all confessed and implicated Kostov.

Footmen Practising To Dance With Queen

LONDON, —(CP)—In their off-duty hours the King's servants are preparing for the biggest dancing events of the year—the annual staff balls at Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle, held in the week before Christmas.

The King has given permission for the palace ball to be held in the state rooms and has said he hopes to attend. Last year illness kept him away.

The Queen and Princess Margaret are certain to attend, as they have done for years past, and will dance with male member of the staff.

Special classes in Scottish and old English country dances which the Queen likes, are being given in the servants' hall, so that butlers, footmen and pages may partner her with confidence.

Each servant is allowed to bring one guest. A West End dance band and an "old-time" orchestra are being engaged Whisky, beer and soft drinks will be served at the buffet, and there will be vension pies made to a recipe of Queen Victoria's from venison shot by the King.

Arrangements for both dances are in the hands of a small committee headed by Sir Piers Legh, master of the King's household.

Mince Pie

Spread over bottom and sides of a greased 9 or 10-inch pie plate or shallow casserole. Pour in the applesauce. Top with cooked mustard-flavored sausage. Heat thoroughly in a moderate oven (350-375 degrees F.) 20 to 30 minutes.

Here's a variation on the carrot theme:

Twelve whole carrots, quarter-cup salad oil, melted butter or fortified margarine, 1½ cups cornflakes, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Cook carrots in boiling salted water, covered, only until just tender. Dip in oil, then in finely crushed cornflakes to which salt and pepper have been added. Arrange in pan and broil until the cornflakes are toasted, about five minutes. Baste twice with remaining oil while toasting.

Looking for a special treat for the family? Or a de luxe surprise for guests? Try this:

Eggnog Pie

Five tablespoons cream corn starch, half-teaspoon salt, one cup extra-sweet corn syrup, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, separated, 2 tablespoons butter, quarter-teaspoon nutmeg, one teaspoon vanilla, quarter-cup rum, brandy or sherry flavoring, quarter-cup extra-sweet corn syrup, one 9-inch baked pie shell.

Combine cream corn starch, salt and one cup corn syrup. Gradually add milk. Heat to boiling over direct heat and then boil gently one minute, stirring constantly. Add hot mixture to beaten egg yolks. Return to heat and continue cooking 2 minutes. Add butter, nutmeg, vanilla and rum flavoring. Beat egg whites until still, but not dry. Gradually beat in the quart-cup of corn syrup Carefully fold egg whites into filling. Pour into baked pie shell Chill thoroughly. Top with Silvered almonds and shaved chocolate.

Old-Fashioned Red Jelly Tarts

Two and one-quarter cups all-purpose flour 1½ teaspoons baking powder, half-teaspoon salt, half-cup butter, one cup sugar, 2 eggs, well beaten, one teaspoon of vanilla extract, one tablespoon of milk or cream, tart jelly.

Sift flour on square waxed paper once, measure, add baking powder and salt; sift again. Cream butter in mixing bowl with wooden spoon. Add sugar gradually and continue to mix until light and fluffy. Add eggs, vanilla extract and milk ; beat thoroughly: Add sifted dry ingredients gradually and blend. Chill until dough is firm enough to handle, about two hours. Roll out dough one-eighth inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut half the cookies with floured doughnuts cutter, the other half with floured plain round cookie cutter. Bake on ungreased cookie sheets in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for 10 to 12 minutes. Turn the plain round cookies upside down and spread bottom of each with one teaspoon bright red jelly. Top each with a ring cookie.

British Plastics Fill Many Needs Post-War Home

By MURIEL NARRAWAY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Nov. (CP)—British women have become plastic-conscious.

More and better plastics in all kinds of household articles are finding a ready market in Britain. Sometimes they take the place of pre-war articles still for export only; at other times they break new ground.

Taking the place of china gone overseas are the tea, dinner and coffee sets made in attractive opaque or transparent, pastel-shaded plastic.

Because these are so much more attractive than the heavy utility china allowed for the home market, they are becoming increasingly popular. But, according to shoppers, this is one plastic product that will have a short life when good china returns to the home market. Every china export reject appearing in the stores is snapped up in a hurry.

Breaking new ground are the many sets of attractively-designed plastic cocktail shakers with glasses to match. Because of the propensity cocktail glasses have of getting broken, this product is making a place for itself—especially in the long-stemmed variety.

Another new product is the durable sheet of plastic-veneered plywood or all-plastic compressed board that can be put to many uses. Two favorite uses are for the kitchen table and the draining board.

Fireproof, Washable

The sheeting is pastel-colored, washable, heat proof and fire proof. A lighted cigaret can be left to burn out leaving only a brown mark that can be washed off.

It is especially useful because hot pots and pans can be set down on it without danger of leaving a heat rim.

There are many attractive plastic curtain materials that can be washed like any other material.

Popular for furniture is the plastic that looks like a good-quality leather. It is hard-wearing and washable, which makes it particularly suitable for nursery furniture.

Plastic wallpapers — although still expensive—are finding a market because they are durable and washable. Plastic floorcovering has also proved successful.

A new product with a big future, in this country of outside plumbing, is plastic pipe for cold water only. It will not burst in cold weather and has been successfully tested for a year.

Lonely Outpost Is Now Bustling

HALIFAX — (CP) — Capt. Arthur Tobin found that Sable Island has changed somewhat since he left the lonely strip of land 48 years ago at the age of 17.

Capt. Tobin visited the scene of his childhood recently after travelling from his present home in Los Angeles.

One of the most surprising scenes of Capt. Tobin was a jeep running around the 30-mile-long island, 100 miles east of Halifax. He found a group of department of transport men erecting quonset huts for the staff that runs the outpost. They have already built a 10-room staff house and included in the construction plans are a power house, garage, barn and two warehouses.

The workmen have been experimenting in the use of local sand in making cement instead of using imported material and have found that the new method is standing up much better under the strain of the elements.

Capt. Tobin discovered cranberries still grow on Sable; they are noted for their size and quality. He also discovered that the sand was still blowing into and on everything.

Sable Island is an important weather station. In addition to this work, the men have to see that the proper lights are maintained to warn seafarers of the dangerous, sand-dune covered island, commonly known as the "graveyard of the Atlantic."

THIS CANADIAN DESIGNED DRESS of black velvet and taffeta is cleverly cut into square design.

Not All Teachers Play Like Virtuosos

LINCOLSHIRE, Eng. — (CP) — Purchase of an electric phonograph to teach musical appreciation to schoolchildren caused disharmony among the education committee at Sutton, St. James.

"Aren't we getting too many gadgets?" asked A. D. R. Salter. "What is becoming of teacher's personality with regard to his class? Is all we want somebody to put on records and then sit down while the records do the work?

Replied Arthur Alexander, a teacher member of the committee:

"Not all teachers are Rachmaninoffs or Mark Hambourgs. Therefore if they are expected to teach musical appreciation they must do so with mechanical aids."

On 'Phone All Day Marriage Is Easy

PETERMARITZBURG, South Africa, —(CP)—A high marriage rate is a reason for the shortage to telephone operators in South Africa, Postmaster-General L. C. Burke told the Association of Chambers of Commerce congress here.

"I suppose it is one of the consequences of their form of employment. They establish contacts, as it were, and away they go.

A training school for telephone operators which will contribute to an improved service is being established, Mr. Burke aded.

Asks Forgiveness

ROME, Dec. 10 — (AP). — A trolley conductor handed to Pope Pius a dagger with which he once had planned to kill him and asked his forgiveness, the Rome newspaper Il Tempo reported today. The dramatic scene occurred Thursday night in the Pontiff's private chapel after a special rosary service attended by a small group of street car workers and Vatican laborers, the newspaper said. An unofficial Vatican source confirmed the story.

Find Tension Continuing To Grip United Nations Fourth Assembly

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 —(CP)— The first United Nations' legislative acts in major political and economic spheres contrasted today with the tougher-than-ever East-West taunts in the record of the U.N's fourth Assembly.

The session opened Sept. 20 with fervent hopes expressed by assembly president Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines that it would be a "peace assembly." After 12 weeks, the series of bitter recriminations exchanged between Russia and the western powers out-weighed the bids for co-operation.

Tension built up after President Truman announced there is evidence of an atomic explosion in Russia.

The East-West deadlock on the atomic question remained, yet some delegates held that the assembly marked up achievements.

Shun Soviet

Small countries displayed new disdain for Soviet policy. With Sweden, Burma, India, Iceland and Pakistan coming out of their neutral corner, the western powers won unprecedented majorities unprecedented sFoaO cmf cm cm on the key issues of peace proposals and atomic energy control —in which Canada was a leader.

However, exasperation with the cold war and the minor role they were bidden to play in the world organization was voiced by some smaller powers.

The smaller countries cast the deciding votes Nov. 21 when the U. N. acted for the first time as a world legislature in disposing of Mussolini's former African Empire.

The adventure in state-making provided for setting up independent countries in Libia by 1952 and Italian Somaliland with in 10 years, with Italian Administration under the U. N. meanwhile. A U. U. investigating commission was told to report next year on Eritrea—the third of the strategic colonies.

Severe Test

But the U.N. was put to a severe test on other colonial issues. The colonial powers, led by Britain and France, indicated they will not comply with approved U.N resolutions which they deem unwarranted interference in their non-self-governing territories.

South Africa walked out of a committee in protest over conduct of the debate on southwest Africa, a former league of nations mandated area which South Africa has repeatedly refused to bring under the U. N. trusteeship system.

Despite all squabbles, there was a rare unanimous vote on a plan to aid under-developed countries The Assembly doubled the amount already spent on that type of work, bringing it to $677,000 It also laid the ground for an international conference in March to draft plans for a multi-million dollar project along the same lines.

Continue Battle

Russia and her satellites and the western powers continued their battle on almost all other issues, however.

When Andrei Vishinsky, Russian Foreign Minister, sailed for home he described the session as "unsatisfactory," a view which western delegates ascribed to the overwhelming defeat of Vishinsky's main proposal. That was a call for a pact among the big five powers and prohibition of atomic weapons—linked with condemnation of Britain and the United States as plotters of a new war.

Instead the Assembly gave the western powers the largest majority in U.N. history on a major issue—the vote was 53 to 5 with Yugoslavia abstaining — to approve an anglo-American outline of the essentials for permanent peace.

Attacked by Vishinsky

L. B. Pearson, Canda's External Affairs Minister, was directly attacked by Vishinsky for the first time after he said Russia is waging an aggressive imperialism that threatens the world.

Pearson's statements in the main assembly on peace and atomic control were final proof for most observers that Canada is a major spokesman of the western powers whose opinions receive an attentive ear everywhere.

Canada's importance in atomic matters was indicated when the Dominion joined with France to sponsor a resolution approved by the Assembly. It endorsed the majority plan for atomic controls and called on the big five powers and Canada to continue talks seeking to end the impasse.

Other Action

The Assembly also took action on the following top questions on the 66-item agenda:

China—side-stepping Nationalist China's call for condemnation of Russia and non-recognition of the Chinese Communists, the Assembly urged all countries to keeo hands off China.

Elections—India, Ecuador and Yugoslavia were elected to the 11-member security council to replace Canada, Argentina and the Soviet Ukraine who finished two-year terms Oct. 31. Canada Mexico, Iran, the United States Pakistan and Czechoslovakia were elected to three -year terms on the 18-member economic and social council starting Jan. 1. Pearson's election as chairman of the 59-member political committee was viewed as an indication of the high esteem accorded him by most delegates.

WA Adopts Group System

MILLBROOK, Dec. 10—(ENS)—St. Andrew's United Church Women's Association met at the parsonage on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Allie Payne, the president, in the chair. The worship service, under the direction of Mrs. David Lunn, had as its theme the Christmas message. It dealt with the boyhood of Christ.

After the minutes and the roll call were read by the secretary, Mrs. Laurence Winslow, the treasurer, Mrs. J. T. Crowley, reported that $236 had been made at the bazaar held Nov. 26.

The following committee for Christmas cheer was appointed: Miss Josie Sutton, Mrs. Percy Stinson and Mrs. P. I. Bentley.

The president, in reporting on the year's work, stated that the society had raised more than $800 throughout 1949.

Rev. T. G. Husser presided for the election of officers. A lengthy discussion as to whether or not the group system should be adopted was held. It was decided that this system should be tried for one year with the society divided into four groups — north, south, east and west.

It was decided that each group should be responsible for one's activity, and that the money raised should be budgeted. In this way it was felt responsibility would not rest too heavily on one person or one group.

The groups are to meet monthly and the association as a whole, quarterly.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. Payne; secretary, Mrs. L. Winslow; treasurer, Mrs. J. T. Crowley; devotional leader, Mrs. David Lunn.

Candy was served by the hostess, Mrs. T. G. Husser.

Trenton OC, 3 Others Die In Crash

One Engine On Fire Before Crack-Up Witnesses Testify

TRENTON, Dec. 12 (CP) — A Mitchell training plane of the Royal Canadian Air Force on a special weather observation flight crashed in a drizzle of rain Sunday, bringing death to its four occupants including the commanding officer of the RCAF Central Training School here.

Witnesses said the engine of the plane was on fire as it tried to make a landing at the big air base, scraping a hilltop and plunging to the ground on the shore of the Bay of Quinte.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Denis C. L. Webber, of the Royal Air Force, was at the controls. His body with a parachute attached was found 1,000 feet from the wreckage.

The other victims were FO. Leo Vincent Pepin, 25 of Ottawa co-pilot; LAC William G. Nesom, 24 of Wetaskiwin, Alta., a meteorological observer; and LAC. Ailan V. MacIntosh, 29, of Dunvegan, Ont., an engine technician.

Webber was commandant of the flying school. A native of England, he arrived in Canada last February on exchange posting from the RAF. He won the DFC for sinking a German submarine while on north Atlantic patrol. He brought his wife and young daughter here from England, and his term with the RCAF would have been completed in another year.

Leave Survivors

MacIntosh leaves his wife and three-year-old daughter at Trenton. Nesom, who re-enlisted this year at Edmonton after service in the Second World War, is survived by his widow. Pepin, unmarried is survived by his parents in Ottawa.

The Sunday flight, which started early in rain with skies overcast, was a special meteorological test.

Robert Verge of the Federal Transport Department, a weather expert, was prevented from making the flight at the last minute

Police Details Guard Kootenays

NELSON, BC, Dec. 12 (CP)—Special police details will be sworn in to meet Canadian Pacific Railroad Workers' demands for 24-hour-a-day police protection in this Doukhobor country, an authoritative source said on Sunday night.

Plans for around-the-clock patrols of railway bridges and strategic linepoints will get under way today to prevent recurrence of track bombings by the Doukhobor's fanatical Sons of Freedom sect.

Up to now, only railroad maintenance men have been guarding the bridges at night in case of renewed terrorism. The railway men want this job transferred "to the law."

Sixty trains, preceded by patrolling speeders, operate daily in this Kootenay division, about 550 miles from Vancouver. The shack-like homes of the fanatical Doukhobors fringe the tracklines.

Barking Farm Dog Aids 3 Lost Hunters

MEAFORD, Ont., Dec. 12 — (CP)—A barking farm dog assisted three lost and exhausted Toronto hunters to find the warmth of a Vincent township farmhouse 10 miles south of here Saturday night.

On a jack rabbit drive, the three became separated from companions when Martin (Monty) Mountfield, 70, Toronto Art College, was forced to drop behind from exhaustion. He gave credit to his companions, Peter Bitter, 29, and George James, 35, who carried his gun and pack.

"We kept firing our guns and followed the sound of a dog until we reached the farm house of Maurice Brown," said George James.

Underground Worker Dies In Crash

Escaped German Captors, Served Nine Months Safely In France

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP). — LAC. Vincent MacIntosh, who died in an RCAF plane crash Sunday, spent nine months with the French underground after escaping from his German captors, the RCAF disclosed today.

LAC. MacIntosh, 29, was flying with No. 434 Squadron, a Canadian heavy-bomber unit, when his aircraft was shot down by a German night fighter in November, 1943.

He was captured by the German army, escaped the following day and spent nine months underground before getting back to the United Kingdom.

Killed in the crash with him yesterday were Sqdn. Ldr. Denis C. L. Webber, 37, of the Royal Air Force; FO. Leo Pepin, 25, of Ottawa; and LAC. William G. Nesom, 24, of Wetaskiwin, Alta.

LAC. MacIntosh, born at Dunvegan, Ont., was educated at Cornwall, Ont., and joined the RCAF in March, 1943, and trained as an aero-engine mechanic. He became a flight engineer overseas.

He was discharged from the service in December, 1945, and reenlisted in November, 1946. He had been stationed at Trenton since then where his wife and three-year-old daughter still live. His parents live at Dunvegan.

FO. Pepin, 25, was born in California and went to school in Ottawa. He joined the RCAF in 1942 and was transferred to the reserve after graduating as a pilot in August, 1944. He was recalled in June, 1945, later retired and joined the peacetime force in 1948. He had been stationed at Trenton since May, 1949.

New Partnership Planned For Atom Work

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) —The United States, Britain and Canada have virtually completed the broad outlines for a new partnership in the development of atomic energy and atomic bombs. The next move will be for the U. S. State Department to take up the proposals with Congressional leaders.

The proposed plan—which will apparently come to nothing unless Congress is prepared in some way to authorize it—is reported to provide for continued concentration of atomic weapon manufacture in the U. S. It is said to contemplate that British and Canadian scientists would participate in the work.

Under the projected American-British Canadian partnership in the future, Britain would abandon its plans for making A-bombs, as in fact it appears to have done already. This would end the threat of a future British claim to a larger share of the Belgian Congo uranium—the greater part of which now comes to the United States.

Prevent Split Effort

Responsible authorities say there would be several advantages to this arrangement. First, it would assure the western world a maximum of output of atomic bombs of the kind the United States is able to make in the shortest possible time. Second, it would prevent diversion of effort as between the U. S. and Britain. Third, it would mean the continued development of atomic plants including weapons factories, in places remote from any possible European war area.

Britain and Canada, for their part, would continue fully the kind of experimental work which they have been doing. They would have far greater access to so-called atomic secrets than the United States has permitted them in recent years. And apparently they would in emergency have demand rights against the atomic weapon stockpile in the U. S.

However, the arrangement would be based on the pooling of military strength under the North Atlantic Treaty. Under arrangements now in existence, in any war involving the United States and Britain, the task of delivering the atomic bomb would fall on the United States.

German People Now Require Co-operation and Goodwill

By DR. ADENAUER, Chancellor of German Federal Republics

I am very glad of the opportunity to acknowledge my gratitude for the initiative taken by Britain in the steps which led to the Petersberg Protocol. In addition, I should like to stress that we are fully conscious of the fact that the Protocol embodies an act of faith on the part of the Allies as well as on the part of Germany,

Editor's Note: For the first time since his accession to office, Dr. Adenauer, Chancellor of the German Federal Republic, directly addresses Britain and the Commonwealth in an exclusive interview granted the London Observer and sent special to the Examiner. The interview represents a major political act on the part of the German Chancellor. His recent stress on the 'pivotal importance" of French-German relations has been interpreted in some diplomatic quarters as indicating a policy aimed at a French-German Continental block to the exclusion of Britain. Dr. Adenauer faces this suspicion frankly. He gives his reasons for regarding the full co-operation of Britain ni the development of European security and prosperity as "not merely desirable but essential." "The security of Europe," he declares, "cannot be assured unless Britain is a full and leading partner in the collaboration on which it is based, and unless the member nations of the Commonwealth are closely associated with her in this."

and that it represents a step which it was by no means easy for them to take.

Attention has been drawn to the interview in which just before the negotiations, you underlined the importance of German-French relations. It is to be understood that you regard the understanding between Germany and France as the chief feature of the Protocol?

The importance of the Protocol lies in the fact that it initiates the collaboration of Germanywith the Allies in developing a sense of security in Europe. Apart from this Germany has undertaken that there will be no rearmament on her part and Germany is to take part in international organizations. The aim must be a general European collaboration, and that is unthinkable without a Franco-German understanding. Therefore, a Franco-German understanding had to be achieved before any further progress could be made.

Is it to be understood that the change in the dismantling policy should be regarded as a less important part of the agreement than people generally believe?

Tornadoes and Blizzard Lash Across US, Kill 11

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 —(AP)— Screeching tornadoes, a whistling blizzard and flashing lightning killed at least 11 persons in various parts of the United States during the week-end.

The known deaths from other causes indirectly attributed to the weather had mounted to 34.

Property damage from the tornadoes which lashed north central Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Illinois was high. Arkansas alone estimated its damage might reach $100,000.

All the tornado dead are in Arkansas and Missouri. The twisters hammered six Arkansas communities Sunday, killed three persons and injured 10. The communities hit were Clinton, Beedee, Velvet Ridge, Cross Roads, Providence and Bradford.

Near Poplar Bluff, in southeastern Missouri, six persons were killed and 15 injured by a tornado which cut through 10 miles of farm area.

Nine-year-old Junia Kay Loveless was killed by lightning as she stood in the doorway of a smokehouse on the family's farm near Modesto, Ill. At Miles City, Mont., a 98-year-old retired stockman was found dead of exposure to a blizzard which had swept the Rocky Mountain area.

The blizzard had moved eastward with diminishing force today into northern Minnesota, but the entire Great Lakes region was buffeted by strong winds.

Meanwhile, the eastern half of the country was enjoying record high temperatures Sunday at some points. At Chicago, the mercury hit 61 degrees for a Dec. 11 all-time high.

Blast Wrecks Antique Shop 5 Die, 5 Injured

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., Dec. 12 (AP)—Five persons were killed Sunday night in a violent blast that shattered an antique shop while a fire inspector was searching for the source of escaping gas.

Five other persons were injured. One of them was blown 200 feet.

Only the chimney of the three-storey house remained standing today.

The dead were: Mrs. Edith Jones, 76, co-owner of the antique shop; Wilson Jones, 47, her partially paralyzed son; Lee Carroll, 44, Birmingham fire inspector; Mrs. Ruth Bramson, and Arthur B. Wilson, 56, both guests.

Wilson's body was not found until this morning.

Wilson's wife, Florence, was in serious condition at hospital. She was found in a ravine 200 feet from the house.

The blast shook this quiet and fashionable suburb north of Detroit at 9 p.m. Flames leaped 100 feet in the air. Windows were broken over an area of three square miles.

First Blizzard Hits Manitoba

WINNIPEG, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Southern Manitoba today began digging itself out from under the winter's first blizzard.

A howling wind up to 40 miles per hour swirled five to eight inches of snow from the Saskatchewan border to Kenora, Ont., and south into North Dakota Sunday. The weatherman said it would blow itself out by noon today.

Telephone and telegraph communications were snarled, traffic was almost at a standstill in large centres, and motorists were warned to keep off country roads.

Telegraph and telephone wires were down in some places. All over the south church services were cancelled in small towns.

A chartered bus carrying the University of Manitoba basketball team from Ellendale, Minn., was stranded at Hallock, Minn.

2 Emaciated Officials Handed Over By Reds

SEOUL, Dec. 12—(AP)—Two emaciated American officials were back from North Korea today after 81 days' confinement by Communists.

They were returned Sunday. The pro-Soviet regime indicated it had given up on its apparent attempt to get some form of United States recognition in exchange for the economic co-operation administration aides, who were delivered to them by a muntinous ship's crew.

Albert E. Willis, 40, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Alfred T. Mescher, 28, of Kinderhook, N.Y., shocked Willis' blonde little wife with their appearance.

Mrs. Beatrice Willis estimated her husband must have lost 60 pounds.

Relief Funds Help Keep 90 Children

Welfare People Say Desertions Reach Wholesale Proportions

TIMMINS, Dec. 12 (CP)—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of 30 Timmins men who have deserted their wives and more than 90 children, police said today.

George Reid, welfare administrator, said 12 of the women were pregnant when deserted. He said desertions in this Northern Ontario mining community of 27,000 have assumed "wholesale proportions."

Most of the men are in their late 20's and early 30s and came her in recent years to work in the mines. In addition to the 30 for whom warrants have been issued, 26 men have been charged with desertion since the first of the year, said Police Chief Albert Lepic.

"Right now we are investigating reports that two of the men are as far away as Yellowknife but most of the others seem to have vanished completely," he said.

Mr. Reid said the deserted wives and children were barely able to maintain themselves on relief allowances because of increased living costs.

Police said the rate of desertions was 10 higher than the average rate in Southern Ontario communities of similar size.

25 Comic Books Tossed Out

TORONTO, Dec. 12—(CP)—The Canadian comic book industry which annually sells 40,000,000 comic books has discontinued publication of 25 such books which may be affected by the new amendment to the criminal code outlawing crime comics. The amendment goes into force today.

A committee representing publishers, national distributors and printing houses met here during the week-end and was said unanimous in the belief that comic books coming within the definition of crime comics should be discontinued immediately. The conference decided to circularize every retailer in Canada giving the titles of publications which in the opinion of the committee should be removed from sale.

The titles to be discontinued include: All-True Crime, Amazing Mysteries, Crimefighters, Crime Reporter, Crime Does Not Pay, Crime and Punishment, Crimes By Women, Crime Patrol, Casey Crime Photographer, Detective, Famous Crimes, Gangbuster, Guilty, Suspense, Headline Justice, Lawbreakers, Mr. District Attorney, Man, True Crimes, True Police Cases, Wanted, War Against Crime, Wooden Outlaws and Western True Crimes.

Woman Saves Life Small Granddaughter

TORONTO, Dec. 12 — (CP) — A 47-year-old woman's expert driving was credited today with saving the life of her nine-month-old granddaughter.

The grandmother, Mrs. Wesley Styles, drove the 85 miles from Niagara Falls, Ont., to Toronto in less than 1½ hours Sunday when the child was stricken with acute dysentery. Officials at the Hospital for Sick Children here said the quick trip probably saved the child's life.

Provincial police escorted Mrs. Styles and the baby to the city limits where Toronto police took over.

Mrs. Styles said she is an expert truck driver with thousands of miles to her credit. She operated a truck in her husband's trucking business when drivers became scarce owing to wartime enlistments.

35 Oppose Sport

TORONTO, Dec. 12 (CP) — A Toronto paper says today that a survey shows 35 of the 52 candidates for civic office in the Jan. 2 Toronto municipal elections are opposed to Sunday sport. Six favored Sunday sport, 10 were undecided and one was not available for comment.

Premier Chang Set Free By Deserters

HONG KONG, Dec. 12 (AP)—Former premier Chang Chun arrived here by plane today after his release by Nationalist deserters in Kunming.

Chang Chun was caught, along with four top Nationalist army commanders, when turncoat troops took over the city for the Communists. He had gone there Friday to hold the governor of Yunhan province, Lu Han, in the Nationalist camp.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek narrowly missed going to Kunming at the same time, Nationalist sources revealed, and apparently would have been caught in the same trap.

Chiang Kai-shek, meanwhile, was reported from the Nationalists' island fortress of Formosa to be executing Red agents and preparing for an expected Communist attack on the island.

Authorities on Formosa executed 11 alleged Red agents Sunday. More than 100 others were reported arrested.

Intelligence reports received by the Nationalists pointed up the expected Red offensive against Formosa. These were that Russian military advisers were with Communist forces near the Crushan Islands. A large scale attack is expected against these islands as a preparation for the offensive against Formosa.

Take Some Action

At Manila, the United States has informed the Phillipines government that it will "take positive action to counteract the Communist threat to Formosa," a high source at Malacanan Palace said today.

The source added that it was understood the U.S. would send adequate arms to enable Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to hold his last Nationalist stronghold.

(Washington sources said Sunday that the United States was prepared to give Chiang economic and diplomatic support, but not new military air, in his effort to turn Formosa into a fortress against Chinese Communists.

No Food Contracts For '50 Gardiner Reports, Farmers Getting Worried

Show Little Sympathy With UK Plan Canada Cut Prices Further; US Surplus Under Marshall Plan Problem

OTTAWA, Dec. 12—(CP)—Canadian farmers are both fearful and alarmed at the prospects of future markets, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said today. He said, however, that decision had been made which suggested "these fears may be over-emphasized." He did not indicate what these decisions were. He made the statements in a speech delivered at a closed session of the Dominion - Provincial Agricultural Conference. Copies of his address were later distributed to the press.

Mr. Gardiner said the fear springs from two facts. One was that farmers no longer could depend on a "free market" in the United Kingdom.

The other was their uncertainty as to what foodstuffs the United States might declare surplus under Marshall-Plan aid and the effect this might have on world markets.

The minister, who before the conference indicated in an interview that Canada has as yet no food contracts with the U.K. for 1950, said in his address that the farmers "have some reason for being concerned about the future."

Could Remove Fears

He indicated that if some method could be found by Canada, the United States and the U.K. to remove these fears, it would go a long way to establishing confidence in the minds of the farmers.

"The farm production during 1949 was as nearly balanced with effective demand as in any year since 1939. The return per unit for that production has been as high as at any time. The gross and net return for farm products promises to compare favorably with our best years," he added.

In a brief interview before the conference opened, he said no contracts for 1950 had yet been signed with the U.K.

Thugs Smash Safe Get $10,000 Loot

TORONTO, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Safecrackers got an estimated $10,000 in cash, bonds and securities when they smashed open the safe of the Federal Moving and Storage Co.

The manager of the company said there was a $5,100 payroll in the safe and that officials of the emergency housing project, which shared the office, had "quite a bit of money in the safe." The robbery was committed sometime during the night.

Thieves got $800 when two other safe jobs resulted in one being opened and a second attempt abandoned.

Headquarters of the Canadian Mission Society, in a west-end private home, was robbed of $435 in cash and cheques.

Ward and Party of 19 Free Climb Aboard US Ship

ABOARD LAKELAND VICTORY, OFF TIENTSIN, Dec. 12 —(AP)—Angus Ward and his party of 19 are free, at last, from red China . . . and feeling "Just how you'll feel after St. Peter lets you in!"

It was the first time in 13 months Ward had been able to move without an armed escort. And 28 days of that time he was in a Chinese Communist Jail, in solitary confinement at Mukden, where he was United States Consul-General. On 24 of those days he was kept in unheated, or underheated quarters in freezing temperatures.

Ward, a native of Alvinston, Ont., lost 25 pounds.

His jail menu was six slices of bread daily . . . and hot water.

"That's not a very strengthening or fattening diet," he quipped.

For all members of the party, including Mrs. Ward, several women and some children, it was the first time they had not been under red surveillance since Nov. 20, 1948. On that date the Reds closed the Consulate and clamped such secrecy on their movements and fate that even the U.S. State Department knew virtually nothing about them.

Even their final departure, under Red deportation orders on phoney charges, was delayed by red tape.

For some time today, only Ward was permitted to board this ship.

Before they would permit the other 19 to come up the gangway, the Communists demanded the Consul General sign a statement that they boarded "safely and without molestation."

Ward balked: He said he would not sign until all members of his party were brought onto the ship. But they were held on the tug on which they had been brought from Tientsin.

Finally, Ward signed and all 19 came aboard.

Capt. Paul Sexton of the Lakeland also was forced to sign a statement for the Reds. In it he "assumed full responsibility" for the entire group and their belongings.

Plan To Force All Parties Publish Accounts

LONDON, Dec. 12 (Reuters)—A controversy in parliament over anti-nationalization propaganda will be brought on to the floor of the Commons Thursday on a motion by four Labor members demanding that all political parties should publish annual accounts.

The motion asked that such accounts should be required also by "all other organizations having political action as one of their aims."

The controversy, given special point by the nearness of a general election, has centred on campaign against nationalization such as that of Tate and Lyle, the big sugar firm, against the public ownership of the refining industry proposed in Labor's "second five-year plan."

Government statements on anti-nationalization propaganda in parliament last week left the impression that under the electoral law the cost might in certain circumstances be debited to the expenses of candidates—which have a strict legal "ceiling." A candidature can be invalidated by excess election expenses.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, attorney-general, told parliament that in his view the prohibition of certain expenditure on propaganda calculated to influence an election was not necessarily restricted to propaganda in which any particular candidate was expressly referred to. Nor, he added, was it necessarily confined to expenditure incurred only after dissolution of parliament or the issue of a writ for an election or nomination of a candidate.

He indicated that the legislation had provisions which dealt with expenditure permitted "in connection with propaganda calculated to promote one candidature at an election or to disparage another."

Delay Hearing In Airline Case

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP) — A public hearing of the Air Transport Board at which Colonial Air Lines was ordered to "show cause" why its Canadian licence should not be suspended was adjourned today until 2 p.m. EST.

The adjournment was announced as soon as the Board met.

It was understood several officials of Colonial and Trans-Canada Air Lines had not yet arrived in Ottawa for the hearings.

Colonial was ordered to appear before the three-man board and give reasons against suspension of its licence to operate on a direct route between Montreal and New York.

Spring-Like Weather Won't Last—Warning

TORONTO, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Southern Ontario basked today in mild, bright, spring-like weather after a foggy weekend but weathermen warned it will not last.

High temperature for today was forecast at 50 degrees above zero at Toronto but the mercury was expected to drop tonight to 20 above.

Swirling fog covered the southern half of the province during the weekend and freezing rain fell in central and northeastern Ontario.

Food Imports From Canada Not Wanted

Gardiner Raps U.K. For Attitude On 1950 Contracts

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Commons Saturday the official attitude of the United Kingdom on trade is that it doesn't want to import any food from Canada at any price except wheat.

As far as wheat was concerned, the UK wanted it at the same price as under the four-year contracts. The contracts now are in their final year during which the price is $2 a bushel.

Mr. Gardiner said he is not prepared to say whether Canada will have any contracts at all for food with the United Kingdom this year. Discussions were still going on.

"We're being told that they just don't want it," he said.

The Agriculture Minister delivered a lengthy speech on the history of British-Canadian trade during which he said there had been an official change in the UK reaction two years ago.

Before then the UK had been prepared to accept as much of Canadian food for export as possible. In the fall of 1947 that policy had changed.

Won't Give Names

"I'm not going to attempt to say who changed it," Mr. Gardiner declared.

Last year, Mr. Gardiner said, the UK accepted under Canadian pressure some 160,000,000 pounds of bacon and 46,000,000 dozen eggs.

This year they didn't want either the eggs or the bacon.

M. J. Coldwell CCF leader, who initiated the discussion of trade, asked whether the UK dosn't want them or hasn't got the dollars to pay for them.

It doesn't matter how it is said, Mr. Gardiner replied. The official position is "that they don't want it."

The discussion arose after Mr. Coldwell asked Mr. Gardiner to explain the reasons he had for making the "startling charge" in Brantford last week that there was an official move in the UK to drive Canadian food products off the market.

Not First Time

Mr. Gardiner said it wasn't the first time he had expressed the contention that Canada was being pushed out of the UK market by official action. He had said it in London a year ago and had made that statement previously in the Commons.

He read the contentious Brantford speech into the Commons record.

During the last few years "a "very decided official effort" has been made to drive Canada out of every UK food market except wheat, he said.

Now that the four-year agreement on wheat is drawing to a close (it ends next July) there was an attempt to drive off considerable of the wheat market.

Mr. Gardiner described it as a "deliberate onslaught" against Canadian products.

All through the war, he said, Canada exceeded the bacon contract to the UK and finally reached the record shipment of 700,000,000 pounds of bacon in one 12-month period.

Driver Robbed, Slugged Shoved Over 200-Ft. Cliff By Thugs Near Pickering

OSHAWA, Dec. 12—(CP)—Thugs who beat and robbed Jack Truman, 32, of Kingston Saturday night left him in his car and then pushed it over a cliff on the highway near Pickering. Truman was not seriously hurt although the car rolled down a 200-foot embankment and struck a tree. "I thought it was the end," Truman said in hospital. He had crawled out of the car and stopped a passing motorist who brought him here. He was treated for head injuries suffered when hit over the head with a crank handle. He told police he was robbed of $18.

Police later arrested Milk Mills, 22, of Leamington, Ont., and Ross Church, 22, of Toronto, and charged them with robbery with violence.

Truman said he was on his way to Whitby to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Truman of 310 Palace St., for the week-end. He was alone in the car.

Signalled To Stop

It was about 11:30 p.m. as he drove along the highway toward the bridge. Suddenly another car pulled alongside and a man motioned to his rear wheel. He stopped his car and the other car pulled up in front of him.

Truman got out and followed the men to the rear of his car. One of them took off the hub cap on the rear wheel.

"He said, 'look, all the nuts are loose,'" said Truman. "Then he slugged me over the head with a crank handle."

Semi-conscious Truman was dragged off the highway down the bank into the Rouge Valley. He was kicked and beaten. The men removed his wallet containing $18, a gold watch and a cigaret lighter.

The men then dragged him back up the side of the cliff to his car. Truman later recalled that they sat in the car for 15 minutes.

Threatened To Shoot

"During that time they threatened to shoot me," said the victim. He said one man had a gun, the other a knife.

The men argued with each other then one of them started the engine. Truman had his hat jammed over his face.

One man steered the car toward the bridge. The car crashed through a guard rail at the side of the highway just before the bridge. The two men leaped clear.

With Truman still in the car, it rolled on its side. Truman braced himself. The car slid against a tree then continued down the cliff 200 feet to the bottom.

17-Million Pound Surplus Of Cheese

OTTAWA, Dec. 10—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner Saturday in the Commons said Canada has a surplus of 17,000,000 pounds of fresh cheese.

This cheese, he told John Charlton (PC—Brant-Wentworth), was built up in Canada after the United Kingdom had declined to take any more than the 50,000,000 pounds called for in the 1949 Anglo-Canadian cheese contract.

The surplus is being stored and aged and probably will obtain a high price when sold in the United States.

Asked if the government was planning any extra assistance to the cheese producers in Canada, Mr. Gardiner said the government already had assisted in storage-construction and one and two cents a pound premium on certain types of cheese required for export.

Industrials Slipping Steadily On Exchange

TORONTO, Dec. 12 (CP)—Industrials slipped steadily lower as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Activity was comparatively brisk with some support appearing in mining issues after a weak start.

Volume for the first three hours was 591,000 shares.

In industrials Canada Cement went against the trend for a gain of ¾ at a new high of 36¾.

Kerr Addison brightened in a quiet gold list. Several junior producers were mixed. Early prices tended downwards but rallying trends appeared in mid-session.

Base metals were ahead in early dealings but weakened from their best gains. Consolidated Smelters was up $1 in the forenoon and lost half of the advance. Noranda slipped a fraction and United Keno Hill and Labrador were also down. Quemont touched a new high at 22⅛ before settling at 22, up ⅛.

Western oils dipped in dull dealings.

when a tight-fitting mask could not be found for him. LAC. Nesom was aboard in place of Aircraftsman Peter Collette, an original member of the crew, who became ill.

The RCAF control tower here received an urgent message from the plane just before noon that one engine was on fire and the pilot said he was trying to make land. Sqdn.-Ldr. Webber was believed at the controls. But there was no further message.

Across the Bay of Quinte from here Dennis Orley, sitting in Victoria Church, said he glanced out of the window just as a flaming object flashed by. At first he thought it was the sun shining on a metal plane, then realized the sun was overcast and it was a burning plane he had seen. A few minutes later there was a loud explosion.

The plane scraped a hill-top and crashed on the farm of John Wesse, two miles from the air base. Wreckage was strewn over an area of 500 square feet.

One of the first on the scene was Cons. James Sheridan of the Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville, 10 miles east of here. He found Sqdn.-Ldr. Webber clear of the plane. It was reported that Webber was not instantly killed but died before he could be placed in an ambulance. City fire trucks from Belleville joined with RCAF units in extinguishing the fire in the wreckage.

An RCAF fire truck rushing to the scene hit a hole in the road and smashed into a Hydro pole. Ints driver, LAC. James Bull, was taken to hospital with an injured kneecap.

Slippery Roads Help Boost Weekend Toll

By The Canadian Press.

Sixteen persons lost their lives in fatal accidents in Ontario during the week-end, including four in the flaming crash of an RCAF two-engined bomber at Trenton and three in a collision in Toronto between an automobile and a street car

In Eastern Canada as a whole, a total of 21 fatalities were reported during the week-end, a Canadian Press survey showed today. Of these 12 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents with ice-covered roads and visibility cut by snow and fog being the principal cause of the majority.

Two of the fatalities were attributed to drowning. Two other persons died in fires and another was accidentally shot.

Besides the 16 fatalities in Ontario, there were two each in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia and one in Quebec.

In the air crash near Trenton, four airmen of the RCAF Central Flying School at Trenton Air Base were killed. Dear are the commanding officer and pilot, Sqdn.-Ldr. Denis C. L. Webber, 37, formerly of Margate, England, FO. Vincent Pepin, 25, of Ottawa, LAC. William Nesom, 24, of Wetaskiwin, Alta., and LAC. Allan V. MacIntosh, 29, of Dunvegan.

In Toronto, the three persons killed in the automobile-street car collision were Mrs. M. C. Macklin, 20, William Reid and Edna Beline, all of Toronto.

At Shippegan, NB, Hilaire Landry 43, was accidentally shot dead when the rifle he was cleaning went off.

Robert Moore, 14, was killed when struck by a truck as he cycled at Springhill, NS. At Stellarton, NS, Thomas Walton 65, suffered fatal injuries when he slipped on a highway and fell in front of a truck, whose driver said he was blinded by oncoming car lights.

No Food Contracts

Mr. Gardiner was asked whether he would make an announcement at the conference on new Anglo-Canadian food contracts.

He said he could ot make a statement since "there are no contracts." Negotiations are being carried out between a permanent British food mission and government officials on renewal of contracts which expire Dec. 31.

Get Little Sympathy

From other quarters it was learned that the federal government is showing little sympathy for U.K. requests that prices be reduced for bacon and cheese—two commodities Britain wants from Canada next year.

The U.K., it was learned, has suggested that Canada reduce the price of cheese from 30 cents to about 23 or 24 ments a pound. It also has asked that the price of bacon be reduced from $36 a hundredweight to about $33.

At the conference, it was reported federal agricultural experts told the delegates that the outlook for Canadian farm products in 1950 is not as favorable as it was for this year.

Labor Government's Defeat At Landslide Proportions

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 12—(CP)—The Labor government's defeat in Saturday's election neared landslide proportions today. As vote counting continued, the victorious Liberal-Country party coalition appeared likely to win a majority of 23 seats in the House of Representatives a big edge in the 123-member lower chamber of parliament. Early returns Saturday night indicated the new government would command a majority of only seven to 11 votes, but the swing against Labor became more and more pronounced as counting neared an end.

The count by Monday afternoon indicated the Liberal party would win at least 55 seats, its partner Country party would take 17 seats, and the opposition Labor group would hold 46. Three other seats were still doubtful.

The 118 seats which appeared settled shaped up this way:

Elected or certain to be elected, 48 Liberals, 14 Country party, 43 Labor; Likely to be elected but still not certain, seven Liberals, three Country party, three Labor party.

Although there are 123 seats in the Lower House, only 121 of the members have votes. The other two, representing the northern territory and the federal district of Canberra, the capital, can vote only on issues which directly affect their constituencies.

Little Interest In Senate

Australian people are taking little interest in the count of votes for the Senate, which is almost certain to retain its Labor majority. Few people, however, believe that a Labor-controlled Senate would block legislation backed by the new government.

Australians voted Saturday for 42 Senators. Senators are elected by proportional representation. This system is so complicated that names of all 42 elected may not be known until the end of January.

There are 18 holdover Senators—15 of them Labor—serving three more years of their six-year terms. This edge is expected to keep a Labor majority in the Senate if Labor can fill half of the 42 seats at stake.

As counting progressed, there were indications that four ministers in the old government would lose their parliamentary seats as well. They were Defence Minister John J. Edman, Works Minister Nelson Lemmon, Repatriation Minister Herbert C. Barnard and William J. Scully, vice-president of the Executive Council.

The new Prime Minister, Robert G. Menzies, is expected to select his cabinet and take over from the outgoing Prime Minister, Joseph B. Chifley, next Monday or Tuesday.

The leader of the Country party, Arthur W. Fadden, is slated to be Deputy Prime Minister. Richard G. Casey, veteran Australian diplomat and his country's first minister to the United States, is a likely choice to succeed the Minister of External Affairs, Herbert V. Evatt.

Rush Business Parliament Now Prorogued

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP)—Moves toward constitutional independence and opposition attacks against the government's handling of public affairs provided the highlights in the first session of Canada's 21st parliament.

The session ended at 9:35 p.m. Saturday when Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret entered the Senate and before assembled members of the Senate and Commons read the Speech from the Throne proroguing parliament.

Members waded through a mass of business in the final hours Saturday, approving the estimates of a number of departments rapidly. Only agriculture department estimates produced a lengthy debate.

Deliberate Attack

During discussion of his departments' estimates, Agriculture Minister Gardiner bluntly declared that officials of the British government are carrying on a deliberate onslaught against Canadian food products.

He said the British government did not want to buy any Canadian food products, other than wheat, at any price.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, suggested that the British could not buy Canadian food because of the currency situation. The suggestion was supported by Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia).

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Mr. Gardiner was trying to "hide" behind the British government to justify optimistic statements he had been making in recent years. He urged that Canada and Britain get together to solve the currency problem.

The debate on agriculture and the sale of food products was just one of the incidents during the session, which opened Sept. 15.

Several car accidents have been caused by icy conditions of the streets during the past week. On Saturday afternoon a car driven by Mrs. Douglas Ingram, RR No. 2, Seymour, collided with a truck operated by Claud Post at the intersection of Market and Ranney Sts.

The bumper, grill, radiator and headlights of the car were badly smashed. The truck received minor damages. Chief Constable Geo. H. Hardy investigated.

Labour Party Ousted In Australia

The Liberal-Country coalition party headed by Robert G. Menzies won the Australian general elections on Saturday, defeating the Labour Government which has been in power since 1943. This was not unexpected; the strength of the coalition party had been foreshadowed in state elections. Nevertheless it is deeply significant that a party which had strongly favoured the workers should be ousted; its suggests that the workers themselves have become conscious that a government too strongly opposed to the interests of national business, and too much under the thumb of trade unions, cannot bring real prosperity. If the Labour Government had been elected, it was committed to a heavy program of nationalization; the Australian electorate has shown a healthy mistrust of the concentration of power which nationalization on a large scale brings with it. Mr. Menzies has outlined a program of social betterment, but it is a very different thing from Mr. Chifley's promised welfare state. Mr. Menzies is, of course, no newcomer to power; he is perhaps the ablest and most experienced parliamentarian in Australia today.

* * *

The defeat of Labour governments in both New Zealand and Australia in so short a time will cause some heart-searching among Labour forces in Britain. It means, at the very least, that the coming of the Earthly Paradise is indefinitely postponed. Nevertheless we are not convinced that British Labour will be defeated in next year's general elections. Britain's closest neighbours on the continent of Europe influence her political decisions more than she thinks, and they are not in a mood for mild conservatism. Similarly, Britain is not inclined to absorb political influences from other parts of the Commonwealth; the habit of dictation to the Empire countries is too deeply engrained in her. For the present we stick to our opinion, often expressed in these columns, that British Labour will suffer a diminution of power in the next election, but will not be defeated.

Changes In U.S. Atomic Policy?

The manner in which the issue of atomic energy has become almost a political football in the United States graphically illustrates how easy it is for the legislative branch to bedevil the administrative branch of the Government of that country. The recent resignation of David Lilienthal as chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission was not handed in while Mr. Lilienthal was under direct political fire, it is true, but there is not the slightest doubt that he had waited only for a lull in the bitter campaign against him to get out. That campaign has been conducted in the legislative branch and has been led by Democratic Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee and Republican Senator Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa.

Judging by opinions expressed by impartial and reliable observers, Mr. Lilienthal has been a devoted and remarkably efficient public servant. Senator McKellar, however, has hated and hounded Mr. Lilienthal ever since the latter was appointed head of the Tennessee Valley Authority, great public utility company. Senator McKellar wanted to poke all ten fingers into that rich pie, but Mr. Lilienthal successfully resisted all attempts of the Tennessee political machine to invade the company. When Mr. Lilienthal became head of the Atomic Energy Commission, the Senator's active enmity continued unabated.

Senator Hickenlooper was chiefly concerned with making political capital out of a few minor incidents when he brought charges of maladministration against Lilienthal. The gentleman from Iowa met more than his match when pitted against Lilienthal at a formal inquiry. The charges were thrown out and Senator Hickenlooper discredited. However, the partisan political battle which followed Lilienthal's appointment as chairman of the A.E.C. was renewed at the inquiry, and there was the promise of still another renewal if Lilienthal allowed his name to stand for reappointment next year.

The reason advanced by Mr. Lilienthal for his resignation was that he wanted to begin building for his own financial future, and he intimated he could earn considerably more than his present $17,500 a year in private business. That seems altogether probable. It also seems probable, however, that he resigned in order to make way for a chairman less likely to cause controversy when predicted changes are made in U.S. atomic energy policy. If that is so, and if his resignation thus contributes to atomic progress, then David Lilienthal will have capped his service to his country with a fine patriotic action.

Two Canadian Leper Colonies

Canada maintains two leper colonies, one off the west coast on Bentick Island, the other on the New Brunswick coast, at Tracadie. Only two lepers are being treated at Bentick, seven at Tracadie. Last Friday the continued maintenance of these two colonies was discussed in Parliament, and Mr. Donald Fleming, Conservative member for Toronto-Eglington, urged the Government to close the B.C. colony as being an unnecessary expense.

This seems to us a sensible proposal. Leprosy is not the dread disease it was through the preceding twenty centuries. In fact, it has been almost completely stamped out in the western world, and the few who do contract the disease are often, after treatment, able to resume normal life. Nor is contact with lepers to be feared as formerly. Scientists now realize that it is one of the least contagious of communicable diseases. While western society continues to isolate lepers, complete and inviolable segregation is no longer imposed. The British leper colony is situated in the Home Counties, close to London, and is hardly to be distinguished from a sanitorium by people driving by or visiting it.

The argument that the west coast colony should be maintained against a possible epidemic of leprosy in the Orient, from which it might spread across the Pacific, is not valid. Doctors say that there is no possibility of any substantial outbreak of the disease in British Columbia. The Tracadie institution is operated at a cost of $11,000; the Bentick Island leper colony at $5,000. There seems to be no need to continue to operate both, and to devote a pleasant Pacific Coast island to the treatment of only two persons.

U.S. Columnist In Court

Among the columnists of the United States, Westbrook Pegler has a place particularly his own, and it is a spot not coveted by his colleagues. He is considered the most rabid reactionary writing for the press of the United States today, and the reputation appears deserved. Presumably a self-appointed defender of capitalism, he is probably doing capitalism far more harm today than any person anywhere.

We have seen numerous examples of Mr. Pegler's writing, but there was a long gap between the first acquaintanceship with it and what we intend shall be the last. The first articles we read were published about seventeen years ago. They were exceptionally well written and, at times, brilliantly humorous, although the humour was none too beneficent at any time. They were sharply observant descriptions or criticisms of events and institutions, and occasionally persons, both in his own country and elsewhere.

The next time we read anything by Mr. Pegler was over a year ago, when we subscribed for six months to a United States newspaper which published his column. We had heard of the reputation he had acquired in the meantime, but that proved insufficient preparation for the shocking alteration in his work. It is doubtful if the Nazi press ever attack-F.D.R., his widow, his daughter and his sons—with as much viciousness as Pegler, and his racial and religious prejudices are similar to those of the Third Reich. His attitude toward organized labour may best be conveyed by his argument that if a non-striker kills a picketer who attempts to prevent entry into a "struck" plant, the killer should be given a citation rather than be charged with any crime. His anti-Communist writing is so splenetic that it is virtually guaranteed to turn some readers to Communism.

Whatever the reason or reasons, it is strikingly obvious that Mr. Pegler's gift of invective is being used in an unbalanced manner. That may hurt him seriously, both in prestige and in the pocketbook. He has already been forced to apologize publicly to one man he named as a fellow traveller, and two other columnists are currently suing him for $500,000 apiece.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Among those parties most deeply concerned with all plans to extend the span of human life there are, of course, the tax gatherers.

Lady Astor says that modern life is made up largely of "wretched pictures of semi-nude women". Let's have reform, by all means. Meaning better pictures, of course.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

MUSIC for the films has undergone many changes since the early days of the celluloid industry. From the very first it must have been realized that something would have to be done to cover up the whirring of the projector and influence the mood of the spectators by means of sound. This was done by a pianist or a small group of players. Experiments were also made of introducing realistic sounds. I still remember vividly my very first visit to the films, during the First World War. As I entered with my mother a film of the Battle of the Somme was in progress. Great howitzers "reared their ugly heads" and belched forth destruction. Ear-splitting crashes from the orchestra accompanied each explosion. This was altogether too realistic for me, and I screamed so loud that my mother was forced to take me away almost immediately. But enough of these personal reminiscences—I am drifting into my anecdotage! Music was sometimes written expressly for a film, though this raised difficult problems of synchronization. Sometimes selections of popular music more or less unrelated to the plot of the film were played. Sometimes the pianist improvized and vamped throughout. There was a book produced by an Italian which gave slabs of music to fit almost every conceivable type of situation and arranged in alphabetical order.

* * *

ANOTHER development was the theatre organ, of which Mr. Robert Donington in his new book on the instruments of music writes "I hate its blatant tones and soulless mimicry. Its untiring lungs offer no respite; its goatish tremulant makes a mockery of decent feeling; it is as full of stunts as it is devoid of genuine intelligence or sincere emotion. As I have watched it rising from the infernal regions, slowly, in full blast, illuminated luridly, I could no longer doubt its diabolical origins". The sound film changed all this and, incidentally, threw many musicians out of work just around the time of the Depression. Instead of the old haphazard system it was possible henceforth to synchronize the music with the action. At first the full possibilities of the new system were imperfectly understood, but after a while things changed, and composers who had won their laurels in the concert hall were commissioned to write for films. Some outstanding scores for British films have been written by men of the calibre of Vaughan Williams, Walton and Britten, to mention three. Individual directors vary considerably in their methods, but usually the music is written last of all. The composer is given a copy of the scenario with precise directions concerning the amount of music for each sequence down to the nearest foot. Let us take for example a sequence of 150 feet. The standard rate of turning is 90 feet per minute. Therefore music is required for 1 min. 40 sec., and the composer must cut his notes according to his clock. He should avoid extremely low or high notes; even if he does write them they won't be heard. Textbook theories of orchestration no longer hold good. The texture of film music should be clear and transparent—a thick and involved web of sound (except for special effects) sounds muddy. Much music for the films is of a poor quality. It would be as well for film-goers to pay more attention to the music of films, and ask themselves from time to time the following questions:—

a. What is the composer trying to do?
b. Is he succeeding?
c. Is it worth while doing?

There is probably too much music in films nowadays. Directors might well use a little artistic restraint; some appear to be under the impression that no love scene is complete without a background of sickly drooling by divided strings in a high register. Speaking personally I find that good talk and good music do not mix; mushy talk and mushy music together are simply intolerable.

"NOW is not this ridiculous—and is not this preposterous
A thorough-paced absurdity — explain it if you can."

W. S. Gilbert (Patience).

Scene I. The Smiths' drawing-room, Hickville. They have company. Mr. Smith, a hen-pecked husband, is prevailed upon to sing a few songs. They are all about romantic and unprincipled extroverts, highwaymen, pirates, genial drunkards who rant and roar with care-free abandon. They are as hard as nails, handsome and sunburnt to boot, and usually leave a trail of broken hearts in their aggressively masculine wake. Now let us turn to Scene II, the Sergeants' Mess of a crack unit. There is a sing-song in progress. C.S.M. Bullshine, terror of the parade ground, trots out a touching little ditty to the effect that it is a Long Way to Mother's Knee, and rank upon rank of battle-scarred warriors wipe a furtive tear from their eye....

* * *

THE piano music of John Ireland contains some of his most distinguished and distinctive work. As a late romantic, born out of due season, he has not perhaps received as much recognition as he deserves. His style is lyrical, impetuous and ardent, with a strong vein of sentiment that never becomes maudlin. Literary influences, mainly of the 90's and early years of this century, colour much of his production. He prefers broad effects to subtleties of shading, and his work is sometimes over-rhetorical in the Lisztian manner, though at times he displays an intimate charm, as in "The Holy Boy" and "The Towing Path". He writes for the piano effectively, in a very individual way. Advanced players might try his "Ragamuffin", a short descriptive piece, and then go on to the Rhapsody and Piano Sonata. His development seems to have come to a halt during the First World War, and his later production does not quite fulfil the brilliant promise of his earlier work. There may be a prosaic explanation for this, but I would say that he had already said all that he had to say in his own idiom and he had not sufficient adaptability to look around for other means of expressing himself. His own style was too limited in possibilities and he found himself imprisoned in a cage of his own making.

Letters To The Editor

VIEWS LOCAL LABOUR SITUATION

Sir: I would like to express some views on the local labour union dispute. The workers who are still with the old U.E. or Mr. Jackson's union should realize that it is only a matter of a short time until they will find themselves isolated and cut off from the Canadian labour movement. The old U.E. has been expelled from the C.I.O. in the States and now has been thrown out of the C.C.L. in Canada. The new International U.E. has the backing of the powerful C.I.O. The old U.E. will die off or wither on the vine, or will be too small a factor to worry the bosses. The faster the remaining workers swing into the new union the sooner negotiations can be started and brought to a close with C.G.E. The old U.E. has no one but itself to blame for this position. It has forever been fighting and trying to disrupt the policies of the C.C.L. in Canada and the C.I.O. in the States. In Peterborough it bungled the job of organizing two plants that were just about ready to be approached for negotiations, if it wasn't for two arm chair organizers they had at the time. Mr. Nels Thibeault of Sudbury tries to say they were being dictated to by the C.C.F. The labour movement needs a political arm and the C.C.F. is the only party today which is fighting for the workers. It has, ever since the day it was founded, and will continue to do so until its fight is accomplished.

Only one province and that is Saskatchewan has taken over Rent Controls. Ontario with a Tory government could not be expected to do likewise. It can easily be seen what party fights for the worker. Liberal and Conservatives are different in name only. The callousness of the present Liberal cabinet has not been matched since Bennett's Conservative iron heel policy. The Liberals have refused to abolish the means test for old age pensioners. The sheer brutality of the government is shown.

The strategy of hitting the public below the belt right after elections and caressing them just before elections, is an old Tory dodge, perfected by past Tory governments in Britain. In Britain the workers got wise to the tactics, and not even the glamour of the wartime Churchill could make them forget it. In Canada the public as a whole does not conscientiously realize how they are being betrayed and manoeuvred. They just sense it and relapse into a state of apathy and cynicism. But some day this hopelessness will change into anger. They will realize that Abbott and Howe on one side and George Drew and his ilk on the other, are birds of a feather.

Rent is a fixed charge on income. Rent must be paid before anything else. What is the position of the average tenant? The average worker in Canada is getting about $41 a week. The Toronto Welfare Council recently showed that it costs a family of five $50 a week to live. The average worker is already behind the 8-ball with present rent costs. The working man has no alternative but to pay. He can't move, owing to the housing shortage. There is no adequate accommodation at reasonable rents anywhere in Canada. To pay the increased rents his food and clothing costs will be cut, thus forcing down his standard of living. He has been thrown under a dictatorship of the landlords. I am a senior subscriber.

STRONG VIEW ON DAYLIGHT SAVING

Sir: There has been a lot of excuse put up for the keeping up of that fool thing called daylight saving. At one time it was in the interest of sports; in the old days every person worked 10 hours per day. They played the same games as they play today. Now all workers quit at 5 o'clock. Now the excuse is to save Hydro. Last Fall when we had the greatest shortage of Hydro some nitwit in Toronto proposed to extend daylight saving to save power. The chairman of the Hydro Mr. Saunders, answered him by saying daylight saving would not save any power. He should know. Daylight saving never saved anything. When the city council voted to extend daylight saving they said it was to save power. When I got the Examiner on the next evening and saw that my old friend Doug Miller voted against the extension I was very much pleased, but the next evening when I again received the paper I saw that he had phoned the Examiner to say that he had voted in favour of the extension. Well, to say the least, I was disappointed; I said then that that vote just wrecked a very good record in the City Council.

Now Mr. Editor there is a clause in the Criminal Code that forbids me putting in print language sufficiently strong to express my contempt for the fool thing called daylight saving. But to express my opinion as forcibly as I can I'm going to tell a story.

There was an old darkie down in the States that was brought into court for some crime. The jury found him guilty. The judge sentenced him to fifteen years in prison then he asked the old darkie if he would like to say something on his own behalf. He said: "Yes, your honour, ah jist got dis to say; ah tink you gentmen am devilish liberal with somebody else's time!"

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters....And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters....

And God said, Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven to divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs and for seasons, and for days, and years.... And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made the stars also....

And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven....And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle, and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so....

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them....

And God saw every thing that he had made, and behold, it was very good. (Gen. 1: 1, 2, 6, 14, 16, 20, 24, 26, 27, 31.)

'Treasures Of The Snow'

In the Book of Job there is the question, "Hast thou entered into the treasurers of the snow?"

Snow is in a class by itself. It isn't frozen water; that produces hail. When a snow crystal forms it is one of nature's most perfect flowerings. Molecules of hydrogen and oxygen move around rapidly; when they are locked together in snow, the molecules are in a beautifully symmetrical pattern. Never do any of the billions of flakes deviate from the underlying, fundamental rule: That is, a unit of snow structure is always six-sided. Anyone who has studied the beauty of white fluffy flakes, knows there are infinite variations; but never is the six-sided rule violated.

Those who have never caught snow flakes on a taut piece of black cloth and studied their forms beneath a magnifying glass, may enjoy a new experience this winter.

Too Many Orders For Wheat At Present Time

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 — (CP)— Canada has more orders for wheat than the Canadian Wheat Board can fill at the moment.

The Board, export agent for the producers, will launch a campaign, probably by advertising, early in 1950, urging owners of farm-stored wheat to get it into the elevators.

The five-year plan under which the Board took all wheat for export with a guaranteed minimum price to the producers, ends with the current crop year, July 31 next.

There are several reasons why the Board and the Government want to speed deliveries of whatever wheat is held by producers on their farms.

Trade Minister Howe told The Canadian Press it is feared that there will be a July rush of wheat deliveries, also oats and barley for which the Board also acts as export agent.

Won't Share In Division

Any grains undelivered before July 31 will not share in the division of extra returns arising from upward price adjustments applying to exports this year.

The Board also wants to be in a position to satisfy small orders other than those involved in the 140,000,000-bushel contract with the United Kingdom, and to complete the U.K. contract.

He said the Board probably will begin its campaign early in January and get all the wheat the farmers plan to sell into the elevators.

(On Dec. 2 The Canadian Press erroneously said the government's advertising campaign would urge farmers to step up deliveries to pool elevators. Deliveries may be made to any western elevator and, in fact, non-pool or "Line" elevators handle about half the Wheat Board deliveries.)

Five Canadian Governments Win Re-Election In 1949

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Political winds blew favorably in 1949 for five Canadian governments which called elections.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, fighting his first general election as head of the Liberal party, was returned to office with the largest group any party ever had in the House of Commons. The party, in office for the past 14 years, won 193 out of 262 seats.

The Coalition government of British Columbia and Manitoba were returned with increased representation and the Liberal government of Nova Scotia was re-elected with a slightly reduced majority. In Newfoundland, the first provincial election following the Island's entry into Confederation March 31, brought the election of a Liberal government.

Mr. St. Laurent took over the prime ministership from Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in November, 1943. He led the government through one session and then called an election for June 27.

The Progressive Conservatives with George Drew, former Ontario premier as their new leader made what appeared to be a strong bid for power. but when the voting was over, Mr. St. Laurent and his party had gained ground all across the country at the expense of the Progressive Conservatives, the C. C. F. and the Social Credit parties.

The 1947 redistribution act, increasing Commons representation by 10 seats, took effect with the election. Newfoundland's entry into Confederation added another seven seats, raising the total from 245 to 262.

Results Analyses

Following are final results of the election with the party representation at dissolution April 30, in brackets:

Liberals 193 (125); Progressive Conservatives 41 (69); C.C.F. 13 (32); Social Credit 10 (12); Independents four (three); Independent Liberal one (none). Total 262.

Eight by-election were called Oct. 24 to fill vacancies caused by six government appointments and two deaths. The Liberals retained four and lost three of the seats. But the losses were to two independent Liberals and one Independent who had campaigned in support of the government. Theye were given seats in Liberal ranks. The Pregressive Conservatives retained the eighth seat.

In Nova Scotia, the provincial Liberal government was re-elected June 9 for the fifth consecutive time since 1933.

The Liberals captured 28 of the 37 seats in the House of Assembly compared to seven for the Progressive Conservatives and two for the C.C.F. In the 1945 election, when there were only 30 seats in the Assembly, the Liberals won 2 and the C.C.F. two.

In Newfoundland, the Liberals won 22 seats in the 28-member Legislature. Progressive Conservatives won five seats. The other seat went to Peter Cashin, outspoken opponent of Union with Canada.

The Liberals were led by Joseph Smallwood, a man largely responsible for bringing the Island into Confederation. The election was held May 27, two months after union.

In British Columbia, the Coalition government—a fusion of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives—defeated a C.C.F. bid for power. The Coalition, returned for a third term, won 39 seats of the 48-member Legislative Assembly. The C.C.F. won seven seats and an Independent and a Labor candidate one each.

In the 1945 election, the Coalition won 37 seats, the C.C.F. 10 and an Independent one.

The Manitoba Coalition, a fusion of Liberal-Progressives and Progressive Conservatives, won handily, capturing 44 of the 57 seats in the Legislature.

The Coalition included 29 Liberal-Progressives, 10 Progressive Conservatives, four Independents and one Liberal. The opposition included seven C.C.F., two Conservatives, one Independent Liberal, one Independent Progressive Conservative, one Progressive Conservative and one Labor-Progressive.

In the 1945 election, the Coalition won 42 of the then 55 seats in the Assembly.

7 Hurt In Near-Riot At Ukrainian Temple

TIMMINS, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Seven persons were injured and one man was arrested Sunday night after a near riot at the Ukrainian Labor Temple here. Police said the fracas resulted from efforts of a group of displaced persons to gain admittance to a meeting.

The meeting, called by the United Association of Ukrainian Canadians, had as its chief speaker Peter Dawson, representing a Ukrainian magazine published in Toronto.

About 150 persons were in the hall when the group of nearly 100 persons attempted to enter. Thomas Krymer and his brother Stanley, guarding the door, were removed to hospital, Thomas Krymer suffering two broken ribs and Stanley Krymer suffering from kicks in the stomach. Five others were released after first aid treatment.

Police withheld the name of the man arrested.

The year was 1835 ...

... over 32 miles of primitive roads and tangled woodland trails walked six Canadian pioneers ... arguing fiercely as they went. Their purpose: to kill each other's vote!

Yes, these six early settlers knew they were evenly divided in opinion ... that three would vote for one candidate Dr. William Dunlop, The Canada Company's man ... and three would vote for the other candidate, Col. Anthony Van Egmond. Yet they made the gruelling march to Goderich, Ontario, there to cast their ballots in the 1835 election of The Upper Canada Legislative Assembly. Not one of the six said "There's no use my going—my vote will be killed."

When YOU cast your secret ballot at every election—municipal, provincial, federal—you exercise a duty and privilege planned, worked and fought for by your forefathers. Your vote protects the future of your children. To fail in this duty is to be less than a good citizen.

Our greatest asset

Big family — the B of M staff ... close to ten thousand men and women serving well over a million and a half Canadians in every walk of life from coast to coast.

These are the people who make the B of M — they are our "greatest asset" which no balance sheet can show.

Tribute

"I am very proud of our staff," said Gordon R. Ball in his report as General Manager to shareholders of the B of M. "The year has been a heavy one in all sections of our business, and our staff have discharged their duties with untiring energy and efficiency ...

"But mere facts and figures do not, and perhaps cannot, convey to you the spirit and warmth of the services rendered day by day throughout the year, sometimes under most trying circumstances.

"I refer to the staff in many offices where alterations are under way, who carry on with a smile amidst the din of trip-hammers, and with carpenters, plasterers and others working at their trades.

"I refer to the men on the lonely outskirts of Labrador who have unfurled the banner of our institution in territories still undeveloped ...

"I could go on recounting other tales of a spirit in our institution that cannot be measured in dollars and cents, but which is, nevertheless, our greatest asset ... I am very proud of our staff."

Black Barons Victorious Over Mariners By 56-46

New York Barons toyed with the Outboard Mariners Saturday night as they downed the local crew easily 56-46. Throughout the game, the Barons allowed the score to be fairly close but from the play their score could have been much higher.

The Outboard crew jumped to an early lead in the first half on baskets by Nicholls, Stewart, Gillespie and Trimm. The New Yorkers seemed to be content to allow the Peterborough boys to lead until halfway through the first half. Then, led by Georgie Wood, the Barons went ahead to take a four-point lead into the second half, 23-18.

Payne, a newcomer for the locals, pulled the Outboards up to a tie with the Barons early in the last. But no sooner had the score been tied than it was broken again by Woods. Until three-quarter time the Barons let the Mariners stay within two or three points. Then a barrage of baskets by Bess, Woods and Handy sent the Barons well ahead to have the score finish at 56-46.

Tricky Play

Throughout the game, the Barons were constanly tricking the Mariners with expert ball handling. Bess, making his first appearance with the Barons in Peterborough, featured for the team with his dribbling and shooting. The Mariners were completely stymied by his dribbling as the ball went forward as his body went backward and vice versa. On one fake play he tried holding the ball at his knees and pretending to pass the ball. The Marines were buffaloed the first time for a couple of seconds but Payne caught on quickly. Later in the game the trick worked to perfection. Bess is only five feet five inches tall. Grover Freeland, manager and coach of the team and making his fourth appearance in Peterborough, thrilled the crowd with his one hand ball displays as did Georgie Woods.

New Cagers

Five newcomers to the Mariners this year were introduced the crowd in this game, Payne, Hugh Dibben, Trimm, Griffin and Moorhead. Payne, one of the stars of the game for his driving and scoring power, and Hugh Dibben for his coolness on the offensive and defensive stood out. Of the old boys Al Stewart and Ed Nicholls played heads up ball throughout. Peterborough has a fast-breaking team this year.

Eddie Nicholls led the scorers with netting 20 points, nine field goals and two foul shots. Georgie Woods was close behind with 19 points while Bess had 14. "Nipper" Payne cacked up 12 points for his first time under the Outboard banner.

Lineups:

New York Black Barons — G. Freeland 2, W. Bess, 14, J. Moore 4, G. Woods 19, W. Handy 8, J. Small 9.

Outboard Marines—Nicholls 20, Payne 12, H. Dibben 2, Gillespie 4, Burns 4, Trimm 2, Stewart 2, Griffin, Moorhead.

Officials: Menzies and Edger, Peterborough.

Windsor Crushes Generals 11-3, Marlies Licked

By The Canadian Press.

Windsor's flying Spitfires, paced by Earl Reibel and Glen Skov with three goals each, coasted to their 10th straight victory on Saturday night, downing the hapless Oshawa Generals 11-3. The win left Windsor a point shy of the top-slot Toronto Marlboros in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standing.

In other Junior games Saturday, Toronto Marlboros lost their fourth game in 22 starts, bowing 5-1 before St. Catharines Teepees and St. Michael's College, the other Toronto entry, was laced 8-1 by the fast improving Guelph Biltmores. In the only senior contest, Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen bounced Hamilton Tigers 6-2.

Windsor struck for three tallies in the first period, seven in the middle frame and closed out with a single in the final stanza. Oshawa clicked for three in the third.

Jack Bailey, Bob Rawlyk and Earl Reibel were the marksmen in the first frame. Skov and Riebel each tallied a pair in the middle session and singles were added by Epwin Grosse, Vic Howe and Ross Johnstone. Lou Jankowski, George Samolenko and Marcel Clements accounted for the motor-city tallies. Skov's three markers brought his total for the last two games with the Generals to eight.

Strike Early

The Teepees struck early and fast in their conquest of the Marlboros. They tallied three times in the first period and added singles in the second and final.

Norm Corcoran, Jack Andrews and Frank Martin pumped in the first period goals which broke the back of the Marlie attack. Conn Switzer squeezed in the middle frame single before Marlboros counted their lone goal off the stick of Jack McKenzie. Obie O'Brien was the marksman on the last Teepee counter.

Guelph Biltmores scored four in the first period of their game with St. Michael's, three of them in the last three minutes. Bob Palmer opened the scoring and was followed by Don Bellringer with two markers and Jack Dickenson with one.

Lorne Howes, in the nets for the Collegians, held the Biltmores to a single by Frank Bathgate in the middle session. Walter Clune, former Irish performer, made it 6-0 in the finale before the Irish finally dented Dennis Mooney's armor for a goal by Red Lngoldsby. Danny Kulik completed the rout with Guelph's seventh and eighth goals.

Take Early Lead

Kitchener-Waterloo, playing before home fans, took a 4-0 lead over the last place Hamilton Tigers before Hamilton flashed the red light. Bobby Bauer, Mike Dzuira, Mickey Roth, and Bill Walsh collected the counters, all in the first frame. Hamilton's first tally, by Clare Shillington in the midde canto, balanced Flick's Dutchmen marker.

Both clubs added a tally in the final frame, Johnny Blute rapping in the sixth for Kitchener-Waterloo and Johnny Conick collecting Hamilton's second.

Petes' Champs Entertained At Ball Dinner

Officials and players of the Peterborough Baseball Club—OBA senior "B" champions—along with a few guests were dined at the Empress on Saturday night, Vern Dawson and Hugh Campbell putting on the dinner. The championship trophy and crests will be presented later, as will the windbreakers given by club officials. A barbershop quartet and general sing-song supplied some of the entertainment.

Mayor Max Swanston was present the early part of the evening—leaving later for another engagement. He suggested that a committee (similar to the one at Civic Arena) be formed and organized efforts be made to obtain lights for senior ball for next year. He hought the council, the Utilities Commission and the City Trust Commission might lend sympathetic ears.

Praises Petes

President Vern Dawson extended congratulations to the Petes on their accomplishment, despite a falling-off of fans' support, due to the hot summer and uncovered bleachers. Mr. Dawson was firmly of the opinion that night baseball under lights was the only salvation for the game here. He said the five-day week had spoiled Saturday afternoon for baseball.

Hugh Campbell, George Clark, Lloyd Grose and Manager Eddie Murphy spoke briefly in praise of the players in bringing a provincial title to Peterborough, the first time a senior baseball crown was ever won by a local club, Cy Whatley represented the OBA, adding his congratulations, and Pat Calladine advocated steps to get baseball again played in the separate and public schools. There was a general discussion afterward with the promise of going into the matter of floodlights thoroughly in the near future. The work of Eddie Murphy, Vern Dawson and Hugh Campbell came in for much praise.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Avery Brundage said at San Francisco Saturday that college athletes who receive scholarships on the basis of their skill in any sport make themselves professionals.

The president of the United States Olympic Association, attending the Amateur Athletic Union Convention here, was asked in an interview:

"If a boy is given a football scholarship, is he eligible for Olympic competition?".

"He (the boy) would not even be considered an amateur," the outspoken Brundage replied.

Future screening of candidates for the Olympic teams will be more rigid, Brundage indicated It has been the custom in the past that any college athletes certified by the U. S. National Collegiate Athletic Association automatically received AAU membership cards.

Carol Addison of the Hamilton Aquatic Club Saturday pulled the upset of the 17th annual Hamilton swimming meet when she stroked her way to victory over the highly favored Beryl Lewis of Toronto in the junior free-style event. She covered the 50 yards in 30.1 seconds.

Miss Lewis went on to win the junior women's 100 back stroke.

Miss Addison's time was one-tenth of a second faster than that of Kay Miles of London, Ont., who captured the women's senior free-style race.

Montreal YMHA basketballers won the first game of a home and home total point series for the Canadian YMHA championship from the Toronto branch Saturday night at Toronto, 59-50.

Sol Tolchinsky sparked the winners with a 20-point effort. Murray Waxman with 11 and Ben Lands with nine were the other Montreal stars.

McGill University Redmen of Montreal nosed out the all-star Tillsonburg, Ont., Trojans 67-62 in a basketball game, main event of McGill's athletics night before a crowd of 7,000 Saturday night.

A lot of footballers will be "playing for peanuts" in the Western Interprovincial Football Union next season "and every year," Al Anderson, manager of Edmonton Eskimos of the WIFU said Saturday.

Anderson was commenting on recent statements by Rod Pantages and Pete Thodos of Vancouver that Calgary Stampeders paid them "peanuts" last season. It was reported each received about $1,000 for playing with Stampeders an addition to jobs provided by the club.

"If $1,000 is peanuts a lot of players in the west performed, and will continue to perform, for peanuts," Anderson said. He added that his club "overpaid quite a few and underpaid nonobody."

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Belleville Diesels tackle the Petes tonight at 8.30 in Civic Arena, and this should be a swell OHA senior "B" group fixture. In a previous joust on Quinte ice, the Diesels came from behind to squeeze out a 6-5 win, but the Petes figure they can take the Belleville bunch here. Legion lost in Belleville but beat Diesels here, and the Foley flock should do likewise. However, the Petes are now in bottom place and they have to hustle to get back up in the hunt, and the second-place Quinte crew will fight hard for this one. It promises to be speedy and perhaps rugged between two well-matched squads, and the game rates a big crowd.

Baz Phelan recently wrote to Prexy Clarence Campbell of the NHL, checking on various points. He got a letter back the other day in which Campbell said he thought overtime would not be played again in NHL games, except for playoffs. Felt that a tie is a perfectly legitimate result in hockey as in football and soccer. He also defended the 70-game schedule, the "C" form for pro hockey and the increase in ticket charges for Stanley Cup playoffs, pointing out that every major sport jumps its prices for big playoffs where a championship is at stake. As a lawyer, the NHL president is a hard guy to beat in an argument.

Too Many Get A Bye

London, Ont., scribe pans the OHA for failure to form a senior "B" grouping in Western Ontario. Says the OHA have ruled that London, Chatham, Wallaceburg and Sarnia must play senior "B", but allows all four byes into provincial playdowns, rather than getting them into a grouping. "The facts of the matter are", says he, "that the OHA no longer gives a hoot about any hockey except junior 'A' and senior 'A'." Should Petes or Legion win out in our group and go a piece in the playdowns, they won't think much of extra trips owing to so many senior "B" playdown byes, eh?

An enjoyable gathering Saturday eve when the Petes celebrated their OBA senior "B" championship at an Empress dinner put on by Vern Dawson and Hugh Campbell. These men, along with George Clark, Eddie Murphy, Lloyd Grose and a few more are responsible for the success of senior baseball here the past several years. But they know now that the game won't survive without floodlights next summer. Mayor Max Swanston agreed with them and suggested a small working committee to tackle the problem right shortly. This will likely be done. Titular crests have arrived and windbreakers are ordered, but so far the OBA trophy hasn't been received.

Tribute Paid Champs

Ladies of the Home and School Association dished up a delicious turkey dinner Saturday p.m. for the PCVS junior COSSA champs at the Collegiate when the J. H. Matthews Trophy was presented by the donor. G. W. Craw of the Board of Education presented the COSSA badges, and the windbreakers will be received later. The players gave their popular coach, Alex Londry, a scarf and a hat—the chapeau being a replacement for the new one ruined in the rain at Port Colborne in the final playoff. The Collegians won the COSSA title the past two seasons and will be out next year to make it three straight to equal the record of the senior PCI-ers the three seasons previous to this one. Yes, a large time was had by all at the Saturday "do".

Two lively cage contests of the exhibition variety served up at the Collegiate gym on Saturday e'en to open the season for the male basketballers. Trinity College crew won 25-17 over the PCI-ers, rolling home safely on an early lead. Local lads are just starting again after the grid season and aren't in top cage condition as yet. Black Barons of New York took their annual exhibition with Outboard Marines by a 56-46 in an open tussle. Looked better and really turned it on when pressed, with a guy named Bess proving something of a sensation with his dribbling, faking and shooting. Barons all went well. Ed Nicholls netted 20 points in a fine showing for the Mariners, who will see further action early in the new year.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

One of the most memorable National Hockey League games in history was played at Boston 16 years ago tonight. Crashed to the ice by Eddie Shore, Irving (Ace) Bailey, Toronto Leaf forward, was rushed to hospital with a serious brain concussion. Bailey's playing career was ended, though he acted as coach until the end of last season.

U. of T. DEFEATED

TOP SNIPER — Tall Ed Nicholls was top sniper for the Marines' cagers as they lost 56-46 here Saturday to the New York Barons. Ed counted 20 of the losers' points in a good effort.

2 Ball Leagues Disagree On Tie System

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—The American and National Leagues are locked in hopeless disagreement over the method of deciding the pennant winner in case of a regular-season tie.

Each circuit firmly believes its own system is best. Unless one relents some time during the three-day major league baseball convention which opened today, Commissioner A. B. Chandler will find himself in the role of arbitrator.

Acting on the recommendation that both leagues adopt a uniform playoff system, the two loops agreed to disagree. The American insists that its present one-game, sudden-death playoff is the more logical one. The National, in a caucus, decided to cling to its best-of-three game system.

In the event of a deadlock, Chandler is empowered to vote in favor of either league. The other must abide by his ruling. Of course, the commissioner can decide to allow each league to follow its own dictates, but that is not likely since whe is known to favor a uniform playoff system.

Each league has had need for only one post-season playoff in entire history. Brooklyn and St. Louis met in a best-of-three game playoff in 1946 after finishing in a tie after the regular National League season. The American had a deadlocked season two years later which necessitated a one-game playoff between Cleveland and Boston Red Sox.

TCS Basketeers Take Win Over PCVS Boys

With the football season ending three weeks ago the PCVS senior basketball team still lacked the polish to clean the Trinity College School Saturday night. The Port Hope boys were also rusty in spots but managed to build up an early lead to win 25-17.

The College boys crowded the Peterborough crew throughout the first quarter but found the zone defence of the Collegiate difficult to penetrate. Hughes and Pierce for Port Hope lead the attack and managed to come out of the first quarter with a 7-2 lead, Lawson, Howard and Cleland continued to build to the Trinity College lead in the second. Meanwhile the Collegians only sank one basket to make the score at the end of the first half 16-5.

Play in the second half became closer with the zone defence of the Petes stopping the TCS attack while the Petes began to break faster. The College added seven points to the Collegiate's six points. In the last frame some of last year's seniors began to show some of their old form and PCI outscored TCS 6-2 to make it 25-17.

Trinity College were better with the shots from close under the basket with the long attempts far from the target. Luckily for them the Peterborough team were off in both long and short attempts at the basket. Grafstein, at guard, played a standout game under his basket as he stole the rebounds from the TCS attempts to start PCVS drives up the floor. Neil Thompson, a PCVS star player last year, left early in the game with a sprained ankle. Greenwood and Lawson of TCS led the point-getters with seven points each. Howard of TCS, Young and Taylor for PCVS, each had four points.

Lineups.

Trinity College School—Greenwood 7, Hughes 1, Pierce 3, Lawson 7, Smith 3, Cleland, Baker, Howard 4, King, Emery.

PCVS—Sergeant 1, Grafstein 2, Joplin, Young 4, Bailey 2, Northcott, Taylor 4, Ackford, Thompson 2, Frise, Cranfield, Hall 2.

Stanlee To Meet Seelie Samara

What should prove to be a mat classic will be the match this Thursday at the Brock between Steve Stanlee and Seelie Samara. If they stick to straight wrestling the fans are in for a treat for both boys are fast and clean. But they can be rough and rugged if necessary. Samara made a good impression in his appearances locally while Stanlee also went over big. The meeting of these two well-conditioned athletes will be looked forward to with interest.

For the semi-final Manager Jim Laidlaw is bringing back baby-faced John Barend. He will tangle with Mayes McLain, and outstanding performer. Bill Stack, who is popular with local mat devotees, is also back, this time taking on Kaye Belle. Stack earned this bout by his fine showing against Al Korman last week.

British Athlete Won't Get Stakes

By MICHAEL O'MARA

LONDON, Dec. 12 — (CP) — British Athletes who have been crying for thick, juicy steaks to help them get back on top in international competition are just wasting their breath, says nutrition expert Dr. Arnold Bender.

Extra meat probably wouldn't help much, anyway, he told a gathering of athletes, coaches, trainers and newspaper men. His lecture was sponsored by one of Britain's largest proprietary medicine firms (Crookes Laboratories Limited) which has established an athletes' advisory service to try to whip malnutrition among British sportsmen.

Bender, a member of the extramural board of the University of London, reasoned it this way:

The quantity of protein necessary to the normal body still is a matter of medical debate, but depends rather on the size of the body than on the type of work the body does.

About one gram of protein is needed daily for each kilogram of body weight—or about three ounces of pure protein for a man weighing 150 pounds. If meat were the only dietetic source of protein, such a man would have to eat nearly a pound a day.

This is far more than one can eat on British rations—but the solution is that proteins are also obtained from milk, eggs, fruit, nuts and even dry bread.

Rangers Whip Wings Twice Rayner Star Peformer

By HARRY ECCLES,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Goal tenders covered themselves with glory in the National Hockey League this week-end, and none more so than Claude (Chuck) Rayner, whose New York Rangers twice defeated the leading Detroit Red Wings.

There were three shut-outs and a total of only 14 goals in the six games. After winning 1-0 over the Wings Saturday night, the Rangers rubbed it in with a 2-1 victory at New York Sunday. Toronto Maple Leafs at home beat Boston Bruins 2-1 Saturday night but the Bruins scored a 2-0 whitewash at Boston Sunday. Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks duelled to a 1-1 deadlock in Montreal Saturday, then Canadiense whitewashed the Hawks 3-0 at Chicago.

As a result of this minimum of goal scoring Detroit's lead today is nine points over Toronto and Montreal, tied for second place. New York has vaulted to fourth place another two points back Boston is fifth and Chicago now in last place. Only five points separate the second place teams and the bottom of the table.

Rayner's great performance at Detroit Saturday set the keynote for the week-end of brilliant goal tending. Chuck had 28 saves in handing the Wings their first scoreless game this season. Centre Edgar Laprade fired the winner early in the final period as Detroit goalie Harry Lumley saved on 16 shots.

Do It Again

The largest crowd of the season at Madison Square Garden, 15,035 turned out last night to see the Rangers do it again the 2-1 loss being Detroit's first defeat away from home in 10 games. Laprade was again the scoring hero, providing a pass with which Dunc Fisher scored the first goal and himself scoring the second on a pass from Eddolls. Sid Abel scored for Detroit.

It was another goalies' classic at Toronto Saturday when the Leafs hung up their fourth straight in eight nights. Veteran goalie Turk Broda of Toronto was beaten only by veteran Milt Schmidt. Harry Watson scored for Toronto in the first and Joe Klukay in the second.

Back at Boston Sunday, Gelineau scored his second shut-out of the season. Eddie Harrison got the first Boston goal and Paul Ronty scored the second, after Broda had been taken from the cage for a Toronto attack late in the finale.

The Hawks and Canadiens couldn't break the tie at Montreal Saturday but it was Frank Brimsek's brilliant goal keeping that stopped a Montreal victory. The Chicago goalie handled 39 shots, while big Bill Durnan in the Canadiens' cage stopped 17. Maurice Richard scored the Montreal goal late in the first period and Bill Mosienko tied it up in the second.

Durnan got his fourth shut-out of the season as the Canadiens walloped the Hawks Sunday night. Roger Leger, Maurice Richard and Doug Harvey were the Montreal goal getters, but Brimsek saved on 29 others while Durnan was impregnable on a total of 32 shots.

Present Play At Graduation

WARKWORTH, Dec. 12 (ENS) —The annual Commencement of the Warkworth Continuation School was held in the Town Hall on Friday night. A large crowd enjoyed a program consisting of a play and several musical numbers. The hall was artistically decorated for the occasion.

The play "Mr. Bean from Lima" which was presented in three acts portrayed the efforts of a designing woman to marry her two daughters into wealthy families. After the usual number of humorous episodes, her attempts were foiled and every one received her just reward.

At the conclusion of the play, Gwen Wartman, on behalf of the pupils, presented Miss Rusaw (the director) of with a bouquet of roses.

The musical numbers included school choruses, a solo by Claire Winsover and the first prize double trio of the Northumberland Musical Festival. The members of the trio were Gwen Wartman, Lois Fowler, Wylenne Hermiston, Jacqueline Potter, Bernice Nelson, and Jean McCubbin. These were all students of Warkworth Continuation School.

Athletic awards were presented to Helen Doherty (Senior Girls' Champion); Wayne Wartman (Senior Boys' Champion); Irwin Greenly (junior boys' champion); Bernice Nelson (runner-up senior girls); and J. D. Merrill, (runner-up senior boys.)

The recipients of Secondary School graduation diplomas were Eric Finch, Gordon Ferguson, Lois Fowler and Carolyn Atkinson.

Apple-Pickers Close Season With Big Ball

WHITBY, Dec. 12—(CP)—To the apple-pickers' ball they came the other day—100 employees of G. N. Irwin's Red Wing Orchards near here.

The final event of the apple picking season, the ball was held in an old barn and everything was on the house. It's no ordinary barn, either. There's no hay in the loft nor chaff on the floor.

Mr. Irwin, a former resident of Norwood where his father was minister, has spent time and money fixing up the barn as a recreation centre for 24 full-time workers and the 70-odd pickers he employs in the fall.

Among other things the barn has air-conditioning, a ballroom, a billiard-room, a bowling alley, a lounge and a lunch counter.

His wages may not be as high as those paid by some other farms, Irwin says, but he is trying to give his workers everything they would have in the city.

At the farm full-time workers get a house, all the milk they want and their fuel in addition to wages. The farm covers a total of 500 acres, most of which is devoted to orchards.

MEDAL WINNERS—Boris Pregel (left) watched as an unidentified representative of the French Association of Engineers presents General Dwight Eisenhower with the Association's grand medal. Pregel, Eisenhower and Herbert Hoover are the only three Americans to ever receive the award. Pregel was president of the Canadian Radium and Uranium Corporation at the time the Port Hope refinery sent the uranium to Russia and his activities are expected to come under review in the US Congress in the near future.

Lindsay Fire Drives Out Three Families

Three families — one of them newly-arrived from Sault Ste. Marie—were forced to leave their Cambridge St., Lindsay, apartment house Sunday night when fire broke out in a rear shed.

Worst hit was the family of Peter Wardlaw, who have been dogged by bad luck since they left home in the Sault to live in Lindsay.

The blaze began in a lean-to shed behind the apartment dwelling, possibly due to defective wiring or spontaneous combustion—Chief Arthur Webster has not yet completed his investigation.

After destroying the shed it spread to the kitchen of the lower apartment and ate up through the partition to the second floor in that part of the dwelling recently renovated.

Downstairs will have to be completely redecorated and some construction work and plastering will also be required.

Firemen managed to prevent the flames from breaking out in more than one place on the second floor. The exception was at the baseboard in the bathroom.

Damage By Heat

Apart from actual destruction due to fire in the kitchen most of the damage was caused by the intense heat of the blaze. A large quantity of fuel oil in the shed ignited and gave off a heat that blistered the walls and furniture in remote parts of the aptrement house.

The outbreak was discovered by Mr. Wardlaw, who just moved into the downstairs apartment with his wife and children. He opened the kitchen door to go out to the shed where lay the still-unpacked suits, shoes and most of the family's clothing, but he was met by a blast of flames.

He was unable to prevent it from spreading to the house.

Second Bout of Bad Luck

This was the second stroke of misfortune for Mr. Wardlaw who left the Sault for a job at Visking Ltd., Lindsay. As he was leaving Sudbury en route to Lindsay he was delayed when a truck backed into his car.

Fortunately for the Wardlaws most of their furniture is not arriving until later today. Had it done so the loss would have been much heavier.

No monetary estimate of damage has yet been made.

Boris Pregel Mystery Man Helped Win Atomic Race

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The House Un-American Activities Committee's investigation of war-time shipments of uranium to Russia will probably soon bring into the open the name of Boris J. Pregel (pronounced Prezhell). Pregel is head of the Canadian Radium and Uranium Corporation of New York. The Committee's Chief Investigator, Louis J. Russell, has testified, this is the company from which the Russians were able to buy 500 pounds of uranium oxide and 500 pounds of uranium nitrate in April, 1943. The materials were shipped directly from Port Hope, to Great Falls, Mont., and flown from there to Russia.

Since May, 1946, Pregel has had on file with the U.S. District Court in New York his petition for naturalization as an American citizen. The government has been "investigating". In recent weeks it has been reported that the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service was considering deportation proceedings.

Boris Pregel is something of a man of mystery, although his name was mentioned in the famous Smyth report on atomic energy. Perhaps his most colorful achievement was a prophecy, in January, 1941, that "Upon the outcome of the race to unlock the energy of the much-publicized U-235 (fissionable uranium) will rest victory in the European war, and also the future course of mankind's social and economic development."

This was printed in the Miami, Fla., Daily News, Jan. 12, 1941, under the headline, "VICTORY IN WAR MAY COME TO NATION SOLVING U-235."

Thought A Pipe-Dream

Everybody apparently thought it was a pipe-dream. There was no question of censorship then. This was before the U.S. got into the war, before the first atom was split, before the Manhattan Project was founded to make the first bomb.

U.S. Not Interested

In the fall of 1940, Pregel tried to interest the U.S. government in building up a stockpile of uranium and radium. He was told by the U.S. Council of National Defense that uranium was not a strategic material and there was no shortage.

Nevertheless, in June, 1941, Pregel made an agreement with Columbia University that led to one of the first atomic fission experiments in the United States.

Success of the Columbia experiments led Einstein, Urey, Fermi and other scientists to urge President Roosevelt to create an atomic energy project.

Pregel has been given full credit for his part in this pioneer development.

Pregel is an officer of the French Legion of Honor and one of three American residents to have received the Grand Medal of the French Asociation of Engineers and Doctors of Science. The other two are former President Herbert Hoover—who received the award at the same time that Pregel was honored — and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Pregel has in his files many letters from U.S. government officials testifying to his contributions to the American war effort for work classified as secret.

Born in Russia

Pregel was born at Odessa, Russia, in 1893, of a well-to-do Jewish family.

The Bolshevik revolution forced the family to flee, leaving all their property to the Communists when the White Russian army evacuated Odessa in 1920. They made their way to Romania, later to Belgium.

Eventually, Boris became connected with the Belgian uranium and radium refining cartel.

When the Nazis invaded the low countries, Pregel made efforts to have Belgium's stockpile of uranium moved to France for safe-keeping. He went to France and became attached to the Ministry of Armaments.

In May, 1939, Pregel came to the United States. He was admitted on a Romanian passport and under the Romanian quota. He declared he would take up permanent residence in this country. He returned to France twice in 1940, the last trip at the death of his father.

When in France, a previous application for French citizenship was granted and he returned to the U. S. on a French passport with a non-quota visa. He was at first excluded by an Immigration Service board of special inquiry, but on apepal was admitted the next day.

When Pregel first came to the United States he was reported to be worth in excess of a million dollars. Associates say he is worth something less than this amount now. When Pregel came here there was only one North American Producer of radium and uranium, the Eldorado Mining and Refining Co., in the Great Bear Lake region of northern Canada. He became a sales agent for this producer and is given credit for having broken the Brussels monopoly which had controlled the world market up to this time.

Later he formed Canadian Radium and Uranium Co., and became its president. His brother, Alexander Pregel, was treasurer. Exact operations of this company are now covered by atomic energy secrecy regulations.

When the Canadian government took over all radio-active mining enterprises, there were several lawsuits against the Pregel interests. A criminal action was dismissed by the government. Since Boris Pregel was not extraditable to Canada, a civil action was then begun in New York by the Eldorado Mining and Refining Co.—now a Canadian government corporation—against Canadian Radium and Uranium Co. The trial was held in camera and the record has been impounded.

Occupants Escape

Two occupants of a car that flipped over on its roof Sunday morning on the south River Rd. emerged uninjured from the accident. F. J. Christie of Parnell St. was driving north on the River Rd., about three-quarters of a mile south of Highway 7. The car skidded after rounding a bend in the road and ran into the west ditch where it turned over on its roof. The passenger was Susan Booth of George St.

Memorial Centre At Kitchener Causes Worry

Kitchener appears to be in much the same position as Peterborough in worrying about its Memorial Auditorium and the financing thereof.

Says Ald. Henry Sturm: "If we can't do the auditorium right I'd delay the whole thing. I'm not interested in the ordinary run-of-the-mill tin jobs. I think we should have a building in which the people can be comfortable and where any types of attractions besides hockey can be successfully staged."

Estimates of the Kitchener building's cost are close to $1,000,000. Reduction of the number of seats from the originally planned 6,200 has been suggested.

"Every 1,000 seats," said Ald. Sturm, "cost about $100,000 on a rough estimate."

Plans may have to be revised at a cost of probably $7,000. Capacity will be discussed at the next meeting of the auditorium committee.

City Post Office In High Gear For Busy Weeks

To help handle the Christmas mail rush 100 extra employees are being hired by the local Post Office this year, officials said today. The first extra help will start work at the office on the night of December 17 and the number of extras will increase or decrease according to the amount of work. Monday, December 19, is expected to be the peak day this year.

Already temporary arrangements have been made in the office to handle the bags of mail. The Postmaster's office which is normally situated in the southwest corner of the building has been moved to the second floor, which was left vacant some time ago by the Trent Canal System officials. His office on the main floor will be used as an extra stamp wicket during the rush.

Sorting of local mail will be done also in second floor rooms, by 21 men working in three continuous shifts. A permanent postal clerk will have six assistants on each shift.

A manual lift has been built to convey the local mail from the main floor to the second floor.

Using Armoury

As in other years the Gun Room situated at the west end of the Armouries, will be used as a postal depot to handle the incoming parcels. Due to insufficient room at the main Post Office this has to be used.

The Armouries depot will be staffed by eight men working two shifts, a permanent postal clerk and three helpers on each shift. The parcels will be taken straight from the train to the armouries. Monday, December 18, the first delivery is expected to be made from this temporary quarter.

During the rush days each letter-carrier will have an assistant. Other extra workers will assist postal clerks on all shifts. A few assistant letter-carriers will be kept over the Christmas holiday to help with December 27 delivery, the rest will finish on December 24.

As last year the Post Office will be closed on Christmas and New Year's Day, December 26 and January 2.

The call still goes out: Mail Early.

Left Wingers Expel Morton

At a membership meeting in the Brock Street Summer Gardens Sunday night, four one-time members of Local 524 UE were expelled from the union. All are members of the new IUE-CIO.

They were John G. Morton, acting president of Local 524 IUE-CIO, and three other top right-wingers: Joseph Murphy, Cyril O'Donnell and Keith Chiles.

Top speakers were George Harris, UE district secretary-treasurer, and Frank Krouse, business agent of Local 504 UE, Hamilton. Both told of the recent contract settlement reached at the Westinghouse plant in Hamilton and asked the membership to rally around the UE.

A motion was also passed that the Executive Board of Local 524 notify the Company that now Morton and the three other right-wingers had been constitutionally expelled, there was no longer any reason for withholding the November checkoff money.

Rain Puts Skiing On Sunday Skids

Rain once more put the skids under the skiers' hopes to have one week-end of skiing. Rain started to fall about noon Sunday as a fairly large crowd were enjoying their favorite sport at Bethany. The skiing up to that time was only fair. At Kempt's Hill Sunday the rain stopped skiers before they tried the slopes.

Saturday skiing at Bethany was good with a layer of powdery snow topping a firm base. Only a few were there to enjoy it. About 50 skiers were using the slopes at Kempt's Hill where the skiing was described as fair.

Some skiiers stayed at the Bethany slopes Sunday afternoon in spite of the rain. The slalom hill was tramped to keep as much of the snow base as possible and slalom flags were put up. A few practised until 4 p.m.

Can't Find Peanuts

LONDON, Dec. 12 (CP)—Peanuts are so scarce in Britain that it's practically impossible to buy a bag for the monkeys at the zoo. But there'll be 100 tons for sale at Christmas, if you can find them. Dealers attribute the windfall to an official error. It seems that somebody blundered and forgot to put peanuts on the banned list.

Approve Recognition

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Britain's United Nations Association—an unofficial body—Sunday approved recognition of Communist China and urged the British government to press for agreement on the issue in the UN. A resolution passed by the organization's council said that it is in the best interests of the UN that the Communist government of China be given early recognition.

Optimists Take 2 Tons Food At Hamper Show

Over two tons of foodstuffs and approximately $1,700 was the result of this year's Optimist Club hamper show Sunday afternoon at the Brock St. Summer Gardens. This doubles the amount of food and money taken in by the show last year, one ton of food and $700. All the food and money will go into Christmas hampers for the needy families of Peterborough and will be distributed by the welfare officer, the Salvation Army and other organizations of the city.

Six telephone lines and twenty-five cars received the calls from donors and picked up the food or money. At the same time nearly 1,500 people were crowded into the Gardens for a three-and-a-half-hour show during which local talent entertained.

Guests of the Optimist Club were the children of the Children's Shelter and the Orphanage. Santa Claus paid an unofficial visit.

Christmas Cake Auction

An unexpected feature of the show was the bidding on a Christmas cake which had been donated by one of the local bakeries. Three men took the price of the cake up to $175 before a winner was decided. Then the cake was donated again to the hamper show by the winner. The total receipts from the three chief bidders alone were $426.

Roseneath Wife, Husband Killed With Two Others

ROSENEATH, Dec. 12 (ENS)—When Mrs. Margaret Macklin, 24, of Roseneath, driving on a slippery Mimico street outside Toronto Sunday afternoon, turned the car to avoid hitting another one, she struck a street car, killed herself and her three passengers.

Mrs. Macklin was instantly killed, as were her sister Mrs. Edna Deline, 34, of Toronto, and another passenger William Mervin Reed also of Toronto. Her husband, Milford Macklin, 34, was mortally injured and died this morning in St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto.

This tragic accident has shocked Roseneath, where the young couple lived, and the Rice Lake district where they operated a summer resort, at Macklin's Landing.

Mr. Macklin was born in Fenella and moved with his family to Alnwick Township as a small boy. Since then he has lived in Roseneath. During the war he was a mechanic in the RCAF.

One of Nine

Mr. Macklin was the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Macklin. He is survived by five brothers and three sisters. His three sisters are Mrs. Harold McCracken (Evelyn), Roseneath, Mrs. Victor Graham (Mildred), Stirling, and Mrs. German Winn (Myrtle), Roseneath. The five brothers are Frank, Cecil, Clifford, Clarence and George.

No funeral arrangements have yet been made.

How To Play Canasta

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

Hints to the beginner at Canasta: Watch out for those red treys! Remember that you must take another card from the stock pile for each red trey that you put on the table.

Make sure that you understand the conditions applying to the frozen pack.

Blacks trey, while apparently nuisance cards, are valuable to prevent your opponent from taking the pack, especially when the pack becomes big.

Don't waste time trying for natural Canastas. You may lose 300 attempting to gain an additional 200.

Don't waste much time on concealed hands. They only earn an additional 100 points.

Don't be too anxious to put your cards on the table. Always try to be in a position to take the pack. Remember that one additional Canasta is worth 300 points. The cards in your hand may represent a loss of only 50 or 100 points.

Don't get down to too few cards. The fewer cards you have in your hand, the less flexible the hand is.

It pays to get your first minimum meld down as soon as possible.

Don't hold up your Canastas. They count 300 or 500 points on the table. Your partner may have a good melding hand and need your Canasta to meld out.

Don't be to anxious to take the pack if it contains only a few cards, especially if you have pretty good control of the pack.

You cannot have more than three wild cards in any melds, except that after a Canasta is completed, you may add to it, and there is no limit to the number of wild cards that you may add to it.

If you add a wild card to a natural Canasta, you reduce its value from 500 to 300 points.

You cannot pick up a black trey even though you have two black treys in your hand. However in order to meld out, melds may be made with black treys the some as any other meld.

When the pack is small, you can discard your singletons or doubletons, but when the pack gets large, be careful. If you have not a black three or even a wild card to prevent your opponent from taking the pack, it might even pay you to discard from one of your long suits, hoping that he will not have a match for it.

When the other side has control of the pack, try to go out as quickly as possible to prevent them from running up a large score. If the opponents have a lot of cards on the table and a number of nearly completed Canastas, it may well pay you to go out instead of playing for another Canasta in order to prevent them from completing several others.

Herman Best Orchestra

CHICAGO, Dec 12 — (AP).— The best band of 1949 was one that no longer exists, according to readers of Down Beat, jazz music magazine. The band of Woody Herman drew 1,042 votes in the annual down beat poll, besting Duke Ellington with 301 votes, and Charlie Barnet, third with 249. Herman recently broke up his big band and kept a nucleus of six men as a small "combo" playing currently in Havana, Cuba. Bebop was represented in the down beat vote for best instrumental combo, won by the George Shearing sextette with Charlie Ventura's group second.

Reports Made In Soccer At Convention

The Ontario Football Association convention was held in the King Edward Hotel Saturday, December 10 with Arthur Arnold, chairman, presiding, along with Willis Entwistle, past chairman; A. M. McGregor, sec.-treas.; Tom McCree, Major A. L. Steele, MBE and E. R. Slade, member DFA for developing of soccer in Canada. Associations represented: Toronto and District, London and District, Sudbury and District, Peterborough and District; Chatham and District, Essex County District, Toronto Junior and Juvenile; Major League, National League.

Local delegates were: Thomas H. G. Garland, and Stroyan Leith, secretary.

W. Entwistle, past president, gave an excellent report that revealed circumstances relative to the various activities in bringing in the visiting foreign clubs. His statement shows that the Newcastle vs. Ontario game drew $17,902.00, Canadian National Exhibition $5,475.50; DFA $4,456.90, OFA, $7,970. Balance was $3,458.-60.

Newcastle vs. Sweden: receipts, $30,454. Canadian National Exhibition $8,613. Sweden received $8,113., OFA $5,613.50.

Canadian National Exhibition received $16,089 for use of the grounds for the two games. Newcastle vs. Ontario and Newcastle vs. Sweden, total drawn $48,356. Mr. Entwistle stated that Newcastle players demanded remuneration which depicted that each Newcastle member received $275 for the two games and had staged a strike 15 minutes before the Swedish game to prove that they were "out for the money—not the sport." Other startling revelations necessary to put soccer before the public were disclosed.

Local Men Appointed

For many years, Toronto and district association have not cooperated with the higher executives, OFA and DFA, and carried their attitude to DFA which was referred back to the OFA to culminate in Norman Howard and Stroyan Leith, Peterborough, and E. Davenport, Windsor being the unbiased committee appointed to hear the appeal of the T. and D. F. A. appeal against the OFA. They will hear the "beef" from both sides to recommend a solution to the OFA executive for the benefit of all concerned.

A. M. McGregor's secretary report "was of the highest calibre financially of the game. "The unpleasant side the T. and DFA adopted was malicious when they carried their roar back before the DFA at the Calgary convention. There were 79 clubs affiliated, 2,005 players registered, and 19 clubs granted affiliation to compete in the intermediate championship which was won by Riverdale Imperials. Total of 98 clubs in the province with Sault Ste. Marie, Kirkland Lake, and Niagara district coming in next year to make over 3,000 players registered.

Soccer commission were granted recognition under the Provincial Government Physical Fitness Act, Mr. E. R. Slade being appointed to such a position and they co-operated with him in publishing "Soccer for Schools and Colleges." A working agreement has been approved by the USA and OFA soccer commissions.

Swedish players received $2,681.85; Newcastle received $3,458.60; Belfast Celtic $220.19; Scotland $238.07; DFA percentage $805.37.

Saturday Games

Millard's defeated Trojan Bantams 4-2 in a close game, the score being tied until after the half-way mark in the third period. In the second game, St. Peter's took Keene Midgets 3-1 in a closely checked fray. Keene turned on the power in the third period to try and tie it up and nearly succeeded several times but St. Peters' defence held them off with good checking. "Let's go sightseeing in Averagetown!"

"Right this way for a tour of Averagetown — a Canadian town or city that might be the one you live in!

"You'll see it as you never saw it before ... hear the behind-the-scenes story of some of its most important landmarks ... see sights that will give you new faith in its future. All set? Let's go!"

1. "On our right we have a splendid new high school, with modern lighting, air-conditioning and a host of other improvements that give students a 'lift'. It was built with the aid of life insurance dollars, invested for policyholders, in municipal bonds."

2. "Note the bridge we are coming to now. See how wide, smooth and safe it is! Motorists for miles around bless the day it was built. But few know that life insurance dollars played a vital part in building this, too!"

3. "Here's the town's biggest industrial plant. It shows another way in which life insurance dollars are invested. Imagine what this plant means to its thousands of workers! Imagine how it's helped to expand business all through Averagetown!"

4. "On our left you see Averagetown's new waterworks. And — you guessed it — life insurance dollars are at work here too, helping to pump and purify the water. That's a big job — for the water is used at the rate of thousands of gallons per minute!"

5. "How those life insurance dollars do get around! Here they've helped to build a new apartment building that means a much-needed home to scores of people."

"Sorry — that's all we can show you now. But life insurance dollars also helped to build Averagetown's electrical power plant, sewage system, recreational park and many of its homes.

"They're a boon to farmers, too — helping to build highways and rural electrification systems.

"I know — because I am a life insurance representative. And I hope that now you too can see that life insurance serves you two ways.

"It makes the future financially secure for yourself and your family. And it helps create jobs and raise living standards in your community!"

These aids to better living are founded on the work of the life insurance representative. It is largely because of his efforts that so many people buy life insurance and pay premiums — the major part of which is invested in vital projects that benefit Canadians from coast to coast. Thus your life insurance representative is more than a helpful advisor on financial security. He's a helpful citizen, too!

Fred Astaire Finished With Charleston

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12—(AP)—Is the Charleston coming back? Fred Astaire hopes not.

The famed and frenzied dance of the roaring 20s has been making a reappearance at College dances, society parties, and in Broadway shows. It is part of a throwback to another post-war era, which has also brought renewed interest in the raccoon coat, ukulele, mah jong and the bobbed haircut.

"I suppose it's a novelty to the youngsters who were not even born when it was first danced," he said. "It must look like fun to them. But I don't think it will make a comeback."

"For myself, I'm not interested in old dances. I am always looking for new ones."

Did Charleston Once

Astaire admitted to being a Charleston dancer himself. "My sister Adele and I danced it to a Gershwin tune in 'Lady Be Good' in London," he recalled. "It created a lot of talk." He also confessed to having owned a raccoon coat.

But such things are in the past now, he said. He indicated the Charleston has little to offer in the way of grace and beauty.

Nostalgically, Astaire did a few steps of the old-time dance. All I can say is, if everyone could Charleston the way Astaire Charlestons, the dance is due for a revival.

True Story

Astaire now is starring in "Three Little Words," the life stories of song writers Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby. This will be something now in musical biographies, since the script — at least at this writing — actually follows the lives and characters of its subjects.

I discovered this after lunching with Mr. and Mrs. Ruby and Kalmar's widow. Astaire will play Kalmar, who really was a slim, dapper dancer. Mrs. Kalmar, who was his graceful dance partner, is portrayed by Vera-Ellen, who certainly qualifies. Ruby (Red Skelton) is one of the funniest men in show business and his wife (Arlene Dahl) was actually a movie star.

Rent Control Talks

TORONTO, Dec. 12 (CP) — A meeting of District 5 Council, United Automobile Workers (CCL), Sunday asked the Ontario Federation of Labor to call an immediate conference of all union representatives in Ontario to discuss rent control. The meeting also demanded an end of the Means Test on Federal old age pensions, and condemned Dresden, Ont., for its recent vote defeating a by-law proposing that town restaurants be compelled to serve all patrons regardless of class, creed or color.

May Support Potatoes

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP)—The government will discuss with provincial Agriculture Ministers the possibility of extending price support to potatoes, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Saturday in the Commons. Mr. Gardiner said the United States still has maintained its embargo against the import of Canadian potatoes, beyond the quota limit.

HIGH—AND ALMOST DRY—Ghostlike in the flare from welders' torches, the 1,134-ton freighter Chelohsin has been hard aground just outside Vancouver Harbor for more than a month. Marine officials are hopeful she can be freed to sail again.

Agricultural Minister Tells House That All Surpluses Of Food Sold

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Commons Saturday under questioning by J. A. Charlton (PC, Brant) that "in spite of the fact that the government in Great Britain does not want our food, we have sold it all."

He added:

"We have not got any surpluses of these food products. The food is all gone."

However, while it had been sold, he didn't think the situation would be as good in the future.

Mr. Charlton said he wondered if the apple growers would believe there are no surpluses.

"I think the apple growers will believe that," Mr. Gardiner replied.

He also indicated that the surpluses of powdered milk, canned milk, "and milk of any kind" were gone.

Not There Now

Mr. Charlton asked if the 56,600,000 pounds of powdered milk and condensed milk were sold since Nov. 9.

"If there were 56,600,000 pounds there then, it is not there now," Mr. Gardiner said.

Mr. Gardiner held in his hand a list he said he had been handed the other day by people who wished to buy various foods.

The list included skim and whole milk powder; yellow cheese; fillets of fish; canned fish; egg powder; canned vegetables; grits; barley and maize; frozen wheat and buckwheat, and canned milk.

Surpluses Gone

"I went right down that list with the people who are presumed to have them, and was told that we have none of those surpluses left whatsoever under our control; and the only way they could buy it is to go out and buy it in competition with other countries at prices they are prepared to pay for it.

"The British will not sign a contract for more than one year and if they have their way they will not sign at all," Mr. Gardiner told Mr. Charlton.

Mr. Charlton said it seemed to him they signed contracts with other nations behind the iron curtain for terms of two or three years.

Mr. Gardiner replied that Canada has been trying to sign contracts for four or five year terms, "but they refused to sign them," either during the war or since for more than two years on anything but wheat.

Milk Market Righted Says Fulford

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 — (CP) — George Fulford (L, Leeds) Saturday in the Commons said he previously had made a "gloomy" report on the evaporated milk situation in Canada. He wanted to report that the situation now had "resolved itself."

A few months ago, he said during discussion of agricultural estimates, there were growing surpluses of evaporated milk and farmers were beginning to worry.

Now the export market for evaporated milk had righted itself. Shipments had increased and the outlook had improved.

Thanks to Trade Minister Howe and Agricultural Minister Gardiner, markets for evaporated milk had been found, chiefly in Europe.

N.Y. Show-of-Month Club Saves Wear On Playgoers

By ADELAIDE KERR

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 —(AP)— You never can tell to what frustration will lead.

In the case of Sylvia Seigler and her husband Lou Cooper it led to the show-of-the-month club, which enables a lot of heretofore frustrated playgoers to buy tickets to Broadway hits without scuffle, scalpers, swearing or standing in line. The club has just passed its first anniversary.

Its members pay a yearly fee which enables them to buy one pair of tickets each month at box office prices and another pair at a discount of five to 20 per cent—without stirring from their armchairs.

The club does the leg work. It selects the shows, notifies members that it has taken seats for certain dates, and gives them vital statistics about production playwright, producer and actors. Its offering include such hits as "South Pacific," "Kiss Me Kate," "Death of a Salesmen," and "Lost in the Stars."

"This is a club for busy people," says Miss Siegler, "we want to make it possible for them to see the shows they want to see without a struggle."

Missed Out

Miss Siegler and Cooper started the business after they failed to get what they longed for in youth. Miss Siegler wanted to act, but never made it. Now she is club president and its business brains.

Cooper, a quiet, gentle-mannered, grey-eyed young man wants to compose the music for Broadway's biggest hits. He wrote the scores for the Broadway show "Swan Song" and for a movie "Eve of St. Mark," but he has not had his big success yet. He selects shows from scripts before their out-of-town tryouts and, so far, has missed only once in his judgment of a coming hit.

One week after being launched, their club had 100 subscribers. Today it has more than 3,000. When it reaches 5,000 the management plans to close the New York membership and start clubs in Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, operating in theatres there.

Doubtful About Fair

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said Saturday he hasn't satisfied himself yet whether it's a good idea or not to hold an international trade fair in Canada. It's hard to tell how much good such events do, he told the Commons, but the government is backing the fair in Toronto for one more year anyway.

To Investigate Council

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said Saturday in the Commons that a committee may be established at the next session of Parliament to look into all of the affairs of the National Research Council, including atomic energy.

Pays For Inventions

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said Saturday the government now pays its employees for inventions which are sold. Since last Jan. 1, the government has turned over to employees five per cent of the gross proceeds from the sale of inventions by them.

Sarah Churchill Looks Back On Experiences

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—(CP). — Since starting on a flying visit to Canada last May, Sarah Churchill, daughter of England's wartime prime minister, can look back on a lot of unexpected experiences.

When she left England, it was to attend the annual by-line ball inn Toronto and to make a number of personal appearances in connection with her then-new-movie—"All Over the Town."

Since then she has married, learned a lot of new pronunciations of her married name, Beauchamp, toured the straw-hat circuit in New England and played in the newest type of theatre.

Now touring with the Theatre Guild production of "The Philadelphit Story," which opens in Toronto today, Sarah was married in October to British photographer, Anthony Beauchamp

In an interview Sunday night Miss Churchill related a few of the interpretations given her married name. They included Bean-Shamp, Beecham and Bew-Camp.

"Actually, we pronounce it Beecham," she said.

She described the newest type of theatre as being the round variety, completely lacking in scenery, the scenes changing in darkness and players leaving and mounting the stage among the audience, which is all around the stage.

"And one time I sat in someone's lap," Miss Churchill said.

Marine Motif Pleases Expert

OTTAWA, Dec. 12.—(CP). — A dream kitchen, done in the "marine motif," with pastel walls and sea-green floor, is the new headquarters of Hazel Freeman of the Fisheries Department, and she says she is most "glad" to get it.

During her 13 years with the department, the Halifax-born cooking expert has travelled the country lecturing to women's clubs, service groups, and demonstrating ways of preparing fish

But when it came to testing recipes of her own, that had to be done in her Ottawa apartment or if "on the road," usually after hours in the domestic science room of the nearest high school.

Now as chief home economist for the department, Miss Freeman has a model kitchen in the west block of the Parliament Buildings, complete with everything from an egg beater to a garbage disposal unit.

The establishment will be part of the new consumers service branch which Fisheries Minister Mayhew announced in the House of Commons. Object of the branch will be to give demonstrations and lectures on fish cooking, and generally seek to enlarge the use of seafood among all classes of consumers.

Miss Freeman, who is a graduate of Acadia University, Wolfville, N. S., said the kitchen actually will be more for testing recipes than for demonstration purposes. New and better ways of cooking fish will be devised and fish recipes will be developed for institutional feeding.

Miss Freeman will have other food experts under her direction. The department shortly will advertise for three more home economists, who will be trained by Miss Freeman in the ways of fish, before going into the field to make more housewives seafood conscious.

Kingston-born Girl Manages Home For the Stage-struck

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (CP)—For the thousands of girls who flock to New York each year to try to make the grade in the glittering entertainment world, one of the big problems is that of bed and board.

If they are lucky, the Rehearsal Club is the answer.

Here some 60 girls and young women who aspire to a career on the stage or in the kindred spheres of radio and night clubs are given accommodation and meals at prices appropriate to lean purses.

While they make the rounds of the agents' offices, hoping for a job, the club provides a roof over their heads and a base of operations.

Much of the success of this residential club is due to its hard-working Canadian-born manager, Kay Carleton. Miss Carleton knows her clientele. She spent some years on the stage herself.

Born in Kingston, Ont., this soft-spoken, grey-haired women came to New York in 1916. Her first stage role was in "Everyman," production which toured the United States and Canada. Subsequently she spent several years singing in musicals and vaudeville. She still sings every Sunday in the choir of St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church in New York.

"It was fun growing up in Kingston," said Miss Carleton in an interview the other day at the Rehearsal Club. "We did such simple things then and we had such fun. I don't think the youngsters now have nearly such a good time."

Still A Canadian

The club manager, who still is a Canadian citizen and who spends almost every summer in Prince Edward Island, came to live at the Rehearsal Club in 1921. She became its manager in 1938.

Girls who can get into the club are lucky; the demands for rooms always exceeds the supply. Miss Carleton herself decides whether or not to admit an aspiring tenant — usually on the strength of a brief interview.

The Rehearsal Club, founded in 1913, has always had a quota of Canadians. At the time of the interview, six Canadian were staying there.

They include Valerie Lewis, a radio and television actress who was born in Saint John, N.B., and lived most of her life in Montreal; Anna Russell of Toronto, a singer and comedienne; Muriel Ward, formerly of Toronto; Marion O'Connor of Toronto, who was with the Canadian army show overseas; Francis Shelly, a singer from Montreal, now a New York model.

Each girl pays $15 a week for a bedroom (usually shared with up to four girls). The cost includes dinner every evening and breakfast on Sundays.

It is an unwritten custom that when tenants are making $250 or $300 a week, they find some other place to live, making room for those of more modest means.

Miss Carleton's interest in her charges does not end when they leave the club's hospitable quarters. She follows their careers with interest and keeps a voluminous scrap-book of their activities.

Among the Rehearsal Club's more celebrated graduates are Margaret Sullivan, Martha Scott and Ruth Hussey. Florence McGee, former Toronto actress, also once lived there.

SHOWGIRLS' FRIEND — Kay Carleton, a native of Kingston, Ont., is manager of the Rehearsal Club, a home-away-from-home for stage-struck girls seeking success in New York. Miss Carleton herself spent several years on the stage.

The girls entered to the processional "O Come All Ye Faithful," all wearing the traditional uniform, midy with black tie and dark skirt accompanied by the younger girls of the Explorers' Group.

Joan Krogh, department president, took the pulpit and gave the call to worship. Portions of scripture were read by Beth Davidson and Ann Gordon and Joan White read two Christmas poems. The Rev. Dr. D. B. Gordon pronounced the benediction after which the audience stood as the girls retired, singing the recessional hymn "As With Gladness Men of Old."

DOROTHY DIX

Must Take Partner "As Is" Don't Try Sudden Reform

DEAR MISS DIX: A man is in love with me who thinks me things which I am not—beautiful, clever, wonderful and so forth—and he is the kindest and most wonderful man I ever saw. Also he has a quick mind, good manners, a pleasing personality, a good job and he is very generous, though he hasn't much money

Dorothy Dix

And also we like to do the same things. But here is the rub. He wears wool socks summer and winter, sets his hat at a slight angle, has a peculiar walk, reads little and has no particular talent. What I want to know is: After marriage will the socks make me scream? Will a tip-tilted walk produce a hemorrhage, or will I continue to smile and nod and say to myself: "Isn't he cute?"

ANSWER: Well, Mary, you remember the historic answer that Punch made long ago to the man who asked whether he should marry or not. To which Mr. Punch replied: "Whichever you do you will regret it."

Always Some Regret

There are moments in every marriage, no matter how happy it is, when every husband and wife has at least a passing moment of regret and longing for their lost freedom. And whatever type of husband or wife they selected there are times and reasons when they wish they had picked out the other.

In your case I should say that your man runs all to the good, and that he has so much to offer you in the way of devotion and congeniality and pleasant personality that you could well afford to overlook his little peculiarities. After all, woollen socks are not a real vice, and maybe they are only a minor weakness of which you can cure him, and many a tactful wife has straightened out worse angles in her husband's character than the slant of a hat.

So my advice to you is to marry him and take a chance on his clothes, but don't try to reform him too suddenly, and have a respect for his individual liberty. He may object to your nylon stockings as strenuously as you object to his woolen ones and think it silly the way you cock your hat over one eye one season and on the nape of your neck the next.

My earnest opinion is that when people get married they should take each other "as is" and make the best of it. The real test of love is liking another person's ways just because they are his or hers.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife had an argument with our daughter the other day about marriage and among other things the girl told her was this—that it was her life and she had a right to live it as she pleased, and what was more that she did not ask to be brought into the world. What would you have answered her?

PERPLEXED FATHER

ANSWER: I should have told my daughter that just because I had thrust the gift of life upon her was the reason why I felt morally bound to do everything within my power to help her make it worth while.

Then I think I should call the girl's bluff and ask her if she regretted being born; if she wanted to die and pass out of life: if she wanted to be done with this interesting old world and all it has of pleasure and amusements? Children are always reproaching their parents with having committed the crime against them of giving them life, but I have never seen one yet who wasn't having a sufficiently good time to want to keep on with it. None of them really wish they had never been born.

Of course, it is the most arrant nonsense for youngsters to declare as they are in the habit of doing, that their lives are their own and that they have a right to lead them as they please. Nobody lives to himself alone. All our lives interlock and everyone about us has to pay the penalty for what we do.

Especially are boys and girls fond of asserting their right to marry when they please and whom they please because, as they boastfully put it, they have to endure the consequences of their marriage. But in reality it is father and mother who have to pay for their wilful children's unwise marriages.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am engaged to a man who is often out of town on business. I have a man friend who is married to a semi-invalid wife. He and I go out together a great deal because we both enjoy golf and the Saturday night dances at the club. His wife and my fiance think nothing of this friendship, but people are begining to gossip about us. Shall I give up this true friend or pay no attention to idle chatter?

W. M. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I am afraid you will have to give up going with the married man, no matter how platonic your relations with him are. This is a censorious and suspicious world and it invariably believes the worst of a girl who accepts attention from a married man.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question: A friend of mine tells me that when she needs a recipe for anything she writes to you. I read your column but never thought of writing. I want to know how to make those potato puffs that seem to be potato but are so puffy they look like rectangular ballons. If you know how to do this I am sure other readers besides me would like it. Madie

✧ ✧ ✧

Answer: I am always glad to make a new friend.

Potato puffs are tricky — for they require mealy potatoes. Whenever they are available buy Idaho potatoes for this.

Potato Puffs (Clipp this recipe if interested.)

Trim firm, white, peeled potatoes into oval shapes of the same size-about 2¼ inches long and 1¼ inches thick. Cut them lengthwise in slices about ⅛ inch thick. Do not use the end slices. Immediately drop the slices in ice water and let soak for at least 30 minutes—preferably an hour to soak out raw starch. Heat cooking oil to 275 deg. Fahr. Drain and dry potato slices and drop into hot oil and cook 5 minutes, turning them over once. Drain in sieve, then on absorbant paper and cool. If desired these may be stored overnight in refrigerator or kept cold until final frying. Heat the same oil to 400 or 425 deg. Fahr. Put the cold slices into a frying basket, a few at a time to prevent oil temperature dropping, and lower quickly into boiling hot oil. The extreme heat causes instantaneous puffing. Remove from heat before they burn, and drain on paper towel. Salt them slightly and serve at once.

✧ ✧ ✧

Question: S. O. S. Recipe for Almond Paste as fast as possible please. I will be watching for it.

Curly.

✧ ✧ ✧

Answer:

Almond Paste

One lb. blanched almonds, dried, 1 lb. icing sugar, 1 cup water, ½ cup of orange juice or 1 tablespoon orange flower water. Grind almonds through finest knife of food chopper 4 times. Boil water and sugar to 240 deg. Fahr. Add to ground almonds, beat, add orange juice or orange flower water, and beat until creamy. Pour onto a slab or platter dusted with icing sugar. Cool. Store in tightly cover jar for 1 week. When ready to use roll out to fit cake on board dusted with icing sugar.

Note: If you do not have a candy thermometer drop some of the sugar syrup into cup of cold water; when soft ball will form it is done.

This is the basis for the marzipan whic his used for shaping candy vegetables and fruits.

"What's Right?"

A relative or close friend asks you what you would like for Christmas and you know exactly what you would like at a price you think is in line with what the person will probably pay for your gift.

WRONG WAY: Feel you must say that you don't know what you want, leaving the choice of a gift up to the other person.

RIGHT WAY: Mention the gift you really want but do so casually, so that if it is something the other person does not want to give you he won't feel obligated to do so.

Christmas Dinner Menu Not Decided by Tradition

The Time has come.

Sure, we know Christmas only comes once a year, but there is only one thing that seems more inevitable and that is ones own birthday.

If I admit that as it approaches I am in a state of mixed feelings it will be a dead giveaway that age is beginning to "tell".

Nothing can match the joy of watching the expressions on the young faces as gifts are opened nor (and this is a new pleasure) of seeing them sing Christmas carols in the choir.

But—if some magician could enter my kitchen and shoo me out of it for the entire month of December I'd think Utopia had come.

Or would I?

Could I miss the fun making those fruity cakes or nutty cookies and of "basting the bird"? Or wondering if the cranberry jelled? or of wrapping the children's main gifts on the kitchen table at midnight Christmas eve?

Oh no.

So, my cooking friends, the menu I have worked out is printed here today with the hope that you will help yourself to it, and make your decisions accordingly. Actually the only foods that are not strictly dictated by tradition are the first course and the vegetables and the salad.

Christmas Dinner 1949

Noel Fruit Cocktail or Seafood Cocktail
OR Cream of Mushroom Soup
or
Lobster Bisque
Roast Turkey with Celery Stuffing
Cranberry Relish in Orange Cups
Sauerkraut with Crated Potatoes or Fresh Frozen Peas or Green Beans with Fresh Mushrooms.
Mashed Potatoes
Celery with Cheese-Olive Stuffing and Radish Roses.
OR
Avocado and Pink Grapefruit Salad.
Plum Puding with Foamy Sauce
OR
Christmas Ice Cream with Crushed Fruits
Christmas Tree Mints Nuts Coffee.

What do you think of it? Can you pick and choose the times that would suit your taste and that would please your family from that list?

Directions

The fruit cocktail could be the kind you tip out of a tin or could be made of fresh grapefruit and orange sections, crushed pine-apple, halved seedless green grapes and wafer thin slices of red and green maraschino cherries.

The Seafood cocktail, if it is the one you choose, could be of shrimps, lobster and a little tuna, or all shrimp or all lobster with cocktail sauce with tabasco in it.

The mushroom cream soup could be a canned variety; but if you choose the lobster bisque you would have to make this in your own kitchen.

If you would like the recipe for lobster bisque to be printed write to me immediately.

Next week I will give you detailed instructions for roasting his majesty the turkey, so I can use today's space for recipes for the stuffing, relish and for this sauerkraut with grated potatoes that I have sprung on you.

Celery Stuffing (buttery and crumbly and delicious.)

Crumbs from 1½ loaves fresh white bread without crusts, 4 cups finely chopped celery, 4 cups boiling water, ½ cup ground or grated onion, ½ to ¾ cup butter or margarine, 4 to 6 teaspoons poultry seasoning or half poultry seasoning and half crumbled sage 1 tablespoon salt and about 1 teaspoon pepper. Simmer the celery in the boiling water until tender, then drain it, reserving 1 cup of the cooking liquor. Saute the onion in the butter or margarine until transparent but not brown. Mix crumbs and seasoning, then add the celery and 1 cup of celery liquor, butte rand onions and mix well with fork. This amount will stuff a bird that weights 10 lbs. when drawn.

Variations of the above stuffing are limitless. (1 you may make it into celery and giblet stuffing by adding the cooked chopped giblets. 2) you may make it into celery and mushroom stuffing by adding ½ lb. sliced mushrooms sauteed with the onions.

Cranberry Relish

Put through food chopper together, using medium knife, 4 cups picked over cranberries and 2 quartered navel oranges, which have been well washed. Now add 1 or 2 cups sugar—the amount depending on your sweet tooth. Since this is a relish to be used with turkey I go very lightly on the sugar. Chill overnight in covered jar. When ready to serve this is very attractive if spooned into orange skin cups which have been cut with fluted edges.

Sauerkraut With Grated Potatoes

On medium sized shredder grate potatoes directly into boiling hot water in large kettle. This prevents the potatoes turning brown. (To serve 10 people grate 4 medium sized potatoes so mix with 1 28-oz tin sauerkraut). Boil potatoes in this same water until nearly tender. Drain and add to 1 can sauerkraut which has been very well drained, then add 4 tablespoons butter and ⅛ teaspoon white pepper. If desired 1 teaspoon cardamon seeds may be added. Heat through in top of double boiler.

Note: If, after you read this column, there are still some Christmas dinner foods that you want me to describe, write to me at once, in care of this paper. If you enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope I still have time to reply.

MORE ABOUT—
German People

The change in the dismantling policy is of the utmost importance. But it would be wrong to describe the negotiations and their outcome as essentially a successful attempt on the part of Germany to get the dismantling policy changed, to which the above-mentioned commitments of Germany were attached as a rider. The Protocol expresses the entry of Germany into the obligations of a partner, and to this is attached the agreement about dismantling as expressing the point of view of the Allies as partners in this effort.

In progressing towards European collaboration what importance do you attach to the United Europe Movement?

The very greatest importance. I have noticed that public speakers in the Allied countries have said that Europe needs Germany. My reply is that Germany needs Europe still more.

Germany needs Europe in the first instance for moral reasons. Our youth, with all its frustrations, is adopting a waiting and sceptical attitude. You cannot win youth without ideals, and United Europe is such an ideal.

If the aims of this movement are translated into action they will also be expressed in the opening of frontiers to the free movement of goods and persons. The free movement of persons will lessen the dangers of nationalism, and the free movement of goods will lessen the need and the desire for autarchy.

Germany will import a large part of her grain requirements from abroad and pay special attention to intensive cultivations at home. This in itself makes the preparation for war impossible as the produce of intensive cultivations cannot be stored.

Intensive industrialisation, on the other hand, creates purchasing power and increased contracts between industrialized countries, as has been shown in our experience by the volume of Anglo-German trade in the past.

To this must be added that if the countries united in this movement can integrate their economies reciprocally, the development of America's relations as a partner in the economy of Europe will become very much easier than it could be if the economies of the separate countries develop in relative isolation from each other.

Do you desire the full co-operation of Britain in this European development?

I regard the full co-operation of Britain as not merely desirable but as essential. When the security of Europe is threatened Britain's security is threatened, but the security of Europe cannot be assured unless Britain is a full and leading partner of the collaboration upon which it is based, and the member nations of the Commonwealth are closely associated with her in this.

Do you believe that the increased economic relations of Germany based upon closer political integration in Europe will extend to the Commonwealth?

Yes, I believe that the trade necessary for the life of Germany cannot be developed except on the basis of political confidence in Europe, and that one of the results of such a growth of confidence should certainly be the increased exchange of goods and services between Europe, and Germany as a part of Europe, and the Commonwealth.

Do you hope for the large-scale co-operation of the Commonwealth in dealing with the problem of the refugees?

The Commonwealth nations have already been helpful and we have observed with gratitude that Australia has already accepted more DPs than any other country in proportion to its population. The DP's were rightly thought to have the first claim.

I must make it clear that I reject that legal notion of collective guilt, as in my view juridically untenable, but like many other Germans I am profoundly conscious of a sense of collective shame. It was morally right that the DP's should be considered first, but now that the problem of the DP's has been substantially reduced I sincerely hope that the time will soon come when other countries will be willing to accept suitable German families.

I stress it as important that I hope the door will be opened to families and not merely to unmarried young men. Our vital statistics show that the proportion of young men between the ages of 25 and 35 in our country is catastrophically low, so that the burden of social services placed upon the shoulders of the productive workers is too great, and our birthrate is very low.

The loss of any substantial number of single young men would result in a disproportionate burden of Germany in the years to come. This, I would add, is a reason why it must be in the interest of Germany to be free of any military service. The problem of the 8,500,000 refugees, which means that one in five of all the present inhabitants of Western Germany is a newcomer is, serious beyond description. It cannot, in fact, be solved by Germany alone.

Now that Germany will appoint a member of the Ruhr Authority, will she straightway wish to propose changes in the Ruhr Statute?

No. I have seen a special article in "The Times," from which it is clear that those who are directly concerned are finding that there is some overlapping in the duties of the Ruhr Authority and those of other organizations. I have no doubt, therefore, that in time some changes are likely to be made, and that the purpose of these changes are likely to be made, and that the purpose of these changes will be to enable these very able men to do their work as simply and as responsibly as possible.

Apart from this, I hope that the Ruhr Statute will develop in the direction of and together with the sense of and thef act of the equal obligations of all partners. The work itself will, as time goes on, give rise to questions in the solution of which those directly concerned will make such proposals as seem to them to meet the common practical interest. The watchword for all of us must be patience and work.

You mentioned that you would welcome it if the contacts between Britons and Germans became more numerous and varied. Is there any particular contribution from Britons which you had in mind as desirable from Germany's point of view?

We have already had some experience of one of the best contributions to be expected from Britain, namely the character of her responsible men.

No one who has worked with them can have failed to gain something more than ordinary respect and regard for the outstanding character of General Robertson and the character and, if I may say so, the special quality of General Bishop, and, to mention only one who is wholly remote from military affairs, Mr. Collins, who came to apply himself to the problem of our coal production during our most difficult period, and who is obviously a man who would be exceptional in any society.

But apart from the influence of exceptional men there are other lessons which we can gain from British experience. Among these I would single out the ability of Britons to disagree even about important questions, whether private or public, without allowing such disagreement to affect either personal friendship or social relations or their ability to cooperate in important affairs for the public good.

We admire the public spirit which has over long periods of time recognized the need for continuity in foreign affairs and unity in dealing with them.

All these are lessons which can only be learned slowly, just as political questions can only be solved slowly, through confidence and, above all, through patience.

Life Insurance Payments Aid Economy

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

One of the steadiest flows of money coming into Canadian pocketbooks is that from life insurance.

It is, too, largely "bread and butter" money—spent for necessities, and so goes into the most basic things of a country's life: food, clothing, housing, education.

Accordingly, for the most part, it is money that turns over fast. It is people's savings which, having spent a term in major investments, finally comes back to buy groceries.

While a large portion of it goes to support dependents after the death of a policy-holder, more than half goes to the living policy-holder, often to support his or her income in later years.

In the first nine months of this year, for instance, Canadian families were paid more than $154,-937,000 by the 50-odd Canadian, British and United States life insurance companies operating here.

Payment Division

Of this, about $59,500,000 was in death payments, and some $95,-430,000 in payments to living policy holders.

Driver On Wrong Side Fined $10, Costs

Charged with not turning to his own part of the road to allow another car half of the road, Francis Freeman, Campbellford, was found guilty and fined $10 and $8.50 costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in police court today.

Mrs. W. Barrick, River Road South, told the court she was driving west on Lansdowne St. near Whittingdon's Service Station Nov. 19. It was snowing and the visibility was only fair.

She saw a car coming toward her on the wrong side of the road and tried to pull her half-ton truck off the road but collided with the Freeman car. About $300 damage was done to the front of her truck.

Freeman said he had swung out around two parked cars on the south side. He said he went to turn back and saw a truck coming toward him with its lights on the high beam. He put on his brakes, but realizing there was going to be a collision, put his two-year-old son on the seat and lay over him to protect him.

He said he had turned out giving himself a little extra space to pass the cars because of the poor visibility, although there was room to pass and stay on the south side of the street.

Diefenbaker Urges No Further Delay

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 — (CP) — John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) protested in the Commons last Wednesday against delay in commutation of the death sentence pasesd on a 16-year-old boy scheduled to be hanged next February.

The Canadian Press report of the discussion erroneously used the word "execution" instead of "comutation."

Mr. Diefenbaker argued that the sentence should not be held over the boy two-and-a-half months

He cited procedure in the United Kingdom where he said there was no delay in granting executive clemency when death sentence was passed on a juvenile "under circumstances where executive clemency must necessarily follow."

He now is assembling the plane for the 400-mile flight from Deception to Stonington.

Swing At Constable Costs Man $50 Fine

A swing at Constable Louis Rodreque cost Douglas Whitney, 303 King St., a $50 and costs fine when he pleaded guilty to a charge of resisting an officer before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in police court today.

Constable Rodreque testified he dropped into a downtown hotel beverage room about 11:30 p.m., closing time. He saw Whitney in an argument with a waiter who was trying to clean up. He said Whitney swung at the waiter.

When the constable went over to stop the fight, Whitney swung at him. He said he warded off the blow and hustled Whitney out of the beverage room. Constable Rodreque said Whitney's girl friend tried to interfere. When he had him outside, Whitney tried to break away.

The constable said he had had the same trouble with Whitney before. Magistrate Philp pointed out that the maximum for the offence taken as a summary conviction was $100 or six months.

Gladioli Growers Plan Trial Grounds

Trial grounds where several varieties of gladiolus new to the Peterborough district would be grown has been decided on by the Gladiolus Society.

At the last meeting of the society held in the Department of Agriculture rooms on Hunter St., Dr. J. H. Leslie, chairman, made the announcement of trial grounds for the seedlings.

Such a move would have a two-fold purpose: introduce the new varieties and at the same time create new interest.

Participating would be a number of experienced gardeners: George Clarke, Herb Cardwell, Harry Gabbutt, Fred Storey, Harold Ball, W. Buckley and Bud Lloyd.

Mrs. J. H. Leslie, secretary-treasurer, told the members two outstanding speakers will give a brief outline of the project at the January banquet

Harold Ball spoke on the care of gladiolus during the winter months. Fred Storey showed colored slides of several local gardens.

Finish Talks On Niagara Power Situation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (CP) —The first, exploratory stage of Canadian-American studies into the possibilities of obtaining the more efficient use of Niagara River waters and increasing the power production ended Saturday.

Official sources said a joint statement may be issued today both here and in Ottawa.

The discussion, covering three days, was aimed at the eventual drafting of a new treaty to govern diversion of the waters of the Niagara with a view to more power production. Present withdrawals are based on a treaty negotiated in 1909.

Canadian delegates included Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and Hon. Charles Daley, Ontario Labor Minister and chairman of the Niagara Parks Commission.

Official sources said the discussions were largely technical and exploratory, and that no decisions were taken.

A spokesman said the talks were just the first stage of a series on the Niagara. The delegates now will report to their respective governments. Later, additional meetings will be held.

The American group taking part in the talks, held at the State Department, was headed by Adrian Fisher, the State Department's legal adviser, and included officers of United States government agencies concerned with power production.

Ontario, which has been plagued with drastic winter-time shortages, has a vital interest in the negotiations. Saunders, as chairman of Onario's Power Commission, was one of the leading figures on the Canadian side of the discussions.

Driver Lockie Longhurst told investigating constable John Morrow he was driving north on Aylmer St. When he was about three-quarters of the way across Hunter St., he met in collision with the Urry car travelling west on Hunter St.

Constable Morrow reported Urry told him he had thought Hunter St. was a through street and had not stopped. Owner of the car driven by Urry, Roy Strong, Orono, was a passenger in the car.

The right rear fender and panel of the Longhurst car were crumpled and dented. Both front fenders were dented; the grill was pushed in and the radiator was twisted on the Urry car.

Looking Ahead In Ottawa

Peacetime Hyde-Park Plan Being Pressed By Canada

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (CP)—Canada still is pressing plans to try to get the United States to agree to a peacetime "Hyde-Park" agreement.

The old wartime agreement, signed in 1941 and now lapsed, was a deal whereby the U.S. bought big supplies of Canadian raw materials and thus provided Canada with dollars with which to buy equally big supplies of American war material.

While the war conditions which brought about the Hyde-Park deal now do not exist, the balance-of-payments problem still is as acute as ever.

Traditionaly Canada always has bought more from the U.S. than she exported to that country and made up part of the payments from sales to the United Kingdom.

Stuck With Problem

With U.K. dollar supplies low and future sales to that country likely to be small, the Canadian government is stuck with the problem of how she can continue to buy big supplies from the U.S. and make payment in dollars.

In recent public addresses, Trade Minister Howe has said that the only way to solve this problem was for the U.S. to buy as much from Canada as Canada bought from the U.S.

At the same time, discussions were held between other Canadian and U.S. government officials to find out how the U.S. would feel about a revival of the Hyde-Park pact.

Out of those talks have come Canadian requests that perhaps the U.S. would be willing to buy or manufacture in Canada some of the war goods western Europe will get under the $1,000,000,000 allocated by Congress to rearm western Europe democracies.

So far there appears to be little to indicate that the United States is taking kindly to the Canadian plan, but some of the Canadian trade experts are a resourceful group and there's nothing to stop them with pressing ahead with this "help - Canada - and - help-yourself" idea.

Zig-Zagging Driver Fined On Two Counts

Pleading guilty to two charges one of careless driving and the other of having inadequate brakes on his car, Thomas McMahon, RR 9, Peterborough, was fined $10 and costs on each charge by Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., in police court today.

A charge of drunk driving was withdrawn by the Crown. Constable John Morrow said McMahon had been driving Friday night in an erratic manner, zig-zagging on Aylmer St. near King St. He said he examined the brakes and found them useless.

The Golden Text was: "As birds flying, so will the Lord of Hosts defend Jerusalem; defending also he will deliver it; and passing over he will preserve it." (Isaiah 31:5).

Selections from the Bible included the following from Psalms 56:4, 9: "In God will I praise his word, in God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me. When I cry unto thee, then shall mine enemies turn back; this I know; for God is for me."

Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" included the following "Love, the divine Principle, is the Father and Mother of the universe, including man."

Canada Happy About A-Talks

OTTAWA, Dec. 12—(CP)—Canada is "rather happy" about the direction "highly-secret" atomic talks are taking with the United States and United Kingdom, Trade Minister Howe said in the Commons Saturday.

He was answering a question by Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) who said a press dispatch from Washington indicates the Americans "are holding to their original plan with respect to the exchange of information on the peacetime uses of atomic energy."

The conference was called to consider revival of an agreement for the exchange of information. U.S. law now forbids release on the bulk of that country's information.

60 YEARS OF ACCOMPLISHMENT

1889 1949

In early days, cream was skimmed from the top of milk left standing overnight in pans in a cool, deep cellar. Or cans of milk were immersed in cold water from the well or spring. When the cream had risen to the top, the milk was drained out of the bottom of the can leaving the cream, which was then churned in a dash churn or barrel churn. Today in modern dairy plants no care or expense is spared in protecting the purity of milk, cream and other dairy products. Nickel alloys are used in pasteurizers, coolers, bottling machines and other equipment, because these alloys are corrosion-resistant and easy to keep clean and sanitary.

Canadian Nickel sold Abroad brings in U.S. Dollars

Since more than ninety per cent of the Nickel produced in Canada is sold to the United States and other countries, it brings a constant flow of dollars back to Canada. In fact, Canada's Nickel industry is one of our chief sources of U.S. dollars so essential at the present time to maintain our foreign trade and make available products not produced in this country.

These dollars help pay the wages of the 14,000 Nickel employees, and help provide the dollars which make it possible to pay millions in freight to Canadian railways, to buy timber, steel, coal, machinery and supplies amounting to many millions each year.

These millions, flowing into all industries through the length and breadth of Canada, help create jobs for Canadians.

WI Hears Talk On Life Mme. Currie

HAVELOCK, Dec. 12 (ENS)—Miss Grace E. Hamilton of the Women's Institute Branch and Home Economics Service Toronto speaking at a district health conference of the Women's Institute in the town hall on Friday defined health as the quality of life which renders the individual fit to live the most, and serve the best. She quoted the Hon. Paul Martin's statement that health is everybody's business. Miss Hamilton's subject was "Health Before and After Forty."

Miss Hamilton referred to the growth of the world's health organization which now comprises 57 countries, Canada being one of its members.

If the wage earner is sick, she continued, the earning power is not as great. This in turn reduces the buying power and merchants and producers are affected. Thus it becomes a national issue.

Miss Hamilton gave a detailed account of the work which has been accomplished in the field of medical research during recent years and the value of certain drugs and vaccines now used with wonderful results in combating many types of disease. She advised every one to avail themselves of every opportunity offered for a chest X-ray, even if only six months had elapsed since one had been taken, for T. B. can only be detected by this means.

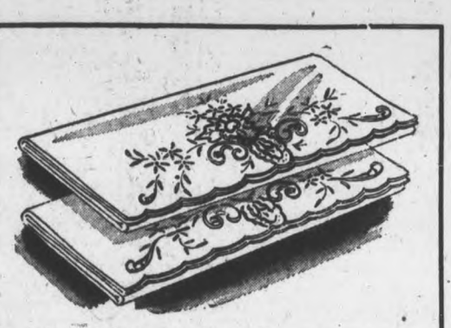
Lauds Pasteurization

The pasteurization of milk is of great value as a health measure and Miss Hamilton noted the Ontario was the first province to put this important legislation in force It is not difficult to home pasteurize milk if you reside in a rural district she said and it is playing safe. She outlined the double boiler method for carrying out this process in the home.

In dealing with the diseases which affect later life she noted that heart ailments headed the list which included cancer and pneumonia. There are many influences which affect the aging process and she thought an important one was physical activity.

Speaking on the treatment of cancer, she said the outlook was more encouraging now than at the turn of the century and microscope examination was the only way to diagnose it. Fifty per cent died needlessly last year, lack of knowledge and fear causing most of the deaths.

Advocates Rest



Miss Hamilton advocated a rest and relaxation period each day which means new vigor for the tasks undone. Industry she said found that out and many employers were providing regular rest periods for their employees. The value of proper food was also stressed.

It has been said that life begins at forty, but Miss Hamilton thought that to say it becomes more complicated would be more true. She counselled beware of nervous strain; keep ahead of time's ravages by regular medical examinations; have a hobby; do not get into a rut because the only difference between a rut and the grave is that one is a little deeper.

Mrs. Harry Mann, of Trent River, honorary district president, presided and introduced the speaker. Mrs. Samuel Southward, president of the Havelock Women's Institute who gave the address of welcome and thanked Miss Hamilton for her address. Mrs. W. Goadsby sang two Christmas carols with Mrs. L. Sanderson as accompanist.

The attendance included members from Norwood, Belmont, Trent River and Havelock branches.

Mother Gives Life To Let Daughter Come To Canada

KIRKLAND LAKE, Dec. 13—(CP)—Canada has gained a new citizen, and Peter Kuler, the company of his 19-year-old daughter, Wanda, whom he had never before seen. But the happy union of father and daughter was accomplished at the cost of a life—that of Mrs. Kuler—who died of poison in Poland. Mr. Kuler, a hard working miner of Kearns, about 25 miles from here, left his home village of Pincrow, Poland, in March, 1930. Remaining behind was his bride of two years, an expectant mother. He promised that he would send for them as soon as possible.

He started to save every cent he could from his miner's wages. He began to build a home for his wife and daughter, the latter having been born shortly after his departure from Poland. Then came the war.

About a year ago, he applied for permission to bring his wife and daughter to Canada. The Polish government gave the required permission for his wife—but not for his daughter.

Sends Papers

Kular completed the necessary papers for his wife and sent them off, hoping Wanda could come later. Four days before she was to have left, Jenny Kular, who had waited 19 years to join her husband, took poison and died. She did not say why she had taken her life, but, possibly because she thought the Polish government might permit Wanda to go in her place.

Last week-end Wanda, a pretty girl with dark puzzled eyes and tightly dark blonde hair, arrived to meet her father for the first time.

Churches Seek Curb Gambling

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP) — Britain's Protestant churches called on the government today to place drastic restrictions on all forms of gambling.

But the Anglican Bishop of London admitted churches do some gaming themselves.

Their views were presented to a Royal Commission on betting, gaming and lotteries, set up to consider whether the gambling laws should be tightened.

They said football pools should be prohibited, horse and dog racing run for the sport alone, and gambling on the stock market eliminated entirely.

"The church does not come before the commission with completely clean hands," Bishop J. W. C. Wand, told the commission.

". . . If the state has something to be sorry for we realize that we have that same necessity for penitence ourselves."

Many British churches conduct whist drives, draws for prizes at charity bazaars and similar games of chance to raise church funds.

U.S. Implies Threat Break With Bulgaria

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP) —The United States today backed up a sharp new denunciation of Communist Bulgaria with an implied threat to break off diplomatic relations entirely.

Protesting against attacks on US Minister Donald R. Heath, the State Deparment said the legation at Sofia is being subjected to such restrictions and indignities that it has virtually ceased to function.

The prospect of a possible first open break between the United States and one of the Soviet-bloc governments flared on Monday night. James E. Webb, Under-Secretary, summoned Dr. Peter Voutov, top Bulgarian representative in Washington, to the State Department for a stiff and forceful lecture.

The occasion was the publication of charges in the government controlled Communist press in Sofia. The articles said that both the State Department and Heath deliberately lied in denying Heath had ever seen Traicho Kostov, former Vice-Premier who is the No. 1 defendant in the current Sofia "purge" trial.

2 Farmhands Reveal Hidden Body

Hour After Capture Pair Show Police Corpse In Brook

HUNTINGDON, Que., Dec. 13 (CP)—Two youthful farmhands, captured by police who sought them for questioning in connection with a bank robbery and a taxi driver's disappearance, today led police to the battered body of taxi-driver Lucien Brunette.

Within a hour after their capture in a barn the two 18-year-olds, identified as Kenneth Bevin and Gervin Patenaude, led police to a place called Donnelly's Bridge, 16 miles from Huntingdon, where the chauffeur's body was found in a brook.

The two, sought after Monday's $800 robbery of a Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at nearby Ormstown and the disappearance of the cabbie Sunday night, were rounded up by a posse of 100 armed police.

They were caught after a farmer tipped off police that the pair had come to his house asking for clothing. Police who came speeding to the scene found the men hiding in a hayloft.

New York Police Help

New York State police joined Quebec police in the hunt.

Quebec police did not announce the names of the farmhands taken into custody. But Monday night they said they were looking for two 18-year-olds identified as Kenneth Bevin and Gervin Patenaude, both of Huntingdon.

Det.-Lieut. Marcel Patenaude (no relation) said Monday night there was "a strong possibility of murder" in connection with the disappearance of Lucien Brunette 34-year-old Huntingdon cabbie, missing since last Sunday.

Find Cab

His cab was found Monday by his brother, Leo, in a barn off the lonely road between here and Ormstown, 10 miles away. A puddle of blood was found on the ground near the car.

Investigators reported finding a blood-soaked shirt in the room occupied Saturday night by Patenaude and Bevin in the farmhouse of Patenaud's father, Elmer.

Surprise Hotel Raid Nabs Bill Passers

SUDBURY, Dec. 13 —(CP)—Swooping down on a Sudbury hotel room Sunday, city police arrested three Sudbury men on charges of having in their possession counterfeit Canadian $10 bills and seized some $400 worth of bogus bills.

Later police arrested a fourth man, also with a quantity of counterfeit money in his possession. A 24-year-old woman was arrested on a vagrancy charge when found with the three men in the hotel room.

Police believe the men were arrested before they had a chance to distribute more than a small portion of the counterfeit bills. It is believed $30 or $40 worth were passed in the city by the gang over the week-end.

British Liberal Party Plans 400 Candidates

LONDON, Dec. 13—(Reuters)—The Liberal party, fighting for survival, will put 400 candidates into the field at the 1950 general election, according to political quarters here. There will be 625 seats contested at the elections.

The Liberals, who formed Britain's government a generation ago, but who now hae only 12 representatives in the House of Commons, have fared badly in by-elections in the House of Comm elections fought since 1945 when Labor came into power. In recent by-elections the Liberals have not put forward a candidate.

But the Liberals are convinced that there still are many millions of Britons who will vote Liberal if the party's case is made sufficiently strong.

Members say that a recent straw ballot showed that more than 40 per cent of Britons approached said they would vote Liberal if they thought there was any chance of a Liberal government being returned.

This is precisely the Liberal difficulty. British electors in recent times have tended to narrow the issue to one of socialism vs. anti-socialism, and the Liberals have been wedged between the two political philosophies.

The party hopes the 1950 general election will bring a resurgence of Liberal support from those who dislike the alternatives of socialism and conservatism, and that this will be big enough to make Liberals the official opposition in the next government.

Organize Canvass

TORONTO, Dec. 13—(CP)—Toronto churches will organize a house-to-house convass of Toronto voters to find out how they feel about Sunday sports, it was announced today. The Rev. Henry Matthews of Davenport Presbyterian Church presided Monday at an organization meeting. Col. Gilbert Best of the Salvation Army said today "the canvass will be most thorough and will be made from those on the voters' lists. We are starting immediately as we realize the urgency of the matter and the short time in which we have to work."

Gen. Williams Ex-OPP Head Dies In Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP)—The final chapter of a story highlighted by more than 50 years' police and military service ended Monday when Maj.-Gen. V. A. S. Williams, 82, died in Sunnybrook Hospital. He had been in hospital a month.

Gen. Williams—his full name was Victor Arthur Seymour—had been an inspector in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police. He saw active service in both the South African War and the First World War.

Born at Port Hope, Gen. Williams came of a famous military family. His father, Lt.-Col. A. T. H. Williams, commanded the Midland Battalion in the North-west Rebellion of 1885. His grandfather, John Turner Williams, commanded the Durham Regiment in the Rebellion of 1837.

General Williams began his long military and police career in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police after graduating from the Royal Military College, Kingston. He became an inspector in 1887 before joining the Mounted Infantry at Winnipeg.

In 1889, as a provisional lieutenant, he began active service in the South African campaign with the First Regiment of Mounted Rifles. He was mentioned in dispatches and in 1901 was promoted Major.

Valcartier Commandant

At the beginning of the First World War he was commandant of the military camp at Valcartier, Que. He was severely injured on an inspection tour of the front lines at Sanctuary Wood, France, in 1916. He was buried 10 hours by a shell burst and captured.

He was promoted Major General in 1919 and later became Adjutant General at Defence Headquarters, Ottawa. In 1922 he was appointed Commissioner of Provincial Police for Ontario and continued until 1939 when he was succeeded by William H. Stringer, the present Commissioner.

Gen. Williams was twice married. His first wife, who died some years ago, was Helen Sutherland, daughter of Hugh Sutherland, of Winnipeg. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. Phillis Williams Arnoldi. Burial will take place at Port Hope.

Traffic Deaths May Top Record

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP) — A survey by the Ontario Highways Department indicates that traffic deaths in the province this year may exceed the 801 fatalities recorded in 1941, the heaviest list in history.

The report showed 741 deaths to the end of November, one more than in all of 1948.

The survey, however, revealed a paradox, that the number of accidents per car mile travelled is lower than in recent years. It listed 13.3 deaths for every 100,000,000 miles in 1941, the statistical figure dropping to 12.0 in 1945, 8.6 in 1948 and to date this year 9.3.

Death of William McConvey in a Toronto hospital Monday brought the city's traffic fatality total to 54 so far this year. McConvey was hit by a truck while crossing the road in a snowstorm last Nov. 19.

Send Troops To Man Key Plants

1,600 Workers Join Spreading Walkout Against State System

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP)—Some 1,600 workers joined a spreading wildcat strike today against the state-owned power system.

By late afternoon 2,600 of London's 10,000 electric workers were idle and the sprawling city was threatened with a return to the wartime blackout.

Labor Minister George Isaacs told the House of Commons general power cuts "may be inevitable in the circumstances." Isaacs said troops, called out when the strike began Monday, will try to maintain essential services.

Strikers, who walked out against the advice of union leaders in a wage dispute, threatened to spread the stoppage to all of London's government-owned power stations, unless the troops were called out of the strike-bound plants.

The big blow fell today when 1,400 men left their jobs at the Barking station — largest in Britain. The Royal Navy quickly sent a force of technicians to take over key jobs in the Barking plant, and RAF men were called in to stoke fires.

Meanwhile, another 200 left the Brimsdown station, where 400 had quit Monday along with 600 from two other stations in London.

A total of 256 navy, army and air force technicians were sent to man key posts at the four affected stations.

Call Meeting

The committee, leading the unofficial walkout, called a meeting tonight of delegates from the 26 stations still operating to urge them to call sympathy strikes.

In the Penge and Anerley districts of south London the power gave out this afternoon, cutting off shop lightning and movies.

London's subway and tram systems, which had to curtail service this morning, started up emergency plants to insure evening transport home for hundreds of thousands of workers.

Isaacs told Commons that the walkout, "endangers the interest of the country."

Nearly 150 sailors and troops in battle dress already were stoking fires at the three strike-bound plants in Dartford, Brimsdown and Taylors Lane, where they were dispatched Monday when the sudden stoppage stalled streetcars in north London and blacked out another section.

Disagree On Award

More than 1,200 men went on strike Monday in a disagreement with an arbitration council's award of a wage raise of 1 ½d. (About 2c an hour.) The wage increase, however, was not given to workers already receiving bonus payments.

The basic pay for skilled electrical workers is 3s 3d. an hour. The industry has a standard 44-hour week.

All electricity generating plants and distributing services have been operated by a government-appointed authority since the industry was nationalized two years ago.

Use SafeCircumspectly May Blow Up Any Time

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 13 — (CP)—An uneasy watch is being kept by police today over a safe in the office of the Niagara Township Fruit Co-operative on Ridley Road. The safe is believed to be charged with nitroglycerine, and likely to blow up at any moment.

A police patrol Monday night discovered that an attempt had been made to break open the safe. One explosion had partly forced the door. More of some liquid explosive was then poured into the safe, but the burglars were apparently frightened off by the police just before they were ready to set off the second charge.

A chemical expert from Toronto is believed to have been sent to neutralize the suspected explosive in the safe. He is expected to arrive this afternoon.

Epidemic Hits Babies

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Dec. 13 —(CP)—An epidemic of diarrhoea at the big Gander airbase last month claimed the lives of nine babies but now is believed under control, Health Department Officials reported today. Seven Newfoundland-born infants and two Europeans who arrived at Gander aboard trans-Atlantic planes were the victims. A pathologist and technician were sent from here to determine the cause of the outbreak and reported they could not establish the germ was brought in by plane.

Ask Gardiner Try To Keep British Market

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Spokesmen for Canadian farmers today asked Agriculture Minister Gardiner to try to keep as much as possible of the British food market for Canada.

They also took issue with a suggestion that wheat acreage next year be reduced from the 27,000,000 acres his year to about 20,000,000.

The appeal to keep Canadian products in the British market was made at the second day of a three-day Dominion - Provincial agricultural conference.

W. P. Watson, Ontario Livestock Commissioner, said the British people had only the kindest things to say about Canada. But they did not want charity. They wanted to buy what they could pay for.

Evenly Distributed

He suggested that if the United Kingdom can only spend, for example, $300,000,000 next year for Canadian goods that part of it be distributed evenly among all farm products and not spent particularly on any one commodity.

Ontario, he said, had built up a big hog and cattle industry. Hog production likely would increase next year, but all of it probably could be consumed by Canadians.

But the farmers did not want in that way. They would like part of it sent to the British people.

W. C. Parker of Winnipeg, vice-president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and president of the Manitoba Pool Elevators, said the CFA wanted to see Canada retain the British market.

"Let us get the British contracts for what they are worth."

If there was going to be any trouble about surpluses in the future, part of the blame could be attached to the policies of the governments of Canada, the United States, and the United Kingdom.

Call Jewish Parliament

TEL AVIV, Dec. 13—(CP)—The Israeli Knesset (parliament) will meet in Jerusalem in 10 days, its speaker, Joseph Sprinzak, announced today. David Ben Gurion, the Prime Minister, is expected to move his offices to the Holy City tomorrow. But government spokesmen said the present moves do not mean Jerusalem is immediately to be considered the official political capital of the state of Israel.

Canadian Board Rejects New U.S. Airline Try To Challenge Jurisdiction

Takes Under Advisement Suggestion To Cancel Colonial Licence; U.S. Counsel Claims Old Law Handicap

OTTAWA, Dec. 13—(CP)—The Air Transport Board today rejected a new attempt by Colonial Air Lines to challenge its jurisdiction. It took under advisement a contention by its own counsel that it should "seriously consider" cancelling Colonial's licence to fly into Montreal from New York. The end came at noon in a hearing of the Board's order to Colonial to show cause why its licence should not be cancelled. Colonial was accused of violating the June Canadian-U.S. Air Agreement by frustrating Trans-Canada Air Lines' efforts to compete with it on the New York-Montreal run.

To the end, Colonial argued that it could not offer defence. Its counsel said a 1798 U.S. law—the Logan Act—forbids any American "citizen" to deal with a foreign government in a dispute which already involves the U.S. government.

The hearing was climaxed with a new exchange between board chairman John Baldwin and Ernest Cuneo of New York, Colonial counsel, as to whether an exchange of notes between the two governments has established that a dispute exists.

Mr. Cuneo said a press release by the U.S. state department established that there is a dispute. Mr. Baldwin said the board had read the notes and could not change its view that there is not a dispute.

Meet Thursday

(Canadian and U.S. diplomats will meet here Thursday to discuss the agreement. The meeting was arranged after an exchange of notes between State Secretary Dean Acheson and External Affairs Minister Pearson.)

The final round for Colonial was fired by another counsel, T. Peter Ansberry of Washington. He said Colonial had no alternative under the Logal Act but to remain mute. A general laugh ran through the crowded courtroom at this remark because of Colonial's extended legal arguments.

Lee Kelley, board counsel, in an extended argument, accused Colonial of using "every possible delaying tactic" during the past six months to prevent TCA from getting a licence to fly into New York.

Cold Weather Strikes No Sign Of Let-up

WINNIPEG, Dec. 13 (CP)—It was cold again today across Canada's prairies and the weatherman said there's no break in sight. Average temperature for the region was 20 below zero this morning.

Lowest official reading was at Fort McMurray in Northern Alberta where the mercury dipped to 37 below and Brochet, in Northern Manitoba, recorded 28 below.

The temperature tonight at Regina and Brandon is expected to go to 25 below and at Winnipeg to 20 below.

29 Fatalities Reported In Air Crashes

By Associated Press

Twenty-nine people were killed Monday in two-widely separated plan crashes near Karachi, Pakistan, and Washington, U.S.A.

Karachi reports all 21 passengers and a crew of four were reported kille din a Pakistan transport plane crash 45 miles north of here.

The list of casualties was not yet confirmed but it was reported that two Pakistan army generals were among the passengers.

The two generals, according to officials of the Pak Air Company which operated the plane, were believed to be Maj.-Gen. Sher Khan and Maj.-Gen. Iftikhar.

The plane, a twin-engined DC-3, crashed in desert country. It was first spotted by aerial searchers early this morning and rescue parties were sent to the scene of the crash.

Believes Pregel To Be Involved

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(CP)—Radio commentator Fulton Lewis, Jr., Monday night said Boris Pregel, head of the Canadian Uranium and Radium Company of New York, would be involved in further developments in the secrets-to-Russia investigation.

Lewis, who described Pregel as a Russian-born former promoter of Uranium mines in Canada, said that "only the surface has been scratched" in the investigation and that there is "much, much more still untold."

"The records and testimony show it was his (Pregel's) company which provided the 1,000-pound shipment (of uranium compounds) through Great Falls, Mont., which General Groves (Gen. Leslie Groves, head of the wartime atom-bomb project) admits went through this country and was shipped to Russia without his knowing about it and in spite of all his efforts and orders that the Russians were to get none of it," Lewis said.

Chifley, Labor Government Hand In Resignations

CANBERRA, Dec. 13—(CP)—Eight years of Labor rule in Australia formally ended today when Joseph B. Chifley, defeated Labor Prime Minister, handed in his resignation of his government to the Governor-General, W. J. McKell.

He advised the Governor-General to commission the Liberal leader, Robert G. Menzies, to form a new government.

Chifley agreed to remain in office until the new Liberal-Country party coalition is sworn in.

Menzies is expected to fly to Canberra Thursday to see the Governor-General and accept the Commission.

Latest count of the general election figures indicate that the Liberal-Country party coalition will have a majority of more than 31 seats over Labor in the House of Representatives. With two seats still in doubt, the coalition parties had 75 seats and Labor 44.

The new government will resume the practice—dropped by the Labor government—of recommending Australians for New Year's birthday honors, the Melbourne Herald reported.

The Herald's political correspondent today forecast far-reaching changes by the Menzies government in Australian foreign policy and the conduct of the External Affairs Department.

He said the changes were likely to be developed simultaneously along three main lines——a recasting of general policy in favor of closer co-operative relationship with Britain, the United States and Canada, an overhaul of diplomatic offices abroad and a review of the scope of Australia's representation.

Reds Charge $7,000 To Move U.S. Consul

ABOARD LAKELAND VICTORY, Taku Bar, China, Dec. 13—(AP)—Chinese Reds charged the United States government $7,000 to move ousted Consul-General Angus Ward's party and baggage from Mukden to Tientsin.

Ward told the story today. The Reds required that he post $12,000 to guarantee expenses. They refunded $5,000.

It's about 600 miles from Mukden to Tientsin. The party of 20 had 10 carloads of freight. (Presumably these were typical Manchurian cars—which hold about 1/3 as much freight as U.S. cars.)

The party had only third-class accommodations—wooden benches in unheated cars.

Ward also said he was charged four times the official rate for food for his party. He was permitted to buy only from an officially designated vendor, who called regularly . . . accompanied by an armed guard.

U.K. To Spend 11 Million For Cheddar Cheese On Canadian Markets

Farmers Heading For Increased Production But Warned Price Drop Likely; Markets For 1950 Proving A Concern

OTTAWA, Dec. 13—(CP)—Negotiations on new Anglo-Canadian food contracts are believed to have reached the stage where the United Kingdom has agreed to spend $25,000,000 of her skimpy supply of dollars for the purchase of dollar-area cheese next year. But as far as Canada is concerned, there's a catch to the agreement. The money is to be spent in North America and only a part of the allocated sum will find its way into the pockets of Canadian cheese producers.

Best estimates are that about $11,500,000 of the $25,000,000 will be designated for the purchase of Canadian cheddar, compared with an allocation of $15,000,000 in 1949.

This comparatively - small amount appears to be all that the United Kingdom so far has set aside for dollar-area food purchases in 1950.

However, Canada still is pushing hard for the allocation of a few extra million dollars to cover shipment of Canadian bacon. And there are indications that she may be successful.

Confidential Talks

The negotiations are being carried out in confidential discussions both here and in London.

Officials say that at best the UK likely will not allocate more than $40,000,000 for new 1950 purchases to cover Canadian bacon and cheese.

There likely will be no UK buying of eggs, salmon, apples, or fruit pulp.

Compared with the $40,000,000 probable commitment in 1950, the UK made purchases of about $72,000,000 worth of Canadian bacon, eggs, cheese, salmon, apples and fruit pulp in 1949.

The wheat contract which runs to July, 1950, is not affected by current negotiations. It calls for the shipment of 140,000,000 bushels at $2 a bushel.

Greater Production

Canada's farmers appear to be heading for a year of increased production sold at somewhat lower prices.

Methods of disposing of that production on a dollar-short world market at as high a price as possible were being explored today at the 10th annual Dominion-provincial agricultural conference.

Agricultural experts reporting to Monday's opening conference session forecast an increased farm output in 1950. But they also predicted that prices next year would tend to be lower than in 1949 and that competition for the world's consuming markets would be stiffer.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the delegates that Canadian farmers have "some reason for being concerned about the future." Some world markets might be closer to Canada if the United States continued to declare farm products surplus under Marshall-Plan aid and it was no longer possible to depend on a "free" United Kingdom market.

He said some way had to be found "to create relationships" among Canada, the U.S., and the U.K. to resolve these problems.

An increase in farm output was predicted by C. V. Parker, head of the Bureau of Statistics farm division.

Higher Than 1949

Given normal weather conditions and average grain yields, said Mr. Parker, total production next year likely will be higher than in 1949. He forecast heavier marketings of hogs for the first half of 1950, with some declines in the fall. He expected to see a further shift in some areas from livestock to grain products and a drop in egg and poultry production was possible.

There was a likelihood that increased production would not offset expected lower prices and that farm income would decline slightly.

Mr. Gardiner said the general difficulties in the Canadian farm picture seem to be production in the prairie area of western Canada and a bumper apple crop in the Maritimes.

The prairie farm assistance act and provincial support would help western farmers. He hopes that apple growers, by continuing efforts to sell their crop, would get back to a peacetime method of marketing with only limited government assistance.

Ford Offers $55 Pensions

WINDSOR, Dec. 13 (CP)—Ford Motor Company of Canada Limited Monday offered its 11,000 auto-worker employees a company financed pension of $55 a month at age 65 after 30 years' service.

The employees, members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), are asking $100 a month the full amount achieved by the United States union last fall from the parent Ford in Detroit. They also seek company paid health and social security provisions.

The company said in a statement that its offer would cost $18,000,000 over a 20 year period to "fund past service benefits alone" and would cost an additional $1,000,000 annually for "current and future service."

Union officials announced:

"If Ford workers in the United States are entitled to pensions of $100 per month, Canadian Ford workers are not prepared to accept less."

Airport Monday night and crashed in the mud of the Potomac River, carrying four of the 23 persons on board to their death.

The 19 survivors—an amazingly high number for a plane crash—were taken to the hospital at Bolling Air Force Base, located nearby. Many were badly hurt.

The dead were Mrs. William Chertow, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Neville Lassiter, a government employee who lived in Arlington, Va.; and the pilot and co-pilot, W. J. Davis and Lloyd L. Porter, both of Alexander, Va.

Navy and air force men who sped to the scene in crash boats credited a number of factors for the high rescue rate. High on the list were luck and the relative calm of the survivors — most of them servicemen going home to spend Christmas.

Smooth Landing

In addition, there were reports that the plane's wheels were not in landing position, but were retracted into the fuselage. If true, this would indicate that the pilot had changed his mind about landing. It may have kept the death toll down by preventing the plane from turning completely over in the river's mud. With the wheels up, a comparatively smooth water landing was possible.

The plane, a DC-3, had taken off from Memphis, Tenn., and had made one stop at Norfolk, Va. It arrived over Washington during what officials called one of the worst traffic days in the history of National Airport.

The field was blanketed by fog and soaked by a steady rain. Weather conditions were described as 'approximately' minimum—400-foot ceiling and visibility of about ¾ of a mile.

The DC-3 took its place over which at one time numbered 40 the field in a "stack" of plancs aircraft, all waiting for a chance to land. After about an hour, the Capital Airliner started down, guided by its own electronic equipment, and by ground-controlled radar at the airport.

Swerved Off Path

It suddenly swerved from the radar path. Ground technicians lost it completely. A short time later it was found in the river resting in five feet of mud and water.

The crash scene was not far from the spot where she shattered pieces of an Eastern Airliner carried 55 to their death in the Potomac last Nov. 1, after an aerial collision with a surplus P-38 fighter plane. That was aviation's worst disaster.

Robert Hensley, 26, a sailor from Abilene, Tex., who survived Monday night's crash, told reporters that he and another army man, Jeff Buchanan, 25, of Laurel, Miss., were among the first to escape from the wreckage.

"As the plane came down it sort of made a couple of jumps and then it hit. We couldn't see anything and I blacked out," Hensley said.

"I remember coming out the left side of the plane through a hole and being out on the wing. We were in very shallow water.

"Jeff and I went back into the plane and started pulling out survivors. Some of them were impossible to get to, but I held a tourniquet on one man whose foot was cut off."

$5,000 Rent Money Stolen From Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 13. — About $5,000 in rent money, collected by the Toronto Housing Commission, was stolen early Sunday from a 100-year-old safe in the Federal Cartage Co. warehouse, Bloor St. W. Police said the strongbox was smashed open with sledgehammers.

Insp. John Nimmo said the metal of the old safe had started to eat away, and blows on the corners sprung the door open. Also taken by the safecrackers was $917 in cash, property of the cartage company. The rents are collected by City Agent H. V. Loucks and kept in the cartage company's safe, police said.

Hunt Hold-up Teams Operating In Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP) —Police are searching for two hold-up teams who staged four armed robberies in a pre-Christmas crime wave that swept the city Monday night.

Total loot was $229 in an epidemic of crimes that also included three purse snatchings and the slugging of a messenger boy.

Police said bandits are striking at small shops with shelves stocked wih Christmas merchandise and cash registers filled with receipts.

An east-end grocery and neighboring drug store were robbed by what police believe were the same two armd men. Two other armed men ate a meal in a downtown restaurant and left after brandishing guns in the cashier's face and a man and wife were held up in their west-end delicatessen.

UN Tackling Job Of International City

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 13 (CP)—The United Nations Trusteeship Council today tackles the job of making an international city out of Jerusalem which Israel and Hashemite Jordan claim they will not surrender.

The 12 member council first must draw up a statute for administration of the Holy City as directed by the UN Assembly which passed the internationalization plan last Friday.

In Tel Aviv, Israel's capital, reliable sources said the United States—which joined Israel and Hashemite Jordan in opposing international rule—had advised the Israeli Government against any inflammatory measures resisting the UN decision. The New York Times reported similar US advice had also been given to King Abdullah's Hashemite Jordan government.

Junior gold producers showed losses ranging up to 10 cents in dull dealings. Hosco Mines was a brisk trader for a slight advance following drilling news.

Minnesota and Ontario Paper was a highlight, gaining 1¼ at 17¾ following annonucement of a year-end extra dividend of 25 cents.

Calgary and Edmonton gained 30 cents at $8.10 in a climbing Western oil list.

TCA now was prevented from doing so by an injunction obtained by Colonial in the U.S. courts.

Entirely To Blame

Mr. Kelley argued that Colonial is "entirely to blame" for failure of the U.S. to invoke its part of the agreement.

He held the line violates the agreement, to which he said it is bound, on four points.

At the start of the morning session, Ernest Cuneo, Colonial counsel, told Board Chairman John Baldwin Colonial would not "offer any proof" or defence. He would like to argue the case under the Canadian law but held that U.S. law renders Colonial mute in this case.

However, he was ready to make a closing defence on the basis of the prima facie case the board's counsel says has been established for cancellation of the licence.

The British electricity authority issued a country-wide economy warning for two hours tonight—4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

An official said the warning was necessary because of the freezing weather and Britain's chronic power shortage, but conceded it had been "slightly aggravated" by the London strike.

Morning subway services in some parts of the city were curtailed to save power.

Frank Foulkes, Communist president of the Electrical Trades Union, denounced the strike. He said it comes at a "critical stage of negotiations" between the union and the government to iron out the pay dispute.

Two In Hospital Following Crash

Two escaped serious injury when their car knocked off four guard rail posts and smashed into a tree at Park and Cameron Sts. about two a.m. today.

The front part of the car was a total wreck. Both the driver, Samuel Tully, R.R. 3, Peterborough, and Bernice Judge, 19, 658 Lundy's Lane, who was riding with him, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in the police truck.

Hospital officials announced today neither was seriously hurt and were in good condition. Both suffered superficial cuts to the face.

Traffic Officer Claire McGillen reported Tully told him he had been driving east on Cameron St. about 30 miles an hour. He said he did not see the sharp turn to the left into Park Street.

Constable McGillen said there were no skid marks on the pavement.

Woman Heads Cobourg Polls Mayor Returned

COBOURG, Dec. 13 (ENS) — Cobourg voters turned out in the largest number in the history of the town to cast their ballots in Monday's municipal elections. The weather was mild and clear and it is estimated that at least 70 per cent of the electorate cast their votes. Mrs. Rhena Stephens, newcomer to the town, headed the council polls, being the first woman to achieve the distinction in Cobourg or receiving the highest number of council votes.

Mayor Joe Smith was returned to office by a majority of 74 votes, and while his majority was small compared to others successful in the election, it is significant that those of the 1949 administration who sought re-election all were successful.

William Cooper, who was councillor in 1949, and had been critical of the 1949 administration was swamped in his try for reeve.

Following were the official election totals. The tabulation was completed at 11 p.m.: Mayor, Jos. Smith, 1,284; Harry Fisher, 1,210; Reeve, Roy Dodge, 1,711; William Cooper, 772; Deputy-Reeve Geo Galbraith, 1,762; Joseph Delanty, 708.

Rotary's Main Object To Serve The Young

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13 — (ENS). — Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh of Havelock was guest speaker at the noon luncheon of the Rotary Club on Monday. He said he was a Rotarian because the primary object of the Rotary Club was to serve youth. "There is not such a thing as a bad boy," he declared. "We see a boy in the light of his possibilities. A boy of 14 or 15 can judge a person very quickly. Rotary is doing wonderful work in supporting 56 students of 17 different nations in taking a university training in lands that are not their own," he added.

Earl Grey of Montreal was a guest of the club. Fred Rutherford introduced the speaker and the vote of thanks was moved by W. A. Kingston. President Charlie Calver was in the chair.

Learning to Work With Copper and Brass

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. These workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, every effort on the part of workers to become proficient in the art of shaping and moulding copper and brass, will mean greater industrial progress—will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

THE BREWING INDUSTRY (ONTARIO)

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy—that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

Canadian Censorship And Article 1201

In an uncommonly interesting article in the current issue of Maclean's Blair Fraser discusses the federal censorship of books as it exists in Canada. Readers of The Examiner know where we stand on this matter; for years we have protested against a system which permits officials of the Customs to forbid the entry of books into Canada without giving any explanation of their action. Mr. Fraser backs up his argument with facts and details which were not available to us and for this the whole intelligent reading public in our country must be grateful to him. His protest is timely; Canadian censorship is under fire at present, and has received some shrewd blows both in the Commons and the Senate. There is hope that something may be done to remedy a situation which is intolerable in a free country.

* * *

What could be done is the removal of Article 1201 from the Customs Tariff. It empowers the Minister of National Revenue to bar from Canada anything "treasonable or seditious, or of an indecent or immoral character." In effect this means that the officials of the Customs are given work of censorship for which they have no special aptitude or training; if someone complains to them that a book should be kept out of the country they read it, or skip through it, and ban it if they see fit. Once a book is banned it stays banned until the Customs chooses to release it; as a usual thing the Customs forgets about it. The list of banned books is not made public.

* * *

The ridiculous thing about this form of censorship is that it merely forbids the import of banned books; it does not prevent them from being printed in Canada, and many pornographic books are printed and sold here. But there are many books of literary value which are barred from the country, and which it is not profitable to print here. These are kept from Canadian readers, unless they run the risk of smuggling them into Canada. Many of them do so, of course. An instance is provided by James Joyce's great novel Ulysses—one of the most remarkable and influential books, in its influence on contemporary writing, of our time. Most Canadians who are keenly interested in writing have read the book; many of them possess copies which were illegal possessions until this autumn, when the ban on the book was removed. Ulysses has been published legally in the U.S.A. since 1934.

* * *

There has never been, in the world's history, a benign or intelligent censorship. Canada's censorship is farcical and obstructive. The Customs cannot be blamed for it; they do it because the law says they must, and not from choice. We do not suppose that they fancy themselves as critics. But at present they are to some degree influenced by the Aunty Dolefuls all over Canada who think that virtue can be produced by restrictive legislation, and who love to write letters to the Customs department urging that books which they themselves cannot understand or appreciate are forbidden to other people. If the Aunty Dolefuls had to bring their complaints into a public court they might be less eager to act, and they would not stand such a good chance of succeeding in their aim, which is to make Canada as intellectually backward as possible. And if these cases of book suppression were brought into court the people of Canada would have someone to speak for them in the person of a judge.

* * *

To secure action on such a matter in this country is not easy. Intellectual freedom is imperfectly understood and little prized in Canada, and literature, as such, never enters into the consciousness of 95 per cent. of the gentlemen who are elected to the Commons. Though we are, as a people, one of the most intelligent and ingenious in the world, we are not a people of literary tastes or inclinations, and we have not yet wakened up to the fact that a book which could not, with propriety, be read from the pulpit of the First Conglomerate Church of Podunk is not necessarily an evil or corrupting book. While the glow of our new citizenship is still warm upon us, it is time we thought upon these things.

A Busy Session

The first session of the twenty-first Parliament of Canada prorogued Saturday, and M.P.'s and Senators scattered to spend Christmas with their constituents and families. In its sixty-four days of sittings a significant amount of legislation was not only introduced, but passed.

The principal bills were: abolishment of appeals to the British Privy Council; enabling legislation to allow the Parliament of Canada to amend the constitution in federal matters; the creation of three departments (Resources and Development, Mines and Technical Surveys, Citizenship and Immigration) in place of two, the Department of Mines and Resources and the Department of Reconstruction and Supply; grants to encourage and assist in the building of the Trans-Canada Highway; loans to modernize Maritime coal mining; provision for three television stations and other television developments; an extensive Dominion-Provincial housing plan; a Forestry Act to provide a national forestry policy; revision of the tax structure.

Three important matters, other than Bills have come before Parliament: the Government's decision to continue rental controls for another year and to allow 18-22 per cent. increases in rents; the Combines investigator's report on flour milling, and his resignation; the condition of Canada's overseas trade, particularly the food export to Britain which is now causing serious concern to many Canadians.

Many of these matters were discussed in these columns at the time they were raised in Parliament. The bare cataloguing of them here, at the end of the sittings, throws into relief the very large amount of important business which Parliament has done since September the fifteenth.

Canadian Replaces Fishbein

Canada can take wry pride in her chief export—brains and ability. The immense drain on our intellectual, technical, and economic life continues as young men still seek the wider opportunities and richer rewards which the United States offers. Ten years ago a native of Belleville and recent graduate of Queen's University medical school emigrated to the U.S. Last week, this Doctor Austin Smith, now aged 37, was appointed to one of the most influential medical posts in that country. He was named editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

He succeeds Dr. Morris Fishbein, who recently retired after twenty-five years as editor when he ruled over the doctors and dictated policies with a power and dominance comparable with that wielded by a general secretary of a nation-wide trade union. Dr. Fishbein's attitude and rigid policy against social reform alienated a good many doctors, as well as many other Americans who wanted the medical profession to accept a more liberal approach to matters like state medicine. Dr. Fishbein's resignation was not entirely voluntary. His successor, the Canadian Dr. Smith takes office at a critical time, and follows a man of strong, if difficult, nature. His is no easy task.

No Green Christmas

Canadians do more than dream of a white Christmas. They expect one, and are unseasonably grouchy if they do not have it. Actually, their expectations are justified by the record; green Christmases in this part of Ontario are as rare as roses in January. Sunday's rain and yesterday's sun played havoc with the snow and the temperature did not fall below freezing during the day. Here again we have another sunny spell, but the warmth is too good—or too unwarranted—to last. It is cooler than yesterday, and, foretaste of what may be in the wind for us is a report of southern Manitoba's first blizzard. "Howling wind up to forty miles per hour whirled five to eight inches of snow from the Saskatchewan border to Kenora, Ontario". (A good long hurl, we may say.) Travelling at the rate of forty miles an hour, twenty-four hours a day that cold snow-laden wind should reach us in this pleasant neck of the woods by . Dear, dear, it should be here now, according to our arithmetic. Perhaps the blasted thing turned south from Kenora into the United States, one of our less graciously-received exports, we presume. But we shall have snow, a white Christmas. We must have; otherwise how will Dancer and Prancer and Donner and Blitzen reach us?

The Case For German Rearmament

By SEBASTIAN HAFFNER

THERE can be no doubt that the question of recreating an armed force in Western Germany is on the international agenda, despite the denials of the American, British and French Governments that it has been or is being considered, and the denial of the German Government that Germany wants an army.

◇ ◇ ◇

ALL these denials may be taken as perfectly true, as far as they go. The question of restoring a German army certainly formed no part of the inter-Allied negotiations which preceded the recent Petersberg agreement between the three Western Powers and Germany. It may also be taken that it has not yet been the subject of any discussions at Government level at all; nor has there been any German demand for rearmament. One may even go further. It is very likely that at least the British and French Governments, and also, for different reasons, the German Government, do not at all like the prospect of having to consider German rearmament and are sincerely willing to avoid the question or at least to postpone it as long as possible. In spite of all this, the question imposes itself.

◇ ◇ ◇

IT arises from the hard facts which govern Western European defence. A common defence plan of the Atlantic Treaty Powers — i.e., the countries of North American and Western Europe — was agreed in Paris last month. Though the details of the plan are naturally a military secret, it has been made public that under the plan no member country is to be temporarily sacrificed. All Western Europe is, in case of war, to be defended against invasion. Nor could any Western European country agree to anything else. No country could voluntarily accept the prospect of being occupied by the Red Army and then awaiting "liberation" possibly for years, while in the meantime being converted into a Communist State with all that this implies, especially in conditions of war.

◇ ◇ ◇

HOWEVER, it is not enough to postulate on paper that Western Europe is to be effectively defended. If this defence is to be a reality it must be backed by resources, both in manpower and in arms, which are commensurate with the task. And these resources must be on the spot to meet the first shock of an attack. British and American reinforcements might come too late, and the French and Benelux armies by themselves would be too small to cope with a determined westward thrust of the Red Army. The Scandinavians and Italians would be fully employed with the defence of their own territories. It is very hard—indeed, let us say frankly, it is impossible—to see how the gap in manpower for the defence of the Western central landmass can be filled without a German contribution.

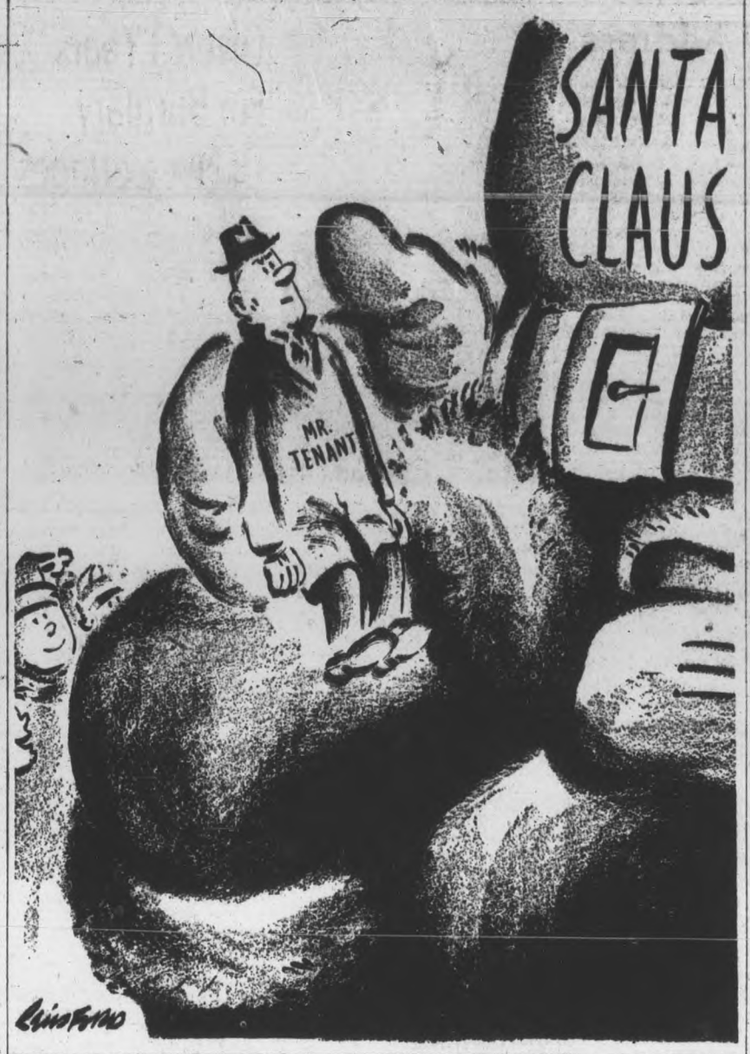
◇ ◇ ◇

IT is rumoured that all the Chiefs of Staff, including the French, have unanimously advised that a German military contingent is indispensable if Western Europe is to be made sufficiently strong to achieve a real sense of military security. While these rumours cannot be checked, they sound plausible enough in the light of the plain facts. If the intention to defend Western Europe in case of war is serious, the question of associating Western Germany with this defence must sooner or later be faced.

◇ ◇ ◇

IT is obvious, incidentally, that a defence of Western Europe to which the Germans were to contribute would have to include the effective defence of Western Germany herself. This should overcome German reluctance. The Germans cannot possibly wish to stand by helplessly and see their own country overrun in case of war. On the other hand the fact that all the standing Western European forces, not only the German ones, would have to be stationed permanently in Western Germany, which forms the present military frontier of Western Europe, would possibly provide a reasonable guarantee against any mischief to which a resurrected German Army might one day feel tempted.

◇ ◇ ◇



OF course, the military need for a German contribution to Western European defence does not itself dispose of the political problems connected with such a step, which are real and serious. It would not be possible to start arming Germany before the rearmament of France had gone a good deal further than at present: French fears would probably prove insuperable unless France were always assured of a margin of superiority over her German associate. Moreover, it is hardly possible to consider arming Germans before Western Europe has evolved a common political authority with real powers, at least over defence. For without such an authority, to which all Western European national contingents were to owe ultimate loyalty, the term "Western European army" would be but a name, and the German army, might one day again strike out on adventure of its own.

◇ ◇ ◇

A FINAL argument against arming Germany is the fear that it might provoke Russia to make preventive war. This, however, is perhaps a weaker argument than it sounds. It amounts to saying that Western Europe should be allowed to remain at Russia's mercy forever. If a West German defence contingent is really necessary to make Western Europe secure against Russian attack, then the risks involved in establishing it must be taken, because the alternative would be eternal defencelessness and insecurity. Indeed the fear of Russian preventive war might be an argument for hastening German rearmament, for Russia is less likely to make a preventive war now than later when her own recovery will be more complete. Nor should it be overlooked that Russia has forfeited any case she might have against Western German rearmament by herself creating armed forces in Eastern Germany. The existence of the Eastern German "Grenzbereitschaften" (mobile frontier guards), now numbering some 50,000 armed and fully trained men, makes of itself some counter force indispensable in Western Germany so as to prevent an armed coup against the Federal Republic in case of an agreed evacuation of Germany by the occupying Powers.

Letters To The Editor

DISSATISFIED C.G.E. WORKER GIVES VIEW

Sir: After reading the letter of December 7th from wife of satisfied G.E. employee, I have this to say: If you own your own home, have a good car and a beautiful furnished home where was your husband when we were overseas during the last war?

I suppose he was at home, working possibly 90 hours per week and were you on war work at that time and taking both cheques to the bank as you say that women spend most of the earnings? I suppose hubby at that time rolled his cigarettes to save for you. Now do not forget that in the Army we had small pay while people at home saved and banked while we suffered the torments of hell.

After serving five years with the army forces and getting my discharge I secured a job at G.E., 50c per hour in 1944. Today, thanks to U.E. Union my rate is $1.10 per hour and still I have no money to buy a home, car etc.

My rent is $45.00 per month and I clothe and feed three children, dress my wife and myself. How can we be satisfied?

If you care to answer this letter kindly attach your name and you will be assured a reply with my name, regimental number etc.

U.E.—DISSATISFIED VET.

PETERBOROUGH MENTALITY

Sir: Before the recent election the University Women's Club and the Home and School Association spun a telephone web, suggesting to citizens to vote for three of their chosen candidates. In that way appealing to those who cannot use their own judgement. And mob psychology won. They stated that two of these candidates had several children attending Collegiate. Which fact apparently swayed the people. Is it possible that having children attending Collegiate qualifies one as a School Trustee? Many families have a dozen children; by the same reasoning those parents should be nominated to the School Board.

Have we advanced much beyond Roman intellect! A person representing the people must be sport-minded. The plum is a seat in the City Council. He is never chosen for his business ability.

Another mental quirk of Peterborough people is to bow the knee to any man with M.D. to his name. Why not select a representative from other walks in life? Why tread under your heel the carpenter or mason who builds that beautiful home of yours? Or the plumber who makes your home sanitary? And how much would you have on your dinner table if it were not for the farmers?

Candidates are known only to some neighbours and friends. Why do candidates not speak at meetings in different parts of the town? The public want to know their representatives. Why mark X beside the name of an unknown person?

"LIBERTY".

Little Pigs To Market

Jack Herod, of Caledonia, has recently finished a litter of pigs which forms something of a record. The litter was farrowed on May 24 and by the first of November they were ready for market, one pig weighing 216 pounds. . . . It is not often we hear of litters going to market at such a young age.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Shall mortal man be more just than God? shall a man be more pure than his maker? Behold, he put no trust in his servants; and his angels he charged with folly: how much less in them that dwell in houses of clay, whose foundation is in the dust, which are crushed before the moth? (Job 4: 17-19.)

Although affliction cometh not forth of the dust, neither doth trouble spring out of the ground; yet man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward. (Job 5: 6, 7.)

◇ ◇ ◇

As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more.

But the mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children. . . .

The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all. (Ps. 103: 15-17, 19.)

Trans-Canada Route

Is or is not the Trans-Canada Highway route settled so far as the three western provinces are concerned? Senator MacKinnon said several weeks ago that the provinces had agreed on a route. Premier Manning said that they had. Now, without getting down to particulars, Reconstruction Minister Winters says they have not. The route through the West is still unsettled, he said, and only the provincial governments could settle it.

The Alberta and Saskatchewan governments are definitely on the record as favoring the central or Medicine Hat-Calgary-Banff route.

The British Columbia government has not publicly committed itself, and so far all there is on Alberta's attitude is Mr. Manning's statement, now apparently contradicted by Mr. Winters.—Calgary Albertan.

Oyster Farmer

Our leading oyster farmer is that colourful and enterprising character, Mr. Sam Andrews, of Upper Shippegan, who owns three of the best-known seafood restaurants in Montreal and serves all the oysters he can grow to patrons who swarm to the counters and tables of these establishments.

Mr. Andrews holds leases from the Federal Government on 25 underwater acres in Shippegan Bay. He prepared and seeded this area himself, and managed it scientifically and in such a way that it grows constantly more valuable.

Along New Brunswick's eastern and northern shores there are untold thousands of acres suitable for oyster farming—and Mr. Andrews and others like him have proved that this could be the basis of a much larger industry.—Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

Puts CPR Case Before Men On Commission

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (CP)—Canadian Pacific Railway submissions to the Royal Commission on Transportation continued under examination by provincial counsel today.

George A. Walker, CPR chairman, was on the stand for the second day after spending all day Monday setting out Canadian Pacific policy and undergoing questioning by lawyers for three provinces.

Mr. Walker, introducing the CPR's main case to the commission, put forward these points:

1. Canada's freight-rate level must be made higher if the railway problem is to be solved.

2. Extension of government controls over the railways—particularly in making them "instruments of national policy"—would endanger the survival of the CPR as a private enterprise.

3. Capital revision of the Canadian National Railways, sought by that compny, might threaten the CPR unless the National line —and the CPR— were allowed to earn a fair return on investment.

4. The CPR favors equalizing the freight-rate burden across the country, but this does not necessarily mean uniform rates for all sections.

Expresses Protest

Under a general examination on his company's stand on many points, Mr. Walker also expressed a protest against the expenditure of federal funds on the trans-Canada highway. He said he would "quarrel" with the use of government money to build a road to compete with its own line—the CNR—and with the CPR.

The railway chief said the route would provide new facilities for trucking, and there was no suggestion that truckers would pay even an "infinitesimal" part of the cost.

The Railway Association of Canada, which includes the two big lines, has claimed before the royal commission that truckers provide unfair competition to the railways because they are "subsidized' through not meeting their proper share of highway costs. Truckers' associations deny the allegation.

Uranium Sent Small-Pregel

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (CP) — Boris Pregel, president of the Canadian Uranium and Radium Company of New York, said Monday Russia received a "ridiculously small" amount of uranium compounds from his company in 1943

The Canadian Uranium and Radium Company's name has figured in recent investigations into shipments of uranium compounds from Canada and the United States to Russia in 1943 when the Soviet was a wartime ally.

Last week Trade Minister Howe told the Canadian House of Commons that the half-ton shipment of Canadian uranium compounds went to Russia as a "normal" transaction between allies. He said the shipment was approved by both the Canadian and United States governments.

Pregel, head of the company which handled the shipment, said "the actual amount of U235 (fissionable uranium) that could have been extracted from the 1,000 pounds was about half a pound It was ridiculously small and just about as useful as a portion of caviar.

Says War With Russia Will Be Inevitable

TORONTO, Dec. 13 —(CP)— Maj.-Gen. Churchill Mann, former chief of staff of the Canadian Army, said, Monday night war with Russia is inevitable.

Maj.-Gen. Mann, now retired from active service, co-ordinator of civil defence for Toronto and York, was speaking to the Toronto branch of the Red Cross Society.

Russia's attitude makes war with them inevitable," he said. "Because I wanted to say that and I couldn't while in uniform was one of the main reasons I retired from the army."

He stressed the need for integrated support of the army by all civilian agencies and added: "I make no bones about it. The enemy is Russia, whose aim is to destroy everything good in the world."

Gunmen Hit Twice

TORONTO, Dec. 13 — (CP).— Two gunmen struck twice within five minutes in mid-Toronto Monday night and escaped with a total of some $150. The bandits held up a grocer, Leo Broderson, and made off with $50. They then entered a nearby drug store and netted $100.

No Surplus Danger

TORONTO, Dec. 13 — (CP).— Members of the Canned Foods Association of Toronto Monday launched their 16th annual convention with an optimistic note. There were reasons for the cheerfulness. For instance, tomato and pea crops were lighter this year than last and there was no danger of excessive surpluses of the products.

Michael Triggs Wins Weekly Swim Contest

Michael Triggs took top honors in the weekly handicap swim of the YMCA's Swimming Club on Monday night. The event for this week was the 40-yard backstroke. Terry Reid placed second and Alec Baptie, third.

He will be an assistant to Mr. Minty in operating the club as well as assisting in the lifesaving classes to begin after the new year. Bill McKenzie(a senior swimmer with the club, will also be assistant instructor.

Latest additions to the club are Larry Forbes, a PCVS student, who will be swimming in senior events and Terry Killen, a 12-year-old graduate from the Tadpole club.

Given 3 Years For Burglary Of Five Cottages

LINDSAY, Dec. 13—(ENS)—Pleading guilty to five charges of breaking, entering and theft from five Balsam Lake cottages, Albert E. Wismer, 29, of Orillia, was sentenced to three years in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate E. A. Gee.

Steven Fraser, 32, also of Orillia, pleaded guilty to receiving the goods from the cottages and was given a year in the reformatory.

Both men have previous records. Wismer once previously served time in Kingston being released in 1943. There is no indication he has been in trouble between that time and November 29 when the series of thefts in Coboconk district began.

Stolen articles included oil and gas heaters, fishing tackle, liquor and bedding, canned goods, a washtub full of carpenter's tools, a clock, draperies, silk comforter, blankets, kitchen utensils and silverware.

Crown Counsel Loren Jordan asked for stiff penalties as there are thousands of dollars worth of summer properties in Victoria County and the courts should help protect this investment. He asked that the punishment be stiff enough to serve as an example.

Tax Refund Cheques

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 — (CP). — Christmas presents—some 251,301 of them with a total value of $2,000,000—started going out to Canadians Monday from the Federal Treasury. The "presents" are income tax refund cheques which represent the amounts deducted at source from employees who, under the budget brought down last spring, were exempted from income tax retroactive to January 1, 1949.

Politics Snarling Study Of Low Income Families

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)— A Republican cry that the Truman administration is trying to "scare" Americans into backing a compulsory health program today threatened to upset a political truce in the congressional study of low income families in the United States

The protest came from Representative Robert Rich (Rep. Pa.) He aimed it at testimony by John L. Thurston, assistant federal security administrator, who said Monday that three children in every average American classroom of 30 pupils "are destined to spend part of their lives in a mental hospital."

Rich called Thurston's testimony "one of the most shocking statements to be made in the program to socialize this country." He added: "It smacks of terrorism and is directed at the parents of the millions of school children in the nation."

He charged that the Truman administration, "determined to socialize the United States, has used every trick of propaganda and duress to put over the main plank of its socialistic program—socialized medicine."

A Different Position

Senator John Sparkman (Dem Ala.), chairman of the committee before which Thurston appeared, took a different position.

Sparkman said the testimony challenges the committee to take notice of "a very serious condition that exists in this country."

"Nobody really knows how many millions of children are mentally or emotionally maladjusted" Thurston said. "But estimates by some authorities are appalling—perhaps three children in every average classroom of 30 pupils are destined to spend part of their lives in a mental hospital. It is estimated that 3,000,000 of the 30,000,000 children now in school suffer from serious emotion and behavior problems."

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, a big government mental institution here, was asked by a reporter to comment on Thurston's statement.

"My impression is that it's substantially accurate," he said, adding that he "wouldn't question at all" the figures pertaining to school children.

Home Baked Muffins Displayed By Girls

BETHANY, Dec. 13—(ENS)—The Glad I Canner Club met Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wellington Fallis. Miss Laura Morton instructed the girls on wise planning of meals and careful shopping.

Mrs. Mansell Finney told of the different types of flours and cereals and how they should be used in careful menu planning for the best food values.

The previous meeting had dealt with making muffins and each girl took sample of her own muffins cooked at home, for demonstration. Mrs. Fallis and her daughter Grace served lunch. Next meeting will be Jan. 10.

Bulgarian Premier Praises New Purge

SOFIA, Dec. 13 (AP)—The defence lawyer for Traicho Kostov, former reputy premier on trial as a Titoist traitor and Anglo-American spy, today praised Bulgarian authorities who he said "broke the hands of the traitors."

White-haired Luben Dukmedjiev, one of Sofia's outstanding lawyers, said he could find little basis on which to defend the former No. 2 Bulgarian Communist.

"My task as defence lawyer for Traicho Kostov is quite difficult," he said in his 90-minute defence speech. He said the prosecution and the lawyers had a common task "to find out the truth."

He said, however, there was a gap on the accused bench where Kostov and 10 other alleged spies and saboteurs sat. Premier Tito of Yugoslavia should also be there with his Interior Minister Alexander Rankovic, Dukmedjiev said.

Great Industrial Expansion Tribute to Canadian Enterprise

President of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, S. M. Wedd, States Manufacturing Increased 60% in 10 years. Widespread Development of Oil, Iron and Titanium.

General Manager, James Stewart, Presents Bank's Statement, Showing Record Assets and Deposits. Canadian Business Generally Upward.

At the Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, held in the Head Office of the Bank, Toronto, December 13th, Mr. Stanley M. Wedd, President, and Mr. James Stewart, General Manager, presented the Annual Statement of the Bank together with a review of business conditions. Mr. Wedd's address to the meeting follows, in part:

Canada's continued efforts since the war to develop an orderly and prosperous economy have been high-lighted each year by changes both in domestic and in foreign relationships and the year now drawing to a close will stand out in this respect.

NEWFOUNDLAND

I would first note in the record of events that Newfoundland this year became the tenth Canadian Province, after a series of negotiations dating back many years. Both countries stand to gain much from the new partnership and Newfoundland will now take her place as an active member of this Confederation. Tradewise, Canada and Newfoundland always have been very close, with Canada first in importance as a source of Newfoundland imports and third in importance as the destination of Newfoundland exports.

DEVALUATION

The most momentous of recent happenings is the devaluation which took place in mid-September last of the British pound, the Canadian dollar and the currency adjustments of about twenty-five other countries which are linked more or less closely with the Sterling Area. In all likelihood it will be weeks, or even months, before the full results of these various devaluation operations can properly be appraised.

The dollar issue today is probably less a dollar problem than a production and marketing problem. Devaluation is, in effect, an attempt to rectify a distorted balance of payments position arising from unfavourable trade developments. For real advantages to accrue from devaluation there must be either a sizable stockpile of goods available for export or a production potential sufficient to satisfy any increased demand for export goods. In such circumstances, the devaluating country can take advantage of its more favourable competitive position either before economic conditions change internally or before other countries readjust trade barriers or institute competitive devaluation. In the light of the many variable factors which must be satisfied before exchange depreciation can effectively check or reverse a trend in a country's balance of payments, it is perhaps more realistic to regard devaluation as a temporary expedient rather than a corrective. Should this recent step lead eventually to free convertibility of currencies, an objective much to be desired will have been accomplished. If, on the other hand, devaluation is nullified by continuous price adjustments then, from an economic point of view, the step will prove to be abortive.

TRADE AND TARIFF CONFERENCE

Trade and tariff discussions initiated at Gene a in 1947 continue. Reports of the sessions during the past summer suggest that the principles of multilateral trade have become more widely recognized and the leading nations in world trade, the United States, Britain and Canada, are moving toward more liberal commercial policies, although these may not be fully implemented for some time. The revised schedules of tariff agreements negotiated between the ten additional nations which have now joined the general agreement and the twenty-three original members achieved no spectacular reduction in the tariff walls, but they continue the basic principles outlined in the Geneva negotiations.

Canada has reduced tariffs on sixty-one items and has bound against increasing the tariff rates on twenty-four additional items. Of particular important were the tariff reductions obtained by Canada from the United States under the most favoured nations principle, centering for the most part on certain types of steel products, wood products and meat and dairy products.

THE NATIONAL SCENE

Looking at our domestic picture, it may be noted that the national economy as a whole has continued at a high level. Conditions, however, have been more varied than was the case in 1948, although it is likely that there will be an over-all gain this year and it is now anticipated that the dollar volume of production will reach sixteen billion dollars as compared with fifteen and a half billion in 1948. During the year the number of people at work reached the highest figure in the employment history of this country.

Canadian agriculture begins the 1949/1950 crop year in a strong financial position due in a large measure to continued high returns from the sale of farm products. There was, however, earlier in the year, widespread drought and insect infestation and, consequently, many grain growers in western Saskatchewan and eastern Alberta, as well as in some localities in central Canada, suffered heavy crop damage, which was not fully overcome by the more favourable weather later in the season.

INDUSTRY

The great expansion of Canadian industry in the last quarter century, and notably in the last decade, is a tribute to the enterprise of Canadian citizens. It is estimated that in the last ten years manufacturing capacity in Canada has increased by about sixty per cent. while the gross value of Canadian manufacturing production per head of population has risen from about two hundred and fifty dollars per head in the 1926-29 period to the present value of about seven hundred and fifty dollars. In all, there now are approximately thirty-three thousand manufacturing establishments operating in Canada producing goods to a value of over ten billion dollars yearly. Industrial production has moved upwards and reached a new peacetime high towards the latter part of this year.

MINING AND OIL

Today Canada is one of the leading producers of minerals and current production is valued at well over eight hundred million dollars per annum derived from about sixty different substances. This represents a substantial increase in dollar value over any previous record, with higher values per unit produced and increased volume production both combining to bring about a new peak. Plans are proceeding for the development of the Quebec and Labrador iron ore deposits estimated at over three hundred million tons. The initial operations are projected at a minimum of ten million tons per annum, but some years must elapse before actual production will be under way. Also, in the lower Quebec region the production of titanium is expected to commence in 1950 with an objective, which it is planned to reach in 1952, of 220,000 tons of titanium slag and 170,000 tons of pig iron per annum.

The present petroleum development programme, largely in Alberta, but extending also into Saskatchewan and Manitoba, is the largest ever undertaken in Canada. Alberta now has nearly one thousand productive oil wells, over twice as many as a year ago, and Canadian oil production has tripled as compared to two years ago. What the new oil discoveries may mean to the future of Canadian economic life is as yet uncertain but if there are further discoveries and production continues to increase at the present rate, oil production may rival agriculture in importance to the prairie economy. Equally topical is the possibility that, by becoming self-sufficient or nearly self-sufficient in oil, Canada may substantially reduce her trade deficit with the United States. In 1948 aggregate oil imports from all sources amounted to about three hundred millions in United States dollars.

The increase in the tempo of the development of the natural resources of the country, to which I have just referred, is undoubtedly of major importance to our economy. One can well envisage that, with out new oil potentials and the possibilities of substantially increased shipments of metals to the United States markets, the current deficit in our trade with that country should progressively decline and that, in due time, shift in our pattern of trade may develop.

Today we fact many uncertainties The attempts to gain control of men's minds, which is the goal of the totalitarian, throw difficulties in the way of efforts to establish an orderly trading world. Yet the advantages of peaceful and universal trade are so obvious that one cannot help but be strongly hopeful that common sense will prevail.

All in all the year just closing has been a good one for Canada. Our trade generally has reached top figures and employment has been quite well maintained in most fields of endeavour. In so far as the immediate future is concerned I think it safe to conjecture that the coming year will bring satisfactory results in the aggregate. It is true that competition is becoming increasingly vigorous both at home and from outside of our borders, but there is great enterprise in the Canadian people and given a reasonably stable world there is no basis for pessimism.

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

Following on from the record activities of 1948 the Canadian economy has continued in a generally upward direction and year-end aggregate figures of national income and production will indicate further industrial progress this year. This sustained upward trend is reflected in the present position of the Bank. During the fiscal year, assets increased by some 117 millions of dollars—a somewhat greater climb than that of last year—and the figure is now 1,646 millions.

DEPOSITS

An increase of 122 millions is shown in deposits this year as contrasted with 93 millions last year. The Balance Sheet which is before you gives a breakdown of this liability in various classifications, but probably the most significant figure is contained under the heading "Deposits by the Public bearing interest," etc. The bulk of the deposits under this heading is in personal savings and the increase of 58 millions over last year at once denotes the thrift and savings habits of the people of this Dominion and also reflects the generally favourable economic conditions within the Dominion.

INVESTMENTS

Our investment portfolio covering Dominion and Provincial Governments and Municipalities issues shows a modest increase over last year of $4 million. The return from such securities over the cost of money to the Bank is low—a very small fraction of 1 per cent. However, these securities could readily be converted into cash, they are not subject to wide market fluctuations, and consequently represent a safeguard for our depositors' funds.

While on the subject of investment, it might be noted that over the past few years great strides have been made in the expansion and improvement of industrial and commercial plant and equipment which has involved heavy capital investment and this has been a sustaining influence on the high level of business and employment. Having regard for past experience, there must be an annual rate of capital investment that fits in with the orderly growth of an economy such as ours, although so far it is difficult to express in figures such over-all investment. It is important to our economy that private capital investment be encouraged among our own people, but also the factors must be such that citizens of other lands will view our investment possibilities with favour. It is essential, therefore, that a climate continue to be developed and sustained wherein risks and returns come into line and where individual and corporate judgments be given adequate scope.

LOANS

Current loans this year have increased $59 million. This is almost double the increase of 1948. Steady upward price movements (fortunately on a small scale), a sustained expansion in industrial plant and equipment plus the continued buoyancy of the Canadian economy to which I have made previous reference have contribute to this position.

VOLUME

So far, I have dealt only in figures which have a dollar sign in front, but I am pleased to say that the progress made dollar-wise has been matched in the increased number of our customers, depositors, borrowers and others who use the facilities of the Bank.

The number of deposit accounts increased by 38,600, and borrowers by 11,500.

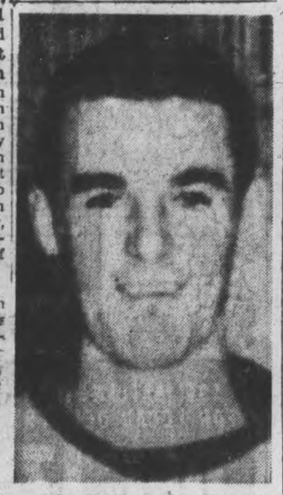
In addition, there has been a further enlargement of the number who have a proprietary interest in the Bank as our shareholders have increased by 450 and now stand at 13,936.

STAFF

The figures which you have before you bespeak the calibre of the staff. The over-all increase in the Balance Sheet and the level of our earnings tell the story of initiative, energy and good staff-customer relationships. We have a large staff—some 7,500—scattered over the length and breadth of the Dominion, in the United Kingdom, the United States and the West Indies. Spread as they are, authority is widely diffused and I cannot speak too highly of the manner in which the Managers and Accountants throughout the service have accepted and wisely used their delegated authority. The men and women in the clerical positions in the branches have also contributed to the giving of cheering and efficient service to the public. It is a pleasure for me to express appreciation to the members of the staff for a good job well done, and I am sure this will be heartily endorsed by the shareholders here today.

Petes Outplay Diesels, 9-3 To Take Over Third Spot

Beating Belleville Diesels-Electrics 9-3 here last night, the Petes climbed into third place in their five-team OHA senior "B" grouping before a fair-sized crowd. Playing their best hockey so far this season, the homesters rammed in four goals in the first frame without a return, weathered a 2-1 Belleville margin in the middle heat, and outscored the visitors 4-1 in the third of a speedy and clean contest. Junior West sparked the Petes' attack with four goals and an assist, with Murray Fife and Jerry Creighton each in on three. Collins was in on a pair, with Coughlin, Garvey and Leonard each figuring in on one. Big Vern Goyer went best for Belleville with two goals, Leo Goyer getting the other, and an assist each going to Schreider, Williams, Mulvihill and Wardaugh. The Petes drew four of the seven minor penalties.



Not A Letup

There was seldom a letup in the speedy scrap, and there was little time out, the players frequently changing on the fly. Both sides stuck to hockey, the only penalties being accidental ones. The Petes got the jump on their own surface and started plugging right from the start to keep the Quinte squad disorganized through the first period. Belleville battled back to have a little edge on play in the second heat and they pretty well held their own through an exciting third period, Junior West running up the count with two tallies in the dying minutes.

Both goalies looked good, Plumley only fanning on one, and Harding steady as a rock in the home net. Conlin and Leonard were the pick of the home defencemen, with West, Creighton, Fife, Collins and Garvey all standing out up front for the Petes. Williamson went well at the blue line and Nolan was strong in spots for Belleville, while Vern Goyer and Mulvihill looked best up front over the route for the visitors.

How It Went

Coughlin, Creighton, Collins and Fife—the latter's was a nifty solo—got the first frame goals, Fife aiding on a pair, with Collins and West each getting an assist. West scored in the second from Creighton and Vern and Leo Goyer each counted for Diesels, the latter helped by Schreider and Williams. Creighton hit the hemp with Garvey's pass to open the third and Vern Goyer got it back in a scramble, aided by Mulvihill and Wardaugh. West then counted three in a row for the hat trick—though it was a shirt he won as most valuable player—with Leonard assisting on the last marker.

LED WAY—Junior West led the way for the Petes in their 9-3 senior "B" puck win over Belleville here last night. The ex-Crono young centre slammed home four goals and aided on another in a fine showing.

Belleville: Goal, Plumley; defence, Williamson and Woodman; centre, V. Goyer; wings, Mulvihill and Wardaugh; alternates, Nolan, Schreider, L. Goyer, Williams, Day, Moher, Barrett and Bastedo.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Horton and Leonard; centre, West; wings, Creighton and Garvey; alternates, Fife, Collins, Coughlin, Tompkins, Legrow Griffin, Jopling and Conlin.

Marlie Line Leads Scoring

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP) — A partial answer to why Toronto Marlboros are galloping 14 points ahead of the rest of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A pack is the Dukes' red-hot top-scoring line of Johnny McCormack, Scotty Mair and Al Buchanan.

Scoring statistics, released on Monday, show McCormack leading the senior scoring department with 13 goals and 22 assists for 35 points.

In second place is Mair with 21 goals and 13 assists for 34 points. Buchanan, a former Winnipegger, has 14 goals and 14 assists for 28 points.

Another reason for Dukes' hold on first place is the team's goalie, Pat Boehmer, with an average of 2.45 goals a game.

In the Junior A scoring division Earl Reibel of Windsor Spitfires is top man with 22 goals and 36 assists for 58 points. Ten points behind is another Spitfire, Erwin Grosse, who has collected 22 goals and 26 assists. In third place is Connie Switzer of St. Catharines Teepees with 11 goals and 33 assists for 44 points. Top goaltender in the league is Marlboros Don Lockhart with 2.32 goals a game average.

Gillies Announces Health Week Dates

Canada's sixth annual National Health Week will be observed from January 29 to February 4 next, it has been announced by Dr. J. Z. Gillies of Toronto, chairman of the National Health Week Committee of the Health League of Canada which annually sponsors this featured health education event.

"Canada's health record is improving year by year," said Dr. Gillies, but there is still much room for improvement.

"National Health Week is designed to make Canadians aware of the facts surrounding health and disease—to make Canadians aware of what is being done by medical science in the attempt to conquer such featured killers as cancer and heart disease, and what has been done to provide means for the control of such once feared killers as diphtheria, smallpox and typhoid."

Millbrook Bowling

MILLBROOK, Dec. 13 (ENS)—J. Brooks rolled high three this week for men in the Millbrook bowling league, with a 794 score, Ron Palmer having top single of 291. For the ladies, Marg MacDowell led in triples with 651 and Mabel Pinnington had a 259 single.

Merchants are in front with 30 points, followed by the Rinky-Dinks with 28, Lancashires with 26 and Chek-r-Chix with 22 Vegetarians, Aberdeens, Bankers and Ding-a-Lings each have 21, Hanks 18, Sawbones and Broadway Blues 17 each. Pipe Twisters 16, HBC's 13 and V-Eights 9.

BILL STACK, above who opens Thursday night's mat show at the Brock against Kaye Belle. The main bout brings together Seelie Samara, sensational colored star, and Steve Stanlee, the Golden Boy. Both are clean, fast, scientific wrestlers and a good bout should be forthcoming. Mayes McLain and John Barend are in the semi-final spot.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

An ebony and ivory tint scheme in the main pro wrestling bout at the Brock Arena this Thursday night, when black Seelie Samara tangles with blond Steve Stanlee. Two powerful grapplers, who waste little time on illegal tactics but pitch in and keep going ahead all the way. Both have their following here and this shapes up as the best main bout of the season in Peterborough, probably the last card till after New Year's. Some newcomers to this borough will be seen in the two preceding bouts, Mayes McLain facing Johnny Barend in the semi-final, and Kaye Belle doing battle with tall Bill Stack in the prelim. Yeah, plenty of action on tap in this three-bout mat program.

Clayt Browne reluctantly admits that St. Kitts Teepees in the OHA junior "A" race miss George (Red) Sullivan. Says: "Some of the efficiency of Teepee's sniping can rightly be said to be missed with the departure of George Sullivan. There's no denial but it affected the potency of Art Jackson's first line, for Sully did pack the drive and it's beginning to tell in figures." The St. Catharines club accused Boston Bruins of breaking a written agreement not to sign players away from St. Catharines during the season without the St. Kitts club's consent. Weston Adams of Bruins denies this, saying they never had a written agreement with St. Kitts. He challenges them to produce it, promising if they do he will publicly eat it.

Wasn't A Spite Move

Adams told Milt Dunnell of the Toronto Star: "We did not sign Sullivan as a spite move. If we had wanted to hurt St. Catharines, we would have signed three or four players before the season started, and heaven knows we could have used them for Hershey and Tulsa. We knew then we'd be breaking off with St. Catharines. We signed Sullivan for one reason — because Eddie Sandford had suffered a severed Achilles tendon the previous night, and we needed help. We have been accused of trying to sign other St. Catharines players at the same time. That's not true." Anyway, the Peterborough boy came in for a lot of publicity. He's performing now for Hershey.

Kingston Nylons play the local Legionnaires at 8.30 tomorrow night in Civic Arena, first scheduled showing of the senior "B" Kingston crew here this season. Legion beat them last season in playdowns, but the Nylons are stronger this year and recently beat the Petes 5-3 on the large Kingston sheet. That starry first line of Gerow, Partis and Catlin will be seen in action again, and Udy Udall once more holds down the twine tepee for the Nylons. They always dish up a dandy duel against local teams, and Legion will have to hustle all the way to maintain their group leadership.

Petes Hit Real Form

Red Creighton said early last eve: "If Legion beat Diesels here 12-4, we can at least do the same." Well, they practically did at that, winning 9-3 and looking real good in the process. Yes, the Foley flock were hustling to earn it handily, while the Quinte crew fought all the way—which added up to an exciting tussle. Junior West was in on five goals to lead the parade and win the shirt, though for a time it looked like Jerry Creighton or Murray Fife would take it. These and Garvey and Collins up front, along with Conlin, Leonard and Harding defensively, stood out in our opinion for the Petes, though the whole squad hustled. We still like the work of big Vern (Jumbo) Goyer of Diesels.

IOOF-ers leave by bus from the arena at 6.30 p.m. tomorrow for Lindsay to open their OHA junior "B" group schedule. Then they take on the Lindsay Kinsmen here on Friday. Hank Goldup is reported to have the Scugog boys in fine condition and working hard—he doesn't allow them to smoke during the season. Other clubs in this grouping are Oshawa, Belleville and two in Kingston. They'll operate a double schedule, followed by playoffs. Oddfellows go away again on Monday, this time to Belleville. Frank Buckland of the OHA is group convener and will be drawing up the schedule within a few days. There are no less than eight groups playing junior "B" this semester.

Night Baseball Gains Ground

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Night baseball gained new ground in the majors Monday as both the National and American Leagues decided to finish "day" games under the lights when darkness intervenes.

The National League restored the twilight-night doubleheaders they have ruled out since wartime. The American has condoned such doubles in the past.

No longer will National night games be halted by a curfew at 12.50 a.m. local time. The curfew was voted out at Monday's meeting.

The suspended game, a headache in wartime days, was restored by the National League. Under that rule, games called on account of Sunday curfew or to catch a train will be resumed at the point of interruption at a later date.

American League executives did not go all the way with the National in turning on lights to finish day games They will allow this only in the last series between two clubs at the close of the season.

Veteran Les Douglas Has Grip On Scoring

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (CP) — Veteran Les Douglas of Cleveland Barons this week took a monopoly of all individual scoring departments in the American Hockey League.

Leading the scoring column with 44 points, he was also top goal scorer with 18 and No. 1 play maker with 26 assists.

Johnny Chad of Providence Reds was second in points with 55, followed by Harvey Fraser of the Reds with 33. Kelvin Burnett, sparkling rookie with the Springfield Indians, was third with 32. Roy Kelly of Cleveland had 31 points.

Rugged Joe Lepine of Cincinnati Mohawks still held the Dubois honor of being league bad man with 82 minutes in the penalty box.

Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh Hornets led the goalies with an average of 2.58 on 67 goals allowed in 26 games. Diminutive Connie Dion of Buffalo Bisons and Terry Sawchuk of Indianapolis Caps were tied at two shutouts each.

Lone Dissenter

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Billy Evans, Detroit Tiger general manager, was the lone dissenter last night as the American League at its meeting voted 7 to 1 against the return of the spitball. "Nothing has been done to help the pitchers in the last 15 years," argued Evans. "This is just a trick delivery such as the knuckleball, forkball and so forth, which are legalized."

Peterborough Horse Cops Both Heats In Fifth

Four repeat winners scored at the harness meet yesterday at Dufferin Park over a heavy racing strip. Owing to off-track conditions, all second heats were reduced to 6½ furlongs.

Toby Patch, the property of W. H. Madill, Shelburne, took both dashes of the second event, with Tony St. Charles scoring twice in the third. Redstone, owned by H. J. Davis, Peterborough, won both heats in the fifth.

Richard Scores 20 Goals During 25 Games

MONTREAL, Dec. 13 (CP) — Although Montreal's Maurice (Rocket) Richard is in third place in the National Hockey League race, his 20 goals in 25 games is the "hottest" performance so far this season by any of the scoring leaders.

The 27-year-old right winger of Canadiens is currently leading in number of goals scored, having sunk one third of the 60 markers registered by the team this season in 25 games.

The rugged Canadien may be on his way to break his all-time NHL record of 50 goals in 50 games in the 1944-45 season. This year the schedule was extended from 60 to 70 games, giving Richard a better chance to smash his old record.

The top point leader of the six team circuit is Detroit Red Wings Ted Lindsay with 13 goals and 17 assists for a total of 30 points. Sid Abel of Detroit and Doug Bentley of Chicago are tied for the runner-up spot, four points behind Lindsay. Richard is alone in third place with 25 points while Detroit's Gordie Howe and Chicago's Bill Mosienko are fourth with 23 points.

Leads Assists

Doug Bentley leads the field in the assist department with a total of 19 in 26 games.

The dubious honor of the league's bad boy is held by Lindsay who has served a total of 59 penalty minutes in the cooler.

Montreal's Bill Durnan continues to hold the spotlight in the goalers division with the low goals against average of 1.92 in 25 contests. Harry Lumley of Detroit follows with 2.31 average for 26 contests.

Durnan, Lumley and Toronto's Turk Broda are grouped for shutout honors with four each.

Detroit continues to hold a comfortable lead in the league standing. Red Wings have 35 points made up of 16 victories, seven defeats and three stalemates. Nine points behind Montreal and Toronto Maple Leafs are tied for second place. Rangers are third with 24 points, Boston has 22 and Chicago has 21.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

By The Canadian Press.

By unanimous vote, the New York Boxing Writers' Association Monday awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial Boxing Plaque for 1949 to the National Boxing Association heavyweight champion, Ezzard Charles.

Since 1938 the award has been given annually to the boxer or boxing figure who, in the opinion of the writers, has done the most for the sport during the year. Sportsmanship and clean living in addition to ring performance, is also considered.

Neil, Associated Press boxing writer in the early '30s, was killed in 1937 while serving as a war correspondent in Spain, and the award was set up in his memory.

Charles, a Cincinnati Negro, and Jersey Joe Walcott were named by the NBA to meet for the title vacated by Joe Louis. Charles defeated Walcott this year and was recognized as champion by the national body, although the New York State Commission has refused to name him title-holder.

Strict enforcement of the Olympic definition of an amateur likely would "play havoc" with the picking of several United States teams, Prof. Nelson C. Hart, honorary secretary of the Canadian Olympic Association, said at London, Ont., Monday.

He was commenting on an interview Avery Brundage gave in San Francisco Saturday in which the president of the United States Olympic Association declared that college athletes who receive scholarships on the basis of their skill in any sport become "professionals."

Calling Brundage's stand "well founded," Prof. Hart added that "a strict application of the Olympic definition of an amateur would likely play havoc with the selection of many United States teams, and particularly the track and field team which is composed largely of college athletes."

Calumet Farm's Coaltown drew even Monday with Greentree's Capot in their paper racing for "horse of the year."

The four-year-old Coaltown beat out his one year younger rival in the 14th annual poll of the turf and Sport Digest, a Baltimore publication.

Capot earlier had been voted the honor by the Daily Racing Form.

At Toronto, jolting Joey Pyle of New Waterford, N. S., and Billy Fifield of Toronto fought to an eight-round draw Monday night in the feature bout of a professional boxing card.

Referee Bobby Lawrence stopped the bout in the eighth round after Pyle suffered a bad cut over his right eye. He declared the bout a draw.

Burt Shotton, manager of the pennant-winning Brooklyn Dodgers, at New York Monday announced reappointment of Jake Pitler, Clyde Sukeforth and Milt Stock as his 1950 coaches.

At Barrie, coach Hap Emms of Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League said Monday he has swapped forward lines with Oshawa Generals. Emms said he traded Enso Vanatta, Rio Carons, and Bobby Holden, for Doug Tower, Reg. Campbell and Doug Warner.

The Christmas rush started at Brantford Monday—for baseball tickets. Shortly after the box-office opened, a mob of fans had bought most of the 1,400 season tickets, put up by Brantford Red Sox of the Intercounty Senior League. The Red Sox won the pennant last year.

Al Hersh, New York welterweight, will substitute for the injured Raoul Perez against Fritzie Pruden of St. Catharines, in the feature 10-round fight at St. Nicholas Arena Wednesday night. Perez, who hails from Cuba, had to withdraw from the card because of two fractures in his right hand suffered in training.

Haas Wins Money

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP) — Freddy Haas, Jr., Monday defeated Bob Hamilton by two strokes in an 18-hole playoff round to win first money in Miami's 26th annual $10,000 open golf tournament. The 33-year-old professional from New Orleans fired a one under par 35-34-68 against Hamilton's 35-36-71, one over par for the Miami Springs golf course.

Greco Strikes Comeback Trail In Dull Bout

MONTREAL, Dec. 13 (CP) — Johnny (Jolting) Greco of Montreal came through with his first victory on the comeback trail on Monday night when he earned a 10-round decision over middleweight Herbie Kronowitz of Brooklyn before 5,912 fans.

Kronowitz, at 156, held a 4¼ pound edge over the Montreal welterweight.

The fight was listless throughout and the small crowd that contributed a gross gate of $17,415 was continually booing, whistling and urging the fighters to give more action.

Greco, Canadian welterweight champion, was making his first appearance in the ring since he was k.o.'d last summer by Laurent Dauthuille of France.

The swarthy Montrealer showed little of his former talent as a hard-hitting slugger and appeared sluggish and fat. He was unable to break through Kronowitz's smart defensive style. Kronowitz, on the other hand, had little more to offer on the offensive than a good left hand jab.

There were no knockdowns in the bout and neither fighter appeared to be hurt by any blows at any time.

Canuck Boxers Acclaimed By British Fans

By MICHAEL O'MARA

LONDON, Dec 13—(CP)—British sport had a year of ups and downs—mostly downs—in 1949 with probably fewer achievements of major calibre to boast about than in the vintage Olympic year of '48.

But, despite food shortages, frequent lack of training facilities and one of the world's most unpredictable climates for many types of outdoor sport, sportsmen and sportswomen kept plugging away with characteristic never-say-die spirit.

One of the biggest trends of the year was the sudden and unprecedented influx of Canadian boxers, some of whom began to belt the local boys around without any respect at all.

The newcomer who won most immediate popularity was hard-punching Earl Walls, light-skinned Toronto Negro heavyweight with Cherokee blood in his veins. Walls kayoed his first four opponents within a total of six rounds, and had British ringsiders using terms like "the young Joe Louis" and "coming world champion."

His stablemate, Vern Escoe, another Toronto Negro and Canadian heavyweight champion, went through his first three opponents almost as easily and manager Jimmy Jones of Edmonton issued challenges on behalf of both for Bruce Woodcock's empire crown.

Other Canadian champions to show here were George Ross of Halifax, middleweight, Fernando Gagnon of Quebec City, Bantamweight, Jean Richard of Montreal, featherweight, and L'il Arthur King of Toronto, lightweight.

An Easy Decision

None won much distinction except King who gained an easy decision over Bermondsey Tommy McGovern in a bout which did not put King's empire title on the block. Of the Canadian non-champions it was another Toronto lightweight, Solly Cantor, who won most plaudits. The former newsboy went through seven bouts undefeated.

Among other Canadians who popped in and out of British rings in 1949 were Frank Cortese, Toronto welterweight, Don Mogard, Toronto heavyweight, and Roy Wouters, Calgary middleweight.

The biggest domestic fistic event of the year was Woodcock's 14-round victory over world light-heavyweight champion Freddie Mills at White City Stadium, London, in May. Bruce thus retained his British, British Empire and European heavy titles, but the latter was declared void when the Yorkshireman declined to defend it within the stipulated time.

Although many homebreds were performing for Scottish hockey teams Canadian imports still provided the backbone for most teams in both England and Scotland. The Canadian-packed Harringay Racers won their first League title since 1937-8, and Montreal-born Bobby Lee of Brighton Tigers became the first player to score 300 goals in British hockey.

United States players, as usual, took most tennis honors at Wimbledon. Frank Schroeder won the men's singles and Louise Brough the women's singles, while the teams of Pancho Gonzales and Frankie Parker and Miss Brough and Mrs. W. du Pont collected their respective doubles events. Eric Sturgess and Sheila Summers salvaged the mixed doubles for South Africa.

Golf was another sorry story for Britain. South African Bobby Locke won the Open, while Great Britain, after leading 3-1 at the end of the foursome, fell 7-5 to a resurgent United States Ryder Cup team.

Tie For Championship

County cricket saw its most thrilling finish in years as middlesex and Yorkshire drove neck-and-neck to the wire. Yorkshire won the season's final match to snatch a first-place tie New Zealand's touring cricketers won plenty of friends but no Test Matches against England. The home side won two, with three drawn.

Portsmouth took the Football League championship and Wolverhampton Wanderers defeated Leicester City 3-1 at Wembly for the Football Association Cup. Glasgow Rangers won both Scottish League championship and Scottish Cup.

Three horses shared major honors on the British turf this year. They were Lord Derby's brilliant four-year-old stayer Alycidon, which won the Ascot, Goodwood and Doncaster Cups—a rarely-completed "treble;" N. P.

PAY LINE—Jockey Art Monteiro nears finish aboard Meangen, on rail, to complete $224.60 daily double at Tropical Park. Finishing in order of line at Coral Gables, Fla., track are The Prophet, War Page, and Galla Babe.

Donaldson's Musidora and Mrs. M. Glenister's Nimbus.

Nimbus won the Derby and Two Thousand Guineas while Musidora took the Oaks and One Thousand Guineas. The year's fifth classic, the St. Leger, went to Geoffrey Smith's Ridge Wood.

Narrogar Ann won the biggest greyhound race of the year, the "Dog Derby," at White City Stadium. The bitch was the second of her sex ever to capture the canine classic.

Britain looked forward into the New Year with renewed hope. In several lines, she seemed to have good chances for the British Empire Games at Auckland in February.

A strong women's track-and-field squad looked good for at least a couple of titles, while men athletes, led by colorful Don Finlay, 40-year-old hurdler and war hero, seemed assured of a share of the honors.

Shortage of funds cramped several British entries, but in boxing and possibly weight-lifting the mother country also expected to do well.

Asks Criminology Group

MONTREAL, Dec. 13 (CP). — Formation of a Canadian Society of Criminology was urged Monday night by P. Piltrot d'Alleume of France, Secretary-General of the International Society of Criminology. He said Canada was one of the few nations which have not signified intention of attending the World Congress of Criminology in Parist next year.

MINOR HOCKEY

New Trojan entry, Trojans No. 2 ,were defeated 12-3 last night by St. Peter's bantams This new entry, just in the forming stages and which is made up mostly of boys who could not make other teams, deserves credit for the fine effort they put forth. It was pretty much St. Peter's game after the first period.

St. Pete's goals were by Ferren with one tally, Courneya with four, and McDougall with eight goals and two assists. McDougall has really being scoring since being moved up from defence to forward position. Goals for Trojans were by Whitnell, Doris and Parrie.

In the second fray it was Marines Midget all the way with eight counters over the scoreless Keene team who seemed to lack passing and checking experience. They allowed Marines to break up their plays and couldn't keep them out of their own defensive zone. Bethune looked good for Keene, who will probably pick up when the outside ice makes practises available. Turner, Kearns and Spencer stood out for Marines with Strickland doing a good job setting up the goals.

Marines goals were by Holden, McCormick one each, Turner, Kearns and Spencer getting two each. There were four penalties in all, McCormick getting a minor which boosts his time in the sin bin to nine minutes for three games. He is the league's leading bad boy.

Following are the standings as compiled by Ron Balaam:

Teachers Rap Emergency Training, Fear Results

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (CP) — A Canadian Teachers' Federation official Monday described an emergency teacher-training plan suggested by the Ontario Royal Commission on Education as a "retrograde step."

George Croskery, secretary of the Federation which speaks for some 57,000 teachers across Canada, said in a statement that the commission recommendation "will meet with little support from those most vitally concerned with the educational welfare of young Canadians."

The commission urged establishment of the emergency program to cope with the increasing shortage of qualified teachers in Ontario. It recommended that the Provincial Government provide financial assistance to qualified individuals seeking to take the course.

The federation takes the commission's report point by point and finds a flaw in every recommendation. Its letter concludes by requesting the government not to implement the report, "which would have such a disastrous effect on future education in this province."

Contrast To Aims

In the first place, the federation points out, the report is in direct contrast to the aims of the teachers' organization, which has been advocating that normal school entrance requirements be raised and that a longer period of training be started.

The federation believes the commission's deductions from statistics are illogical. "While the school population is continuing to increase," the letter states, "the commission's tables show that the increase of teachers under present regulations is at least keeping abreast of the increase in pupils. The extreme emergency claimed by the commission is not apparent from the evidence submitted."

Contrary to the commission's aim, the federation believes the scheme it recommends would not greatly increase the enrollment in normal schools. "It would only attract different ones. Students with high qualifications would be reluctant to enter a training school which welcomes students who have not, or cannot get, their university entrance examinations," the letter states.

Against Financial Aid

Financial aid to teachers-in-training was also recommended by the Royal commission. This is contrary to the practice followed in other professional training schools, in the teachers' opinion, and they feel it would attract more persons interested in having their training paid for than in becoming teachers.

"If such money is available," the federation points out, "it might be better spent in improving conditions within the profession which tend to deter people from entering it."

Even more alarming, the federation thinks, is the proposal that a person who ended his schooling in Grades 7 or 8, but had been successful in some other endeavour, would be allowed to enter normal school.

Alberta government coffers have been enriched by $9,000,000 since the discovery of oil in the Edmonton area.

Naval Training Base Increased From 100 to 750 In Six Months

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (Special to The Examiner).—From a small beginning of less than 100 officers and men on opening day in May, the Royal Canadian Navy's new entry training base, HMCS "Cornwallis," at Cornwallis, N.S., has mushroomed to alwost 750 naval personnel in a little more than six months. With new classes of recruits arriving every two weeks the Annapolis Valley training centre has recaptured some of the urgent bustle of war days.

The new "Cornwallis" is different in many respects from the wartime "Cornwallis" which, at one time, was the largest naval training establishment of its kind in the British Empire. Closed down from the Summer of 1945 until May, 1949, it has been reopened primarily as a new entry training centre — a place where the recruit receives his basic training and takes his first steps towards becoming a sailor.

21-Week Course

The new entry undergoes a thorough 21-week course in which equal emphasis is placed on practical and theoretical instruction. He learns the rudiments of seamanship, naval law, history and traditions. He also studies mathematics and English. Each class averages 74 recruits. On completion of the course, new entries, if successful, receive 30 days leave before going to sea or to study at one of the RCN's various specialist schools.

Another striking change is in the living quarters provided for the new entry.

HMCS "Cornwallis" is one of the first service establishments to be equipped on the modern scale of furnishings. Gone are the double-decker beds and in their place are single beds, two to a cubicle. In addition, each cubicle is outfitted with a rug, armchair, and individual lockers for each sailor-under-training. Fresh sheets and pillow cases are issued every week.

Familiar With Sea Life

But, lest the recruit receive the wrong impression of life at sea, he also gets a taste of the living conditions he will encounter in Canadian warships. For two of his training, he lives in "Seagull" block, where he sleeps in a hammock, learns to live in limited space, and becomes familiar with such shipboard fittings as scuttles, hatch combings and watertight doors.

Most new entries seem to thrive on the "Cornwallis" training program. One division of more than 60 men was weighed and measured upon arrival at the base some months ago. Recently, when they completed their 21-week course, they went through the routine again. The tale of the tape and the scale provided some interesting facts. Average increase in height for the group was three-quarters of an inch, while the average weight increase was slightly over 3½ pounds. One man, five feet five inches in height, tipped the scales at 190 pounds when he reported for new entry training. Thanks to a special diet and the conditioning effects of the training, he scaled down to a more streamlined 172 pounds and added 2¼ inches to his height.

Charge Board Curbing Rights

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP)—The Ontario Municipal Association on Monday called upon the Provincial Government to curb the powers of the Ontario Municipal Board which, it was claimed, were infringing on the rights of the municipalities.

The request was contained in a brief which the association presented to Premier Frost.

The scope of the Board's work in municipal matters has been continuously extended during recent years and its powers should be reviewed by the Legislature to ensure there is no infringement on the autonomy of local councils, the brief declared.

Ballet Fans Mob Ticket Office

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP)—Hundreds of half-frozen Britons mobbed the box office Monday for tickets to the triumphal homecoming show of the Sadler's Wells Ballet Company.

More than 50 of them queued all night at the Royal Opera House in weather six degrees below freezing. By the time the ticket office opened at 10 a.m. nearly a thousand were stamping their cold feet and rubbing chilled hands in the icy winds which swirled around Covent Garden.

Fresh from its smash hit tour of North America, the Sadler's Wells troupe will open with Cinderella Dec. 27. The company left Montreal Monday night for London.

Jobless Insurance SuggestedForFarmers

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (CP)—One way of keeping the farmer's son down on the farm, Arthur McNamara said Monday, is to extend the benefits of unemployment insurance to Canada's farm labor force.

The Deputy Minister of Labor said he realized the difficulties of applying this form of labor security to the independent farmer who has no boss who can make unemployment insurance collections.

But the problem had been tackled successfully in other countries, he told the 10th annual Dominion-Provincial Agricultural Conference, and there was no reason why it could not be tackled in Canada.

A NOVEL SCHEME in operation at H.M.C.S. "Cornwallis" introduces the new entry sailor to life at sea before he ever sets a foot off shore. For two of their 21 weeks at the naval training base, recruits live in "Seagull" Block, which duplicates as closely as possible a ship's messdeck. The men sleep in hammocks, follow ship's routine, are given no leave, and in general are made acquainted with life as it is at sea. Shown in their hammocks, Above, just before "out lights" is piped in "Seagull Block, are left to right, Ordinary Seamen Kenneth Buck, Toronto; Peter Smith, Montreal; Harry Childs, Windsor, Ontario; Fred Leslie, Kingston, and Kenneth Koyama, Kelowna, B.C.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Dec. 13 (Reuters)—Peter Whillier, 26, said to have savagely attacked and killed his mother while under the influence of the industrial chemical trichlorethylene—rarest known form of drug addiction—Monday was sent to prison for five years for manslaughter. Only one previous case of this addition has been known in Britain, and two in North America. The chemical was used at the power station where he worked. The men used it for cleaning their hands and he formed the habit of soaking his handkerchief in it and sniffing it.

Although true romance is one of the exclusive attributes of the family circle, romance in itself is not enough. Hundreds of small realistic problems arise each day and harmony in home life depends upon right and equitable solutions.

In family problems as elsewhere, financial security is an aid to clear thinking. And clear thinking helps to harmonious solutions. How importantly financial security contributes to a tranquil household, and tends to preserve even the romantic in living!

Guelph Senator Honored With Dinner

GUELPH, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Senator R. W. Gladstone was given a testimonial dinner attended by some 300 persons here Monday night.

Senator Gladstone, Liberal M.P. for Wellington South for 15 years, was named to the Upper Chamber this year. Many members of Parliament and the Legislature attended the banquet, at which Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell was speaker, along with Reforms Minister W. E. Hamilton, of Ontario.

Presentations were made to Mr. Gladstone and his wife by the city of Guelph and the Liberal Association.

Chairman Norman Sinclair, like other speakers, said Senator Gladstone had over a period of years built up a reputation of service to one and all, regardless of political party.

Right To Speak

Speaking of freedom, Mr. Mitchell said he believed in the right to express opinions and challenged those who prefer the type of reedom in Russia and other countries to go back there.

He maintained the right of the press to criticize.

"If the people of my constituency followed the advice of the (Toronto) Globe and Mail, I would be out of the government," he said. "I have no objection to criticism. Men in public life must be criticized."

The Labor Minister said it is necssary at times to close the mind to criticism and stick to the things believed right. In that way one wouldn't be led astray by people who think to the contrary.

Ruins Of Europe Grim Teacher Bishop Observes

"When you see the ruin and the desolation of war, you wonder how man could ever think of resorting to it again," Bishop Gerald Berry remarked to the Examiner today expressing a thought that had been recurrent in his mind since departing from Europe.

His Excellency arrived home at the weekend from his 'ad liminia' visit to Rome. He was accompanied by Rev. P. P. Buller, rector of the Cathedral.

"The destruction of those old cities and many of them centres of industry and wealth in the Ruhr is amazing. Our own and our Allied air force did an amazing job of bombing. I know it has been mentioned time after time since the war, but when you see it yourself, you are hardly prepared for the actuality.

"There is still fifteen feet of rubble on the steps of Cologne cathedral. A large part of the building is boarded off from the rest. There were only two men working at clearing up the debris."

Visit To London

Bishop Berry said he had been down to Ilford in East London, visiting a cousin who lives in that section of the city, and saw the deep and broad scars left by the Luftwaffe.

"Some of that part of the city is a rather poor section, and the Germans had the notion that by concentrating their air raids in that quarter they would break the spirit of the people and cause them to rouse up against continuing the war.

"In the poplar area the damage was really terrific. We all know the miscalculations of the German estimates of the spirit of the people of London.

"I was in Ilford the day Princess Elizabeth arrived to open formally a housing project.

"London has been clearing away the rubble of its shattered areas, but in Germany it is everywhere, and you wonder whether they will ever succeed in removing it Germany, of course, has had a food problem with 20 per cent more people in the western section since the war, and they have evidently been concentrating on the need of food. I observed a great crop of sugar beets."

Fair's Store Changes Hands

One of the two oldest stores in Peterborough's downtown, Robert Fair and Co., changed hands last week for the second time in the 64 years since it became known under that name.

The new proprietors, who took over the store from R. J. Goring, are O. M. Newton and K. J. Couch, who are partner owners of a similar store in Trenton. Mr. Newton has been operating the Trenton store 30 years.

Mr. Newton hastens to explain their new Peterborough interest will continue to be known as Robert Fair and Co., and will not be operated as a branch of the Trenton store, but as a separate enterprise continuing under manager Charles Collins.

The partners hope for a future in Peterborough in which Mr. Newton's two sons and Mr. Couch's son-in-law will figure prominently. A little further in the future, they hope their grandchildren will be carrying on.

The store has a history which extends further back than the 64 years been known as Robert Fair Co. Mr. Fair bought it from the Bradburns, who established the business in the same building it now occupies. Mr. Goring bought the store from Mr. Fair 20 years ago and many of its employees have been working there since before it was owned by Mr. Goring.

Committee Opposes Equalizing Of Rents

A proposal of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to equalize rents on the two groups of dwellings that are now in course of construction was opposed by the finance committee of the council Monday night.

Possibility of a difference in costs when the two projects are completed suggested to the Corporation that rents applying to both should be paid at the same level. The housing authorities wish to avoid a difference in rental of houses of the same type, which might even be on the same street. They proposed average rents for the two types of houses comprising the final projects.

There are 226 houses in one group contract and 100 in the second. Many of them are completed and occupied. The intention of the Corporation was to anticipate any dissatisfaction among tenants of similar type houses in both groups which might arise out of a difference in rent charges when the cost of each project was compiled at completion.

Chemong Family Homeless When Fire Destroys Cottage

A five-room cottage and all its contents were destroyed by an oil-fed fire in Chemong Park within half an hour Monday afternoon and a family of four were left without a home. The loss is estimated at $6,000. Neither the cottage nor the furnishings were insured.

Gordon F. Chappell, his wife Mary, and three-year-old daughter Lynn were in the house when the fire broke out. Another daughter Gail, 8, was in school in Bridgenorth.

Chappell said he had been cleaning an oil burner on the heater which they had bought a week ago. He left a bottom door to the combustion chamber open while he went out to the garage to get fuel oil. He came back into the house carrying three gallons of oil.

Tripped Over Carriage

Nearing the stove, he tripped over a doll's carriage and the oil splashed down onto the floor and into the opening of the combustion chamber. The oil flamed up immediately. Mrs. Chappell was in the kitchen washing dishes with her three-year-old daughter helping.

They thought at first they could smother the blaze, with a coat, but the oil was running all over the linoleum-covered floor.

"Get out! Get out!" Mr. Chappell yelled and grabbed young Lynn and tossed her out the kitchen door. Meanwhile Mrs. Chappell tried to get a coat and some other articles to save. The flames were leaping all over the living room. At one point he slipped and fell in the oil but his oil-soaked trousers did not catch fire.

The heat of the blaze took his breath away and he had to pause before he reached into the living room just as the flames were reaching toward his wife, scorching her hair. "It chased me out," Mrs. Chappell said.

Alarm Given

Together they fled from the cottage and the alarm was given. Mrs. Don Dalton and Mrs. Bugg, both neighbours telephoned the Peterborough fire department and Mrs. Dalton phoned to the village. A number of men from the village arrived, but there was nothing they could do. The cottage was in the row farthest back from the lake. There was no other water supply handy. When the city fire department arrived at 2.23 only part of the north and west walls were standing.

In an effort to save something from the fire, Chappell with the help of a neighbour Dave McCarroll smashed through one wall with an axe and dragged out Chappell's overcoat and his wife's fur coat. A doll they were going to give one of the children for Christmas was also saved. Not even Mrs. Chappell's purse was saved.

With his bare hands, Chappell broke the windows of another room in a vain effort to save some things. He suffered numerous cuts on both arms and was finally taken to hospital in Peterborough to have them attended to.

Chappell is a mechanic for Duffus Motors. He had stayed at home for the day because of a boil on his hand. He and his family have been living in the cottage since June. Mrs. Chappell said before that they had lived in Lindsay for a short time and her husband had travelled to Peterborough to work. They had been unable to find a place to live in Peterborough. Formerly they lived in Toronto.

Milford Macklin Critically Hurt

Mr. Frank Macklin, 4 Benson Ave., informed The Examiner last night that his brother, Milford C. Macklin, critically injured in a traffic fatality on the Lakeshore Highway, Mimico, Saturday evening, had suffered a fracture of the skull, "but is believed to have a fair chance of recovery."

Milford Macklin was reported killed with the three other occupants of an automobile that was in collision with a street car.

"I was told at the hospital that my brother was doing as well as could be expected," Mr. Macklin said shortly after his arrival home from Toronto.

The dead were Mrs. Margaret Macklin, wife of Milford, and her sister, Edna Deline, both of Symington Ave., Toronto, and Wm. Mervin Reid of New Toronto.

Mrs. Macklin was killed instantly, Edna Deline died in hospital two hours later, and Reid died of his injuries while rescuers tried to free him from the wreckage of the automobile. Milford Macklin was hurled from the car, either through the right door or the demolished windshield.

William Vanderchuck testified that he and the driver of the car waited while Casselman and Lordon bought liquor.

SWIMMING STRESSED

Swimming is only one small part of the YMCA program, but apparently to most of the smaller boys it is the most important: In Don Duncan's office on Monday while explaining the work of the YMCA World Service Fund to a newcomer to the "Y" the little boy asked:

"Do they have YMCA's in Japan?"

Before Mr. Duncan had a chance to say yes another boy said: "Of course they have YMCA's in Japan. How else could they learn to swim?"

Churches Plan White Gifts For Overseas

The United Emergency Fund for Britain has a number of facilities of which perhaps the general public is little aware. Among them is a division through which group collections of food may be shipped to Britain. These are sent either to a designated group, or for general distribution under the direction of an advisory group which directs the shipment to where it is most needed.

If shipment is made to a designated group, there is a small charge according to weight in hundred pound lots, or if done up in separate parcels, the shipping charges are 55 cents for each parcel up to 15 lbs. in weight. If shipment is made to be used for general distribution, there are no charges.

Two of the city churches, St. Paul's Presbyterian and St. John's Anglican, are using their White Gift services to assist the meagre food rations in Britain through the facilities the UEFB offers for this purpose

The most needed foods are canned meats, soups, fish (particularly salmon), milk in any form, butter, lard and dried fruits. The parcels sent out in a general way all include the majority of these foods, among which could also be included cheese.

Monetary Gifts

The local branch of the fund reports over $100 received in the last few days towards the Christmas gift parcels for Peterborough, England. These include donations from His Honor Judge Sheldon L. Smoke of $50; Chas. Kingan, $15; Moore Preceptory No. 13 K.T., $15; C. S. Bennett, $1; Mrs. W A. Logan, $5; R. A. P., $5; A. P. W., $5; Miss L. McNaughton, $3; and C. J. R., $3.

This brings the total towards the objective of $1,000 by Christmas, above the $200 mark With less than two weeks to go this objective might appear a rather formidable one to accomplish, but with the Christmas spirit that prevails in this community when there is a genuine need, the committee is hoping the figure will be attained.

Donations may be left at any bank, the Examiner Office, or with any member of the committee or the chairman, Fred G. Mann, 199 London St.

YMCA Board Names Nominating Body

The nominating committee for the Board of Directors of the YMCA was appointed Monday night to bring in a slate of candidates for the annual election in January. Members of the committee are: Fred Hills, chairman, Robert Abbott, C. S. Cummer, Newton Hamilton, Grant Morrow and C. J. Cadd.

Six positions on the board will be open for election due to the three-year terms of six directors expiring. The directors, R. L. Dobbin, A. I. Elliott, J. L. Gillespie, Dr. R. C Honey, D A. Loomis and Dr. H. M Yelland, are all eligible for re-election.

Find Gold In Apsley Area Full Extent of Discovery Awaits Further Analyzing

A small gold deposit has been found in the vicinity of Apsley by a 23-year-old Peterborough man, Bud Collins. Samples of the ore, analyzed at the Nepheline Products Limited of Lakefield, proved at first to be only a low grade ore running about $2 a ton. But the latest sample, a sulphide ore sample weighing 33 grams net, was analyzed by E. O. Foster, assistant manager of the Nepheline Products Limited, at $1498.42 a ton (38.92 ounces of gold in a ton of ore at $38.50 an ounce).

According to Mr. Foster, many more samples will have to be taken to determine a more definite rate on the ore per ton, before determining the full extent of the discovery.

More than three months ago Mr. Collins was hunting in the Apsley region when he stumbled over an old campfire site. As he kicked one of the rocks, it split open revealing small glittering veins.

With some of the rock he returned to Peterborough where he showed it to several jewellers. Some said it was only fool's gold, and an analysis in Toronto was no more convincing. It did reveal, however, faint traces of gold in the rock.

Mr. Collins returned to the Apsley area and nearly an eighth of a mile from the camp site he found a test pit which had been dug some 75 years or more ago. Upon further investigation in that vicinity he found three other test pits. The pits are from 25 to 30 feet deep and 12 to 15 feet across. From these pits the last samples of ore for analysis have been taken.

According to Collins the original prospectors died suddenly after the first trenching had been made by them. About 20 years later the pits were found again but this man died of typhoid fever before anything could be done with the development. The last prospector to make the find before Collins were reported to have developed polio.

A mining engineer taken into the area by Mr. Collins said he believed there were three veins each running east and west. Besides the gold in the ore he said there was some copper.

For the past month Collins and several other Peterborough men have been working in the strike area taking out samples of the ore and staking the land.

Mr. Collins is a former employee of the Centre Theatre in Peterborough, leaving when he found the first traces of gold in the rock. He is married and has two children.

Rotary Endows Hospital Cot

A letter in appreciation of the Rotary Club's cheque for $2,000. presented last week to Dr. Harry Ebbs for the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, has been received by I. H. Keefer, president. J. S. Crawford, secretary-treasurer of the hospital said the money will be used for the naming in perpetuity of a cot in the hospital.

A report of the gift being received will be made at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees, he said. With the naming of the cot, he added, the club will have a perpetual link with the work of the hospital.

A name plate, bearing the name "Peterborough Rotary Club Cot," has been ordered by the hospital. When a cot has been named, a plate bearing the name will be affixed to one of the tablets in the hospital. These tablets, said Mr. Crawford, will be transferred from the present hospital to the new hospital when it is completed.

Right Wingers Claim Twelve Departments

Although neither the UE nor the IUE-CIO has issued specific figures on the strength of their respective memberships in the Peterborough CGE plant, both sides claim a majority of the workers.

Today the IUE issued some percentage figures giving a breakdown by departments in the CGE.

The right-wingers claim that the Cord Set and the Maintenance departments form the spearhead of the IUE drive with 90 per cent joined up in each. Next come the Tool Room, Capacitor and Experimental departments with 80 per cent.

Other departments and the various percentages of workers claim follow: Punch Press 75, Induction Motors 70, Wire 60, and those above 50 per cent: Machine Shop, Armature, Switchgear, Transportation.

Say Obligations Cause Britain's Dollar Problems

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

We are so acustomed to speaking of Britain's dollar difficulties that there is a tendency to forget their origin and that they are not just her own difficulties.

She has to carry many of them because she so long bore the brunt of a war, and because she is a world power and head of the world's largest trading area; and if she doesn't carry them she probably will cease to be a world power and the head of anything.

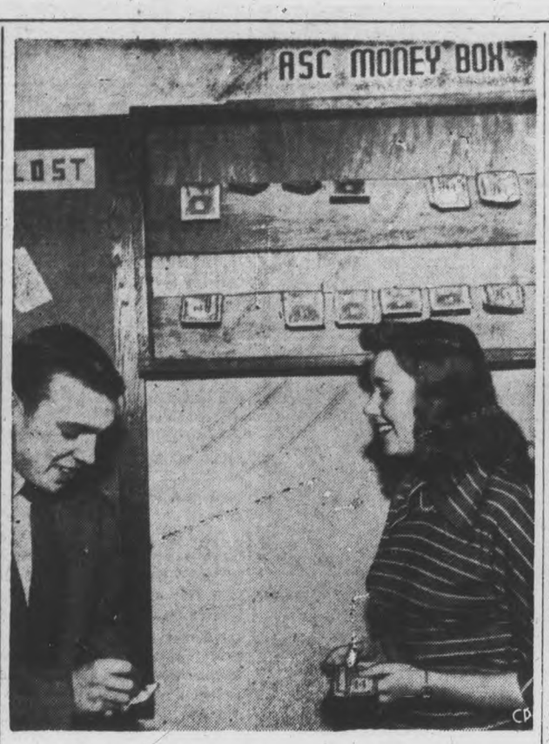
Still, it seems equitable once in a while to stop and recapitulate. Louis Rasminsky, alternate chairman of the Canadian Foreign Exchange Control Board, did this Monday in the course of an address to the Toronto Canadian Club.

"Britain came out of the war with enormous new foreign liabilities in the form of sterling balances owned by foreign countries," he said. "These amounted to about £3,500,000,000 ($14,000,000,000 at the pre-September rate of exchange) and represented in the main the money the United Kingdom had paid to certain countries, notably India and Egypt, for goods and services they had furnished in connection with the prosecution of the war.

"Many of these countries experienced very severe inflationary conditions during and after the war. In certain very important cases their standard of living was pitifully low and their thirst for foreign goods acute.

Using Sterling

"They had no dollars, but they did have these large sterling accumulations; it was therefore not unnatural that in addition to getting what dollars they could from the United Kingdom (and the amounts have been substantial) these countries should have wished to use their sterling accumulations to buy goods in the United Kingdom or elsewhere in the sterling area.



"From the United Kingdom point of view, exports paid for out of these sterling balances do not produce dollars or other foreign exchange which can be used to pay for imports. They extinguish a liability but they do not create an asset.

"It is not generally realized what a drain these so-called 'unrequited exports' have been on the British economy. The use of sterling balances is only one of the ways in which British unrequited exports have been paid for

Aid Recovery

"Another has been the outflow of private capital from the United Kingdom to other sterling area countries (such as South Africa) which has enabled the countries receiving the capital, to make purchases in the United Kingdom over and above the amounts they could afford to buy out of their own earnings. . . .

"In one form and another, these unrequited exports from the United Kingdom have added up to a very large sum and they represent an impressive contribution which the United Kingdom has made to the economic recovery of the rest of the world. These exports are one reason why it was impossible for the United Kingdom to have its over-all international accounts virtually in balance and at the same time have a large dollar deficit."

AND NO INTEREST—Bonnie Mason of Chatham, gets a $5 loan from Committeeman Jim McArthur under a "bank" arrangement set up by the Arts and Science Council of the University of Western Ontario, London. Blonde Bonnie will pay no interest. All a "temporarily embarrassed" student has to do is sign a receipt which goes—face down—into a greenback-decorated showcase. But if the loan isn't repaid in a week, the receipt is turned face up for all to know the identity of the laggard student.

'Teen-Age Driver Education No. 1 Remedy For Accidents

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP)—Safety experts rate 'teen-age driver education as the No. 1 remedy for the appalling toll of auto accidents in the United States—some 32,000 persons killed and 1,200,000 injured annually. Norman Damon, vice-president of the Automotive Safety Foundation, regards the high school driver training program as "the most important single hope for better driver performance."

Damon says "there has been more post-war progress in school driver-training than in any other field of traffic accident prevention."

Lou E. Holland, president of the American Automobile Association, says "extension of driver training to every high school in America, would go far toward solving the automobile safety problem."

Holland cites a survey in Delaware showing that untrained drivers were involved in about five times as many accidents as school-trained drivers.

400,000 Take Part

Some 400,000 students in 8,000 public high schools participated in driver education during the 1948-1949 school year, reports to the National Education Association show.

"Driver instruction started in the public schools in the early 1930s and has been expanding steadily. However, it reaches only about 10 to 15 per cent of the boys and girls of an age for such training.

Systematic instruction of young people is rated the most promising attack on the auto accident problem for two reasons:

1—The large percentage of young drivers who are involved in fatal accidents.

2—Education of the annual crop of would-be auto operators promises widespread increase in accident avoidance in the years to come.

Say Provinces May Adopt Insurance Plan

By DOUGLAS GREEN

REGINA, Dec. 13 (CP) — A government-owned enterprise already operating in Saskatchewan and Alberta soon may extend its activities into other provinces.

The Saskatchewan government launched its own insurance office in May, 1945, with a loan of $12,000.

The cabinet has discussed the extension of insurance operations into other provinces, but no formal decision has yet been announced. Recently it put forth an informal feeler regarding the sale of insurance in Manitoba.

Not long ago it acquired control of the Saskatchewan Guarantee and Fidelity Company of Regina, which specialized in fidelity guarantee business in Alberta, and guarantee and automobile underwriting in Saskatchewan, and has applied for renewal of the Alberta registration.

Among risks the government office underwrites in Saskatchewan are fire, theft, tornado, accident, lightning, windstorm, plate glass, smoke damage and sprinkler leakage.

List Assets

The office now has assets of $4,444,000 developed out of premium income. It is considered the most profitable of the CCF administration's experiments in social ownership. It writes nearly every risk but life and hail.

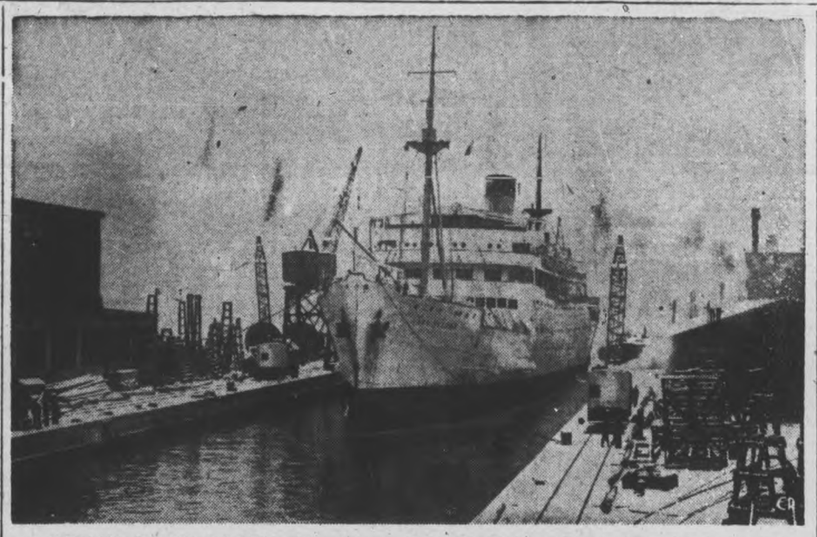
"Life insurance requires an administrative organization which differs from that of general insurance and there are co-operative organizations in the life insurance field with which we did not feel we should compete," said Manager M. F. Allore.

The government office handles the provinces compulsory automobile accident insurance plan said to give the most complete coverage in the world. Premiums are collected when licences are issued.

"In the 1949 licence year, premium income of $1,800,000 was collected at a cost of approximately one per cent," said Mr. Allore.

Lower Reserves

The government insurance office, backed by the resources of the province, does not have to set up the same high cash reserves from premium income that a private company would have to do, Mr. Allore said. This means its premium rates are lower than those of private companies.



Its insurance office keeps premium money in Saskatchewan, the government claims, and the surplus income pays for social services.

Critics of the publicly-owned insurance company object to the order compelling all institutions receiving grants from the provincial government to buy their insurance from the government agency. About 6,000 schools and 100 hospitals and other health institutions are affected.

The government's reply is that its lower rates mean an economy for the institutions.

Big Oil Dealer Examined For Bankruptcy

By DON GILBERT.

LONDON, Dec. 13 — (CP). — Francis William Rickett was called Britain's "Lawrence of Oil" and "Rickett of Ethiopia"

Fourteen years ago, on the eve of the Italian-Ethiopian War, he startled the world by announcing a £10,000,000 oil deal with Emperor Haile Selassie.

Now Rickett's financial affairs are under examination in London Bankruptcy Court. But he says he is far from broke and will pay all creditors.

In 1935 he said: "I am sitting on the riches of the world and no one can take them away."

He had just signed a convention with Haile Selassie giving him sole rights for 75 years to oil, minerals and other natural resources over half of Ethioplia.

Cancel Rights

But so strong was the international furore whipped up by news of the deal that it was cancelled.

Rickett, a tall, tanned, grey-eyed man, moves about the world under a cloak of mystery. He has been negotiating oil contracts and other business deals for 25 years.

A private in the First World War and once a clerk in London's financial district, Rickett later had a house in London, a rented castle in Wales and a "hunting box." Between trips abroad, he lived the life of a country gentleman, became a master of foxhounds.

"I am an Englishman of the deepest hue," he said of himself.

Now he is busy with the bankruptcy proceedings against him. He told the court his assets were considerably more than his liabilities If certain bonds could be realized, all debts would be paid in full—with a substantial balance left for himself.

HOW HOT'S A SIDEWALK? — Newfoundland's first heavy snowfall gave St. John's folk a chance to check up on just how hot their heated sidewalks are. Reporter John Hickey of The Evening Telegram even had a go at boiling water for his afternoon tea. It didn't boil. This section of sidewalk is part of Water Street—main business centre of St. John's and oldest thoroughfare in North America—which was re-surfaced during the summer. The submerged heating system was installed by several business firms.

Find News Good All Over For Irishmen These Days

By MICHAEL O'MARA

DUBLIN, Dec. 13 (CP).—Sure, the news is all good these days. For instance:

Tourism

The Republic of Ireland has completed the most successful tourist season in history.

Estimated revenue, computed by the Irish Tourist Board, was £33,000,000 ($102,300,000) — £3,000,000 better than in 1948. Much of the income came from dollar sources.

Here are three ways Irishmen are wooing North American tourists:

1. By making a good impression with courteous treatment at the customs barriers.
2. By adapting food to trans-Atlantic tastes.
3. By paying up Irish legends and drama festivals.

Trade Balance

Trade returns for 1949's first nine months show a decrease in imports of £9,763,431 to £94,194,332 compared with the 1948 figure.

Exports and re-exports totalled £42,116,759, an increase of £9,988,402.

Adverse balance for the nine months thus has been reduced to £52,077,573 from £71,829,406 for the same period in 1948. It is the most substantial cut ever recorded for a similar period.

Livestock

The republic soon will be producing 1,000,000 head of cattle a year, finally regaining pre-war figures after a long, hard pull. Roughly 100,000 more calves have already been reared this season than last.

There has been a 50-per-cent-plus reduction in cattle wastage through disease and calf slaughter. The latter has virtually ceased, thanks to improved beef prices.

Pigs now number 662,000, an increase of 44 per cent over 1948.

Bacon now is being exported to Britain for the first time since 1942. Surplus over home needs still is not great and therefore shipments are small but it is expected they will become substantial by next year.

Friendship For Ireland

DUBLIN, Dec. 13 (CP)—Defence Minister Brooke Claxton of Canada told reporters Monday that during his visit with President Sean T. O'Kelly of the Republic of Ireland he had expressed "the warmth of feeling which the Canadian people have for Ireland." Accompanied by D. Jackson, acting Canadian high commissioner, Claxton also called on Sean MacBride, external affairs minister, and Prime Minister John A. Costello.

Honorary Chairman

TORONTO, Dec. 13 — (CP).—Prime Minister St. Laurent will be honorary chairman of Brotherhood Week, February 19-26, it was announced Monday by John D. Hayes, campaign chairman. Sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the campaign is designed to promote "amity, co-operation and understanding."

Women Take Spotlight In Elections

By The Canadian Press

The spotlight fell on two women when the final results of Monday's municipal elections in scattered Ontario centres were tabulated.

Mrs. Ann Shipley was given the voters' approval in Teck Township and returned to the reeve's office for another term. In a straight fight with M. T. Maguire, Mrs. Shipley received a majority of 390 votes.

Running in Cobourg with only one campaign promise—"to do my best"—Mrs. Rhena Stephens, the only woman candidate for town council, led the field with 1,483, 69 more than the next councillor elected. A former secretary to the Toronto Advertising and Sales Club, the attractive councillor said in her campaign that "capital, management and labor, must, if our system is to survive, be adult, responsible and fair-minded."

Only one city held elections Monday, North Bay voters sending T. M. Palmer into the mayor's office with a majority of 409 votes over his single opponent, W. G. Bullbrook.

Joseph Smith squeezed into the mayor's chair at Cobourg with a scant majority of 74 votes and Harry Wine fought a close fight with George Robson for the chief official's office in Napanee, Mr Wine coming out on top with 682 votes to 515 for Mr. Robson.

Bows To Wilson

Grant K. Mayor's surname didn't help him in his fight to retain the mayoralty in Barrie. He bowed by a sizeable majority to Edwin Wilson.

John J. Carmody triumphed in Pembroke after the final votes were counted, beating Charles Campbell in a straight two-way fight.

Dr. W. L. Ryan received ratification from Bracebridge voters, coasting into office with a total count of 559 to 282 for his opponent, W. J. Brown.

Other mayors elected in town included Richard McCullock in Orangeville, Alex Bell in Aurora and Winston Pearson in Strathroy.

The town of Dundas spared its voters the trouble of going to the polls. The reeve and four councillors were all elected by acclamation. On Nov. 28, regular nomination day, only two candidates qualified, Leonard Bate and Arthur Dutton and they were declared elected the next day.

Monday, C. R. Werry was named reeve by acclamation and A. D. McAllister and Everett Neithercut were chosen for council, also by acclamation.

Gives Two Million

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP). — A donation of $2,000,000 by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to make Memorial Hospital a bigger cancer centre, was announced Monday night. The hospital will raise enough more to make $5,250,000 for expansion.

Spend Lot On Education

MONTREAL, Dec. 13 (CP). — More money now is being spent on education in Quebec than in any other province or state on the North American Continent, Youth Minister Suave said on Monday night.

"CONFESSION" CALLED PHONEY—William Lee Wallace, right, shakese hand with his lawyer, E. J. McCormick, as he leaves Calgary police headquarters. Wallace, arrested in Detroit and said by Detroit police to have confessed the Aug. 11 slaying of 24-year-old Yvonne Levesque in a Calgary auto camp, was released after 24 days in jail. Police, withdrawing the murder charge they laid, said the "confession" was a fabrication.

Parliament Takes Drastic Action Against Crime Book Comics

By H. DENT HODGSON

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (CP).—Parliament took a good look at obscene and salacious literature this session. Members didn't like what they read.

It took drastic action against tales of crime and bloodshed in the so-called comic books.

And several parliamentarians objected to the way books coming into the country were censored by a cabinet minister and unnamed civil servants.

E. D. Fulton (PS-Kamloops) introduced a private bill banning crime-comics. The Government took the bil lover and introduced it again after consulting provincial authorities. The maximum penalty under the legislation, which became law with Royal Assent Saturday, is two years in prison.

Quite a Surprise

The crime comics legislation passed rapidly although many members and most Senators professed never to have seen a crime-comic book. Typical was the comment of Senator W. H. McGuire (L-Ontario), who studied one exhibit before the Senate Banking Committee and exclaimed with surprise:

"Why, there isn't a page I can find in this that there are not several people being shot."

The issue of censorship of books was raised in the Senate Dec. 5 by Senator W. Rupert Davies, who complained about "Anonymous" officials in the Revenue Department "deciding, to some extent what I shall and what I shall not read."

The same approach was made in the Commons the following day during consideration of revenue estimates. R. R. Knight (CCF - Saskatoon) complained about the qualifications of persons doing the censoring and called for some new system.

Although different views were expressed on censorship of books, members of both Houses displayed something close to unanimity on crime comics. The Commons passed the bill without a dissenting voice and the only Senate opposition was to the effect of the ban on small newsdealers and distributors.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L-Ontario) would have amended the bill so newsdealers could not be punished for unwittingly selling what the act defined as a "crime comic."

The definition, as given in the act: "Any magazine, periodical or book which exclusively or substantially comprises matter depicting pictorially the commission of crimes, real or fictitious."

Since the crime-comic section now becomes part of the Criminal Code, the censorship of crime comics — the decision of what comic book is bad and what is permissible — now will rest with the magistrates.

Meanwhile, books fall into two categories as far as censorship is concerned. Books published in Canada are subject to no federal censorship; books entering Canada from another country may be banned by customs officials under Section 1201 of the Customs tariff.

It was this latter censorship that drew fire from Senator Davies and Mr. Knight.

Bans Books

Under questioning, Revenue Minister McCann said he was the person responsible for the banning of books. Actual readers of the books comprised three persons in his department.

He said it did not require "a great literary critic to tell the difference between decency and filth." There was not a single person in his department whose sole duty was censorship.

Senator Davies noted that in 1949, 81 books and 22 magazines or newspapers were refused entry to Canada under Section 1201. The section prohibits entry of publications of a "treasonable, seditious, immoral or indecent character."

"This item 1201," said Senator Davies, "seems to give a very dangerous power to someone in the department."

He urged that the present system be changed and wanted the matter brought out into the open.

"Let us know," he said, "who is doing the censoring, and what books are banned, and why. And, by all means let us know the qualifications of the person or persons who are acting as our moral mentors. There is too much paternalism about this book-banning business; too much fear that those who read them will not have sufficient ability to judge them for themselves."

Fitzgerald and Mrs. F. Burnham that the 1949 executive continue in office for next year with Mrs. B. W. Harvey remaining as president. It was unanimously felt that those who have worked so hard and faithfully for the hospital chapel should be in office until its completion. Mrs. Burnham gave lists of cards, flowers and fruit that have been sent those who were sick or bereaved. It was planned to send cigarettes to patients at Sunnybrook Hospital. Mrs. Fitzgerald led in carol singing, with Mrs. E. Pearse as pianist, and conducted a program of contests. Prize winners were Mrs. A Mason, Mrs. J. Patte and Mrs. E Brackenridge. The lucky chair prize went to Mrs. L. Richardson Mrs. Mason read a story describing a Silver Cross mother's visit to England and graves of Canadian soldiers in Holland. After dainty refreshments had been served by Mrs. J. Young and assistants, the president extended thanks to all members for their excellent co-operation in efforts of the chapter.

Greens Hung At YW

Halls in the YWCA are now brightly decorated and festooned for the Christmas season. The annual "hanging of the greens" took place Monday night with about 50 willing workers suiting actions to the words of the familiar carol "Deck the halls". Afterwards they were entertained in the recreation room with a program arranged by Mrs. Annabeth Wright who was in charge of the evening. Legends of old and new carols were narrated by Miss Aileen Patton and Mr. Quirt McKinney led in singing them with Mrs. Foster playing the accompaniment. Miss Margaret Rutherford contributed a solo "Night of Nights" and was accompanied by Mr. McKinney. Refreshments were hot cider and cookies, served by the committee in charge of Kay Griffiths, Vi Junkin and Ann Williams. Dancing was then enjoyed with Tony Burns as MC. A donation from the 20 Plus Club provided some of the decorations used.

Heather and Tartan Ribbon Mingle in Bride's Bouquet

Knox United Church was setting for the wedding Saturday afternoon of Jessie Hall Cameron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Blair, 498 Chamberlain St., to Ronald George Cochrane, son of Mrs. Cochrane and the late Wm. Cochrane of Stafford, England. The Rev. H. G. Douglas performed the ceremony.

Yellow 'mum in fern decorated the church and Mr. W. Potter played the music. Before the service Mrs. M. Hughes sang "O perfect love," and during the signing of the register, "Because".

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was lovely in a gown of ivory satin, made on princess lines with an inset yoke of net. The skirt was gathered u pat each side and caught with mother of pearl clips, revealing tiers of Chanilly lace. Her veil of French lace was held in place by a beaded coronet. She carried a cascade of red roses with streamers of rose petals mingled with white heather and Stewart tartan ribbon sent from Scotland for the occasion.

Bridesmaids were the bride's three sisters, Misses Peggy and Johann Blair were gowned in peach taffeta with hats and mittens to match and carried nosegays of Talisman roses and yellow 'mums. Junior bridesmaid Mary Blair wore blue taffeta with hat and mittens to match and carried a nosegay of red roses and yellow 'mums.

The groomsman was Mr. David Brough. Ushers were Frank Lundy Jr. and John Blair, brother of the bride.

The reception for about 50 guests took place at the home of the bride's parents. Her mother received, wearing a dress of wine crepe with matching accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. C. Millen assisted to receive and she wore a navy crepe dress with grey accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. During the afternoon a cable of congratulations was received from the bride's grandmother in Glasgow, Scotland.

For going-away the bride chose a suit of wine gabardine and grey accessories and a topcoat of mouton and wore a corsage of red roses. After the reception the couple left for Toronto and on return wil live at Apt. 470, Kingan Ave.

Christmas party to follow. But during the week-end the snow disappeared and it looked as though enjoyment might follow the same track.

However, efficiency, competence and readiness for emergencies are characteristics of this sorority's members, as Mrs. H. Lambert and Miss Moira Whalon proved by arranging for their sisters, on short notice, one of the brightest evenings of the Christmas season.

The party was held in the club supper room of the YWCA, with an impromptu millinery fashion show perhaps the highlight of the evening.

Each girl had a partner and was given a sheet of pins and some red and white tissue paper. With this equipment she was supposed to create a hat, and the results were certainly laugh-provoking.

The prettiest and most wearable hat was fashioned by Mrs. D. Dantzer, having as her model Mrs. H. Goodwin, and Mrs. Maurice Holt designed the most bizarre creation for her model, petite Miss Mary Knox. Prizes were presented to the four.

A game of charades was played with four girls to a group. Nursery rhymes were demonstrated and the pantomine dramatic ability of the respective casts was most interesting to view.

Refreshments following the Christmas trend were next in order, these convened by the social committees of the two chapters.

As the hour was then late, Santa Claus could not arrange to be present, so Mrs. M. Caccavelle and Miss Moira Whalon offered their assistance and presented gifts to everyone.

The only business note struck during the party was the announcement of some final arrangements for the Bib 'n' Tucker ball which is being held this Friday evening in the Empress Hotel ballroom.

Carol singing, directed by Mrs. H. Redmond, and exchange of gay greetings closed the very pleasant evening, long to be remembered by the sororists.

Small Joanne Whitton entertained pleasingly with acrobatics and dances to music played by Mr. Allen.

A skit prepared by Mrs. L. Gibson, home education convener, was presented by Mrs. C. Blackburn, Mrs. W. Prest and Ann Gibson. The dialogue had to do with children helping in the home and a questionnaire afterward brought out the opinions of the group.

Mrs. Gibson asked for a good attendance at study group meetings which commence in January and announced skits to be given at future meetings.

Health convener Mrs. G. Harris asked observance of health rules for a happy Christmas and expressed thanks to those taking part in the program.

Mrs. Smith goes shopping

"... and a dozen eggs, grade 'A' large... that's all, thanks."

MRS. SMITH'S shopping trip might have taken an hour. Actually, it took three minutes — by telephone.

To housewives in a hurry, the telephone means a lot. It's like having an extra pair of hands to help out — an extra pair of feet to run errands, or get help in emergencies. Any way you look at it, your telephone is big value.

No wonder more people are using more telephones — and that requests for service are at an all-time high. We should like to be able to provide service for all who want it, when and where they want it. We will continue to do all we can to reach that goal.

Mother Loses Devoted Son Because of Jealous Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: My son married, after a very short acquaintance, a very estimable girl. He and his wife are apparently devoted to each other, for which we are indeed very thankful, as his happiness is our greatest desire. Before he was married he was a very devoted son, but now after two years of marriage his parents seem to have no place in his existence. He rarely ever comes to see us, although he has a car and lives less than a mile from us.

Dorothy Dix

The reason of his treating us so neglectfully is that his wife is so jealous that she cannot bear to have him have any relationship with his own family. I try to console myself by saying that if my son is happy I am, but the way he treats me hurts.

A MOTHER

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: No wonder, and the wound must ache intolerably when you think what a weakling your son is that he lets a woman dominate him so completely that he dares not even visit the mother who bore him.

Blame Cowardly Man

Even more than the imbecile wife who is jealous of her mother-in-law without reason, I blame the cowardly man who lets her dominate him and make him neglect his mother, when with one good fight he could assert his right to at least enough independence to do his duty to the woman who went down into the shadow of the valley of death to bring him into the world, and who spent the next twenty years cherishing and serving him.

But no meaner woman exists in the world than the wife who tries to separate her husband from his mother, nor is there any blacker crime than for a wife to alienate her husband from his mother. Every child owes its mother more love than it can ever repay, and a wife should help her husband pay his debt instead of forcing him to default on it.

I often wonder if these cruel women, who have no pity or sympathy for their husbands' mothers, ever think that the day may come when some woman as heartless as they are may keep their sons away from them and leave them lonely, waiting in vain for the sound of the footsteps that never cross their doors.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a well-to-do bachelor about 40. I have been very friendly with a young woman about 30 and her family for twelve years. Recently the young woman began to show more interest in me than I care to reciprocate. She phones, writes me notes, invites me here, there and everywhere. I like her as a friend, but positively I am not matrimonially inclined and don't want to encourage her beyond the friendship basis. How can I go to her home or take her out to places of amusement occasionally without leading her on or wrecking our friendship.

A READER

ANSWER: There is no possibility of keeping a friendship on a platonic ground when a girl is determined to shift it onto the matrimonial terrain. Before you know it you will find yourself engaged to her, and, though you spend the balance of your life trying to figure out how it happened, you will never get the answer.

You may be ever so determined not to marry, but she will lead, inveigle, coerce or bulldoze you to the altar. Some girls do it by making themselves a habit with a man that becomes so established he hasn't the courage to break with them. Others weep on the second button of a man's vest until they break down his sales resistance and he meekly signs on the dotted line on the marriage license. But however they work their rabbit's foot, any girl can marry any man she wants to if she can get her hands upon him. So, Mr. Bachelor, unless you want to marry, don't accept the girl's invitations, or answer her letters, or pay family visits. Take to the tall timbers.

DEAR MISS DIX: I maintain that unless a girl is actually engaged to a man she has no right whatever to be annoyed at his taking out other girls, and that he has no right to question her going with other men, even though they have been going steadily together for months.

My opponents say that if a man takes a girl out steadily for six months or a year he has no right whatever to go out with other girls, or the girl to go with other men, even though he has not asked the girl in question to be his wife.

Which of us is right?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are. Until a couple are definitely engaged they have no claim, morally or otherwise, upon each other, and no right to dictate to each other or try to control each other's actions.

Open House Parties Make For Easy Hospitality

Christmas means, to most families, the arrival of a number of guests, many who make this the occasion for their annual visit at home. To make it possible for them to meet friends and relatives in the brief time they are likely to have hostesses find themselves busy arranging parties.

Even if you don't have out-of-town guests, this holiday season is just bound to call for entertaining, so some planning ahead where menus are concerned is sound advice.

A friendly invitation to call, penned on your greeting cards, will bring your visitors. And when they come, you will want to give them a welcome warm with old-fashioned hospitality.

The holiday party for grown-ups will likely find them gathered about the traditional punch bowl or Christmas tree. The "something good to eat" at this time may be as simple as hearty sandwiches and fruit cake.

Teen-agers on vacation from school will be grateful to you if you find time to play hostess for them at least once at Santa Claus time. Remember they like lots to eat, and such items as frankfurters and rolls are sure to satisfy their lusty young appetites. The supply of carbonated beverages should be unlimited.

Children's Party

Are you planning a Yuletide party for the littlest members of your family? If asked for their ideas on the right thing to serve the answer will probably be "just ice cream and cake."

Festively wrapped and inexpensive toys for each invited guest will go over big if hung on a small Christmas tree. Santa Claus paper napkins and colorful, unbreakable plates are a wise choice. Entertainment should consist of games that provoke more laughter than excitement.

Cookies Wise Choice

Cut out with cutters appropriate for Christmas, cookies will make a sure-fire hit with children and grown-ups alike.

Chill Dough

Let's begin with molasses cut-out cookies, using this tested recipe and cut out stars, angels, Christmas trees, etc., or some of the new lastic cookie forms.

To save time and fuel, use two baking sheets with low sides or no sides at all to insure even browning—each about 2 inches smaller than the oven. One sheet of cookies can be baking while the other one is being filled.

Before rolling, chill dough in refrigerator to permit handling of dough without adding more flour. When rolling, work with half or less of the dough at a time, keeping remainder in refrigerator until needed. Flour rolling of the dough; rerolled only enough to keep dough from sticking.

Dip cutter in flour each time to prevent sticking. Cut cookie shapes close together, to get as many as possible from the first rolling of the dough; rerolled dough does not make as tender cookies. Using a spatula, carefully lift the cut cookies from board to baking sheet.

Adjust oven to temperature specified. Molasses cookies burn easily. If cookies are not brown enough in centre, yet done around edges, put them about five or six inches below broiled flame until right color is obtained—watching constantly.

Remove from baking sheet with a spatula; place them to cool on a wire cake rack in a single layer. When completely cooled, pack in air-tight boxes or in cookie jar, with waxed paper between the layers. Keep tightly covered.

Molasses Cut-out Cookies

One-half cup shortening, one-half cup sugar, two-thirds cup molasses, one egg, 2¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder; one-half teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons allspice.

Slowly melt shortening; cool. Add sugar, molasses and eggs; beat well. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and allspice; add to first mixture; mix well. Roll in waxed paper; chill. Cookies hold shape better if rolled and cut on greased and lightly floured baking sheet instead of rolling on a board and transferring to baking sheet. Roll dough evenly one-quarter-inch thick.

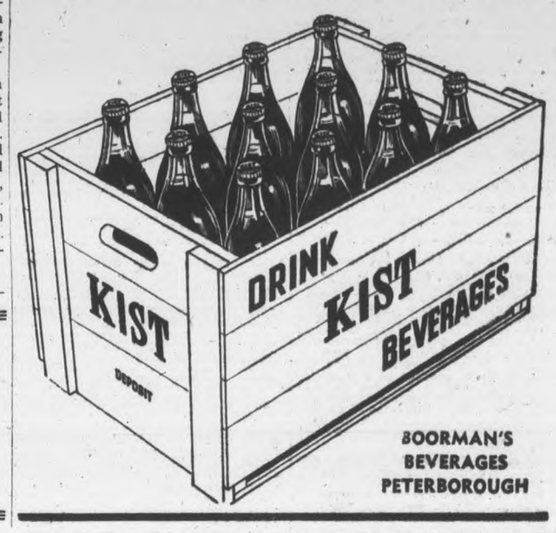
Dust cut-out cookie pattern lightly with flour to prevent sticking; lay pattern on dough and cut around pattern with knife. Lift excess dough from around cookies shapes. Decorate with red cinnamon drops, silver candies, and vari-colored candy sprinkles.

Bake in moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Remove from baking sheet immediately and cook on rack.

"What's Right?"

You are inviting a lone friend to a midday holiday dinner and expect the person to spend the rest of the day with your family.

WRONG WAY: Ask the person for dinner, assuming he will know that he is expected to spend the rest of the day.



RIGHT WAY: Make it clear in your invitation that you want him to come in time for dinner, and to stay on the rest of the day

Son Takes Over Wilber Larmer's Homestead Farm

CAVAN, Dec. 13—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Larmer, whose home had been at Shady Nook Farm on the seventh line, Cavan, for more than a quarter of a century, moved last week to their farm on the fourth line, Cavan. Their son, Marshall, and his bride, who have returned from a trip through the prairie provinces, have taken over the homestead farm.

Mr. and Mrs Larmer have been good neighbors and their home has always been known for its hospitality and a meeting place for church and community affairs.

On Thursday evening they were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hogg, of the seventh line, Cavan. Later in the evening friends and neighbors numbering about 60 called in to say farewell and wish them happiness in their new home.

The first part of the evening was spent playing progressive euchre. First prizes went to Mrs. Dick Hutchinson and Mr. Clendon Challice. The consolation prizes were won by Mrs. Leonard McNeill and Mr. Marshall Larmer.

W. Elson then acted as chairman while Mrs. Alex Miller read an address and the presentation of a walnut coffee table and table lamp was made. Lunch was then served.

Ruins Of Europe

Ruhr Busy Again

"There has also been a great deal of industrial activity in the Ruhr. You can see the signs of it, and one of the American staff men in the west told me that manufacturing production was back to 90 per cent of its total in 1936, and that total included war materials. You visit the cities and towns whose names were often mentioned in the reports of our activities, Mannheim, Mainz, Coblenz, and so on, and you think of the young men of the RCAF and also the RAF and you marvel at the skill and the extent of their bombing. Some of the stations are being rebuilt, but there is a vast waste of buildings all through the Rhine country.

"There is not much of the old gay spirit of the people of Ruhr manifested these days. It used to be one of the brightest parts of Germany, and its people lighthearted. Today a heavy seriousness rests on them."

Bishop Berry said that travel in Europe gives the citizen of Canada a deep feeling of pride in his country. Everywhere he went he was greeted cordially when he said he was a Canadian. He was also impressed by those official representatives of Canada whom he met. He called at the Canadian embassy in one of the important capitals, was warmly received, and obtained there a helpful service.

Interview With Pope

His excellency said he had a 20-minute interview with the holy father.

"In spite of all the cares of the troubled world as they affect him, Pope Pius was calm and kind and fatherly."

Bishop Berry explained that his 'ad limina' visit essentially required him to visit the tombs of the apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul, emphasizing the unity of the bishops of the church throughout the world with the apostles. That visit is recorded, and a certificate is formally issued as evidence of it.

"A very memorable experience was in visiting the excavations that have been going on for nearly ten years under St. Peter's. Pope Pius XI expressed a wish to be buried in the crypt of St. Peter, and excavation for that purpose was undertaken for the first time in centuries, approaching closer to what was always considered to be the tomb of St. Peter. No announcement has yet been made, but there have been hints of what is expected to be forthcoming.

"In this crypt at successive levels you see the records of the building of St. Peter's in the 16th century, on the site of the basilica of Constantine the Great in the fourth century, the burial ground of the early Christians, and on a still lower gallery the pagans of Rome before Christ.

"The sarcophagi enclosing people who died in the pre-Christian era have as ornamentation of some domestic scene or a figure of Bacchus or some other gods of the pagans. In Christian times the sarcophagi are decorated with typically Christian figures, such as the Good Shepherd, representations corresponding with the faith in Christ which have come down to our own day."

These are mortuary records of a long age in the history and civilization of mankind.

Bishop Berry said he had the opportunity of celebrating mass in the Church of St. Peter in Chains, the corresponding name of his own cathedral in Peterborough. In Florence he visited the Uffizi and other art galleries, seeing the originals of the prints that are popular everywhere.

Genoa was one of the Italian cities that suffered most from bombing raids. "I found the Italians to be the imaginative, lovable people they are."

In a brief comment about the future, his excellency remarked that history was long and "human nature is very resilient."

"After such a visit to Europe one returns with the feeling that it will be a long time before the effects of these two world wars are definitely cast," Bishop Berry said.

500 Scour Woods For Girl Scout

KELSO, Wash., Dec. 13 (AP)—Through wet bush that soaked them to waist within minutes, hopeful townspeople plodded on today in their search for a 16-year-old girl scout missing two days.

Hundreds took part fanning out in the rugged hills six miles northeast of here, an area overgrown with vines, brush and drifting evergreens.

More than two inches of snow have fallen since Ruth Aberle became lost Sunday while searching for a Christmas tree for a Scout party.

The thermometer dropped below freezing Sunday night, and it was near freezing Monday night. Woodsmen said there was little hope that the pert high school girl could have survived even the first night.

But townspeople refused to give up. An estimated 500 took part, many continuing through the night.

There were several abandoned camps and cabins in the area. The father, William Aberle, a fibre company employee, expressed hope the girl had found one of these.

Old Furniture Popular Item

LONDON, Dec. 13 (CP)—Antique furniture, unburdened from Britain's ancestral homes, is selling briskly in thousands of auction rooms and antique shops.

Devaluation of the pound has given the market a strong stimulus. Dollar buying has increased appreciably, and antique dealers are looking forward to a profitable 1950 tourist season.

Apart from foreign demand, Britons with surplus cash have gone in for a small amount of "investment" buying of antique furnishings, as a hedge against inflation.

Dealers estimate prices have shown an over-all rise of about five per cent in recent months

Besides furniture, demand has been strong for old silver, plate, porcelain and antique jewelry, with prices going up as much as 20 per cent since devaluation.

Teachers' Federation Opposes Commission

MONCTON, N.B., Dec. 13 (CP) —Dr. L. Bernice Macnaughton, president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, today expressed strong opposition on the part of the federation to an emergency teacher-training plan suggested by the Ontario Royal Commission on Education.

The plan, she said in an interview, would be in exact opposition to efforts of the federation, which is trying raise the standards of the teaching profession father than lower them.

The commission put forward the suggestion as a plan to solve the teacher shortage in Ontario

Officials of the federation, Dr. Macnaughton said, feel the solution lies not in lowered standards but in higher qualifications, better living and working conditions, and salaries that will enable the teaching profession to compete with other occupations in attracting the right people.

"I thought maybe this was my time to die," Lozon said.

Police said Lozon owed his life to the fact the cab was jack-knifed out of the way of the 10-ton load of steel. The trailer's rear wheels rested on the road and the front wheels in the creek, 15 feet below.

Announces Formation Child Health Section

A newly formed division of the Health League of Canada will undertake popular education in the fields of maternal and child health and welfare, it has been announced by Dr. Gordon Bates, General Director of the Health League.

Heading the new division's voluntary directing committee are Dr. Nelles Silverthorne, Toronto pediatrician and former chairman of the Health League's National Immunization Committee, and Dr. H. B. Van Wyck of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology, University of Toronto.

Dr. Bates said that it is felt that if the Health League can turn the spotlight of public education on maternal and child health and welfare as successfully as it has in the field of diphtheria immunization, equally striking results can be anticipated. The work of the new committee, incidentally, will tie in with Health League divisions already established, particularly immunization, nutrition and pasteurization. The present immunization division will function as a section of the new division under the direction of Dr. F. O. Wishart of the School of Hygiene, University of Toronto.

Ex-Serviceman In Australia Seeks RCAF Men

Friendships which sprung up during the war among servicemen are today some of the finest memories among men in all parts of the world. Many have kept in touch with wartime friends now thousands of miles apart and many more were content to take parting as inevitable and close that period of their lives, storing the happy aspects of their service life in some recess of the mind.

A former Air Force man now living in Brisbane, Australia, is endeavoring to renew friendships with some Canadian men and women with whom he was stationed in England in 1943, but with Toronto as the only address, there seems little hope of tracing them.

The writer from Australia is W. Reuter, who tells of service life at an RAF station at Greenham Common, Newbury, Berkshire, England, and he is trying to get in touch with the following service friends, with whom he was stationed at Newbury.

Sergeants Frank Devine, Bill Bradford, Cote and Pilot Officer Dubois, WAAF Beatrice (Be-Be) Best, Kitty Blackie and Babs Kell.

Irene Dunne Planning Comedy Career

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 13 (AP).—Irene Dunne joins Rosalind Russell in a resolution to pursue a comedy career in the future.

Miss Dunne has broken her longest screen absence to begin work in "Come, Share My Love," a comedy in which she will sing four songs. Why did she stay away from the screen two years?

"Well, I've been busy and have done a lot of travelling," said the star, who received a variety of plaques and citations for her religious work. "Also, I wanted to return in a comedy, preferably one with songs. I have done enough drama for a while; I think people now want to laugh."

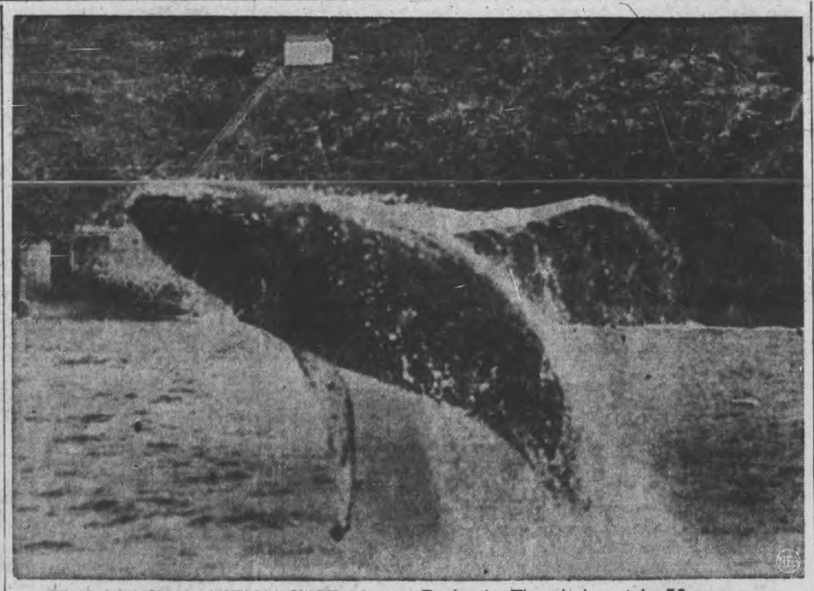
I reminded her that she'll never win Academy Awards with comedies.

"That's right," said the oft-nominated Oscar contender. "But I can't seem to win one, anyway."

Cuff Notes

Shirley Temple says she would now like to leave the past behind and devote her thought to the future. She has no comment on how the recent divorce might affect her career.

"Shadows of The Manger" is a different kind of Hollywood production. It will be presented in the week preceding Christmas right on Hollywood Boulevard in front of the Congregational Church. Among those taking part in the religious pageant are Barbara Britton, Don Defore, Wendell Corey, Harry Carey, Jr., and Lee Bonnell.



Jack Carson is happy with his straight role in "Bright Leaf." "You can get tired of having beef every day," he saids. "Well, I'm tired of corn," added the former Carman, Man., boy.

Capsule Review

"Princes of Foxes" (TCF) is above - average swashbuckling stuff. Beautifully filmed in authentic Italian backgrounds, it has enough highlights to offset the dull moments of florid dialogue. Tyrone Power is properly dashing, and Orson Welles and Wanda Hendrix support. Good escapist entertainment.

THIS UNUSUAL ACTION SHOT of a full-grown humpback whale leaping out of the water and doing a flip in mid-air was taken from a launch off Cape Brett, New Zealand. The whale weighs 50 tons, measures 50 feet in length, and is normally very sluggish in its movements, making this display of energy a rare sight indeed.

Rotary Speaker Finds Peterborough Friendly City

Peterborough is a city with a spirit of friendship, comradeship and co-operation, said Col. Harold Ritchie, a retired Divisional Commander of the Salvation Army in Canada. Col. Ritchie, who is now a resident of Peterborough, was guest speaker at the weekly meeting Monday of the Rotary Club.

Some other cities, said Mr. Ritchie, have a spirit which repels prospective residents who try to leave as quickly as possible. The people in these communities are low and mean, "people to be labelled poison." In Peterborough the spirit is the opposite, acording to Col. Ritchie and the people make friends easily.

Col. Ritchie added he liked the spirit of the service clubs. He gave a brief outline of his connections with a service club organization in Hamilton while working in a rehabilitation centre. Referring to the donation of $2,000 to the Children's Hospital in Toronto he said it showed a desire of the the club to help and co-operate not only in the city but outside of it.

Col. Ritchie impressed upon the Rotarians what a Christ-less world would be like with a story of a clergyman's dream of the Christmas season. The clergyman dreamt that the world was a hustling world, minus Christmas salutation, churches and beliefs, and everyone wishing to rid himself of the heavy burden which he seemed to be carrying.

Col. Ritchie said that the world would be worse than indicated in the dream, if Christ had not come. Christmas with its undaunted spirit, has come to the world through all these years and taken hold of the people, shakened them out of themselves and given the people a wider vision.

Cut Machinery Outlay On Canadian Farms

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Canada's tractor-conscious farmer is so mechanized that he likely will cut down on machinery spending next year.

This was told Monday to the Dominion - Provincial Agricultural conference in a paper prepared by one of the federal agricultural department's machinery experts, Frank Shefrin.

He estimated 1950 buying may be reduced by 10 or 15 per cent of 1949 levels.

Reason for this slackening off, said Mr. Shefrin, lies in the fact that Canadian farmers purchased more machinery in the last three years than in the preceding nine.

'Private Eye' Lands In Arms Of Police

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP) — Richard Wieczorek, 21-year-old self-styled "private eye," who said he wanted to solve some holdups and get on the Provincial Police Force, was remanded for psychiatric examination when he appeared in court Monday charged with posing as a private investigator.

Police said Wieczorek was carrying a loaded .45 calibre revolver when arrested. He carried business cards and a photostat of a diploma from a Chicago detective school.

Close Sections Quebec Airport

MONTREAL, Dec. 13—(CP)—Canadair, Ltd. authorities said Monday it is anticipated that the RCAF will order certain portions of Cartierville airport closed to the public beginning next March 1.

They said such a move is expected in conection with Canadair's construction of jet-fighter aircraft. The government controls the field near the big Canadair plant.

Several private aviation schools and clubs will have to find facilities elsewhere, it was expected. They include Canadian Aeromotive, Vagabond Club, Laurentide Aviation and the Montreal Flying Club.

Company authorities said previous reports that the company itself would order closing of the entire airport to the public were erroneous since it does not have direct control of the port.

Declares RCMP Screens Workers

TORONTO, Dec. 13—(CP) — Despite denials of company officials a former metallurgist at the Malton plant of the A. V. Roe Aviation Corporation, Arthur L. Davis, insisted Monday night that he had been dismissed after a secret screening by the RCMP.

Waltter A. Deisher, Avro's general manager, said that no employee was being screened and no employee had ever been sceened by the RCMP. He said discharge of Davis was in the normal course of business.

Davis contended that the screening process began last summer. The Avro plant built the first jet transport plane in North America and is now completing a secret all-weather jet-fighter for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Davis, RAF flight lieutenant during the second world war, said he was asked to resign last Wednesday by Paul Dillworth, manager of the plant's gas turbine division.

Mr. Dillworth said Davis was no longer associated with Avro, but declined further comment.

Crippling Power Strike Ended In London Latest Reports Indicate

Many Londoners Carried Candles To Work Fearing Severe Blackout; Recommend Return To Work At Big Meeting

LONDON, Dec. 14—(CP)—The Press Association said tonight it understood London's crippling power strike has been settled. The wildcat strike in four of London's biggest nationalized power houses had threatened earlier today to spread to every plant in the city. "Recommendations will be made at a mass meeting of the strikers tomorrow for an immediate return to work," the report said. Many Londoners carried candles to work with them today, third day of the strike, in fear of the walk-out reaching "blackout" proportions.

Thousands of office and factory workers set out for the day's toil with candles tucked discreetly in briefcases or lunch packages.

Some of their homes had already been plunged into darkness. They had been warned that the strike of nearly 3,000 men at four power stations in the London area —including Europe's biggest at Barking, on the east outskirts of the city—might soon lead to: The biggest "blackout in the sprawling city of 8,200,000 since the drastic fuel economy measures in the winter of 1946-47.

Industries being brought to a standstill during power cut periods.

Electric fires, cookers, immersion heaters and light in hundreds of thousands of homes being turned off.

The government showed deep concern over the strike, which began Monday with an unauthorized walkout of 400 workers at the Brimsdown Station in North London and spread to four power houses.

Cabinet Committee

A special Cabinet Committee made up of Home Secretary James Chuter Ede, Labor Minister George Isaacs and Fuel Minister Hugh Gaitskell has been ordered into daily emergency sessions.

Strike leaders and shop stewards in power stations all over the city were meeting today to decide whether to join the strike in protest against government

Principal Hits Pupil In Face, Board Okays It

GALT, Dec. 14 (CP) — Galt Board of Education Tuesday night upheld the action of Principal T. H. Wholton of Galt Collegiate Institute who is alleged to have struck a student across the face and given him 10 strokes of the strap on each hand for throwing snowballs.

Howard Jenkins said in a letter to the board that his son Jack was throwing snowballs in the school yard last Dec. 1 during a fire drill. The principal ordered the students back into the school. As Jenkins passed the principal on the front steps Mr. Wholton struck him "with considerable force across the face," the letter said. While other students who took part in the snowball fight were given only three strokes on each hand or were merely reprimanded, Jenkins was then strapped 10 times on each hand, his father said.

The board found Tuesday night that the student was guilty of a breach of discipline "which the principal dealt with promptly and in a manner quite within his authority."

Mrs. T. G. Elliott, chairman of the board, said today, "I feel that the position of the school was beyond reproach."

Finishes College In 30 Hours

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (AP)—Edward Nelson, 17, has just whizzed through four years of college in 30 hours.

"It's always been theoretically possible," amazed officials of the college of the University of Chicago said Tuesday.

Edward is the first student to demonstrate by 14 placement tests that he possesses the equivalent of a general education. So instead of working on credits for a bachelor's degree, he will begin immediately to work on his master's degree in mathematics.

The tests, introduced at the college in 1942, recognize a student for what he knows, and not for the number of courses he has taken. All students are given the tests during a five-day period to determine their academic standing.

Edward, son of a YMCA secretary in Rome, Italy, attended the Bronx High School of Science in New York City and completed his junior and senior years at the Instituto Giovanni Verga when his family moved to Rome.

He brushed aside suggestions that he is a genius.

"It's all what you learn and where you learn it," he said. "I firmly believe, however, that teaching methods and courses are more comprehensive in European schools."

Baby Five Months Old Burned In Carriage

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 14 (CP).—Five-month-old Gail Ellsbury, of Bayside Cressey, 10 miles south of Picton, was burned and suffocated in her carriage Tuesday and died en route to hospital.

The baby had been sleeping in its carriage when the mother left the house, leaving several other pre-school-aged children alone. It is believed the small children found some matches, as a partially burned match-folder was found in the carriage.

GUELPH, Dec. 14—(CP)—Santa Claus got a parking ticket here yesterday. When he returned to his automobile after appearing as the jolly old chap in a Santa Claus parade, a local resident found a parking meter registerding overtime and a ticket attached to his car.

Jones Declares Canada Hits UK Below Belt

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 (CP)—Sir Andrew Jones, head of the British Food Mission, said today in an address that the United Kingdom has been "heavily boarded" by recent Canadian criticism of future food policy. However, the UK does not intend to retaliate with any "high sticking."

Sir Andrew, who has been negotiating Anglo-Canadian food contracts during and since the Second World War, spoke at the annual Dominion-Provincial Agricultural Conference.

He turned his attention repeatedly towards Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who said in the Commons last week that Canada was being "squeezed" out of the British market by "official British" forces.

Sir Andrew said the UK had to reduce purchases of Canadian food and raw materials simply because there was not enough dollars to pay for any large-scale buying in Canada.

Living On Charity

Now the UK was being criticized for her position of almost living on charity through gifts of the United States Marshall Plan aid. The UK didn't want that charity. It wanted to pay for what it received.

Britain had lost her dollar-country investments because of "sacrifices" she made during the war to keep the Democratic spirit alive. And because of the loss of those investments she was being criticized because she no longer could do the kind of buying she did in former years.

At one time her investments in the dollar areas amounted to $4,500,000,000. They now were mostly gone.

He referred to a visit a few months ago of Trade Minister Howe to London, which resulted in Britain's purchase of Canadian apples—apples that Britain did not want to buy.

If Canada, he said, would increase purchases from the UK to about $600,000,000 a year, then the UK likely would be in a position to buy all the agricultural products Canada wanted to sell her.

Currently, there was a trading zalance between the two countries of about $300,000,000 in Canada's favor. This balance had to be reduced.

Howe "Clever"

As to the $3,000,000 worth of apples sold to the UK this year, "if the decision had been left to us, we would not have bought the apples."

Mr. Howe had been "very clever."

He had arrived in London and appealed for help for the Nova Scotia apple growers. Canada,

Indonesian Freedom Given Green Light

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 14 (AP)—The way was cleared today for the long-awaited formation of a sovereign United States of Indonesia. Independence comes after 300 years of Netherlands Colonial rule over some 77,000,000 island inhabitants in the southwest Pacific.

The Dutch-Indonesian independence agreement, signed six weeks ago in The Hague, was ratified by the Parliament of the independent Indonesian republic, largest of the group which will make up the U.S.I. Previously the 15 federal, Dutch-sponsored Indonesian states and the Lower House of the Netherlands Parliament approved the agreement.

The parliaments of all the states also ratified the draft constitution.

Huron Wins Sedition Case Almost Square With Whites

QUEBEC, Dec. 14 (CP) — Jules Sioui, dapper 44-year-old Huron, today is almost square in the white man's law books after winning an appeal against conviction on a charge of conspiracy to incite Canada's Indians against the established government.

Sioui, as secretary treasurer of an organization called the Government of North American Indian Nation, maintained throughout his trial last January that Canada's Indians and himself in particular were subject only to the United Nations. Tuesday, he saw a Quebec Court of Appeals reverse a conviction of seditious conspiracy. Convicted Jan. 15, he was sentenced to two years in penitentiary.

But Sioui, who operates a grocery store and barber shop in nearby Loretteville Reservation, faces other charges of conspiracy to defraud and disturbing the peace. The Crown Prosecutor would not say Tuesday whether he would proceed with the lesser charges.

In reading the decision of the court, Mr. Justice Charles Casey said literature and pamphlets and other papers of the Association in Sioui's possession before charges were brought against him did not establish that he had been guilty of conspiracy.

During Sioui's trial, at which he acted as his own lawyer, many documents, pictures, charts and membership cards were exhibited.

The cards were said to have been sold by his "government" for $1.75 to any Indian wishing to join.

A list of such "Indian" rights as unlicensed hunting, exemption from taxes, and military service and half fares on trains, was printed on the backs of the cards.

Consumers Will Pay Hydro Boost

Say Additional Cost To Municipalities $66,000 to $900,000

TORONTO, Dec. 14—(CP)—The consumer in at least eight Ontario cities will be asked to bear the burden of increased power costs announced by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, it was indicated today.

While the HEPC announcement Tuesday took most municipalities by surprise and few have had a chance to figure out a plan of action, the general reaction was that increases to the consumer were "inevitable."

In this class were London, Windsor, Hamilton, Oshawa, St. Catharines, Brantford, Kitchener and Welland. Utilities Commission officials in these cities said the 10 per cent HEPC boost likely will have to be passed on to the consumers.

No Increase 2 Places

Toronto and Belleville were the only cities who reported they expected no increase to the user. The Belleville Utilities Commission announced it would take care of the additional cost rather than pass it on to the consumer. Peterborough officials were not available for comment.

The added cost to municipalities served by HEPC was estimated at from $60,000 in the smaller centres up to $600,000 in Hamilton and $900,000 a year in Toronto. In London, it was estimated the increase would mean an annual deficit of $200,000 for the hydro system at existing rates.

Emergency meetings were called in most municipalities to deal with the question. Meanwhile no statement was obtainable from utilities commission officials in those places. These included St. Thomas and Sarnia. At Sarnia, the hydro system there was reported heavily in debt.

The HEPC boost does not affect the northern cities of North Bay and Sudbury.

May Be Absorbed

The question arises: Will the individual consumer have to pay more?

Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said it was not possible to answer the question accurately. The situation varies throughout the municipalities, he said in making the announcement.

But, he added:

"We believe that detailed studies will show that many municipalities will be able to absorb the increase in the cost of power without increases in consumer rates."

The new rate, retroactive from last Nov. 1, is $24.83 each horse-

60 Homeless In Ottawa Fire

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 (CP)—More than 60 persons were left homeless Tuesday night following a fire that gutted a large section of a 40-suite apartment building. A warehouse was destroyed and another building damaged in two blazes that occurred within an hour of the Slater-street apartment building fire.

Fire in the apartment building broke out in the furnace room shortly before 9 p.m. and quickly spread through the entire building. All the occupants of the premises escaped unharmed, but many lost all their possessions.

Firemen said water damage would be heavy even in apartments only slightly damaged by fire.

A warehouse owned by Fournier Van and Storage Ltd., on York Street was destroyed in a flash fire a short time before the apartment building blaze. The warehouse was filled with empty crates and packing material. While firemen were engaged in fighting the apartment building fire, an alarm was turned in for a blaze on the Bank Street premises of the Superior Cleaners. Damage was confined to a clothing storage cupboard in the building.

BOLD NO LONGER—Flanked by Quebec Provincial Police, and members of a volunteer posse, two alleged killers and hold-up men, Kenny Bevin (centre) and Gavin Patineaude (centre right) are escorted to waiting police cars minutes after they were captured and handcuffed in their hayloft. The pair were arraigned in court today on hideout on a farm near Huntingdon, Que. murder charges arising out of the slaying of a taxi driver.

Two Farmhands Confess Cabbie Slaying

VALLEYFIELD, Que., Dec. 14 (CP)—Two pasty-faced young farmhands will be arraigned here today on murder charges arising from the grisly hammer-slaying of Lucien Brunette, 34 year old taxi driver.

A coroner's jury Tuesday night at Huntingdon, Que., found Gavin Patenaude and Kenny Bevin, both 18, "criminally responsible for the death of Brunette, whose battered body was found Tuesday on the edge of a brook near the Quebec-New York State border.

The two boys, both armed, later were captured by police in the hay-loft of a barn where they had taken refuge.

Acting on the jury's recommendation that Patenaude and Bevin be charged with murder, Provincial Police took them to jail in Montreal overnight and they were scheduled to be moved to Valleyfield today. Valleyfield is near Huntingdon, in Quebec's Southwestern corner, about 40 miles from Montreal.

Use 43rd Veto To Block Canada

LAKE SUCCESS, NY, Dec. 14 (CP). — Russia Tuesday used her 42nd and 43rd vetoes in the United Nations Security Council to block a Canadian resolution offering formal commendations to the Netherlands and Indonesian Republic on their agreement to set up a United States of Indonesia.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian delegate and president of the 11-member Council for December, said after the vote that the Russian veto would not prevent the Indonesian and Netherlands people from learning the wishes of the Council majority.

Only Russia and the Soviet Ukraine opposed the first part of the resolution, which congratulated the parties to the agreement and the UN Commission for Indonesia. The other nine members backed that section.

The two Soviet countries also voted against continuation of the commission to help in implementing the Netherlands-Indonesian agreement. Argentina abstained.

Fathers May Be In Prison But Kids Get Christmas

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 14—(AP)—A 13-year-old boy wrote The Associated Press: "Coud you sind me the name and address of the man that sinds children presants whos fathers or in prison. Sinsirely." A convict scribbled on prison stationery: "I have been in prison two months, first time for me, and I have been thinking quite a lot about my children, how they would spend Christmas with no father for a Santa Claus. I sure will appreciate anything you send them as I know they will be very well pleased."

Dan Vinson, a retired business man, received both letters—part of more than 1,000 he is getting each day. And everyone will be answered with handmade gifts.

Vinson started shipping toys today so that 300,000 youngsters, who might otherwise be forgotten because their fathers are in prison, will have a merry Christmas.

This gigantic undertaking is the climax to an unpretentious project started in 1944.

Won't Take Money

Vinson will not accept money. Materials for making toys are donated as well as time and labor.

"I don't believe in buying toys, anyone could do that," he said. Vinson, 65, has put it on a "help-someone-else" basis.

Right now 4,000 persons over Oklahoma are making all kinds of salvageable material into toys.

And they are toys any youngster would be happy to receive.

Five years ago, Vinson began distributing a few toys to Oklahoma institutions. Last year, 23,800 underprivileged children were made happy with gifts.

This year, Vinson decided something should be done for children likely to miss out on Christmas because their fathers are in prison.

Letters went out to all prisons in the United States, Canada and Mexico. They asked prisoners to write how many children they have and their ages.

Chinese General Joining French?

HONG KONG, Dec. 14 (AP)—Pro-Communist newspapers said today Nationalist Gen. Pai Chung-hsi has been negotiating with French officials in Indo-China for the incorporation of some of his 30,000 troops into the French colonial army.

Pai's 30,000-troops are crowded on the Indo-China border by Chinese Communists. Earlier he had reportedly asked permission to evacuate the troops through Indo-China to the Nationalist island of Hainan.

Two pro-Red newspapers, Ta Kung Po and Wen Wei Po, published the reports from Canton. Ta Kung Po said Pai had proposed that his troops cross the Indo-China border as a volunteer army to assist the French in fighting Communism. The newspaper added Pai already had appointed a Chinese commander for the army.

Santa Remembers Czech DP Can Visit Sweetheart In US

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (CP). Dennis Chrastansky, 24-year-old Czech displaced person now living at Guelph, will be admitted without question to the United States to visit his sweetheart during the Christmas season.

The Canadian External Affairs Department Tuesday issued him an identification certificate. Immigration officials in Washington said such a certificate needs no US approval and that Chrastansky will be allowed to cross the border without difficulty.

The Czech recently got around immigration difficulties by meeting his fiancee, Kitty Kleiner, aboard the excursion steamer, Maid of the Mist, at Niagara Falls so that neither had to cross the border.

He came to Canada on a farm contract five months ago. Miss Kleiner is taking post-graduate studies in North Carolina.

He applied for a passport, but was informed none could be issued because he was not a Canadian citizen, but that he could apply for a card of identity which would serve the same purpose.

At Guelph, Chrastansky said: "This is my happiest moment since I arrived in Canada."

Chrastansky, a displaced Czechoslovak, heard the news in hospital here where he is being treated for a heart ailment.

"I shall telephone Kitty this very moment and tell her I shall be with her for Christmas Day," he said. "She will be delighted."

Main Office At Swift's Said Wrecked

Explosion Occurs Just Before Noon In Sioux City, Iowa

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Dec. 14 (AP)—The main office building of the Swift and Company packing plant here was shattered by an explosion just before noon (CST) today and a high city official estimated at least 35 persons were dead.

Walter W. Lindgren, superintendent of public safety for the city, made the preliminary estimate of "at least 25 dead."

Lindgren called it "probably the worst disaster in Sioux City history."

Lindgren said firemen and volunteers had donned gas masks to go into the debris-choked basement where cries of the injured could be heard.

Estimates of the number of injured ran as high as 200.

The south side of the five-storey brick office building was demolished and early reports said the greatest force of the explosion seemed to come on the first floor.

Walter Krebs, a spokesman for the firm, said a natural gas leak may have caused the explosion. The gas is used in several departments, he said.

Brig.-Gen. Charles Grahl, Adjutant General of the Iowa National Guard, said in Des Moines that guard officers told him by phone that "30 or 35 were killed."

Major Leagues Junk Bonus Rule

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—The major leagues voted today to junk the highly controversial bonus rule with Commissioner A. B. Chandler casting the decisive ballot. The American League voted to repeal the rule, the National to keep it.

The minor leagues, who voted to keep the rule last week in their convention at Baltimore, now will be polled again.

The rule will remain in effect until 10 days after the minors vote to discard it. If they vote to retain it, it remains on the books.

Fire Chief Raps Seven Schools

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (CP)—An inspection of seven Toronto schools shows fire conditions are unsatisfactory, Fire Chief Peter Hurd said today in an interim report submitted to Board of Control.

The report, prepared by Chief Hurd and buildings commissioner K. S. Gillies, was requested by the board "to ascertain whether or not any of the schools are fire traps."

It covers Riverdale Collegiate and Balmy Beach, Kimberley, Withrow, Palmerston, Essex St. and Givins public schools.

The report recommends installation of additional fire extinguishers, hoses, improved wiring and fire doors, removal of wainscotting and wooden partitions.

It also requires that a pitched roof in one school be replaced with a flat one, that stairs be enclosed, new exits built and glass-bomb extinguishers replaced.

King George 54 Today Plans Quiet Occasion

LONDON, Dec. 14 (Reuters)—Greetings from Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh in Malta were among messages from all parts of the British Commonwealth which reached the King on his 54th birthday today.

The King was keeping the anniversary, according to custom, as "a family occasion." The only official recording of the event was the flying of flags over public buildings and the firing of a 41-gun salute at Hyde Park, London.

The King's "official" birthday is in June.

16 Missing After Blast, Fire On Ship

Tanker Picks Up 8 But Rescue Ships Unable To Find Others

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP)—A coast guard search plane found the burning hulk of the Netherlands motorship Doros 300 miles due east of Miami today and radioed tersely "no survivors sighted."

Sixteen men were missing following an explosion and fire aboard the craft. Eight others were rescued. Cause of the accident was not determined.

A coast guard PBM from St. Petersburgh said there wasn't any debris near the smouldering motorship and no sign of other lifeboats in the area.

Coast guard air sea rescue headquarters said a plane planned to meet the American tanker Sparrows Point at the Hole-in-the-Wall about noon to pick up one of the survivors who was reported badly burned. The Hole-in-the-Wall is at the southern end of Abaco Island in the Bahamas.

Meanwhile air and surface craft continued to search the area in the hope of locating other survivors.

The chief engineer was among the eight picked up from a life boat. He said he believed the captain and seven others went down with the ship. None of the men aboard were identified.

Twenty-four men were aboard the 921-ton Doros when it left New York Dec. 8 for Port-au-Prince, Haiti. The two men not accounted for apparently went down with the ship, the coast guard said.

Municipal radio station WMH at Baltimore and the coast guard here picked up first news of the tragedy late Tuesday. It told of the rescue of eight men.

The message said the Doros exploded, burned and sank. The weather was heavy, with easterly winds.

Cotton Goods Vital Element

MONTREAL, Dec 14 (CP). — W. S. Burrill of Hamilton today expressed the "firm intention" of Canada's primary cotton-goods producers to remain a "vital element" in Canadian industry.

In his annual report as president of the Cotton Institute of Canada, given at an institute luncheon here, he said that by 1950 producers will have spent $40,000,000 over a 10-year period for modernization and expansion.

The industry now employs some 23,000 workers in 29 Canadian communities, he said.

"While the use of cotton textiles in Canada now is about 35 per cent above pre-war levels," he said, "our volume has gone up only about 10 per cent."

But the volume of cotton imports is "enormous," he added, and has more than doubled in the last 10 years.

Fear Gardiner Has No Ace Up Sleeve

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 (CP)—This is the day that Agriculture Minister Gardiner usually reserves to disclose that ace up his sleeve—new Anglo-Canadian food contracts.

But delegates to the three-day dominion-provincial agricultural conference which ends today doubt that Mr. Gardiner has an ace—or any contracts to announce.

Yet there is an air of expectancy and hope that Mr. Gardiner, who lately has been saying some bitter things about the "official British" move to "squeeze" Canadian food off the British market, may come out with some firm British commitments.

Mr. Gardiner will close the conference today in a final speech that may review the trend of discussions during the three days and give a final indication of what the future may hold for Canadian foodstuffs.

Bulk Testing Program

GERALDTON, Ont., Dec. 14 — (CP)—Officials of Macleod Cockshutt gold mines report that work will start shortly on a bulk testing program of large low-grade areas which may be worthwhile with the boosted value of gold through devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

Officials said favorable results would be an "important factor" in future production and probably would mean mill expansion. A 30-ton unit installed during the war but never used would carry out the program.

US Defence Cost 20 Billion Year

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP)—The Committee for Economic Development, an organization of American business executives, estimated today that national security will cost the United States at least $20,000,000,000 a year for years to come.

In the face of this costly cold war defence, it urged definite action to: (1) Safeguard civilian supremacy in the U.S., (2) Strengthen long-range security and (3) Protect individual freedom.

The C.E.D. said the $20,000,000,000 estimate on the annual cost of security for the next several years embraces several items. Military defence is the big one, followed by rearming of non-Communist countries, European recovery spending, atomic energy development, U.S. broadcasts overseas, and much of the government's diplomacy and intelligence work.

power in southern Ontario — an increase of $2.25. In the Thunder Bay system the rate now is $23.08, an increase of $3.00.

Mr. Saunders said the increases were necessary because of increased wages, operating and maintenance costs. The operating costs in southern Ontario will jump from $20,277,000 in 1939 to an estimated $40,061,000 in 1950, or 98 per cent.

In the Thunder Bay area, the operating costs will soar from $570,000 in 1939 to $1,444,000 in 1950, an increase of 153 per cent.

"We must safeguard the financial structure of Hydro in Ontario," said Mr. Saunders. "Today, faced as we are with conditions which a few short years ago the commission could not contemplate, we find it necessary to restore those rates which prevailed a decade ago."

Reduce Refunds

An increase of $2.25 each horsepower of wholesale power would cost the Toronto system some $900,000, E. M. Ashworth, general manager of the system, said Tuesday night. About 400,000 horsepower was purchased annually by the city, he said.

Mr. Saunders also said that refunds to municipalities for 1949 will be reduced by an average of $1.25 each horsepower in southern Ontario and $1.30 in the Thunder Bay area.

The commission sells power at an average price on a monthly billing. If any municipality overpays for its power on a yearly computation it is refunded.

Western Oil Stocks Advance On Exchange

TORONTO, Dec. 14 —(CP)—Western oil stocks advanced strongly as the session progressed on the Toronto stock exchange today. Key issues showed gains ranging up to 15 cents in the moderately active dealings as the group chalked up its third successive day of advance.

The remainder of the market was irregular. Golds weakened slightly but showed signs of recovering while industrials and base metals firmed.

Volume for the first three hours was 594,000 shares.

Calgary and Edmonton led the strong upward trend in western oils, gaining 15 cents at $8.30 and touching a new high at $8.35. Pacific Petroleum also touched a new high, $4.10.

Industrials moved sluggishly under pressure of one of the heaviest ex-dividend lists of the year. Some 57 issues were ex-dividend on the big board and two were ex-coupon. Minnesota and Ontario Paper continued strong in papers, gaining ⅝ at 18¼. Refining oils were higher and steels also brightened.

International Nickel and Noranda added fractions in base metals. United Keno Hill climbed 15 cents to a new top at $4.15.

Debit Balance Of Trade Cut Lowest In '49

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 (CP)—Devaluation of the Canadian dollar and the normal seasonal increase in exports cut Canada's debit balance of trade with the United States in October to the lowest figure of any month this year.

The deficit was $17,800,000, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday.

October was the first full month since devaluation for which trade statistics became available.

The expected drop in exports to the United Kingdom also failed to materialize during the month. And despite sterling devaluation, Canadian imports from Britain were the lowest of any month this year.

The month's trade left Canada with a surplus of $37,400,000, a sharp increase from the surplus of $9,400,000 in September and the monthly average of $10,300,000 for the first nine months of the year.

It was well below, however, the surplus of $66,000,000—abnormally high because of the removal of ex-port bans on livestock—of October, 1948.

Not So Good

For the first 10 months of the year, Canada's surplus balance on international trade was $130,500,000, compared with $327,600,000 for the same period of 1948 and $134,200,000 in 1947.

The October surplus resulted from imports valued at $234,300,000, an increase of $13,700,000 over September, and exports worth $269,100,000, about $40,000,000 higher than in September.

Imports from the U.S. were worth $167,600,000 in October, about $9,600,000 more than in September, and exports were $148,100,000, around $34,400,000 higher.

Imports Lower

The volume of imports from the U.S., however, was slightly lower than in September. The higher value resulted from the premium of 10 per cent on U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar declared by the government in September.

Imports from the U.K. dropped from $21,900,000 in September to $19,400,000, the lowest of any month this year. Exports to the U.K. rose to $72,300,000 from $56,900,000.

The drop in the value of imports from Britain, the bureau said, was almost entirely the result of a lower value for the pound in terms of Canadian dollars.

Canada's surplus balance on trade with countries other than the U.S. and the U.K. fell to $1,900,000 in Ovtober, compared with $39,100,000 in October, 1948.

During the month there was a sharp decrease in imports of iron and steel products, coal and petroleum. Imports of agricultural and vegetable products, nonferrous metals and chemicals were higher.

Although imports were lower from the U.K., they were higher from some other sections of the sterling area.

Have Wholesale Purge Europe's Red Groups

LONDON, Dec. 14 — (AP)—Purges of eastern Europe's ruling Communist parties have been speeded up in a campaign apparently aimed at stiffening Red resistance to growing Western military preparedness.

Since the Russian-led Cominform met in November, diplomats here agree, the drive to crush independent nationalist feelings and build up Russian prestige has been turned on full blast.

The new rash of purges and government shakeups from Poland to Bulgaria promises an intensification of the east-west cold war, these diplomatic sources believe.

The purges are seen by diplomatic observers not only as an attempt to rid the parties of those who sympathize with the west or with Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito—ousted from the Communist information bureau for defying Moscow dictates — but also to tighten the party discipline.

Judgment Reserved In Trenton Accident

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 14 (CP)—Judgment was reserved Tuesday at the trial of Kendell Meyers, 19, of Trenton, charged with reckless driving following an accident last month in which John Simpson, 73, was killed.

Meyers was identified as the driver of a truck which skidded out of control and crashed into a roadside store operated by Simpson. The proprietor was buried in merchandise and a heavy refrigerator toppled and crushed him.

LEFT BEHIND

The Italian city, Ravenna, was once a port on the Adriatic Sea, but the water receded and it is now about six miles inland.

Beat Driver With Hammer

Both Patenaude and Bevin testified at Tuesday night's inquest that they had beaten Brunette with a hammer last Sunday night and had robbed him of $40.

Brunette had been missing since Sunday but it was late Monday afternoon that a bank robbery touched off a big police search which led to the youths' arrest. Quebec provincial police and New York State police scoured the area along the border after the bank at Ormstown, Que., was robbed at gunpoint of $800.

It was not immediately known if the boys would be charged with the hold-up of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch. They told the coroner's jury at the inquest that they had robbed the bank.

Patenaude described events which led to the slaying and later, the bank robbery.

He said he and Bevin borrowed a hammer from a service station here and then called several taxi owners before hiring Brunette's cab. They ordered him to drive to Franklin Centre, 15 miles from here, Patenaude said.

Dump Body

Shortly before they arrived there, he added, he and Bevin beat Brunette about the head and dumped his body at the edge of the brook.

The following day they went to Montreal and purchased pistol shells from a St. Catharines street sports shop, returning to Ormstown by taxi.

Patenaude told the jury they commandeered the cab of Bill Hooker in Ormstown after robbing the bank and gave Hooker $100 "to keep quiet."

The youthful farm workers then spent the night in a barn not far from here and were trapped in the hay loft by police after a hired man reported he was tipped $5 apiece by two youths to "keep his mouth shut."

orders sending service men into the struck power houses.

The strike arose over the question of distributing a 1½d an hour (about 2 cents) basic pay raise for the country's 90,000 power station workers.

In some stations, where working conditions were hot and dirty the workers have been receiving a 7½ per cent bonus.

The government decided to lop off the wage increase from this bonus on the ground that conditions had been bettered.

The base pay for the power house workers is 3s 3d (51.3 cents) an hour, or 7 pounds 3 shillings ($22.17) for the regular 44-hour week.

Effects Soon Felt

The effects of the walkout quickly began to be felt by the Londoners.

Factories were crippled; some sections were blacked out as the street lights failed; transportation was snarled; traffic lights went dead in a large area of South London; some subways and trolley buses were halted; emergency plants were clicked on in some hospitals.

Trade union leaders and members of the electricity authority issued a joint statement appealing to the strikers to return to work. The statement said the workers' action is unconstitutional and violates their working agreement.

Toronto Baby Born While Dad In Jail

TORONTO, Dec. 14 —(CP)—James Leslie, 25, father of a two-weeks-old baby girl born while he was awaiting sentence on two charges of housebreaking and one of receiving, today was remanded to Dec. 21. Bail was set at $8,000.

Leslie was taken recently from jail to visit his wife in the hospital and see his baby for the first time. The couple came to Toronto from London, Ont., 10 weeks ago.

Crown Attorney John Graham said Leslie's record extended from 1941 to 1946.

Leslie's 18-year-old wife said when she attempted to return to her room after the birth of the baby she was "politely" asked to leave. Welfare authorities found her and the baby another room.

Experts Meet To Draft Highway Plans

OTTAWA, Dec. 14—(CP)—Efforts to draft plans for a $800,000,000 hard-surfaced trans-Canada highway will be made Thursday and Friday at a Dominion-Provincial conference of technical experts.

One of the major problems the conference will be asked to settle is the route the proposed highway will follow. Choice of the route has been left to the provinces and in some of them there are as many as three routes that the highway could follow.

The conference, called by Reconstruction Minister Winters to discuss technical details, will not be open to press or public. All provinces have indicated they will send representatives and it is expected there will be 30 or 40 experts at the meeting.

Mr. Winters, his deputy, Marc Boyer, and H. G. Cochrane, acting director of public works projects, will represent the Federal government, which has offered to pay up to $150,000,000 toward the highway.

Pay 50% Cost

The Dominion will pay 50 per cent of the cost of new roads constructed. It also will pay 50 per cent of the cost of existing roads which will form part of a 5,000-mile, two-lane highway running from Victoria, B.C., to St. John's, Nfld., and taking in Prince Edward Island.

If agreement can be reached on details at the conference, individual agreements will be signed with each province. Mr. Winters said individual agreements will be necessary because of the size of the different payments to each province. The basis of payments will be the same in all cases, but the size will vary because of the difference in constructions costs in various parts of the country.

Jerusalem Tangle For U.N.

Last Saturday the Assembly of the United Nations, in its fourth regular session, voted by a surprisingly large majority (thirty-eight for the resolution, fourteen against, seven absententions) to make Jerusalem, its suburbs and Bethlehem, a permanent international zone. The U.N. Trusteeship Council was named "administering authority". This action, if not imprudent, is certainly a daring flight against facts in Palestine.

* * *

Jerusalem is now occupied by two hostile factions both giving every indication that they intend to remain and to govern their parts of the city. It is an earnest of that intention that Israel yesterday moved its capital to Jerusalem. The Arabs, under King Abdullah of Jordan, control the old city. The Israeli control the new. There is almost no intercourse between the two sections of the city. Both Abdullah and Premier Ben-Gurion of Israel are unalterably opposed to the internationalization of Jerusalem; to any outside authority being imposed on it; and both hope not only to maintain their own sectors, but also eventually to gain control of the whole city. Jerusalem, like Rome in the last war, has prestige as a religious centre. It is a prized capital.

* * *

Why has U.N. acted as it did? Theoretically a case may be made out for an international, non-partisan control of a city holy to three religions and now in dispute between two nations. Historically, internationally-controlled zones have been fizzles, and war tinders, like Danzig. Practically, Jerusalem the International looks like a peace-pipe dream. If Arabs and Jews do not severally have recourse to arms to preserve the city from U.N., certainly they will incite civic passive resistance. How will U.N. have the armed authority to impose itself? How, indeed, will it set about collecting even the municipal taxes, and policing the place?

* * *

The U.N. decision to make Jerusalem an international city arose out of good intentions and special interests. Arabs leaders other than Abdullah have urged it, so as to crimp Abdullah's style as partial sovereign of Moslem Jerusalem. Russia, which voted for the measure, has given up Israel as a cause lost to the West. It is perhaps not unfair to say that the U.S.S.R. would vote for any measure liable to cause dissension in the Western camp. The Roman Catholic church, through the Pope and the American Episcopate, has favoured making Jerusalem a free international city, so as to safeguard holy places and give the Christian Church a better opportunity for control of them.

* * *

And so Jerusalem, on paper, is an international city. We suspect it will be a long time before U.N. is able to enforce its decision and that the time may be short when it will have to recant of it.

Silent T., Ofn

We were talking the other day with a man embarrassingly precise in his pronunciation. We suspect him of mentally spelling out every word as he says it. He even puts a T in Christmas, which is, we feel, just a bit too sharp. This good fellow pronounces so virtuously that he has made a vice of it; indeed he even goes to the length of saying pronunciation as if it were pronounciation. (This probably betrays a weakness in his spelling.)

We admit that many good people put in T's where lesser mortals like ourself lazily discard them. We fecklessy say pospone; the neat-tonguers say postpone. We admit that the Duke of Windsor says ofTen, and not ofn—which is, now, standard pronunciation. But the Duke is not quite a run-of-the-mill sort of person and must be allowed his quirks.

The sound T is important, and is really not so hard to say that our own city should become Pedurburuh, and the capital Oddawah. But there are many words in which the T should preserve a carefully colloquial silence. Even the saints of pedagogues banish their T's from such words as chasten, castle, wrestle, epistle, bustle, listen, fasten and soften. And Christ does not come down to a T in Christmas.

Little Pigs To Market

The Minister of Agriculture is rightly concerned, as is the Canadian farmer, about the future of our agricultural exports. Perhaps it is unecessary to qualify the term, for if our agricultural produce cannot be exported in profitable quantities, the whole agricultural future is damaged. The trouble is, of course, that Britain is hard up, and is trying to get along without dollar produce. She will import wheat from Russia, bacon from the Antipodes, and butter from Denmark, rather than from Canada, because Canada asks—and needs—to be paid in American dollars. The trouble with Canada is, of course, that she has too long had her eggs, bacon and wheat in one exporting basket. We have been over-dependent on the British market. Last year we exported $243,023,000 worth of wheat, $125,151,000 worth of flour, $69,960,000 worth of ham and bacon; $63,399,000 worth of other meats, $39,-163,000 worth of eggs, and $12,042,000 of cheese. These went chiefly to Britain. Where will they go now?

It may be remarked that last year our foreign trade reached the highest total, both in dollar value and in quantity, in our history. It was a boom year for exports, and perhaps we should not expect the trade to continue at such a high level. It should further be remarked that farmers are not the only ones hit by British decisions to pull in the belt and buy elsewhere when possible. Industry is being affected, both directly and indirectly. A third consolation is this: Canada is finding other markets than Britain for her goods, thanks to their quality and to far-flung scurrying by industrialists and officials of the Department of Trade. Last year 11,200,000 bushels of wheat were sold in India, 7,466,666 to South Africa, and 6,000,000 bushels to Switzerland.

Our agricultural export future is not particularly rosy at the moment, but it is not dismal. It is disturbing, even unsettling, that Britain refuses to take any bacon at all, and condescends to relieve us of a few tens of thousand pounds of our seventeen million pound cheese surplus, if we will give it to her at 23 or 24 cents a pound. But there are other markets; our agricultural farm production can be diverted, and, of course, there are more Canadians now than before the war to eat our own foodstuffs. If Canada had double its present population, our export difficulties would be considerably eased, since we would be able to eat more and use more of our goods. The United States is in the happy position of having 130,000,000 mouths to feed. Exports are not its chief concern.

Should We Work As Hard As We Can?

It is being said in Britain now that the national habit of tea-drinking is a brake on national production. We do not see how this can be proved. People who like a cup of tea in the afternoon say that it refreshes them and enables them to work for longer hours, and to work more productively; people who do not like tea say that a tea-break in the morning or afternoon is simply wasted time. The dispute could go on for ever.

What interests us, however, is that this attack on tea should come from Britain, where oceans of the stuff is consumed every day, ranging from delicate cups of Chinese tea to the blackest Indian mixture, made thick with milk and sugar. That anyone in Britain should reject tea in favour of a nose-to-the-grindstone philosophy of unceasing hard work seems very strange to us.

We have all been told that the pace of daily life in Britain is slower than it is here, and there may be some truth in it. The pace of life in Canada is very slow, too, if you know where to look for a relaxed atmosphere. And the medical profession has been assuring us for years that it is the workers who do not keep themselves keyed up to the highest pitch who work longest and perhaps most effectively.

In the modern world great numbers of people engage in nervous and taxing work all day, and get little physical exercise. It is not surprising that they suffer from nervous tension and the ills which go with it. Anything which breaks that tension and provides a few moments of relaxation is likely to be a good thing; it may be a brief period of doing nothing, or it may be a change of work, or it may be the drinking of a cup of tea.

Our guess is that the British will produce more if they keep up their tea-drinking than if they go in for long hours of relieved toil.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Utopia has been defined as a place where people stop behaving like human beings.

Moscow now claims for Russia the world's record in catching whales. That country has a fine record in exporting whoppers, too.

A news report from Berlin tells of an operatic performance given in a salt mine. That would be dry work for singers and audience both.

From The Critic's Notebook

THE ORIGIN OF MEDICAL TERMS by H. Alan Skinner, M.B., F.R.C.S. (University of Toronto Press).

THIS is one of the most entertaining books that we have seen in a long time, and we feel that Dr. Skinner will find many readers whose concern with medicine is small, but whose appetite for curious information is great. A good dictionary makes admirable reading, and this dictionary of medical terms by the professor of anatomy at Western University is a perfect book for the fireside.

Such enthusiasm by a lay reviewer of a medical book may appear misplaced. Is the book accurate in scholarship, the doctors will want to know, and is it complete in its treatment of its subject? We cannot judge it on either of these points, and frankly we do not care; our business is not to judge such matters, but to judge writing. And as writing this book is a delight; it is staid and calm, as such a book should be, and there are flashes of wit, and hints of further knowledge, and smothered ribaldries which are in the best medical tradition. Osler could write about medicine in such a way as to enchant the layman: so also can Dr. Skinner.

In his introduction the author says that "it is a matter of regret that most students entering medicine have little Latin and no Greek". True: a physician, as well as being learned in his craft, is better off for being a learned man in the larger sense. Without wider learning he is dangerously close to a mechanic—what rude people call "a gut-plumber". Many patients are uneasy if fortune compels them to commit their bodies into the hands of a man whose grammar is faulty and whose demeanour suggests a repairer of radios. Laymen feel, and with some justice, that a physician's knowledge of the body is too minute to be safe unless it is balanced by a knowledge of the soul—and a knowledge of the soul is possible only to a man of considerable general cultivation.

So far the present reviewer has not recommended any of this year's crop of books as Christmas gifts. Let me now, eccentrically but logically, recommend this one as a gift to any doctor you may have on your list, and to any non-doctor of enquiring mind, who loves to pore over dictionaries, gathering bits of out-of-the-way knowledge, and fancy words for the bric-a-brac section of his vocabulary. The book costs as much as two novels; it is as amusing as twenty novels. R.D.

ETIQUETTE IN CANADA by Gertrude Pringle (McClelland and Stewart).

THIS is a revised version of a book which appeared first in 1932. Additions have been made to it and it has been altered in some respects. The book's chief quality in the eyes of the present reviewer, is its common sense. It avoids rigid rules as much as possible, and it steers a safe course between prissiness and vulgarity.

Reading books of etiquette, old or new, is always good fun. One tries to find out how one's own manners, or tribal customs, compare with the standard set up in the book. In Canada two sets of manners are likely to be met with: an English set, based on English usage or some imaginary usage thought to prevail in England; and an American set, which differs in several unexpected ways. People whose manners mean a great deal to them are apt to dispute hotly about the two usages; Miss Pringle takes a conservative middle course and leans, in all cases, toward the less spectacular form of behaviour if there is a choice.

One or two of her rulings were strange to this reviewer. Do Canadian men really remove their hats and keep them off when talking to ladies in the street? We have seen this done in France, but not in Toronto. And do men remove their hats as funeral processions pass? We have not observed this. And we are mortified to read that gentlemen must not laugh loudly in public; the loudness of a man's laugh may depend on the strength of his lungs, or the vigour of his sense of humour—neither of which he can control completely.

This is a good, sensible book, and we are happy to recommend it. Only foolish people scorn books of etiquette; like cookbooks, they are necessities for the civilized, for not all the formulae can be memorized. R.D.

THE PIRATES IN THE DEEP GREEN SEA by Eric Linklater (Macmillan).

AS this is a book for children we turned it over to a nine years old critic of our acquaintance, who reports that it is very exciting, and that the principal characters are two nice boys. The pirates are frightening, but there is a loveable octopus involved in the action. Although there are 398 excellent pages, our critic warrants the book to be free of hard words and pleasantly short in its descriptions; it is splendidly full of danger and near-killings. Our critic (a girl) generously admits that a boy would like it—any boy with sense, that is to say. Asked if she thought it would make a good Christmas present she replied "Yes, yes; Heavens, yes!" R.D.

THE OTTERBURY INCIDENT, by Cecil Day Lewis (Putnam).

THIS children's book, by the well-known English author, we submitted to our nine years old female critic who summarizes the plot thus: "Well, this nice boy Nick Yates broke a window and a crabby teacher says he has to pay for it, so he and his friends get the money by giving a show; then the money is stolen and they know it's these awful boys who aren't boys at all really but grown-up men who are so dumb they are still in school, so they have an awful fight and the police even join in and they get the money back and the teacher isn't crabby any more. It's very exciting". The style she describes as "pretty childish, but I suppose he was trying to write like a boy". There are no hard words. She recommends this as a Christmas present, but thinks it more suited to a lesser occasion, such as a birthday. R.D.

MATINEE TOMORROW by Ward Morehouse (McGraw-Hill).

THIS is a history of the New York stage from 1898 to 1949. Or perhaps "history" is not the right word, for it implies some spirit of appraisal in the writer, whereas Mr. Morehouse is a rhapsodist. He is unashamedly in love with the theatre—all of it, good and bad. This is an engaging quality, and it is the principal virtue of a sometimes exasperating book.

Mr. Morehouse knows the American theatre perfectly during the fifty years covered by his book. They are the years of his own playgoing. But of the British and Continental theatre he seems to know nothing. In consequence he perpetually falls into the American error of regarding as American inventions and innovations things which had long been familiar on European stages. This gives a parochial air to much of what he writes.

His virtues are his love of theatre and his store of gossip about theatre folk. His judgements are strongly individual and he has the gift of being able to make us understand why some bygone actress was idolized in her day. His lively book is heavily illustrated with photographs, most of which are unfamiliar and interesting. Recommended to theatre enthusiasts. R.D.

Putting More Water In Our Whiskey

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

"OUR", it should be understood, in the above caption is used in the metaphorical or editorial sense. But we have a friend who is worried about the latest petition to the Government by the Canadian Temperance Federation which asks, among other things, that the alcoholic content of spirits should be reduced and the price raised. That is, the Federation would put more water in our whisky and higher taxes on it.

Our friend recalls that early in the war Mr. Mackenzie King did just that, and convinced all drinkers without much trouble that it was their patriotic duty to consume weaker whisky if they must consume whisky at all. This watering must coincided wtih the increase of Federal and provincial taxes on such bottled goods, and presently the consumer was paying patriotically from $3 to $6 a bottle, according to its quality and place of origin, for whisky (and water) which he knew our little colony of diplomats, who pay no such taxes, were buying for about a dollar a bottle.

He always has been puzzled over this, says our friend. He wonders how much water goes into a bottle of whisky and if, when Mr. King had the proportion increased, the distillers reduced their prices to the provincial liquor commissions—that is, who got the extra profit. He wonders about imported whiskies—whether the distillers make up a special stock for shipment to this country, weakened down to our presumed taste. And he says he would dearly like to see a full breakdown of the $4 he spends for a bottle of rye and the goods he receives: How the price is made up, the proportion remaining with the distillery and the amounts taken by governments as taxes or profits and a statement of the amount of water in 25 ounces, with a comparison with the pre-war prices and practice.

Of the proposal of the Temperance Federation that he pay more money for a higher percentage of water our friend takes a dim view. He insists he is quite capable of himself adding the water, and as to the price his views are unquotable. He does make one interesting point: Suppose, he says, the Temperance Federation were to achieve its objective and every last Canadian went on the wagon, what then would happen to government budgets? As for him he proposes to do his duty as a citizen and a taxpayer, but enough is enough.

Commissioner Blameless

Now that the parliamentary debate on combines appears to be over for this session, the whole controversy needs to be examined in perspective. The fact that stands out is that Mr. McGregor, in preparing and submitting to the Minister of Justice the report on the flour milling industry, has not been convicted in any degree of having gone beyond his duty and his responsibility as commissioner of the Combines Investigation Act. Known as a careful and conscientious servant of the government, it would have been strange if he had been found to have acted beyond the strict letter of his duty to administer a difficult and complex branch of the basic law of Canada.—Ottawa Citizen.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And David spake unto the Lord the words of this song in the day that the Lord had delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul: and he said, The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my detliverer....

When the waves of death compassed me, the floods of ungodly men made me afraid... In my distress I called upon the Lord, and cried to my God, and he did hear my voice out of his temple, and my cry did enter into his ears.

Then the earth shook and trembled; the foundations of heaven moved and shook, because he was wroth....The Lord thundered from heaven, and the most High uttered his voice. And he sent out arrows, and scattered them; lightning, and discomfited them....

He sent from above, he took me; he drew me out of many waters....He brought me forth also into a large place: he delivered me, because he delighted in me....

With the merciful thou wilt shew thyself merciful, and with the upright man thou wilt shew thyself upright....And the afflicted people thou wilt save: but thine eyes are upon the haughty, that thou mayest bring them down. (II Sam. 22: 1 2 5 7 8 14 15 17 20 26 28.)

M.P.'s Don't Lick Stamps

In Quebec province, motorists with licence numbers under 2,000 reputedly have joyful immunity to parking ticket and other troubles to which ordinary folks, unblessed with official favour, are prone.

Another item of privilege which is nation-wide is franking—free use of the mails. It costs about $4½ millions a year.

Our interest in the matter was considerably aroused on seeing a letter sent by the wife of an M.P. asking the addressee to buy tickets to a concert. The envelope carried the House of Commons postmark and the magic words "Free-Franco."

Ever since 1652 when this stunt was originated in Cromwellian England, politicians and others have feverishly fought to maintain and extend this free mail privilege.

Described as "indefensible in principle and subject to gross abuse," franking in Canada extends to the letters of any citizens written to a member of Parliament while the House is in session, and letters to the heads of government departments.

Is it customary to use the franking privilege for a direct mail operation by the wife of an M.P. trying to sell concert tickets?

The Post Office people say no. "You can quote me as saying the Post Office rises in its wrath when it hears of this sort of thing. Franking is for official business use only."
—Financial Post.

For Right Of Appeal

London's city fathers will have general support here—and in many municipalities—in their expressed intention of seeking legislation to bring all decisions of the Ontario Municipal Board within the scope of appeal court review. The council's intention was made known after a report from Toronto that reorganization and expansion of the Municipal Board is being considered.

This is neither the time nor the country in which to set up arbitrary groups against whose decisions there is no appeal.

Registration Record Expected For ORHA

WELLAND, Dec. 14 (CP) — A new registration record is expected for the Ontario Rural Hockey Association this season but lack of ice in natural-ice rinks has caused the association to extend the deadline for affiliations to Dec. 29, secretary Horace D. Overdon said here.

Appointments to the executive of the ORHA were announced by president J. B. Robertson as follows: Berkely Feir, Haliburton; Dane Found, Orono and Otto J. Hardwick, Bolton.

Wallace Maybee, Wallaceburg arena manager, was named convenor for that area. The association reported that it is insisting all referees receive their approval before working any game.

Comes a letter from Fred (Ripper) Collins, now living in Victoria, B.C.—at 1733 Bank St., if you want to write. Says he hasn't seen any hockey yet this season, but will be taking in the ball games when spring rolls around. Victoria is in a class "B" pro ball loop and has a hookup with New York Yanks. Fred managed a Trenton hotel in recent years ere returning to the West Coast from whence he came in the late 30s to Peterborough. He managed the Petes for a space in the COBL, when Napanee was in this league. The Ripper was a big genial gent who preferred to praise his players than to criticize, and they all liked him.

* * * * * *

Senior "B" puckists will be flying about at Civic Arena tonight when Kingston Nylons tangle with the Legionnaires. This should be a streamlined dandy as Nylons beat Legion earlier down in Kingston in an exhibition and later took the Petes in a group game. They have Partis, Catlin and Gerow—those veteran smoothies up front—plus a number of newcomers, and bespectacled Udy Udall in the cage. A strong squad, but they'll need to be tonight. Legionnaires are tough onions on their own ice and are presently atop the heap in a fine grouping. Fans are seeing a lot of first-class hockey so early this season, and this tilt should be one of the best.

* * * * * *

All apparently is not serene in some of the Trent Valley Hockey League centres. Lakefield has definitely pulled out of the TVL and is grouped in an OHA intermediate "B" setup with Trenton Depot, Trenton Fliers, Trenton H.C. and Campbellford. But a dispatch from our Campbellford correspondent yesterday said: "The OHA groupings announced in the papers Saturday placed Campbellford in an OHA loop with Lakefield and several Trenton teams. The local executive reports that Campbellford is definitely in the TVL." Well, this had better be cleared up shortly ere a schedule is drawn. Frank Buckland is group convener for the OHA.

* * * * * *

Some rumbles from the lakeshore junior clubs, too. Cobourg, Port Hope and Orono are in a junior "C" setup, with Orono listed as a junior "D" team. Lindsay is junior "C" but in a junior "B" grouping with our Oddfellows, Oshawa, Belleville, Kingston Barons and Kingston Vics. Now, Cobourg and Port Hope want to be included in our grouping. They argue that if Lindsay's "C" club is included in this setup, they should be also. The Triple Links probably wouldn't object (owing to the short lakeshore hauls) if assured that the Ports and Cobourg would come up with strong clubs. However, that's the score for the moment.

* * * * * *

The CAHA almost did a little rule-changing for next season, according to Bill Westwick of the Ottawa Journal. They tampered with the idea of trying to get rid of the modern tendency to shoot the puck into the corner and then skate after it. However, they ran into difficulty trying to define exactly what could be called a deliberate shot into the corner. Bill cynically remarks: "Adding a few more red or blue lines would be much less a risk than forcing a referee or fans to judge for themselves whether some forwards were missing shots on the net or deliberately firing for the corners. Not a few have been known to aim at the net and get the rubber into the corner just from force of habit." So the rules remain unchanged.

Marines aren't planning an exhibition cage contest this week-end, and the male basketeers will not see action till after the New Year. Lots doing then for them, and in the City League. Also, St. Peter's and PCVS boys will be getting ready for COSSA play, and the Collegiate colleens will be getting set. We have no intermediate squad in the lakeshore loop, which includes Oshawa, Lindsay, Cobourg and Port Hope. But Peterborough and Oshawa are in the junior setup and will pad out play with exhibitions till one goes into OAHA playdowns. Two girls' games here this week-end (Friday) with CGE meeting Nurses Jrs. and Neill's playing Normals. Nothing lately on Towne Togs.

$100,000 and Six Players Deal That Rocks Ball Meet

By JOE REICHLER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP). — The drowsy winter baseball meetings were slow waking up, but when the shot came it was a corker—a deal between St. Louis Browns and Philadelphia Athletics involving $100,000 and six players.

Connie Mack's pennant-anxious Athletics shelled out the $100,000 plus four players to the Browns to get one of the American League's top infielders, Third Baseman Bob Dillinger, and a good outfielder, Paul Lehner.

The $100,000 was the welcome part of the deal for the Browns whose president Bill Dewitt, said: "I can't make any money at the gate. "I've got to make it selling my best players."

But the Browns also receive veteran third baseman Frank Gustine and three rookies—shortstop Billy Demars and outfielders Ray Coleman and Rocco Ippolitto.

The deal, which busted the trading log-jam wide open, was closed shortly before midnight by Dewitt and Earle Mack, Connie's son and coach, who got together at Commissioner A. B. Chandler's dinner for the baseball moguls at a midtown night club.

Two Other Deals

Two other transactions earlier in the day involving the Boston Braves, Pittsburg Pirates, and Chicago Cubs were tossed into a subordinate category by this fancy American League swap.

The Braves disposed of two players, sending pitcher Bill Voiselle to the Cubs for infielder Gene Mauch and cash and handing over outfielder Marv Rickert to the Pirates for "more than $10,000" plus a minor leaguer to be named later.

This revived talk that Manager Billy Southworth planned some sort of housecleaning with his disgruntled Braves despite Billy's own insistence he holds no grudge and there will be no "head chopping."

Dillinger, 31-ear-old veteran, batted .324 last season and stole 20 bases to lead the league in that department. Lehner is a fleet, 29-year-old flychaser with a stout arm.

In a secret meeting Tuesday the National League decided to uphold the minor leagues who voted to retain the bonus rule. The American League, on the other hand, voted to repeal the derstood that Chandler, who does not like the rule, will appoint a committee to study the matter further. The minors may be asked to vote again via a mail ballot.

Outboards Roll 3158 Total In Lasses Loop

Marines led the Girls City Bowling League this week with 3158 pinnage as Towne Togs took down single game honors with 1278. Marg Seikirk of Togs led individuals with a 781 cross and 326 single, while M. Batley had a 775 triple and E. Thompson 711. The blind score was won by E. Thompson at 731. Cardinals blanked Sevenaires while 2-1 wins were marked by Curtin's over Dickson's, Brintons against Togs, Aces over Collis, and Marines over Arcos. The chicken roll is next Monday night, and all subs are entitled to bowl. Results:

Automobile Bonspiels Getting Too Frequent

WINNIPEG, Dec. 14 (CP) — Are automobile bonspiels—curling's equivalent to radio's jackpot programs—on the wane?

To some extent, yes.

Last winter, six of these rich classics were scheduled, but one—Eveleth, Minn.—was forced to cancel the affair due to lack of entries. This year, Portage La Prairie Man., faced the same difficulty and cancelled its car 'spiel.

But Nipawin, Sask., Saskatoon, Rosetown, Sask., and Edmonton are continuing with some success.

Many curlers feel there are too many car 'spiels and sponsors are "cutting each other's throats." Others say the 'spiels are being held "out of season," while still others believe they'll "die a natural death."

U.S. Footballer Fights $105,000 Suit

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14 — (AP)—A notice of motion to dismiss a $105,000 anti-trust suit against the National Football League and its members was filed in Federal District Court on Tuesday. Hearing on the motion was set for Jan. 9.

William Radovich, former Detroit Lion football player, is suing the association and its members on the ground he was blacklisted after jumping a contract with Detroit. Radovich played with the Edmonton entry in the Western Interprovincial Football Union this season.

The notice that a dismissal will be sought was filed on behalf of the Chicago Cardinals, New York Giants, Chicago Bears, Los Angeles Rams and Detroit Lions. It states that the complaint was not properly served, the court does not have jurisdiction, and that the plaintiff failed to state a claim.

Stanlee Faces Real Test In Bout With Samara

Steve Stanlee — wrestling's "Golden Boy" — is matched against Seelie Samara, huge, colored grappler, in the main bout at the Brock tomorrow night. It will be a real test for Stanlee as he faces a clever and fast-moving husky in Samara, he of the "hammer head" and sudden grips. Popular Steve is also a well-built hefty man with a lot of ring speed and experience, but he will have to go all out to hold his own with Seelie in what should be a thriller. It will likely be the last grapple card till out in January.

Seelie Samara

Mayes McLain goes against Johnny Barend in the semi-final bout on this program, and Kaye Belle tackles Bill Stack—fast becoming a topnotcher in the moneyed ranks—in the prelim. Both the semi-final and opener should be action-packed. Mayes McLain is a top-flight matman and the baby-faced Barend showed a willingness to mix it here last week in his match.

The show starts Thursday at 8:45 p.m. and should draw the biggest city and district crowd of the season.

Injuries Cripple NHL Teams In Tough Series

By HARRY ECCLES,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Christmas and New Year's do not spell "holiday" for the coaches and players of the National Hockey League.

They start tonight on the toughest section of the long schedule, with 27 games scheduled up to and including Sunday night, Jan. 1. The Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens each have 10 games over the 18 day stretch. New York Rangers and Boston Bruins have nine, while Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks have eight.

The injury list which hangs over most clubs, particularly the Maple Leafs and Canadiens, was scanned with new intensity as coaches prepared for the year-end grind. All clubs are in action tonight with Canadiens at Leafs, Rangers at Hawks and Wings at Bruins. The Leafs and Canadiens go right back at each other again tomorrow night in Montreal.

George Armstrong of the Junior Toronto Marlboros will centre one Leaf line against Canadiens tonight. Decision to give Armstrong his second out of three big league starts was made after X-rays at Toronto showed Ray Timgren, used at centre for the last few games, had a bone chip in his lift hand. The club's first-string centre, Cal Gardner is still out with injuries and onlyslippery Max Bentley is left of Toronto top forward pivots.

The other Toronto centre, Captain Ted Kennedy, has been out of action for weeks but is expected back shortly.

The Canadiens are nearly as hard hit. Coach Dick Irvin said he didn't know what kind of a team he'd have on the ice tonight. Defenceman Glen Harmon and Ken Reardon are very doubtful starters, and Knobby Warwick isn't expected to skate.

Reardon suffered facial injuries at Chicago Sunday and may have a broken nose. Harmon hurt his knee a week ago, and Warwick is recovering from an operation on a broken nose.

Montreal Canadiens May Take-Over Gens

TORONTO, Dec. 14—(CP)—Oshawa Generals, last independent club in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, may come under professional sponsorship next season.

Matt Layden, an official of the Oshawa club, said here Tuesday night he had conferred with Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. He said there was no definite agreement but he hoped that by next season the Canadiens would be supplying the Generals with players.

However, Dick Irvin, Canadiens coach here with his team, said: 'I haven't heard about it and I would be very surprised it it's true."

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

With a sensational last-round rally, Lloyd Barnett, 181, of Kingston, Jamaica, stopped the knockout string of Earl Walls, 188½, of Toronto by earning a decision in the eight-round bout before packed Albert Hall at London, Eng., Tuesday night.

Walls, who had previously scored four straight knockouts in his fights in Britain, had the Jamaican on the floor four times in the first three rounds, but Barnett weathered the storm to prove superior in stamina.

The positions were reversed in the last stanza when Barnett, with a hurricane series of rights to the head, dropped Walls twice.

Referee Jack Hart lifted Barnett's hand as both boys stood groggily at the bell.

Calgary Stampeders two towering ends—Woody Strode and Ezzrett (Sugarfoot) Anderson — said Tuesday "we'll both be back next year."

Sugarfoot left Calgary Tuesday by plane for Los Angeles but Strode stayed behind for treatment of a shoulder injury He is expected to leave for Los Angeles in a couple of weeks. Riley Matheson, another United States football import, left for his home in California immediately after the Grey Cup final in Toronto. The remaining two imports on the Stamps—Keith Spaith and John Aguirre—now make their home in Calgary.

At least one member of last year's Hamilton Tigers, Ontario Rugby Football champions, has received an offer to play in the Big Four next season. Alfie Crooker, quarterback with the Bengals, said Tuesday night he had received an offer from Ottawa Roughriders' president, Jim McCaffrey and had replied that he "would definitely be interested in a worthwhile offer."

At Toledo, O. light heavyweight Leonard Morrow, 175, of Oakland, Calif., was knocked out at the Sports Arena Tuesday night—by two right crosses thrown by Archie Moore and a blow to his head when it struck the edge of the ring. Morrow was unconscious on arrival at hospital, but quickly recovered. Although reported not seriously hurt, he was held there overnight for observation.

Manager-coach Neil Colville of New Haven Ramblers of the American Hockey League announced Tuesday that defenceman Jack Evans has been recalled by the parent New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Phil Wrigley, Jr., president of Chicago Cubs, was re-elected vice-president of the National Baseball League Tuesday at New York. Frank McKinney of Pittsburgh, was re-elected the league's representative on baseball's executive council.

A woman will match her riding skill against John Longden, America's leading jockey at Agua Caliente, Mex., Sunday. The woman is Mrs. Wantha Davis, a native of Liberal, Kas., and mother of a nine-year-old son. Her husband is a horse trainer. Walter C Marty, general manager of the Caliente track, said the Canadian raised Longden had sent an acceptance for the match race.

Fair grounds race track officials at New Orleans declared on Tuesday the track was "being knocked out by open vice." Directors called on authorities to put an end to "flagrant and open operation of illegal handbooks throughout the city."

Dukes Crush Generals 10-1 Armstrong One-Man Show

By The Canadian Press.

George Armstrong, Toronto Marlboro's rangy centre star, put on a one-man show last night, rapping in five goals to pace the first place Dukes to a crushing 10-1 victory over Oshawa Generals in the second game of an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A double-header at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

The win increased Marlboros lead to three points over the idle Windsor Spitfires.

In the first game, St. Michael's College Majors took over undisputed possession of fourth place by belting Galt Black Hawks, 6-3. In other games last night, St. Catharines Teepees thumped Barrie Flyers 6-3 to retain third place and in the only senior encounter, Hamilton's lowly Tigers reached up to blast third slot Owen Sound 8-2.

Marlboros counted three times in the big final frame.

Lorne Pirie notched a pair of markers to come next to Armstrong with his five while singletons were counted by George Aitken, Murray Grenke and Red Mitchell. Harry Sinden scored Oshawa's lone counter in the finale.

Gets Three Goals

Willy Marshall paced the Toronto collegians to their win over Galt with three goals.

Marshall opened the scoring in the first period and also in the second to put the Irish two up. George Ford tallied for the Hawks to cut the lead in half before Marshall came back with his third near the end of the middle frame.

St. Mike's outscored Galt 3-2 in the final frame to pick up the two points, the scores coming off the sticks of Bob Sabourin, Red Ingoldsby and Leo Labine. Bronco Norvath clicked for two Galt markers in the final stanza.

St. Catharines and Barrie split tallies in the opening period at the Garden City, Jack White punching in the Teepee counter and Doug Towers doing the honors for the visiting Barrie club.

The clubs each rapped in a pair in the middle stanza. Con Switzer notched his first for St. Catharines and Wayne Browne added the third Teepee goal. Gord Warner and John Bobenic took care of the scoring department for Barrie.

Blow Off Lid

The home club blew the lid off in the last period, smacking in three markers while holding Barrie scoreless. Norm Corcoran started it off, Con Switzer poked in his second and Frank Martin finished it off, killing any Barrie hopes of sneaking into a third-place deadlock.

Owen Sound and Hamilton played through a scoreless first period in the Mountain City, but the veteran Bengals sprang to life in the second session to flash the red light five times without a Mercury raply.

Owen Sound retaliated with a pair in the third period but Hamilton came back with three to clinch the victory.

The Tiger scoring honors were well divided, all eight goals being collected by different performers. Eddie Busch, Ab Conick, Max Taylor, Carl Smelle, Polly Miocinovich, Hal Hursley, Clare Shillington and Murray Comfort al turned the trick for a single score. The two Mercury markers were scored by Harry Kazarian and Bern White.

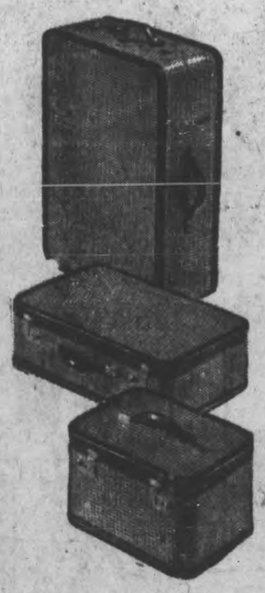
New Drug Fraud



STUTTGART, Germany, Dec. 14 (Reuters)—An alleged new drug against tuberculosis called "T 35," which recently made a stir in medical circles, turned out to be laurel seeds and honey, it was disclosed here today when its "inventor," Rudolf Gross, alias Dr. Von Bach, was sentenced to four years in jail for fraud.

Absenteeism Said Symptom Of Mental Ill Health

The successful industrial foreman of the future will be a man or woman who has had special instruction in mental-health principles, says Christian Smith, director of public education and organization services of the national committee for mental hygiene (Canada).

In an article—"Mental Health is Important to Industry" — Mr. Smith says that when speaking of mental ill-health in industry there should not be so much concern with psychotic conditions—conditions which are so acute that the patient, as demonstrated by his behavior, is unmistakably ill. There should be, however, concern about the less spectacular and often hidden personality disoders.

"It is these minor illnesses which affect our relationships with others, our attitudes to the job, our effectiveness and our happiness," writes Mr. Smith. "The personality difficulties of one individual may upset the equilibrium of a whole organization, lowering its morale and efficiency. This is particularly true when they are present in supervisory staff, upon whom so much of the morale of an organization depends . . . the supervisor who understands people is most likely to succeed. A supervisor who understands why people behave the way they do is likely to affect profoundly the relationships between labor and management."

The writer states that absenteeism is but one symptom of mental ill health in industry. "There are many," he writes, "but those which may be quickly labelled are inefficiency, low productivity, poor labor-management relations, and high accident rates. Competent representatives of industrial medicine have stimated that about 30 per cent of medical absenteeism in industry today is due to emotional disturbances.

"There is, of course, no mental health or mental illness peculiar to industry," says Mr. Smith. "The people who make up our industrial forces are like other Canadians. It follows then that in our industrial life, as elsewhere, each worker must be considered as a person, and not as an unfeeling, inanimate cog of machinery."

LIFE EXPECTANCY

The average Canadian woman 40 years old can expect to live about 34 years more, while the average man of the same age has only about 32 years ahead.

Home-Made
CHRISTMAS CANDY
by Kate Aitken
Another Tamblyn Service

HOME MADE CANDY is one of the most acceptable and personal gifts you can give at Christmas. It's a personal gift that takes with it something of you, the giver.

CANDY RECIPE SHEETS are available in every Tamblyn store and are yours for the asking.

FAVORITE RECIPE IS THE ALMOND CREAM

2 cups brown sugar
1 tablespoon corn starch
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup milk
¼ cup corn syrup
3 tablespoons butter
1/3 cup roasted almonds, finely chopped
1 teaspoon vanilla

Put sugar, corn starch, baking powder and salt into saucepan; mix thoroughly. Add milk, corn syrup and butter. Stir over low heat until dissolved; boil more rapidly to soft ball stage (238 deg. F.). Remove from heat; let stand 3 minutes. Beat until smooth and thick; add nuts and flavoring. Blend; pour into oiled 6" x 6" pan. Cut in squares while still warm. Yield: 1 pound candy.

SALTED NUTS are easily made at home. Blanch ½ pound almonds by covering the nuts with boiling water, let stand for 5 minutes. Place in cold water until the skins slip off easily. Dry the nuts and place in a bowl; add 1 tablespoon oil; toss lightly with a fork. Spread on a cookie sheet; sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt. Crisp in a slow oven (300 deg. F.); they should be stirred from time to time so that they may brown evenly. Yield: ½ pound nuts.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE is another Christmas treat. Mix together 4 cups white sugar, 2/3 cup rich milk, 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened grated chocolate, ⅛ teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons corn syrup in a saucepan. Stir over low heat until the chocolate has melted and the sugar is dissolved. Increase the heat; let the mixture boil until it reaches the soft ball stage (236 deg. F.). Stir just enough to prevent scorching. Remove from the heat; add 2 tablespoons butter. Let cool to lukewarm (110 deg. F.) without stirring. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla; beat until the candy has just lost its gloss and becomes thick enough to hold its shape. Pour immediately into an oiled pan; mark in squares before the candy is firm. Yield: 1 pound candy

Canadians And Americans Most Enthusiastic Tourists

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, Dec. 14 —(CP)—Of the 2,000-odd visitors who come to historic St. Paul's Cathedral every week, Canadians and Americans show the most enthusiasm.

Black-gowned vergers whose duty it is to answer thousands of good, bad and indifferent questions say North American visitors reveal surprising knowledge of the cathedral's history and show the most willingness to "fag up and downstairs."

There are 400 stone steps climbing spirally through three revolutions from the cathedral floor to the triforium gallery, where a number of historical exhibits now are on view. Tired, footsore tourists are sometimes known to balk at the sight of these steps—but not so the North American variety.

"They are game for anything," one verger said. "They'd climb to the gold cross on top of the cathedral if you let them.

Proud of Heritage

"What most Americans want to know is where the King and Queen sit when they attend service at St. Paul's. They just love to hear anything about royalty and many of them tell you proudly they are of British descent.

Canadian Historians

"Canadians on the other hand seem more interested in how the cathedral was built and its historical associations. Many give you the impression they've read up the subject beforehand."

The visitor's reward for toiling up into the triforium gallery is a priceless collection of exhibits representing the first instalment of what is to become a permanent exhibition.

The oak-panelled library adjoining the gallery houses prints, drawings and engravings by Sir Christopher Wren, St. Paul's famous architect, and several conjectural representations of earlier cathedrals which occupied the same site.

"They are conjectural," an official said, "because we possess little evidence of these former shrines — even of the last great church known as old St. Paul's."

Reformation Manuscripts

The library also contains a rich collection of manuscripts, mostly of the reformation period, recently acquired for St. Paul's from collector R. H. C. Fairhurst of Cheshire.

Ultimately the exhibition will embrace the history of cathedral and its site from the end to the Roman occupation, through the Anglo-Saxon, Norman Medieval periods to the present time.

Ships Bring Cheer

LONDON, Dec. 14 — (CP). — Four Canadian ships arriving this week bring thousands of tons of Christmas cheer for Britons. The Empress of Canada docked at Liverpool Tuesday with 50,000 parcels and enough bacon to supply the ration of 6,728,000 Britons for one week. The freighter Beaverford brought 12,678 barrels of Canadian apples, while her sister ship the eBaverglen is due in London today. The Beaverdell is due in London next week-end.

TRIAL VERDICT is awaited by alleged spies in the Yugoslav trials of 10 Soviet citizens including Aleksei Krishko, Russian Orthodox priest, and Ksenia Komad, former Orthodox nun. The defendants, all White Russians who became Soviet Citizens after the last war, are charged with being members of a Russian spy network inside Yugoslavia to assist in a Cominform plot to overthrow Tito.

No Survivors On Plane

KARACHI, Pakistan, Dec. 14 —(Reuters). — All 26 people aboard a Pakair DC-3 died when the plane crashed into a 1,000-foot hill Monday night, it was officially announced. The plane's passengers included two Britons, two Pakistani generals, and five Middle East and North African delegates to the recent Islamic economic conference here.

Bee's Dancing Tells Others Of Honey Find

LONDON, Dec. 14 (CP)—How worker bees spread the story in the hive of a new and rich source of pollen is the subject of a study by Professor Karl Von Frisch of Munich University.

As early as 1923 Professor von Frisch determined that the worker transmits the information by a dance on the vertical surface of the honeycomb, the vigor of the dance indicating the richness of the discovery.

From later research, the professor concluded that the dance also gives distance and direction of the supply.

In the dance, the worker runs in a circle on the comb, first in one direction and then in another, in a figure eight pattern. The two loops are separated by a straight run, during which the worker wags its abdomen from side to side.

The number of figures of eight completed in a minute tell the relative distance of the find from the hive, the professor says. More figures, with small loops and longer straight runs tell of a distant supply. When the loops are almost superimposed, a short distance is indicated.

The direction of the straight run between the loops tells the other worker bees where to go. If the movement is vertical on the comb, the supply is located toward the sun; if the movement is straight down, it is away from the sun. This direction refers to the position of the sun at the time of the discovery.

Vigor of the abdomen-wagging indicates the accessibility of the feeding place and the mount of energy needed to reach the spot.

Senator Johnson Fights Sharing Atomic Data

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP) Opposition to any new exchange of atomic bomb information with Britain was voiced Tuesday by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.-Colo.).

Johnson, a member of the Senate-House of Representatives Atomic Committee, told a reporter.

"I don't favor any additional exchange of information with the British, or anybody else."

"It was Johnson who created a stir last month when he said in a television program that the US now has bombs six times as powerful as those dropped on Japan in the war and is working on a weapon 1,000 times more powerful.

His outspoken opposition indicated that a proposed agreement for a broader atomic partnership with Britain and Canada will run into some trouble when it comes before the Atomic Committee.

Truman administration officials are understood to have promised the committee it will be taken behind the scenes of the British-Canadian-American Atomic conferences before any attempt is made to put the proposed new agreement in force.

Reports indicate that Britain is ready to abandon attempts to manufacture atomic weapons in exchange for a partnership in the American production effort which would bring British and Canadian scientists into the work here.

This would free most of the Belgian Congo uranium supply for US use.

We cannot begin to list the features of this new automobile. We can, however, show them to you both on the road and in the showroom.

A typical customer report is like Mr. G. W. McKinley of R.R. 1, Peterborough. He says: "My 1950 Studebaker handles and rides beautifully. ECONOMICAL, I should say so. I average from 30 to 34 miles per gallon, depending on the type of driving I am doing."

We invite you to visit our show-room any evening this week. If you just want to look, you can do so. If you want to drive one, a demonstrator will be on hand. You owe it to yourself to shop around before you make that choice for 1950.

Open evenings until 10 every night this week.

TREE PROTECT BURGLARS—Giftless Christmas trees up for sale in a vacant lot in Montreal spread $4,000 worth of Yule cheer to burglars who broke into a jewelry shop recently. The burglars, still being sought by police, hid behind the trees as they bored a hole through the wall (arrow) to gain entry. At left is a hole inside the store which the burglars also used as an escape hatch after they loaded themselves with watches, bracelets and compacts.

Captains Fined For Negligence

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 14 (AP)—Two Great Lakes ship captains were fined Tuesday on charges of negligently operating freighters involved in a fatal collision in 1948.

Federal Judge Raymond W. Starr imposed a fine of $700 on Stanley Kielbasa, 60, of Chicago, and $500 on Frank Quinn, of Cleveland. Both had pleaded nolo contendre (no defence).

Kielbasa was the master of the S.S. Crete, which was involved in a collision with the S.S. J. P. Morgan, captained by Quinn, during a Lake Superior fog June 23, 1948. Two sailors died in the crash.

2 Provinces Quarrel Over Iron Deposits

OTTAWA, Dec. 14—(CP)—The discovery of important iron ore deposits appears to be developing into a rift between two provincial premiers over boundary lines.

Quebec's premier, Maurice Duplessis, says two-thirds of the development is in that part of Labrador which belongs to Quebec.

Newfoundland's premier, Joseph Smallwood, says the deposits are largely in that part of Labrador which belongs to Newfoundland.

But he isn't going to start "any war" about boundary lines with Mr. Duplessis. He'd much rather sit down at a conference table and work the boundaries out amicably, he said in an interview Tuesday.

Britons Eating More Than In 1947

LONDON, Dec. 14—(AP)—Britons are eating more than two years ago, the Ministry of Food announced Tuesday.

Consumption of some food stuffs is even higher than before the war, it said.

The annual average consumption of meat however, fell from 90 pounds in 1946 to less than 70 pounds in 1948-49. The Ministry said that supply difficulties in Argentina and Canada caused a fall of imports of meat and bacon respectively.

Britons are getting now 55 per cent more milk, 30 per cent more dairy products and 25 per cent more fish than before the war. It added that the per capita daily calorie level now averages 2,980.

Canada Steps Up Her Defence Budget In 1949 To Record Amount

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Dec. 00 (CP) — In many ways, 1949 was the most important peacetime year Canadian defence has known.

The defence budget jumped more than 50 per cent to $383,000,000—a record for a year of peace. The forces were wedded to the country's first formal military alliance in the Atlantic Pact. The air force stepped out as the No. 1 service.

The regular forces, with past recruiting difficulties over, netted some 8,000 new men and moved towards a total standing strength of 50,000. They were some 3,000 to 4,000 men short at year's end.

Construction of barracks, homes and installations, such as hangars, cost some $100,000,000. Orders for new combat planes and naval craft and for repairs and modernization of those now in use probably exceeded that total.

The RCAF established its first regular fighter squadron and an Air Defence Group set up headquarters in Montreal to direct defence preparations. A radar early-warning system to protect vital approaches got under way.

Addition of Newfoundland to Confederation added a great defence bastion to the nation. Canada made no effort to disturb U.S. military rule at three bases on the island but pressed for modification of certain civilian privileges given under a 99-year lease.

Joint Defence Link

The forces united to establish a joint communications system that linked through relay centres not only all military bases in Canada but defence headquarters in such capitals as Washington and London.

The framework of ready defence was taking shape in the radar system, the communications, regular and reserve fighter squadrons, the continued training of elements of the army's airborne brigade, the navy's anti-submarine preparations.

But 1949 also had its frustrations and its moments of doubt. The government kept hammering at the U.S. for an arms-exchange bargain, without making any noticeable headway. It was hoped Canada could make and sell to the United States equipment usable by services of both countries as part of a projected over-all arms unification program.

A three-man commission found a widespread feeling that the navy is stretched too far and too thin, that there is a broad lack of experience among its officers and an artificial distance between officers and men.

In the Commons, Maj.-Gen. G R. Pearkes, V.C., (PC-Nanaimo) made the first major assault on defence policy and advocated that $3 be spent on the RCAF for every dollar spent on the army.

Press reports on Exercise Eagle, a week-end air-land exercise along the Alaska highway, were generally critical of equipment used. Army reserve units were generally well below strength and recruiting aimed at another 10,000 men to add to the 39,000 now in. Reserve units of the other forces were below strength, too, but officials said new recruits couldn't be absorbed any faster.

The navy's 18,000-ton aircraft carrier Magnificent went aground and was laid up for months in drydock. But that piece of bad news was counteracted by the feat of the destroyer Haida in rescuing 18 U.S. airmen off Bermuda in winter seas.

Unity Comes Slowly

And among these highs and lows many things proceeded quietly. The administrative headaches rooted in the drive to unify the defence department were slowly eased by young, able C. M. Brig. C. M. Drury new deputy minister.

The experimental stations at Suffield, Alta., and Churchill, Man., went ahead steadily with facterial, chemical and Arctic warfare tests.

The navy opened a rescruit-training centre near Digby, N.S., exercised in anti-submarine warfare with U.S. and U.K. fleets, handed out $40,000,000 in orders for new ships. The army moved ahead with training in a network of schools, tested its first airborne battalion and found it good, kept building towards an airborne brigade.

The RCAF launched a maritime squadron in Nova Scotia, mapped tens of thousands of square miles in the north, carried out regular transport flights along thousands of miles of regular routes. U.S Defence Secretary Louis Johnson came and went as the most important of numerous important visitors.

In the headlines temporarily were the Haidas rescue, the RCAF's mercy flights and rescue of five air-crashed U.S. and British servicemen in a northern wilderness, the loss of 20 lives in the crash of an air force plane in Manitoba.

Duplessis Fights Radar Stations

QUEBEC, Dec. 14 (CP)—Premier Duplessis said Tuesday that there appears to be a Federal government plan to set up radar installations in Quebec provincial parks and he is opposed to it.

He told a delegation from the Saguenay district that he was not opposed to any step needed for the defence of Canada but he thinks provincial fish and game preserves will suffer if radar equipment and crews are established in them permanently.

(In Ottawa, a national defence department spokesman said that a plan had been considered to establish a number of radar stations in Canada and "in the plan, one station, at least, happened to fit into a provincial park.")

Three Installations

Mr. Duplessis said that three Quebec provincial parks had been singled out for radar installations.

"One is wanted in Gaspe Park, one in Mount Oford Park and one in Laurentide Park," the leader of Quebec's Union Government told the delegation. "Why should it be in our provincial parks?"

Premier Duplessis said he had conferred with Defence Minister Claxton but he said it was "false" that a dispute between provincial and federal authorities had occurred on the question of radar.

"A park is a fishing and hunting reserve, a place where natural resources belonging to the province are protected," he said. "If we permit radar installations, with an army of 150 to 200 men established in our parks, the parks are no longer parks...."

Plan S.S. Party

BONARLAW, Dec. 14 (ENS) — At a recent executive meeting of the officers and teachers of St. Mark's Sunday school, it was decided to hold the annual Christmas tree and concert between Christmas and New Year's day. A pot-luck dinner was suggested with games and a short musical program and recitations afterwards.

Find British MP's Becoming Very Sensitive

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, Dec. 14 (CP) — Political skins are as sensitive as ever in Westminster's last working week before prorogation.

With a general election just around the corner, it takes only a tiny irritant to produce parliamentary responses pitched somewhere between a sob and a snarl.

Current gripes even extend to music halls, home of British vaudeville and traditional setting for sly cracks at politicians. One favorite gag has Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, on a raft.

The raft sinks. In answer to a question as to who was saved, a comedian supplies the punch line: "England."

The government-sponsored National Coal Board took offence last week at a west end play entitled "Castle In The Air," which contains some derisive references to bureaucracy.

When word got out that the coal board was worried, the play's author relaliated with lighthearted verses on the propriety of being droll about coal. Nothing further was heard from the board.

Official Touchiness

Another report on official touchiness came from the press association's parliamentary correspondent. He said that one of the Labor Party's women members of parliament declined to buy a box of chocolates in a store that was displaying anti-nationalization propaganda.

The political propaganda she saw was part of an advertising campaign currently being waged by Britain's biggest sugar company, Tate and Lyle, against nationalization of the sugar industry.

More is likely to be heard on this subject Thursday. The House of Commons is set to debate a motion asking political parties—"and other organizations having political action as one of their aims"—to publish annual accounts.

Morrison, usually the personification of sweet reasonableness, says the issue is one "which goes to the roots of our parliamentary democracy."

Music was provided by the Peterborough String Trio: Mrs. Searles of Peterborough entertained with vocal and piano solos and other numbers were given by the members of the string trio.

HAPPY REUNION — Norman Daniel, 24, Canada's youngest blind veteran, introduces his pretty English bride, Betty, to his father, Walter Daniel. The young former soldier, who lost his sight in a mine explosion in Europe, returned to Montreal recently from Britain, where he trained as a physiotherapist. He is vacationing in his native Verdun, a Montreal suburb, and will return to England early next year.

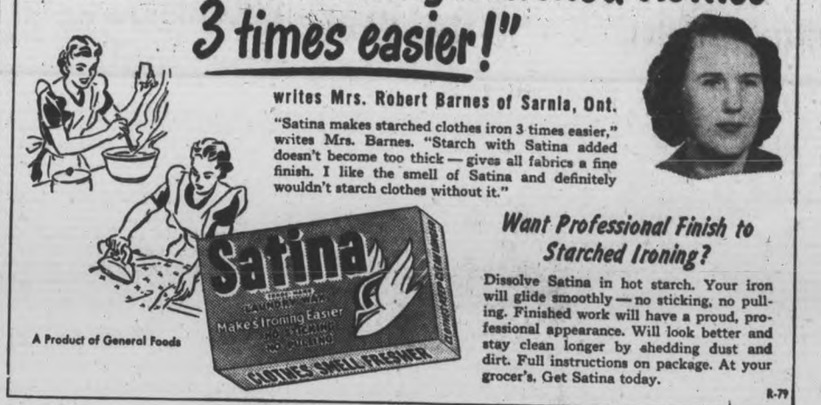
Eskimo Mounties Play Vital Role Looking After Canada's Arctic

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Two Eskimo Mounties in hospital here are "itching to get back" on police duty in Canada's Arctic.

Jimmy Gibbons and Simon Kulik are two of 50 Eskimos serving as special constables with northern "Mountie" detachments.

"The force couldn't do its job in the Arctic properly without these men," a senior R. C. M. P. officer said recently.

Gibbons has been a special constable for 14 years, and because of his good record and length of service he is a "senior man." He draws a monthly salary from Ottawa, like any other constable, and is accorded an honored place in Eskomo Point, his home village, 200 miles north of Churchill, Man. Kulik has been with the R. C. M. P. at Chesterfield Inlet for the last four years.



"Sure it's quite a thing for an Eskimo to become a Mountie," Gibbon said in an interview here. "We don't get uniforms, but then you could wear them up home anyway." At Eskomo Point he is office-sweeper, fire-guide, hunter fisherman and fire-builder. "I play craps too," he admits laughingly.

Both Gibbons and Kulik are suffering from polio, but they visited local R. C. M. P. barracks recently to make sure they wouldn't be "fired" for absence from their Arctic pasts of duty. Hospital nursese attending the two men are amazed at their high intelligence. Both are keen bridge-players and experts at cribbage and solitaire.

Linda Darnell Won't Have Boyish Look

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14 (AP)— If fashion designers are serious about promoting the "boyish look," they can include Linda Darnell out.

"I'll have no part of it," says the busty glamor girl about the proposed return of the slim silhouette of the '20s.

"I think it looks terrible. Besides, it's unhealthy. Many girls really ruined their figures for life when they had to bind their chest to get the flat effect.

"Why can't women look like women and men look like men? That's what makes life more interesting."

Canadian Notes

Walter Huston keeps sighing that he's reached the age where he wants to do only one picture a year. But at 65, he plays tennis almost every day.

"I'm not much good," the Toronto-born star admits. "You might say I play a casual game."

Greater faith hath no wife. Jessica Tandy is investing some of her own money in the play of her husband, Hume Cronyn. It's called "Now I Lay Down To Sleep" and the Fredric Marches are staring in it. The London, Ont., native is anxious to open the play at London's Grand Theatre.

Odd Bits

Fred Astaire is now teamed with a gal who may prove to be his best dance partner—Vera-Ellen. . .

Funniest thing I ever saw on TV was a silent-movie skit by Buster Keaten and Ed Wynn's show. What a great field video will be for the great old comedians!

Col Philip Cochran, fabulous figure of the war, is technical advisor on "Jet Pilot." The script is trying to keep up with the headlines. In it, Janet Leigh plays a Russian spy. . .

Elsa Lanchester, who has four unreleased pictures, was asked what she'll do next. "I think I'll sit around on my back-log," she answered. . .

Try Wire Recorders

LONDON, Dec. 14 (Reuters)— Electromagnetic wire recorders were set up in the London Court of Appeal Tuesday to make permanent verbatim records of judgments. It was the first use of sound-recording apparatus in British legal history. The Appeal Justices had complained that important judgments in their court were not recorded by official shorthand writers, as in other branches of the High Court.

THE HILLMAN MINX IS HERE TO STAY!

"Strongest coast-to-coast dealer organization of any British car" says prominent west-coast distributor.

An unquestioned authority in the motor business, Mr. Ernie McDermott, of McDermott Motors, Vancouver, B.C., has been selling cars for 29 years. He writes:

"In my opinion, the most important reason for the Hillman's popularity is because the public knows that Rootes Motors is permanently established in Canada, with the strongest coast-to-coast dealer organization of any British car group. Buyers are assured of Hillman parts and service anywhere in Canada—now and in the years to come!"

"Yes, the Hillman Minx is here to stay! And, when you also consider the fact that it offers a combination of styling, comfort, dependability and economy which no other car—large or small—can match, it's not hard to see why we've sold over six times as many Hillmans this year as in the same period last year!"

With its 1950 "PLUS POWER" motor . . . It's a better buy than ever!

Horse In Stall Found Slashed

Humane Society Inspector Gerald Dunford and Provincial Police are combining to investigate the case of a horse in Smith Twp. that received a mysterious 4-inch cut on its right shoulder.

The animal is owned by Zack Miller. When Mr. Miller went down to the stable on Sunday to look after the horse he found the long cut extending from the shoulder onto the right foreleg.

It is not believed the horse could have inflicted this on himself while in the stable, and Inspector Dunford and police are continuing the investigation.

UE To Oppose IUE Application

The UE has filed a notice of intervention in the IUE-CIO application for certification as the legal bargaining agent at the CGE plant, Peterborough.

Notice of the application by the IUE was posted in the plant some time ago, but the UE intends to argue the case against the right-wingers when the Ontario Labor Relations Board has its hearing.

An official letter of intervention, signed by Ross Russell, director of UE organization, has been filed with the OLRB. Four main objections to the IUE claims are outlined.

One, the UE claims it holds the present collective agreement with the company and this is a bar to application by the IUE at this time.

Two, the IUE is not a trade union within the meaning of the Ontario Labor Relations Act, 1948, and therefore has no status before the Board.

Elaborating on these two objections, R. R. Sullivan, district representative, told the Examiner today:

"We are the legal bargaining unit and our contract does not run out until June 1950. Furthermore, the IUE is only a paper organization. It has no status in Canada whatsoever."

The third point made by the UE in its letter to the OLRB is that the IUE has not a majority of the employees in the bargaining unit as signed up and paid members.

And fourthly, the affidavit of verification is not a proper one.

Rev. John J. O'Leary Domestic Prelate

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 14—Monsignor John J. O'Leary of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament was invested in the dignity of a Domestic Prelate by Bishop R. H. Dignan here Tuesday night.

Monsignor O'Leary was born in Otonabee, Peterborough county, in 1894, and was ordained to the priesthood on his 24th birthday. He was appointed as assistant at St. Mary's Church, Lindsay, and was then transferred to the present diocese of Sault Ste. Marie. Monsignor O'Leary served at Sault Ste. Marie, North Bay and Copper Cliff, was five years overseas as a chaplain with the Canadian army, and was parish priest of the Church of Christ the King, Sudbury, until 1948, when he returned to Sault Ste. Marie.

Extend Brotherhood of Man To Include All Peoples

Christmas-time brotherhood should be extended to include all the world's peoples so that each will view his fellow man with sympathetic understanding, Gay H. Brown, former Supreme Court Justice in New York State, told more than 300 members and guests of the Peterborough Sales and Advertising Club at the clubs' annual Christmas party Tuesday night.

No matter what their color or religion, all peoples should be treated as human individuals with dignity, not as some sort of animals, he declared.

"Only through complete friendliness and moral force can we arrive at the time when we will be able to cease fearing the atom bomb," Mr. Brown said.

Individuals are profoundly influenced by the mental pictures or portraits they have of themselvets, and by the portraits they believe other people have of them.

The young school boy who fails to get first class honors at school and is constantly berated for that failure by his father, will develop a feeling of inferiority, he will never overcome as long as he lives. In his own eyes he is a failure and will always expect to be.

Some judges have a habit of showing their contempt for convicted wrong-doers in long speeches in their courts," he said. But, in Mr. Brown's opinion, given a similar heredity and environment, those same judges would probably be exactly where the object of their vituperation now stood.

Salesmen, as well, should be human, above all else. They should be human, not in the common sense of making mistakes, being ignorant or being constantly critical, but should be human by showing sympathetic understanding, the speaker stated.

The Hon. Mr. Brown was introduced by Alex Elliott, KC and thanked by Jack Hayward.

The Christmas party featured a draw for five turkeys, a draw for five other prizes and a draw for two $100 Christmas basket prizes. Winners of the Christmas baskets were H. Wainman, 1047 Western Ave. and Bert Godwin, 600 McKellar St.

Members of the Junior Sales and Ad Club of Toronto helped provide some of the entertainment. A floor show by professional entertainers followed. Bill Godson was chairman of the committee in charge of arranging the Christmas party.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE

Ald. Grant Miller cleared from his file this morning unfinished business of the property committee of which he is chairman. It was probably the final meeting at which he will preside. One item brought a recommendation to the council to charge Peterborough Lumber Co. $33 rental of the city property on which they have an advertising sign at the north end. The meeting lasted an hour and a half.

Hydro Boost May Push Up Rates In City

The increased electric power rates announced today by Robert Saunders, Toronto, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, may amount in Peterborough to $65,000 or $75,000 a year.

The Peterborough Utilities Commission buys electric power from the Hydro and sells to the domestic, industrial and commercial consumers.

Mr. Saunders announced that the average rate in southern Ontario will be $24.83 per horse power, an increase of $2.25.

Peterborough's October power peak was 26,400 hp, and at $2.25 the figure of $65,000 is reached.

In the absence of an official statement here today it was assumed that the Ontario Hydro's increase might react on the power bills of Peterborough users, and retroactively. Mr. Saunders announced that the increase was effective as of Nov. 1.

The 13th Bill

Furthermore the annual refund by the Hydro-Electric Commission to Peterborough will be reduced $1.25 per horse power. That cut will come in what is known as the 13th bill.

Peterborough buys power on a peak load basis. If the peak consumption in one month is 26,000 horse power, that is the city's payment to the Hydro for that month, but consumption varies, and use is not steadily at that peak. Hence, at the end of the year it has been the custom of the Hydro to repay to the municipality the difference between the approximated monthly costs on the one hand and the cost of the power actually used. That repayment is going to be clipped.

G. S. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, was in Lindsay on business today, and R. L. Dobbin, Utilities manager, went to Toronto this morning.

Mr. Saunders suggests that Southern Ontario municipalities will likely be able to absorb the amount of the rate increase, by drawing on profits, at least as long as profits were showing.

Peterborough Utilities have been forced to increase their capital and operating expenditures with the demands of the last three years for expansion of power lines, services to hundreds of new homes, installation of equipment that was held up during the war and so on.

Maintain Expension

For the last year or more as this expansion was maintained, the Utilities Commission occasionally mentioned the prospect of having to raise the power rate to its customers. However, they had avoided any move in that direction, and there was no proximate need of a rate boost mentioned at any of the recent meetings.

George A. Macdonald, one of Utilities Commissioners, told the Examiner that he had not had time to study the report of Mr. Saunders' announcement.

The audited statement of the Utilities Commission for 1948 shows that they paid $458,249.78 for the power they purchased for Peterborough's needs. In the previous year the amount was $442,286.15 and in 1946 it was $419,117.50.

Revenues of the Commission for 1948 were $272,014.57 for domestic lighting, $115,051.91 for commercial lighting, $292,776.29 for commercial power, used by factories, $27,601.95 for street lighting and miscellaneous receipts of $2,048.98, totalling $710,-393.70.

The expenditures of the Commission all their operating costs amounted to $644,457 92, including the payments to the Hydro for power purchased. The operating surplus was $65,935.78, plus bank interest of $8,125.46. Total surplus for the year was $74,061.24, according to the statement audited by Edward Humpage.

Raymond Sanderson Dies On Way To Hospital Had Been Visiting In City

Found unconscious in a ditch on Highway 28, five miles south-west of Peterborough Monday night, Reynard Sanderson, 28, of Port Hope was taken to hospital but was pronounced dead upon arrival. Cause of his death has not been determined and a port mortem has been ordered for later today by Coroner Herbert Young. There was no obvious sign of foul play. Sanderson was found by Provincial Constable George Henderson lying in the ditch near Barry's Service Station, at the five-mile turn. The time was about 11.20 p.m.

Constable Henderson was on a routine patrol when the headlights of his prowl car and those of an oncoming motorist outlined the prone body of Sanderson. He was lying on the south side of the highway, about two feet from the travelled portion of the road.

Both Constable Henderson and the motorist, believed to be Harold Cathcart of Cavan, came back to investigate.

Nisbett's ambulance was called and he was taken to hospital but he was already dead. The body is now at Nisbett's Funeral Home.

How long the man had been lying there is not known. And the possibility of his having been struck by a passing motor vehicle is also being investigated.

Robbed of $105

On August 24 during a visit to Peterborough to buy electrical equipment, Sanderson reported to City Police he was knocked down and robbed of $105.

At that time he was taken to Civic Hospital where he was treated by Dr. J. M. O'Brien for cuts and scrapes on the face. He told police he met two men in the city and accompanied them along the CPR tracks west of George St.

Here he was set upon, knocked down and robbed, he stated.

Provincial Police say Sanderson was in Peterborough for a visit to his brother, Gordon Sanderson, 468 O'Connell Road.

Born in Port Hope

He was born in Port Hope and lived there a lifetime, son of the former Ethel Ryan and Leslie Albert Sanderson. His education was obtained at a Port Hope public school and Port Hope High School.

Sanderson was proprietor of an electrical business which he operated at the home of his parents, 318 Ridout St., Port Hope. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Besides his parents he leaves his brother Gordon in Peterborough, and a brother Arnold at home.

During the war he served for 18 months in the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps but did not get overseas. He was a bachelor.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made by his family, but it is expected that the details will be handled by the Jex and Smith Funeral Home, Port Hope.

Woman Fractures Hip In Fall On Street

Slipping on a patch of ice on Hawley St. in the south end of the city Mrs. Theron MacMillan, 111 Rubidge St., fell and fractured her right hip about 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Constable Sherman Keliele who was driving with Constable Harold Andrew along Hawley St., saw the woman fall. The policemen took her to Dr. J. M. O'Brien and she was later taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Constable Andrew reported there was a large patch of ice where the woman fell.

Planning Improvement At Sarnia Harbor

SARNIA, Dec. 14 — (CP). — Plans for the improvement of facilities at Sarnia's winter harbor were advanced Tuesday at a meeting of the Advisory Harbor Commission. Harbormaster G. A. C. Andrews said there is sufficient Public Works land to accommodate a roadway adjacent to the north slip. Another immediate need, he added, is a 550-volt hydro line so heavy repairs to vessels may be made during the winter lay-up.. The Commission decided to approach the hydro officials to see if such facilities could be provided in time for this year's contracts.

The pair are charged in connection with a break-in at the Ryan building during which several offices were ransacked.

Establish Fund To Aid Chappell Family

A relief fund has been started for Gordon F. Chappell, his wife and two children who lost their Chemong Park home Monday afternoon when the five room cottage and all its contents were destroyed by fire.

The Chappells were able to save almost nothing from the fire. Friends and neighbors in both the Park and Bridgenorth are going to try to get them established in the Park again.

Rev. D. P. Morris, who is acting as treasurer for the fund, said that already they have prospects of getting another cottage close to their former home.

The Chappells spent Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Gaunt across the road from the burned remains of their former home. The cottage they had occupied since June was owned by Wm. Grubb, 21 Dumble Ave.

The family was taken to their families in Toronto by Mr. Chappell's father but they are expected back today.

The local Red Cross will probably make their emergency unit available to the family, Rev. Morris said.

Rev. Morris said committees have been formed which are starting today to canvass the people in the Park and Bridgenorth for donations to the fund. Any money can be sent in care of Rev. Morris, Bridgenorth.

Woman Proposed As Legislature Speaker

MRS. NANCY HODGES

VICTORIA, B.C., Dec. 14 (CP) —Mrs. Nancy Hodges today was recommended as speaker of the British Columbia Legislature—a post traditionally filled by a man. It is believed to be the first time in the British Commonwealth that a woman has been given the post of speaker.

English-born Mrs. Hodges, a 61-year-old Victoria newspaperwoman, was recommended by Premier Byron Johnson to succeed former Premier John Hart to the speaker's chari. Formal ratification of her appointment will come when the legislature meets Feb. 14.

Mrs. Hodges, a coalition member of the House since 1941, writes the column One Woman's Day, in the Victoria Daily Times. Her husband, H. P. Hodges, is editor-in-chief of the Times.

In his recommendation, Premier Johnson said:

"Choice of Mrs. Hodges as the government's nominee for the position of speaker is an historical one, since, subject to confirmation, Mrs. Hodges will be the first woman speaker of any government in the Comonwealth of Nations."

"Mrs. Hodges is remarkably well equipped for the post; a very hard worker on various House committees as well as a constant student of parliamentary procedure. Her long association with newspaper work both here and in Great Britain also has provided her with ample opportunity to study the procedure of various parliaments."

Foreign Backing In Canada $7,300,000,000

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Canadians with the odd few hundred or thousand dollars tucked away, are often told they are missing chances to get in on the money which will be made in their own country in the coming years.

This is probably so. To some extent it may be so because money now is held by many people who are unaccustomed to investment, and who have not the knowledge to show that what is good, or at least promising, and what is bad

However, Canadians are investing a great deal, and even if all were alive to the opportunities which now seem to offer, it is unlikely that there is enough money in a population of 13,500,000 to manage the development of Canada's resources at the rate at which they now are being opened up.

Accordingly, large amounts of outside money are coming in, with the United States far in the lead.

The Canadian Securities Committee which reported to the recent convention in Hollywood, Florida, of the Investment Bankers Association of America, presented some figures on the subject.

Foreign investment in Canada at present, said the committee, is probably about $7,300,000,000, of which $5,400,000,000 is from the United States, and $1,900,000,000 from the United Kingdom and other countries.

Strong Investors

Thus United States money comprises about three-quarters of all outside investment in Canada, a reversal of 1900-13 when three-quarters of it came from Britain

On this, in 1948, Americans received some $267,000,000 in interest on dividends. In fact, United States investments in Canada pay a larger cash return to American investors than all other American investments abroad put together.

Investment, however, is a two-way street. For Canadians, including the government's holdings of United States dollars and gold, and overseas loans, have $4,300,000,000 invested in other countries.

This means that there is about $3,000,000,000 more invested in Canada, than Canada has invested abroad.

Killed By Window

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP) — Trapped in a shattered glass window, as police pursued him, a 16 year old boy died Tuesday night from loss of blood. Police said John King, Jr., ran toward the front of a Brooklyn department store carrying a charity coin collection box as the boy tripped and fell into a glass paneled door. The top half of the panel dropped like the blade of a guillotine, severing an artery in King's right leg.

WHITE SATIN OPERA PUMPS, left, have hand-painted sprays of pink roses scattered over the vamps. After-five bootee, right, has the Parisian look, but it's Canadian made. Open in effect, it is made of Roman striped metallic fabric. The series of little straps and the quarter-inch platform is in gold kid.

Doctor Flies 1,100 Miles To Aid Youth

EDMONTON, Dec. 14 (CP)—An RCAF Dakota aircraft left here Tuesday on a 1,100-mile flight to Cambridge Bay, NWT, to take medical aid to a youth who suffered an eye injury at the tiny Arctic settlement.

A passenger aboard the plane is Dr. J. C. Osborne, attached to the health department's Camsell Indian Hospital here. He will check the eye of Ernie Carter and decide whether he should be flown to Edmonton for treatment.

Hospital authorities said the youth got a wood splinter in one eye. It was taken out by the Hudson Bay Company factor at the hamlet, 400 miles inside the Arctic Circle on the southern shore of Victoria Island.

Word of the youth's plight first was received last Friday, but weather conditions did not permit the Dakota to leave Edmonton until today.

Pilot of the mercy aircraft is FO W. J. Buchan of 435 Transport Squadron, based at Edmonton.

The RCAF made mercy flights to Cambridge Bay earlier this year after an epidemic of dysentery had wiped out most of the Eskimo population there. Some of the sick Eskimos were flown out at the time.

Seek Some Changes For Sailor Veterans

TORONTO, Dec. 14—(CP)—A. J. Heide, secretary of the Canadian Merchant Navy Veterans' Association, said Tuesday that new vocational training benefits for Merchant Navy veterans "will not afford opportunities to a great many men unless the Department of Transport relaxes its policy regarding rules of eligibility."

Many of the applications for vocational training which were turned down this year, he said, were rejected because the applicants had not signed a manning pool agreement or had sailed on ships of non-Canadian registry.

Says Vishinsky Engineered Coup

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Dec. 14—(CP)—The United States delegation to the U.N. today made public charges by Romania's former foreign minister, Constantin Visoianu offered to testify be-Andrei Vishinsky of Russia forced a Communist-dominated government on Romania.

The charges bore out press dispatches of February, 1945, which told of Romania's entrance into the Communist camp.

Visoanu offered to testify before the United Nations. He now is living in New York.

He said that as foreign minister he witnessed a series of meetings Vishinsky had with former King Michael. The climax of the conferences came, Visoianu said, when Vishinsky submitted an ultimatum to the king demanding the replacement of the Government of Nicholas Radescu with one headed by Petre Groza.

Michael was given a two-hour time limit to meet the demand and Vishinsky finally had his way after he banged a table with his fist, the former Romanian foreign minister said.

Visoianu's statement added "that very day saw the beginning of a deployment of Soviet tanks and troops in the streets of Bucharest."

Will Close Fun Spots Midnight December 31

EDMONTON, Dec. 14—(CP)—Attorney-General Lucien Maynard announced Tuesday night Alberta has passed an order-in-council compelling entertainment places to close at midnight New Year's Eve.

This order supersedes one announced by the Attorney-General last week. It would have permitted theatres and dance halls to remain open after midnight on New Year's Eve—a Saturday—and thus by-pass provision of the Lord's Day Act.

Baptist Choral Society Delights City Audience

By HAZEL PAUL

The Toronto Baptist Young People's Choral Society, a virile choir of 100 mixed voices under the direction of the Rev. Arthur Poynter, is a comparatively young choral group which, during the past three years, has become established as a major musical entity. And not without justification. Making its first appearance in Peterborough, Tuesday, the choir presented a program of carols in Murray St. Baptist church with a refreshing vitality.

Christmas music speaks a universal language and the Young People's choir, comprised of Baptist Young People's Unions throughout Toronto and nearby centres, chose an international program representative of countries in Asia, China, Europe and the New World.

Interspersed with some of the best known carols were less familiar works all too rarely performed outside the countries of their origin.

The carol in which the chair revealed its full strength, however, was the Ukrainian Carol of the Bells, which is probably included in the repertoire of every Peterborough church choir. But not every choir is able to give it the vitality and vigour contained in the Toronto choir's interpretation.

The chorus Glory and Honor from Rachmaninoff's Anthem of Praise was another work with which the group excelled, making the best possible use of the full strength of the 100 voices.

Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring is a work which is rarely enhanced by vocalization. It was written for the piano—or more precisely, the harpzichord—and when sung by choir or soloist, tends to lapse into a dull repetition of the same theme. But the choir managed to avoid the monotony of introducing enough light and shade. The performance was indeed a triumph for the conductor.

In the Carol of the Russian Children, a White Russian song, the voices are excellently blended and a Chinese melody with the words, Sing We Then Those Glorious Strains was another unfamiliar carol with which the choir was thoroughly at ease.

Gaiety is one of the most pleasing features of Christmas music and a joyful song was the Swiss carol, A Heavenly Song Is Sung. The male section captured a carefree note with Davis' Shepherds, Awake.

In some carols the choir attained perfect co-ordination but at times there appeared to be a nervous reaction which caused a little raggedness. Poor attack in isolated instances, resulted in untidiness, but the otherwise competent performances amply atoned for this occasional lapse.

Mr. Poynter is fortunate in being able to draw a number of soloists from the ranks of his choir. Most outstanding was Monica Barnard, a mezzo-soprano, whose interpretation of A Star Was His Cradle was one of the highlights of the concert.

The invocation was delivered by the Rev. L. A. Gregory, who also announced that the choir is preparing to present a religious opera in Toronto in May. Entitled The Triumph of Our Lord, the work is written by Mr. Poynter and will be presented by a cast drawn from the choir.

Higher Salaries Ease Shortage

TORONTO, Dec. 14 — (CP) — The Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario says the way to overcome the teacher shortage is to increase salaries rather than lower Normal school entrance requirements.

In a statement concerning suggestions advanced by the Ontario Royal Commission on Education, the Federation, which claims to represent most of Ontario's women teachers, said today that lowering of professional standards was likely to cause highly-qualified teachers to lose pride in their calling.

It urged establishment of an extended training course for public school teachers. It would lead to a degree in education.

The royal commission suggested easier entrance to teacher-training schools as an "emergency" measure.

Store And Theatre Lost In $50,000 Fire

SUDBURY, Dec. 14 (CP) — A general store and theatre were destroyed Tuesday in a $50,000 fire which for a time threatened the entire nearby lumbering village of Foleyet.

The blaze was fought with portable pumps and hose rushed from Sudbury headquarters of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests while the Canadian National Railways supplied the water.

With the water supply some distance from the fire proper, water was pumped into canoes and relayed by the pumps.

The fire was believed to have started from an oil heater in the theatre. The one-story frame building was owned by Joscelyn Robert of Sudbury.

Asks Permanent Cross For RCASC Dog Mascot

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (CP)—Mrs J. W. Meerstadt of Toronto, recently returned from a visit to Holland, said today a permanent marker should be erected over the grave of Lightning, mascot of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps whose body is buried between Loenen and Woeste Hoeve.

Youth 16 Has Filed Appeal For New Trial

KINGSTON, Dec. 14 (CP) — Sixteen-year-old Dale Alfred Childs, sentenced to hang on Feb. 10, 1950, for the rifle slaying of Elijah McQuaig, today filed his own notice of appeal for a new trial.

The petition is being made on the grounds that Mr. Justice J. W. Wilson, who presided at the Supreme Court hearings of Childs' trial in Napanee, which concluded Nov. 19, had failed to charge the jury that a verdict of "guilty of manslaughter" might be returned as an alternative to "guilty of murder."

Childs is filing his petition to the Court of Appeal of the Supreme Court of Ontario on the advice of B. W. Trumpour, his defense counsel at the Napanee trial. Childs is being held in the Napanee jail.

Develop Oil In Saskatchewan

REGINA—(CP)—Saskatchewan can expect a full-scale oil development program next spring; 40 per cent of the province's area now is under permit to 57 oil companies.

A total of 65,486,719 acres of Saskaechewan land now is involved. Of this total 36,448,410 acres are out under crown geophysical permits. There are 869,920 acres under drilling or subsurface permits.

The crown reserve of permits let amounts to 9,038,304 acres; and there are 20,000,000 acres of freehold land, the bulk of which major oil companies and independents have taken up.

After months of trades, deals and readjustments this summer, 57 companies and independents now hold 257 crown permits; 27 groups hold 229 crown geological or physical permits; and 19 groups hold 28 drilling or sub-surface permits.

Between Aug. 1 and Oct. 1 alone the oil and natural gas permit picture in Saskatchewan changed to the extent of 3,639,603 acres. New companies entering the play have taken out 2,435,923 acres. New companies entering the play have taken out 2,435,923 acres. Others added 1,203,680 acres to their holdings.

During the same period roughly 345,600 acres were returned to the crown and added to the crown acreage already under application.

Wealthy Lawyer Buys Husband For Stenog.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14 (AP)—A wealthy lawyer admits that he "bought" a husband for $500 for his secretary to legitimatize her child.

Claud B. Andrews, 54, admitted in court intimacies with his former secretary, Mrs. Helene Nichols, 34, during a 10-year period but denied fathering her baby.

In a paternity suit, Mrs. Nichols claims her former employer set up the mock wedding in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1939 to cover up the birth of their baby.

At a hearing on the suit Tuesday, Mrs. Nichols identified her $500 husband as George L. Davies. She said she never saw him after the wedding. She obtained a divorce from him in 1942 and married Richard Nichols, her present husband, in 1946.

New Yorkers Will Go Dirty Till Water Shortage Over

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP).—Don't shave.

And don't take a bath.

Not in New York next Friday, anyway.

City officials Tuesday called for a shaveless, tubless Dec. 16 and issued a flock of other requests to make the biggest city in the United States also the dryest city on the first water holiday in its history.

"If we find out that the public can cut down voluntarily as much as is needed," said Chief Engineer Edward J. Clark, "it may enable us to postpone putting into effect the drastic restrictive measures we have in mind."

Clark said the city's water supply remains at the critical level despite a day of rain that is expected to add 5,500,000,000 gallons, about five days' supply, to the two-thirds-empty reservoirs.

Rationing Likely

Some form of rationing is held certain unless the current voluntary saving campaign gets better results. A number of non-essential operations, such as auto-washing, already have been banned.

Besides the no-bath-no-shave plea, officials urged that New York's 8,000,000 residents:

Wash breakfast, lunch and dinner dishes all at one time.

Stop using running water to chill beverages, including baby's milk.

Collect laundry, including diapers, for normal tub washing rather than washing items individually.

Keep drinking water in a container in the refrigerator rather than letting faucet water run until it cools.

Clark said industrial users will be expected to cut their water use as far as possible.

Cut Out Rules

The health department today suspended a rule that a continuous flow of water be used for cleaning spoons and dispensing equipment at soda fountains.

Apartment house superintendents were asked to reduce water pressure in toilet fixtures. Officials said the usual pressure is higher than necessary.

Steady, soaking rain in the New York and Northern New Jersey watersheds gave promise of halting the steady drop of reservoir levels for the first time in weeks. Rising temperatures also melted snow in some sections. A number of long-dry streams started flowing again.

Clear Police Officers

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14 (AP)—Inquiry of Hollywood police vice tie-ups has concluded with the clearing of the last of five police officers of all charges. The fifth to be freed was Police Sgt. Elmer V. Jackson. Brenda Allen, former Hollywood vice queen, refused to testify against Jackson although she told a grand jury that she paid him $50 a girl a week for protection. Her refusal was on constitutional grounds that she might incriminate herself.

Mayor Plans Further Inquiry Into Windsor Hospital Report

WINDSOR, Dec. 14 (CP)—The affairs of the city-owned Metropolitan General Hospital were again before the public today.

Mayor Arthur J. Reaume told a special meeting of city council Tuesday night that he will press for an investigation of his report of the death last spring of twin infants born under the care of an unidentified metropolitan doctor.

The mayor told the special meeting, called to discuss a Royal Commission report on the hospital's administration, that certain matters were not brought before the Royal Commission last spring.

He said: "I am sure it will soon become obvious why certain people and groups of this city hurriedly made certain to focus the limelight (of the commission probe) on the Detroit photographers' ball so as to cover up their own mess."

The royal commission was established after Miss Mildred Maybee, superintendent of nurses, resigned following a ball held by the Detroit Photographers Association which the mayor and three other prominent Windsor citizens attended in company with four nurses from the hospital.

The report by Judge Eric Cross, the commissioner, was published last September and recommended the resignation of Horace Atkin, business superintendent of the hospital, who attended the ball with Mayor Reaume, Dr. P. J. G. Morgan, medical superintendent of the East Windsor hospital, and Gordon Fuller, a building contractor.

Mr. Atkin resigned his post. The report's general recommendation concerning the ball was that "such conduct was not in the best interests of the hospital because it undermined internal discipline and when it became known, injured the good name of the hospital these men were bound to serve."

Others At Fault

Mayor Reaume told council that at a closed meeting of the hospital board last March 9 he asked Miss Maybee: "Do you not think that your conduct may have had something to do with the fact that you find it difficult to keep proper discipline among your staff?"

The mayor read from a prepared statement: "I told her and I told the board that it was a well-known fact that she and a number of people on her own staff had attended a house party with married doctors also members of the staff."

Mayor Reaume said he had brought up the other incident at the same hospital meeting. "I brought up the matter of a doctor, a member of the staff of the hospital, who had been called to the home of a Windsor family on a maternity case. Twin boys were delivered by the doctor and it was felt by the doctor that the mother should be taken to the hospital. He called for an ambulance and directed the driver to take the mother to Metropolitan Hospital.

Babies Still Alive

"The driver asked the doctor what he should do with the twins. He was told to leave them there because they were dead. The driver in about an hour or so proceeded back to the home to pick up the twins. Upon entering the bedroom, much to his amazement, the newly-born boys were crying. He immediately rushed them to the Metropolitan General Hospital. They were reported to have died the following day."

The mayor said he now asks council to inquire into this incident and if council does not, "I shall accept the responsibility" and refer the matter to the attorney-general.

Mimeograph Copies Of Zoning Bylaw

One hundred copies of the proposed zoning bylaw in mimeographed form have been received by the finance committee of the council. It was decided Monday night to inform the town planning committee that they are now available as a step toward giving the zoning bylaw final approval.

It is under stood that a synopsis of its main terms and clauses will be prepared and that further publicity is to be arranged by the planning committee.

Make Trial Run

Keep Canada In Mind

LONDON, Dec. 14 (Reuters)—Richard Stokes, Labor member for Ipswich, suggested Tuesday in the House of Commons that British manufacturers of heavy machinery should set aside at least five per cent of their production in 1950 for shipment to Canada. This, he said, should be done regardless of their obligations to other customers.

Japs Entering Canada Must Prove Loyalty

OTTAWA, Dec. 14—(CP)—Any Canadian-born Japanese seeking re-entry into Canada would have to give definite proof of his loyalty to the dominion if he had served with Japanese forces during the war, a government source said Tuesday.

He was commenting on a Vancouver dispatch which quoted the Vancouver News Herald as saying Canadian-born Japanese will return to Canada shortly. The story said some of the Japanese, who would be the first to return to Canada since the end of the second world war, fought with the Japanese forces but that the government considers they were conscripted and had no alternative.

Plan Round-the-Clock B.C. Liquor Deliveries

VANCOUVER, Dec. 14 (CP)—An around-the-clock liquor delivery system will be set up in Vancouver early in 1950, Ald. Archie Proctor said Tuesday night.

Plans for a "night owl" downtown liquor store will be shelved in favor of the delivery system, he said.

Ald. Proctor and Mayor Charles Thompson conferred with Liquor Commissioner W. F. Kennedy in Victoria Monday.

"Mr. Kennedy said the present liquor laws are inadequate and antiquated," said the alderman, "and that a delivery system can be worked out."

A resident of the district for 56 years, Mr. Turgeon held the police and fire department positions by virtue of being chosen a chief engineer of the settlement in 1896. Duties of the chief engineer in those days included law enforcement, fire prevention, pound duties and general city "handy man" work.

NARROW ESCAPE—Mrs. Earnest Wright of Montreal still has her heart in her throat. Her nine-months-old daughter Maureen took hold of an open safety pin while Mrs. Wright was changing the baby's diapers. As some babies do, Maureen swallowed the pin. After a lot of back thumping, Mrs. Wright stuck her finger down the baby's throat to bring the pin up. She felt the sharp end on the pin there, grabbed it and pulled it up. Maureen's fine. "It's funny, but I wasn't afraid right then," said Mrs. Wright. "But after . . . "

Sleeping Pills Gets Rid Snakes

LAINGSBURGH, South Africa, Dec. 14—(CP)—Eight snakes have succumbed to the "sleeping pill" technique of farmer A. C. Esterhuizen, who became annoyed when the snakes constantly raided his pigeon roosts. He said that if pigeons were sitting on the nests, the snakes would nose beneath the birds and remove the eggs.

Mr. Esterhuizen suffers from insomnia. He took some of his sleeping pills and inserted a powder made from them through a tiny hole in the end of several eggs, covering the hole with wax.

Five mornings in a row, peacefully slumbering serpent was found near the nests and three others have been caught since in the same way.

Utilities Resents Attitude Of CNR

COBOURG, Dec. 14—(ENS)—The Public Utilities Commission, on motion of Maurice Booth, seconded by Charles Jackson, Tuesday expressed its resentment at the attitude indicated by the superintendent of the CNR in regard to the utilities raising the water rates. The company plans to use water from the factory creek and is running a pipe to this stream.

Mr. Booth commented that the government owned the railway and the company had objected to the utilities raising the water rate even though the new rate would only allow the utilities to break even on the cost of water supplied. Mr. Booth said it was strange that the railway superintendent would take offence because the utilities wanted to avoid a loss on the water supplied to the railway.

"I think the Utilities Commission should have written to the president of the CNR and laid the facts before him and I doubt if the superintendent would then have been permitted to take the action which is being planned," observed Mr. Booth. Commissioner Jackson said he had been told that in two years diesels would be used. Chairman Cecil Wilson commented that the CPR had not objected when the water rate was raised.

"I wonder if it is still too late for us to see what can be done about it. It will cost the company at least $20,000 to connect with the facory creek. It doesn't look like good business for the CNR. For years we supplied water at less than cost to the railway and all we have done now is to bring the rate up enough to put every commercial user on the same basis and actually they are gettnig their water for what it costs us. The CNR superintendent took exception to us raising the rate this year," declared Commissioner Booth.

"I think it is a case spite as far as this superintendent is converned," stated Chairman Wilson.

It was decided to present the facts to the president of the CNR and forward a copy of the letter to the local member of pacliament.

Restrict Lighting

The Commission was advised by Manager Willam Woods that the Cmmission and town council were to hold a joint meeting next Friday evening. It was announced that hydro restrictions on store lighting would be lifted during the hours of 7 p.m. until midnight from December 15 to 24 inclusive and all day Saturday on Dec. 17 and 24.

The report on the cost of the twelve-inch water main installed during the latter part of 1948 and put into service on Feb. 4, 1949, revealed that the net cost was $85,754.83.

The following report on revenue received from the water system over the past ten months plus an estimate on the remaining two months, revealed that actual revenue for ten months was $51,-227.70; estimated for two months, $10,574.70 less $5,597.89 for hydrants and miscellaneous, for a net of $56,204.51. Water revenue from the following industries, with 11 months actual and one month estimated was: CGE, $3,231.04; Edwards and Edwards, $4.902.92; General Foods, $3,-330.40; dye works, $4,380.12; CNR, $3,226.83; CPR, $1,094.87; House of Refuge, $186.00, and golf club, $183.21; total—$20,533.48.

Abandon Safe Job

COLLINGWOOD, Dec. 14 (CP) —A tearful gang of safecrackers abandoned their efforts at the Collingwood Milling Company office on Tuesday—foiled by a split bottle of insecticide. The robbers apparently mistook the bottle's contents for oil and poured it into a hole they were drilling in the company's safe to deaden the noise. The liquid was a powerful tear gas, used by the company for fumigation purposes.

Farmer, Daughter Held In Death of 2 Children

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., Dec. 14 (CP)—An elderly Allumette Island farmer and his 18-year-old daughter will appear in magistrate's court here next month for preliminary hearing on charges in connection with the death of two children.

Adonias Demers, 65, and his unmarried daughter, Rita, Tuesday were found mentally fit to stand trial. Police say that the girl, an attractive brunette, is the mother of the two children.

She was remanded Tuesday by Magistrate Roland Millar for preliminary hearing January 11 on a charge of failing to make adequate provisions following the birth of a child two months ago.

The girl's father was remanded to the same date for preliminary hearing on a charge of concealing the birth of another child alleged to have been born two years ago.

Demers was released on $950 bail, but the court refused to grant bail to his daughter, eldest of eight Demers children.

An investigation was launched by police last week following a report from a parish priest at Allumette Island, 18 miles northwest of here and across the Ottawa river from Pembroke, Ont. The priest told police he had seen the girl two months ago, had seen her since, but that in the interim no newborn child had been christened, blessed or reported.

Police said they had found the body of the child born two months ago, buried near the Demers' farm home.

Police said the girl told them the child had been born at 9 a.m. in the morning and that at 3 p.m. the same day she had taken the baby out, dug a grave and buried the child.

Police said they still were searching for the body of the second child, alleged to have been buried at the rear of the farmhouse.

Austerity Yule For One Group

LONDON, Dec. 14 (CP) — Officials of the Lord's Day Observance Society will observe an austerity Christmas this year because the date falls on Sunday.

For them there will be no parties, no turkey dinners, no merriment.

J. Branscombe Wilmot, Bristol organizer, said he will give presents to his 18-month-old son David, Christmas Eve, take them away from his Christmas Day and return them again Monday.

At Tunbridge Wells, Kent, Herbert H. Martin, secretary of the society, will eat meals cooked the day before. He will not ride in public transport Christmas Day, will make no phone calls, will not turn on the radio.

Ray Gould, 30, also will eat a plain meal cooked the day before in his Ipswich home.

"I don't make any phone calls on Sunday, but we are expecting our first child," said Gould. "If it were to arrive I might phone then —that would be a welcome emergency."

Army Camp Huts And Plumbing Stolen In Quebec

MONTREAL, Dec. 14 (CP) — More than a score of 100-odd huts, along with plumbing, electrical and other equipment, have been stolen from the summer army camp at Farnham, the army's Quebec Command announced Tuesday.

No arrests have yet been made, but an investigation has disclosed a number of huts now in use in the district. The investigation is being conducted by the RCMP and the Quebec Command Provost Detachment.

No estimate of the value of the stolen property was given, although it is known some of the huts have been sold for $50.

A statement by Maj.-Gen. R. O. G. Morton, general officer commanding, Quebec Command, said:

"Pending complete investigation of the Farnham camp case, it is impossible to say what action will be taken against any one involved. However, the investigation will be pressed to the limit and complete information will be released as it becomes available."

Not Used Since 1947

The summer camp area of the military camp at Farnham is about a mile northwest of the town and has not been in use since 1947. Two civilians, employed by the National Defense Department, have been acting as caretakers.

The huts stolen are of the kitchen type, 12 by 24 feet, and the latrine type, 6 by 12 feet. Other material stolen included piping, plumbing, sinks, toilet bowls, shower equipment, electric fixtures, radiators, kitchenware, windows and frames, and electric wires from camp poles.

The three larger main buildings at the summer camp—camp headquarters, officers' quarters and men's quarters—have been stripped. Only the walls, roof and flooring remain.

An army spokesman said so far 21 of the huts of both types stolen have been located in the Eastern Townships area. Disappearance of the huts apparently began in recent weeks.

WINDOW LIGHTING RESTRICTIONS TEMPORARILY SUSPENDED DURING SPECIFIED PERIODS

Commencing tomorrow (December 15, 1949) and effective until midnight, December 24th, store window lighting restrictions are suspended between the hours of 7:00 p.m. and 12:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, and all day Saturday, December 17th, and Saturday, December 24th.

This temporary suspension of the restrictions on store window lighting during the Christmas shopping period is possible because of arrangements made to divert additional water through the Welland Canal at the close of navigation. This permits increased output at DeCew Falls.

It is essential, however, that all consumers continue to save electricity whenever and wherever possible. This is particularly important during the heavy load periods from 10:00 a.m. to 12 noon and from 4:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.

HP THE SAUCE THAT SEASONS JUST RIGHT...

Don't let a Cold mar your Holiday Season

DECEMBER is here and with it lurks the "common cold"! Ontario citizens are reminded now of a few simple helpful rules to safeguard their health, and that of others.

Prevention of the common cold is the responsibility of all, and if everyone plays his part much unnecessary illness, expense and discomfort may be avoided.

With the holiday season looming ahead, when so much happiness depends on everyone feeling fit, why run the risk of "catching cold"—or letting members of your family face that danger?

In the interest of parents and families, the Ontario Department of Health recommends every Ontario citizen to study the common sense precautions suggested below and act upon them.

Five Simple Precautions

1. Take plenty of rest. Avoid becoming unduly tired. Endeavour to follow a well-balanced diet.
2. Avoid becoming wet, chilled or overheated. If clothing becomes wet, it should be changed as quickly as possible.
3. If a cold overtakes you, go to bed until it improves. If it does not clear up rapidly, do not hesitate to seek medical advice.
4. Be thoughtful of others. If suffering from a cold, do not spread germs by coughing or sneezing openly.
5. Avoid crowds as far as possible.

No one wants to be "laid up" with a cold . . . especially at this holiday time of year. By following these five common-sense precautions you can help yourself and others enjoy a happy, healthy holiday . . . free from the seasonal misery of the "common cold".

Christmas Holds Deep Meaning For 2 Belgians

AYLMER, Dec. 14 (CP)—When the words "Halig Kerstdag" and "ook zoveel," meaning "merry Christmas" and "the same to you" in Flemish, are exchanged between Maurice Van Hallewyn and Maurice Hostens on Christmas morning, they will hold deep meaning for both men.

The story began 22 years ago when Mr. Van Hellewyn first came to this area in southwestern Ontario as a boy of 20. In 1930 he returned to Belgium to be married, returning in 1937 with his wife, Julia, and two daughters. Starting as a tobacco sharecropper he built in 12 years a testimonial to his own and his family's hard work, 227 acres for which he has been offered $75,000, a car, barns and kilns.

Now that the Van Hellewyns have built themselves the beginning of a substantial fortune, they are prepared to share what they have. Maurice Hostens, his wife and daughter have been brought from Belgium and are living in a comfortable cottage on the Van Hallewyn property. Maurice is learning the tobacco business and in a few years will be a sharecropper. After that, he will probably be a tobacco farmer in his own right.

So when the two meet on Christmas morning there will be great feeling and a lot of memories in "halig Kerstag" and "ook zoveel."

Filmtown Sees New Kind Of Premiere

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14 (AP)—The filmtown saw a different kind of premiere Tuesday night, attended by two dozen of its most famous oldtime stars.

The movie kings and queens of yesteryear met in the basement of a bank to honor the anniversary of "The Squaw Man," Hollywood's first feature picture. Cecil B. Demille said he started directing the picture in an orange grove near the bank 36 years ago to the day.

Theda Bara, now a society matron, looked dark-eyed and exotic, if a trifle round. Portly radio actor Francis X. Bushman flashed his famous profile. Ramon Novarro, a real estate dealer and character actor, was thin haired but still courtly with the ladies.

Mae Murray, now dabbling in television, flouced around as though she would break into a "Merry Widow" waltz. Jack Holt, still active in films, was bald but still looked able to save a heroine from the log-jam.

Among the others: William Farnum, Emo Lincoln, Norman Kerry, Herbert Rawlinson, Quebec-born Mack Sennett, Anita King, Claire Windsor, Andy Clyde, Blanche Sweet and Winifred Kingston, who appeared in "The Squaw Man."

Laughed one-time idol Bushman: "Nowadays people meet me and say, 'Francis X. Bushman. I thought you were dead.' "

"JAKE" AND JILLS—Arriving in New York on the SS Atlantic, Jacob ("Long Jake") Nacken, a seven-foot, eight-inch giant from Germany, got a chance to display his muscle. Comfortably perched on his arms are showgirls Siri left, and Rosemary Kittleton, who are themselves over six feet tall. Jake's real mission to the U. S. is to play the part of the "world largest Santa Claus" for a New Jersey motor car company.

He huffed, puffed and blew the coin out.

Sixth meeting of the Warsaw Homemaker's Club was held in the Institute rooms Saturday and was opened with a Christmas song, General rules of meal planning according to Canada's food rules, avoiding waste and proper cooking were the subjects discussed. Lunch was served at the close.

Everthing Backwards! !

When pie is served first at a dinner table, the bewildered diner might well think it was the only item on the menu. But if, after eating several pieces, he is confronted with a plate of meat, potatoes and vegetables, and later with an appetizer, he is likely to be thoroughly confused. That is if he has never heard of a "backwards dinner" such as the St. Paul's Young People had Tuesday evening. Not only did their digestive systems have some difficulties to overcome; the guests had physical difficulties in trying to eat with their coats and sweaters worn backwards. Confusion subsided late in the evening when they enjoyed three films, "Winter Sports in Ontario," "Hot Ice" and the Leslie Bell Choir singing carols. President Barbara Luther presided.

Mr. and Mrs. Have Gay Party

A potluck dinner party planned for Tuesday evening by the St. Paul's Mr. and Mrs. Club turned out to be anything but a pot luck affair and it was highly enjoyed. Mrs. G. Minty and Mrs. B. Whitton, social conveners, planned the meal, assisted by Mrs. J. Morrow, Mrs. J. Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Coleman, Jr. Coloured lights, red candles and bright poinsettias made a gala setting. Mr. Christopher Gledhhill played pleasing piano selections which heralded the arrival of Santa Claus to distribute the gift packages prepared for each of the Mr.s' and Mrs.' present. A slate of officers for the coming year was presented by the president, Howard MacDonald, and they will be installed at the January meeting. He also announced that the club will present the Canada Packers Operatic Society in "Pirates of Tenzan" on Saturday, April 1. The group then joined the Young People's Club for a showing of films.

Splendid Program Highlights Christmas Party

December meeting of the Catholic Junior League Tuesday evening took the form of a dinner party at the Empress Hotel with more than 60 members present.

Arrangements for the occasion were in charge of the social convener, Miss Gladys Costello, assisted by Mrs. E. Collis, Mrs. T. McKenna, Mrs. R. Baldwin and Misses Rita Young, Veronica O'Leary, Lorenda Kearney and Veronica Scollard.

A large carton was placed at the entrance in which each member placed a tin of canned goods, to be an added treat in the Christmas baskets soon to be delivered.

The tables were festively decorated with tall green, red, gold and silver tapers, and large bouquets of spruce tied with Christmas wrappers in the centre, around which were cones and bright ornaments. Small Santas were very much in evidence, and at each plate there was a small red candle in a green and white holder.

Each member was given a sheet of paper, some seals and pins, and with this she created a fancy hat. Prize for the best hat went to Miss Veronica O'Leary, and a prize for the lucky chair went to Mrs. R. Hull.

Mrs. M. Crough was chairman for the program, which opened with two delightful solos by Miss Helen Hajnik, "O Holy Night" and "We Three Kings of Orient Are." For an encore she sang the ever lovely "Think on Me." Mrs. R. Baldwin recited "The Night Before Christmas," which was followed with the arrival of Santa Claus to present each member with a gift.

Mrs. W. Gannon, Mrs. W. English, Mrs. E. Collis and Mrs. C. McCoy gave two very delightful dance and song numbers, "I'm a Lonely Little Petunia" and "Buttons and Bows," and returned later to give the "Hop Scotch Polka."

An amusing and cleverly done skit, entitled "The Rummage Sale," was enacted by Mrs. R. Hull, Mrs. T. McKenna, Misses Loretta Sullivan, Veronica O'Leary and Genevieve Murray.

Two comic solos, "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" and "All I Want for Christmas is My Two Front Teeth," were given by Miss Mary McTeague and Miss Margaret Gorman.

Throughout the evening favorite Christmas carols were sung by all. Acompanists were Mrs. F. Hancock, Mrs. R. Aman and Miss Veronica Scollard.

Those present were Mesdames P. Scollard, W. J. Hickey, R. Hull, T. McKenna, F. Hancock, J. O'Brien, E. Collis, F. Maybee, D. F. McCarthy, R. Aman, R. Payne, H. Bartlett, M. Crough, D. Ouimet, J. Soroptimists Joined By Golden Milers For Dinner Party

Soroptimists of Peterborough forgot the responsibilities of business Tuesday evening at a gay Christmas dinner party at which they entertained members of the Golden Mile Club.

Miss Ann Thomson was the hostess and the event took place in the Argyle St. nurses' residence. Rooms had been decorated by the student nurses and were most tastefully done, featuring poinsettas and red candles. Dinner tables were lovely with red and gold decorations and attractive place cards set out for 48 guests.

The menu, featuring turkey of course, was arranged and served under direction of courtesy chairman Miss Grace Sargent assisted by Misses Jane Saunders and Mary Ross of the committee and other members.

Mrs. May Thompson, president, announced the draw on the club's annual draw of a turkey dinner for eight will take place at the Paramount Treatre Friday evening and will be made by Mrs. M. J. Swanston. Contents will be placed on view in Fair's store window for three days preceding the draw and members were appointed to be in attendance during that time.

Presentation of a past president's pin which had been delayed in transit was made to Miss Grace Sargent, who retired from the office in June.

Entertainment included the familiar carols, "Silent Night," "Little Town of Bethlehem" and "Come All Ye Faithful" sung by a chorus of six student nurses, accompanied by the director Mrs. Wilcox.

Golden Mile Club president Mrs. E. Chatten and Mrs. N. Stanger rendered "When you and I were young", in costume and Mrs. Stanger gave a recitation.

Agnes Logan Green played several beautiful piano selections and accompanied Miss Margaret Wolstenholme when she sang "Infant Holy." Everyone joined in singing the delightful Christmas carols until the selection was exhausted.

Santa Claus paid a visit to the party, accompanied by two very playful helpers who tried various capers and antics while they delivered gifts from the tree.

The happy evening closed with singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Women Say Dane "Misguided" About Husbands

VICTORIA, B.C., Dec. 14.—If Canadian males are overly domesticated it hasn't shown up in Victoria.

Housewives here are inclined to shrug off as "misguided" the comments of Palle Bojesen, a Dane from Copenhagen, who said in an interview in Toronto that "husbands over here do too much."

"If my husband had to do all the household chores, he wouldn't come home. I don't think any of them would," laughed pretty blonde Mrs. Robert Obee, a housewife and mother. "We do the dishes together in the evening, but as for the rest I think Mr. Bojesen is off the beam."

The Dane's observations that "in Denmark we put our women on a pedestal, too, but they'll do anything for us," made no impression on tall, dark and attractive Mrs. Kenneth R. Claderbank.

"He's gone too far," she said. "Ken does the dishes at night while I get my son ready for bed, and most of our friends are the same way. We certainly don't have as much work to do as our mothers did, what with all the modern appliances, but we still keep busy all day long."

Not only does Mrs. John M. Bond not want to be put on a pedestal, but she likes doing housework.

"I enjoy my job and wouldn't want to change it for any career. But as for a husband doing all the household work . . . I don't go down to the office and do his work, why should he do mine?"

Beautiful Service For Christmas By George St WMS

Effective decorations were in the George St. Church Board Room Tuesday afternoon for the Christmas meeting of the WMS. Mrs. J. Semple, who was responsible for the setting, also prepared the program.

The theme, "Our faith in Jesus Christ," was ably presented with the assistance of Mrs. C. Allen, Mrs. W. Young, Mrs. J. Bickle and Miss J. Shaeffer, interspersed with carol singing. A Christmas story was told by Mrs J. F. Reycraft. Mrs. Ross Moore sang the beauttiful hymn, "Thou dids't leave thy throne," all members joining in the refrain. She was accompanied by Mrs. W. P. Purdy.

Chimes softly peeled the strains of "Silent Night" as the offering was received by Mrs. H. Girven and Mrs. S. Wildman, following which it was dedicated by Mrs. H. Bamforth.

Subdued lighting brought the beauty of an illuminated cross and white tapers and heightened the atmosphere of reverance and devotion throughout the inspiring service. A large silver star, evergreens and lighted candles decorated the mantel.

President Mrs. E. H. Brown presided for a short business session when nominations convener Mrs. V. Boorman presented the slate for 1950, which will be installed by the Rev. Dr. J. Semple at the next meeting. A graduating ceremony for children of the Baby Band who have reached an age where they may join the Mission Band will also take place at January meeting. It was announced that Peterborough Presbyterial meeting will be held in Knox Church on January 24.

Zeller's Staff Entertains 20 Children

The staff of Zeller's Ltd. this year had the happy thought to make themselves exemplary of the real Christmas spirit, and at their dinner party Tuesday evening they entertained the children from St. Vincent's Orphanage and the Shelter. Transportation arrangements were made by manager Mr. D. J. Fizgerald, and 20 children were brought to the store's second floor where small tables were set for their convenience.

The guests and staff enjoyed a delicious supper, prepared under direction of Miss Hazel Guerin, president of the Better Relations committee, and served by Mrs. Allen, Misses Wilma Goodwin, Wilda Madill, Rita Maynard, Martha Clark and Mae Bertrand.

A dazzling tree, laden with gifts, was the keynote of the charming decorations. Miss Jean Rutherford had arranged a short program which opened with a nice little poem of Christmas wishes to the staff members given by their young guest Arthur Shifly. They were heartily thanked for the evening by another guest, Donald Johnston. All of the children helped to entertain with songs and recitations.

Miss Marion McCaskey played her guitar and sang several numbers, concluding with "Here Comes Santa Claus" as she heard his sleigh bells ringing. The jolly old gent came in and handed out gifts to each of the children and the staff members.

Presentation of a travelling bag was made to Miss Elaine Savigny by girls of the staff, showing their appreciation of her personal relations with work in the store.

Mr. Fitzgerald spoke briefly, extending Christmas wishes.

The evening was closed with a sing-song and staff members expressed their feeling of greater enjoyment from "giving." It was evident that the guests were thoroughly pleased to be the "receivers."

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Early Marriage Ruins Chances of Young Couple

DEAR MISS DIX: We are a boy and girl, 19 and 18 years old, very much in love with each other. We have come to the conclusion that we are too young to marry and our plan is to stop seeing each other for a month. However, if at the end of this time we find we are still in love, what would you advise us to do? Marry at once, try a long engagement, or what?

Dorothy Dix

AL AND KAY.

ANSWER: You two youngsters seem so sensible I wonder if you can't be a little more intelligent still and realize how foolish you will be if you either get married or enter into a long engagement. Try to rationalize the situation.

You do not need any one to tell you that at your age your characters and your tastes are still unformed, because you have only to think back a year or two to realize how much you have changed and how the things and people that you were crazy about bore you to tears now. That being true, you are bound to know that you will change even more radically in the next three or four years.

Handicapping Future

You must also realize that if you get married now when you are 18 and 19 years old, you are not only cutting yourself out of all the playtime of life, but you are handicapping your future so that you can never accomplish the things that you are ambitious to do. If you are married you cannot have the good times you are entitled to at your age. When other girls are going to parties, Kay will have to be at home cooking dinner and nursing a crying baby. When other boys are going to college and thinking about studying some profession, Al will have to be toiling early and late at whatever poor job he can get, because he has a family that he has to support.

Then there is another thought: Don't you think that when a boy and girl in their 'teens get married they are handing their families an awfully rotten deal, because they are forcing their parents to support them? For fathers and mothers can't let their children starve, no matter how selfish and inconsiderate they are.

So, children, take my advice, and don't rush into a hasty marriage nor into a long engagement. Just be friends until you are old enough to know your own minds and until you have got enough start in the world not to make your marriage a tragedy to your parents.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a man 65, a widower, well off financially, all my children married. I have fallen in love, at least I suppose it is love. Anyway, it is something that is acting just as it did when I had it as a young man and got married. But I have not a tooth in my head and I have rheumatism. Should I get married and go to housekeeping? Or would it be best for me to keep on being hacked around like I am now? LONESOME.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Well, if I were you, Mr. Widower, I'd get some teeth before I went a-courting, for, take it from me, no self-respecting woman is going to marry a toothless old man.

As for the balance, 65 is not too old to think of getting married if you pick out a lady of a proper age, say somewhere around the fifties or a little later. Sixty-five is merely middle-age now, and many men and women of that age marry and have a beautiful and satisfying friendship that makes life more interesting for both of them. You can give the woman a good home and she can make a comfortable home for you, and so it is an excellent arrangement all the way round.

I dont' think many old people are happy and satisfied living with their children. So for their own sakes and their children's sakes it is a good thing when a middle-aged father or mother gets married and sets up his or her own home.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have a daughter of 18 who left high school before finishing her second year, greatly to my chagrin. I thought that if she would not go to school she should go to work, but she refuses to do that also. She does nothing but sit in in the house all day, with no interest in anything and has got so lay she won't even go on an errand for her mother. What can we do about it? A FATHER.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The first thing to do is to take her to some competent doctor and have a thorough examination made of her. Many girls do not like to study or work but they have plenty of energy about amusing themselves, so the mere fact that your daughter shows no desire for pleasure or going about would seem to indicate that there is some physical reason for her lassitude.

But if she is just bone lazy, I do not know what you can do about it. You could turn a lazy boy out and tell him that he has to either work or starve, bu tyou can't use such drastic treatment on a girl.

As a working wife you wonder how much you should talk about your job when you and your husband are out socially.

KILLINGBECK—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Joseph Killingbeck, who passed away Dec. 14, 1948.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone,

That grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
When all other things decay
Our love for him will still keep green
And never fade away.
—Ever remembered by his wife, daughter and son.

KILLINGBECK—In loving memory of Joseph Killingbeck, who passed away one year ago today.
